Chapter 671

Ambrose didn't reply to her. Instead, Horton said in a low voice, "He's extremely terrifying. Thai boxing is cruel by nature and every move is merciless. Therefore, death is common in the ring with Thai boxers."

Crystal started to panic. "Mr. Arnold, is there any way to stop the battle? Wh-Why don't you persuade them to give that magical artifact to Matthew? We'll pay for it no matter how much it costs!"

Ambrose shook his head. "Rules are rules. Crystal, he is responsible for his own life once he steps into the ring. If he's too weak to step out of the ring, that's what he deserves. If he's able to survive, he'll naturally earn our respect."

Crystal's face turned ghastly pale at once as she was devoured by concern for Matthew.

Meanwhile, Cail had ended his prayer.

He then stood up and stared at Matthew with his scorching gaze.

Suddenly, he let out a roar and charged ferociously toward Matthew.

At a distance of two meters away from Matthew, he leaped up and aimed his right elbow at Matthew's head.

That was a powerful, horrific attack.

Among the Thai boxing techniques, an elbow hit was the most terrifying attack, especially when it was aimed at the head. In mild cases, the opponent would be in a coma whereas in severe cases, the opponent would suffer brain damage and become retarded, or even die on the spot.

That scream brought everyone back to their senses.

Richard anxiously shouted, "How is that possible? Thai boxers have incredible hit tolerance so how would he die so easily?"

Meanwhile, Horton had rushed over to Cail.

He looked at Cail who was lying on the floor with blood gushing out from all his apertures, and after examining him, his expression changed.

"Mr. Arnold, he's truly dead! All his bones are broken and his organs are probably ruptured. Otherwise, he wouldn't be bleeding from all his apertures!" Horton exclaimed.

At once, the crowd became even more turbulent.

Earlier when someone said that Cail was dead, they weren't convinced.

But after Horton personally examined Cail, his death was confirmed.

Everyone stared at Matthew, who was standing in the ring, in shock. Who would have expected that someone as ordinary as Matthew would have such terrifying strength.

Below the ring, both Roman and Arlo paled in fear, especially Arlo.

He finally understood that Matthew had been merciful to him during the fight earlier.

Fatty showed his sincerity in making friends with Matthew by offering a discount of 40 million.

Besides, his identity was undoubtedly extraordinary since he was allowed to sit beside Ambrose and they had been chatting delightedly.

Many people couldn't even associate with him, yet he was eager to befriend Matthew.

If other people knew about that, they would definitely be shocked.

Glancing at Fatty, Matthew chuckled before asking, "150 million? Are you giving me that?"

As soon as he said that, everyone in the room was stunned.

Even Crystal was dumbfounded while she whispered, "Matthew, he's Mr. Arnold's friend. P-Please give him some respect. I'll ask my grandfather to gather that amount of money for you later on."

With a pale face, Fatty sighed. "Mr. Arnold, I-I didn't mean to bring you any trouble. I've had this magical artifact for over ten years and it can truly prolong one's life. However, after strange things started to happen in my family, I went to a divination master and he told me that my luck has been declining in these few years because this magical artifact is incompatible with me. Therefore, I must sell this magical artifact. By selling it, not only can I save my life, but I can also protect my luck. In conclusion, there's nothing wrong with this magical artifact and it's my fate that's the issue."

Ambrose wasn't too convinced by his explanation.

Matthew chuckled. "Fatty, the master that you sought is quite skillful. At least he was able to identify the root cause of your problems, which is this magical artifact. However, it has nothing to do with luck!"

Fatty was surprised. "Since it's related to this magical artifact, why isn't it related to luck as well?"

Softly, Matthew asked, "Did you buy any ivories in the last three months?"

After pondering for a while, Fatty answered, "Yes, I bought a few ivory cups. What's wrong with that?"

Matthew replied, "Think carefully. Did those accidents happen after you bought the ivory cups?"

Trembling, Fatty then asked, "Mr. Larson, sh-shall we go to my house so that you can examine us?"

Matthew shook his head. "It's not necessary. You just need to give me the pill furnace and I can make medicines on the spot for you."

Fatty was utterly surprised that Matthew didn't even need to examine the patients.

Nevertheless, he immediately handed the pill furnace to Matthew.

After Matthew wrote a prescription, he handed it to Ambrose and asked him to assist in getting what he needed.

Meanwhile, he thoroughly cleaned the pill furnace because it would be stained by remnants after it was used. Therefore, he had to clean it up. Otherwise, it would affect the medicine that was made in the future.

Even the cleaning method wasn't the usual method, where water was used to rinse it. It required a special cleaning method.

After Matthew cleaned it, the remnants in the pill furnace were completely gone.

At the same time, Horton had gathered the medicine material.

Among the materials, there were two that were scarce. Fortunately, Woodside had everything, so Matthew had all that he needed.

Then, Matthew asked for coal fire while he separated those materials into two categories. After that, he added each material into the pill furnace at different times and started to make the medicine.

At last, Matthew left Woodside with the pill furnace.

Crystal had never been happier, humming a tune while driving.

Through this incident, she once again understood how impressive Matthew was and she admired him even more.

Suddenly, Crystal asked, “Huh? What’s going on there?”

Looking in the direction where Crystal pointed, Matthew saw a group of people beating up a few other people.

The few that were being hit were none other than Herman and the others.

Beside them stood a man—it was none other than Roman.

It seemed like Roman was leading his men to teach Herman and the rest a lesson.

In this auction, Herman and the few others had humiliated Matthew in public, causing Roman to underestimate Matthew, which led to a huge loss for Roman.

Therefore, Roman decided to blame it on Herman and the others.

Meanwhile, in Lavender Pavilion at Eastcliff.

This was a famous restaurant in Eastcliff and it was quiet. Therefore, many wealthy people favored this place.

In one corner of the hall, James and Helen were sitting at a table.

James asked, "How is it? When will Sasha arrive? We finally have the chance to invite President White and his family over to meet Sasha when Matthew's not around, so I hope Sasha won't be late. Otherwise, President White and his family will have a bad impression of her!"

Looking smug, Helen replied, "Don't worry. Sasha's on the way and she'll be here any minute. Besides, my daughter is not only as beautiful as an angel, but she's also the President of Cunningham Pharmaceuticals. They'll definitely like her!"

James said, "Regardless, we have to seize this opportunity and make it work. Otherwise, when Matthew's back, he'll stick around Sasha all day long and we won't have a chance to do this anymore. Most importantly, I heard that President White's son is handsome and outstanding. He and Sasha will be a well-matched couple!"

Helen nodded repeatedly. "Yes, he's so much better than Matthew. Besides, President White has a great family background—his family is the branch family of one of the Ten Greatest Families in Eastcliff. He's so successful that even his family head has to be respectful to him. He lives in Lakeside Garden, which is a symbol of status in itself. If Sasha is married to his son, we can enter Lakeside Garden as we wish! In the future, when we become rich, we shall buy a house in Lakeside Garden as well. It'll be great to live near Sasha!"

James seemed to be looking forward to that future too.

President White glared at his son while lecturing him angrily, "How can you be so superficial? You should find a virtuous wife since beauty is not an important aspect! Most importantly, she must be able to run a household and help you in your business. Do you understand?"

However, Mrs. White shook her head. "That's not quite true. You're right that a wife should be virtuous, but she must at least look presentable! After all, my son is so handsome and if he marries an ugly girl, I'll be the first to oppose it!"

Sam looked smug. "Dad, look at how much mom loves her son. Can't you be considerate of me? Do you want me to live with an ugly woman for the rest of my life? I'd rather die!"

President White gave him a slap while saying, "Shut up! Stop talking nonsense. Since we're already here, we might as well go in and take a look!"

Firmly, Sam shook his head. "I'm not going in. If you're interested in them, you should go, but I—"

Before he finished his sentence, a white Maserati Quattroporte suddenly drove into the yard and it stopped at the parking lot beside him.

Then, a tall, slender woman got out of the car. Although her sunglasses almost covered half of her face, it was obvious that she was a beauty.

Sam ogled that woman as she walked into the restaurant. He couldn't even move his gaze from her and he shouted excitedly, "Mom, that lady is beautiful! I'm interested in her. How about this? Both of you can reject the blind date for me while I ask for that beautiful lady's contact number."

Sam chased after Sasha and followed her into the restaurant. Then, he happened to see Sasha and James sitting together.

He hurriedly adjusted and tidied up his clothes, thinking about how he would go up and strike up a conversation with her.

At this moment, President White and his wife walked in.

When James saw them, he immediately got up. "President White and Mrs. White, over here."

President White and his wife smiled and waved at him before walking over.

Sam was dumbfounded. He hurried to catch up with his parents and whispered, "Dad, is this the blind date you were talking about?"

President White glanced at him. "Yes, is there a problem?"

Sam exulted, "No problem! There's no problem at all! Dad, if it is this girl that you were talking about, then I am willing to marry her! The sooner the better! Regardless of whether her family has money or not, I am willing to marry her!"

President White glanced at him furiously, "Take a look at your pitiful self. You must at least judge whether she has a good temperament and whether she is suitable to be our daughter-in-law. Our family is a notable family, so how can you marry a woman just because of her beauty?"

Mrs. White also nodded and said, "Yes. Although this girl is beautiful, it is hard to say whether she is worthy of marrying into our family. The girlfriends you had before all had bad traits although they were beautiful on the outside. If this girl is like that too, then don't even think of marrying her!"

James and Helen hurried away, leaving the confused Sasha behind. She vaguely felt that something fishy was going on.

Full of joy, Sam said with a smile, "Sasha, now that you are off work, you should enjoy yourself. By the way, the air is fresh tonight. I'll bring you to the riverside to enjoy the breeze!" With that, Sam stretched out his hand to pull Sasha's hand, acting like an overbearing president.

Sam was tall, handsome and from a rich family. Thus, many girls admired and pursued him. Previously, the girls he fancied would immediately accept him the moment he made a move. He thought Sasha would be no different. However, Sasha took a step back vigilantly. With a sullen face, she said solemnly, "Sorry, it's getting late. I have to go home."

Sam was slightly surprised and immediately smiled. "Oh, what's the fun of going home? Let's go. I'll take you somewhere exciting and fun."

Sasha still shook her head. "Sorry, I don't like doing things like that. Moreover, my husband is coming back today. I want to go home and wait for him!" After Sasha finished speaking, she turned around and left, leaving behind Sam who looked stunned.

James and his wife did not tell the truth to President White, so they both thought Sasha was still single. Sam also thought that Sasha was not married. He did not care even if she had a boyfriend, because he felt that with his charm, he would definitely win over Sasha. But he never dreamed that Sasha was already married!
