Medical Genius's Unspeakable Marriage

Chapter 391

All of a sudden, James and Helen looked extremely embarrassed. In order to prevent Sasha from investing, they had made a huge scene; they kneeled before her and even threatened to jump off the building. In the end, Sasha finally withdrew the 200 million.

Moreover, at that time, in order to save on interest, they even distributed the 200 million to the shareholders who wanted to invest in Matthew. James and Helen had been extremely delighted then.

Everybody said that their plan had saved the company millions on interest, but who would've thought that Matthew would win? It was a shock to all of them!

Those shareholders who chose to invest in Matthew indeed made a lot of money. They even clamored to host a celebration banquet because of this while James and Helen were regretting not investing in him. They had just lost the opportunity to make billions!

When they thought back to how they forced Sasha to withdraw the investment, they blushed in embarrassment. They had no one to blame but themselves for missing out on earning billions.

After a while, Helen cleared her throat and said, "Saying all of this now is pointless because nobody can foresee the future. At that time, this investment didn't look promising. Your father and I made the decision that we thought was best for you. We didn't think that the investment would make money.

James frowned. "Matthew will only be reasoning with him, not riling him up. Besides, Matthew helped him to make a lot of money; he'll definitely be willing to give it to Matthew!"

Sasha waved her hand and said, "Regardless, I won't allow Matthew to go, and I won't let him take the risk!"

Suddenly, Demi sneered, "Wow, Sasha, you really do love your husband. Since when did Matthew become so delicate? What happened to him being brave when fighting against the Jacksons and the Hughes?"

You can give your all to protect your reputation, but now that we're asking you to do something for the family, you turn into a coward and call it a risk!"

Sasha was furious. "Shut your mouth! If it weren't for you, the incident with the Hughes would never have happened!"

Upon hearing, Demi yelled angrily, "You really are thick-skinned! If it weren't for your husband, would I have to suffer? Matthew, I'm warning you. I'll never forgive you for this!"

Seeing that the two of them were about to start a fight, James slammed his fists on the table and roared, "Shut it! The decision has been made! Matthew, you'll talk to Stanley tomorrow."

Chapter 393

It was late at night and there was a group of people in a deserted factory located in Eastcliff's northern suburbs. The person who led the group was none other than Travis Hughes.

Not far from where he stood was Crystal, who was being hung from a machine. She was in a bad state, with blood stains all over her body and her clothes in tatters. Meanwhile, Annie and the rest were curled up on the ground.

That night, Annie did what Travis asked, tricking Crystal into going to the nightclub's VIP room. At first, she thought that doing so could lead to a good relationship. Once Crystal married into the Hughes family, her status would rise too. Little did she know that Travis would reveal his true colors as soon as Crystal stepped into the room.

Not only did he knock Crystal to the ground, he beat up Annie and the others when they tried to resist. However, it didn't end there. Travis even brought them to this factory area and hung Crystal from the machine. Only then did Annie and the others realize what was going on. What was done was done; it was too late for regret.

During this time, Lucas's girlfriend tried to run away but Travis's men broke her legs. Till now, she was still wailing on the floor. These bunch of usually arrogant and domineering second-generation wealthy children were now curled on the ground, shivering in fear.

They liked to show off their power and thought that nobody could hurt them. At that moment, however, they finally saw what a real villain was!

Travis laughed coldly. "Crystal Harrison, are you telling me what to do? Do you need me to hang your grandfather up so that you understand who's the boss around here?"

Upon hearing, Crystal immediately started to panic. Her grandfather wouldn't be able to handle the pain. Just then, Annie said in a trembling voice, "Young Master Hughes, t-this matter doesn't concern us... How about you let us go?"

Crystal was furious. "Annie, how can you be so shameless? You were the one who pushed me toward Travis back then! It was also you who tricked me and let Travis capture me. But now you're asking to leave? Do you even have a conscience?"

Annie refused to be deterred. "Crystal, stop painting yourself as an innocent child. What do you mean by me being the one who pushed you toward Travis? If you didn't want to do it, could I have tied you up and thrown you over my shoulder?"

From the beginning, you were the one who went on and on about taking us to meet one of the heirs of the Ten Greatest Families of Eastshire. How can you deny that you weren't planning to get close to Young Master Hughes all along?"

Crystal was at a loss for words because Annie was right, but the latter wasn't finished. "And don't you dare say that I tricked and lured you to the nightclub! Did I point a gun at you? It was you yourself who wanted to go! Besides, everytime you asked me out for drinks, when did I ever reject you?"

"Larson, I can't believe that you came. Is it really worth risking your life to save a vain and fickle woman like her?"

Matthew slowly walked to the center of the room and raised his voice, "As a matter of fact, I don't know Miss Harrison very well. The reason I came is because Mr. Harrison has helped me a lot, which is why his problems are my problems!

Travis Hughes, let's stop with this nonsense. Since I'm already here, let Mr. and Miss Harrison go now, and we'll settle the matter between us."

Travis burst into laughter. "Matthew, do you really think you can bargain with me at a time like this?" To which Matthew replied, "Travis, do you really think that your people can kill me?"

Travis retorted, "Oh, Larson, you think too highly of yourself! Do you know who these people are? Let me get this straight. They are martial art masters and are personally trained by the Hughes. All of them are experts at fighting! Oh, and I know that you can fight, but compared to them, you're nothing!"

Matthew chuckled. "I'm not planning to fight them. Travis, you better think wisely. I might not be a match for them, but if I wanted to run, they may not be able to stop me! Moreover, do you know how many people are outside right now?"

Travis loosened his grip on Crystal and kicked at her. "Leave!" Panicked, Crystal hurriedly ran over to help Joseph. However, Joseph pushed her away and said in a trembling voice, "Young Master Hughes...

If you're looking for someone to kill, kill me... This has nothing to do with Mr. Larson. Please let him go..."

Travis flew into rage. "Old man, I've already given you a chance. Hurry up and leave! Don't provoke me any further. Otherwise, you'll be the first one I kill!"

Joseph was about to speak but Matthew cut him off, "Mr. Harrison, take Miss Harrison and leave. Mr. Newman is outside; he has a way to save me." Joseph was rooted to the spot. He knew that Matthew was persuading him to leave. If Billy really had a way, he would've entered and saved them long ago.

"Mr. Larson..."

Matthew interrupted him loudly, "Mr. Harrison, stop wasting any more time. Go! Don't worry, I'll be fine. Miss Harrison, hurry up and leave with your grandfather!"

Travis was not the only one who fell to the ground. Even his subordinates, as well as Annie and the others, collapsed to the ground. All Travis could feel was numbness all over his body and he had no strength at all. Looking at Matthew in panic, he asked "W-What the hell is going on?"

Matthew chuckled and replied, "Travis, I can't believe that you come from a family of doctors. Don't you know that the better the medical skills, the higher the ability to poison others? Since I dare to come knocking at your door, do you think I would come unprepared?"

When I came in, I scattered a colorless and odorless drug. By now, the drug has already filled this entire warehouse and you would have already inhaled a lot of it into your system."

Travis asked, "You are here too and you have inhaled the drug, but how are you fine?"

"That's because I took the antidote in advance," said Matthew. It suddenly dawned on Travis and he couldn't help but roar, "Matthew, y-you're despicable!"

Matthew chuckled. "You call me despicable? Travis, you captured an old man and a few weak women to threaten me, yet you call me despicable?"

Please forgive me this once; just this once! You can treat me like a dog, but let me go. I-I will never dare to step into Eastcliff ever again! Master Newman, it's not worth it to become enemies with the Hughes family on my account..."

Billy replied with a cold expression, "If I don't kill you today, don't you think that others would dare to cause me trouble in future as well? Travis, you've sentenced yourself to death from the moment you captured Crystal!"

Upon saying that, Billy waved his hand and a few men instantly dragged Travis away. He screamed and pleaded for mercy but nobody paid any attention to him. Seeing this, Travis' subordinates shivered in fear, their faces pale. Nobody dared to say a single word the whole time.

Billy glanced at them and said, "Break their arms and legs, then throw them out of Eastcliff! Go back and tell the Hughes family that from now on, no one is allowed to step foot in Eastcliff.

Otherwise, I'll pay a visit to the Hughes family residence myself!" With that, Billy spun and left. Travis's subordinates immediately wailed and begged for mercy, but everyone ignored them.

Matthew looked at the two of them in surprise. "Mr. Harrison, have you been waiting for me this whole time? Is anything the matter?"

Feeling embarrassed, Joseph replied softly, "Mr. Larson, I wanted to bring my unfilial granddaughter over to thank you. I'm truly sorry for what happened at the conference.

I heard that she talked back. It's my fault for spoiling her too much and for not teaching her well. I did not expect that you would even save our lives. I-I..."

As Joseph spoke, his eyes turned red and his voice began to tremble; he was deeply touched that Matthew was willing to risk his life to save them. Matthew chuckled and replied, "Mr. Harrison, there's no need to thank me.

Back when I was at my lowest, it was you who helped me out; there is nothing I can do to return that favor. Me saving the two of you was the least I could do. There's no need to be worried!"

Hearing this, Joseph hurriedly said, "Mr. Larson, you took a huge risk tonight—I know that it was no small effort. I-I really don't know how to thank you. If there's anything you need help with in the future, just let me know. I'm at your disposal, Mr. Larson."

Even after various attempts, Matthew was not successful. It seemed like the several pots he had prepared weren't suitable. As such, he felt somewhat resigned. Although he had all the required herbs, there was nothing he could do as he had yet to find suitable tools to make the medicine.

He started recalling how his ancestors used to make medicine and remembered that there was a special cauldron they used which could withstand extremely high temperatures. The cauldron was the best tool for medicine making because the rate at which it was heated up could be regulated.

However, nobody had the skills to make such a cauldron now. In his opinion, that cauldron was a must if he wanted to succeed but it would be an arduous task trying to get one!

After some contemplation, he called Mr. Harrison and asked him for a favor to keep tabs on any clues about the cauldron. After all, Mr. Harrison had been a medical practitioner for decades and he had vast connections.

It would be much easier for him to get the information about the cauldron compared to Matthew himself. Since he could not make the medicine, he had no choice but to put aside the treatment of Natalie's illness for the time being.

When he reached the hospital the next morning, he saw James and Helen standing outside his office door. No one knew how long they had been waiting for him. The moment they spotted him, they immediately walked over with mocking smiles.
