Medical Genius's Unspeakable Marriage

Chapter 751

Everyone sat in the living room drinking tea, but Tate and Minerva went up, down, and all around the house a few times. This was the first time they had seen such a mansion and it was truly an eye-opening experience for them. Thus, they took photographs everywhere—on the balcony, by the swimming pool, in the rooms both upstairs and downstairs, and even in the two cars outside.

After that, they showed off on Instagram once again. The previous time they did so, they received countless likes and comments. The comments section was uniformly filled with various sentiments of envy and admiration.

There were even quite a few rich young men on Minerva's Instagram who began to show interest in her. Similarly, plenty of young women on Tate's Instagram boldly private messaged him and asked him out on dates. All in all, the circumstances were great for their vanity.

Now, they stunned their friends once again with their Instagram posts. The pictures of the luxurious pool and villa caused their social status to rise even further. It got to the point where even Jonah's boss' daughter, Lucia, liked their posts, making them ecstatic.

After the people inside the house chatted for a while, Helen realized it was getting late so she asked, "Chloe, would you like Matthew to send your family back to the hotel? You can stay here tonight so that we have more time together."

At this moment, Tate and Minerva happened to enter the house.

"There's no need, Aunt Helen. You haven't seen my mom in so long and you do indeed need to spend more time with her. How about we all stay here tonight? After all, we're family. We should really spend more time

Now, it wasn't as if Sasha didn't have a swimming costume, but how could she lend something like that to someone else?

Hence, she answered politely, "I'm sorry but I don't have a swimsuit as I rarely swim. How about I have someone bring you a suit?"

Even though she disliked Minerva, Chloe had treated Sasha well when she was a child and she could not forget that kindness.

However, Minerva anxiously protested, "Are you serious? You have such a big swimming pool at home but no swimsuit? How backward you locals are. You don't know how to enjoy life at all!"

Out of respect for her aunt, Sasha gritted her teeth but didn't retort.

After grumbling for a while, Minerva waved her hand. "Fine; have someone bring me a suit. But you must hurry or my friends will be going back to work or class, and then they won't be able to see my story. They'll be very disappointed if they don't see me!"

Exasperated, Sasha could only call her secretary and have her secretary fetch her a swimsuit.

As if that wasn't bad enough, Minerva added the moment she made the call, "By the way, please let the person know that my swimsuit can't be too poor in quality as my skin is sensitive. If the fabric scratches my skin, I might develop rashes!"

Goodness—you're impossible to wait on! thought the exasperated Sasha.

Once again, Tate and Minerva were utterly stunned.

After all, the secretary had indeed arrived in a Porsche so clearly, the company wasn't a small one.

Since she wasn't particularly feeling the need to explain herself to them, Sasha simply handed the bag to Minerva. "Here's the swimsuit you wanted."

It was only then that Minerva realized the swimsuit that Sasha handed over came in a Chanel bag.

Naturally, she couldn't help but shriek, "Wait—are you serious? Is this truly Chanel? It isn't a fake, is it, Sasha?"

Upon hearing that, Sasha waved her hand impatiently. "I don't know. The secretary bought it and you can wear it for now."

Jubilantly, Minerva pulled the swimsuit out of the bag.

After studying it all over and being unable to determine whether it was genuine or counterfeit, she anxiously called out, "Come here, Tate! You used to work in luxury stores. Tell me if this is real or a fake!"

Tate then walked over and he studied it closely before exclaiming in shock, "It's real. Look at the logo and the workmanship. It's most definitely genuine."

leaping with joy, Minerva exclaimed, "It's so nice of you to get me a Chanel swimsuit, Sasha! It must have cost a ton. You have to hold it up

Tate was rather annoyed as well and he snapped, "I told you that I have a license. If it bothers you so much, I'll drive on the right side of the road. Happy?"

By this point, James felt like his blood was boiling in his veins. This was the first time he met someone so annoyingly bad at getting the point.

"I thought I made it very clear that your foreign license can't be used here! It doesn't matter which side of the road you drive on. If you drive now, you're still driving without a license. Do you understand?"

Indignantly, Tate shot back, "What do you mean, 'driving without a license'? What do you think my foreign license is?"

James was about to blow a gasket and he simply glared at them without saying a word.

Quickly, Helen stepped in. "Tate, Minerva, it's simply that the government here is very strict about road safety rules. How about this—you tell us where you want to go and I'll have Liam take you there!"

Of course, Tate and Minerva exchanged a reluctant glance.

When Matthew and Sasha reached home, Chloe and Jonah were already seated in the living room.

Both of them were smiling breezily and they looked very pleased.

There was even a BMW SUV parked outside.

With a proud expression, Chloe told them, "Jonah's boss values him a lot. As soon as we went over today, he received this BMW as a loan. The car's not great but it's better than nothing."

Quickly, Helen nodded in agreement. "It's not bad! It speaks to your abilities, Jonah; otherwise, why would your boss give you a car?"

On the other hand, Jonah looked a little embarrassed.

The truth was, he hadn't been given the vehicle because the boss valued him—it was because of Leanna.

The moment he went to report for work today, Lucia called him over and asked about his relationship with Leanna.

Being a clever man, he immediately told her his niece was close friends with Leanna and had a very good relationship with her.

The moment Lucia heard that, she gave him the vehicle and even had him promoted.

After a short while, Jonah's car came to a stop outside a restaurant.

Matthew and Sasha's eyes met and the both of them burst out laughing.

So, Jonah actually had been referring to the Shanghai Nights restaurant!

As Demi exited the car, she looked up at the signboard and gasped dramatically, "Goodness! So this is the place you're talking about?"

Missing the sarcasm in her voice, Tate and Minerva eagerly teased her.

"Why so excited, Demi?"

"Oh—is it because you've often heard it mentioned but never had the chance to go in?"

"That's okay! We'll show you a whole new world tonight!"

Rolling her eyes, Demi did not even bother to respond.

The host looked at Matthew respectfully and he asked, "Mr. Larson, would you like to go to the Supreme Room?"

However, Matthew waved his hand and commented, "My uncle is treating us to dinner tonight, so please make arrangements with him."

Upon hearing that, the host immediately understood him and he turned to Jonah. "Sir, how would you like arrangements to be made?" he asked in an equally polite tone.

After hesitating for a moment, Jonah proffered his membership card. "What... What kind of card is this?"

The host took a look at it and he replied, "Oh—it's a Silver Card, our basic membership card. This card can only be used in the common dining room. Unfortunately, our common dining room is currently full so I'm afraid you will have to wait to be seated."

At that moment, Jonah was utterly speechless. How is it that the difference between Matthew's card and the card my boss gave me was so large?

To think that Matthew could immediately go to the Supreme Room the moment he arrived, but Jonah had to wait in line for the common dining room. What kind of service is this? he grumbled to himself.

Right at this moment, Helen asked her sister softly, "Would you like Matthew to make the arrangements to have us shown to the Supreme Room, Chloe? After all, we can use any membership card we like. We're all family, and it doesn't matter who's treating whom to dinner, does it?"

Chloe and Jonah exchanged a glance. They were both thinking the same thing but were too embarrassed to speak up.

The statement was meant to remind Minerva that if she allowed Matthew to make arrangements, they would be able to eat for free tonight.

Unfortunately, Minerva only got more furious and she yelled, "Who are you looking down on, huh? Don't you know where we're from? We just came back from living abroad! We've seen much better than your puny restaurant and don't need you to cover our expenses! We didn't even need to use your pathetic local currency while overseas!"

However, Helen kindly reminded her, "That's not what the waiter means, Minerva. He's only offering to cover your expenses as we are family. Why not save where you can?"

Feeling like her pride was hurt, Minerva shouted, "Are you looking down on us as well, Aunt Helen? Do you think we're so poor that we wouldn't be able to afford a meal? Sure, your family is quite rich now but that doesn't mean you can look down on us!"

Hurriedly, Helen murmured, "No; that's not what I meant, Minerva—"

"Alright, stop arguing!" Chloe held up her hands. "Look—I know your aunt, Minnie, and she's only speaking up for our sake. But Helen, since we already said that we're treating you to dinner tonight, of course we'll be paying. It's only a meal, so don't take it to heart, okay?"

Having no other choice, Helen stayed silent.

Jonah began to quickly calculate the potential cost of the dinner.

Even if he ordered the cheaper dishes and none of the alcohol for this meal, it would cost 40 or 50 thousand to feed all of them.

If he ordered wine, that would be even worse.

The cheapest bottle of wine on this menu was at least 30 thousand.

If he ordered two bottles, wouldn’t the entire meal cost more than 100 thousand?

And if he ordered the signature dishes, it would cost 200 or 300 thousand!

All of a sudden, Jonah felt his blood pressure rising and he couldn’t figure out the deal with the Cunningham family.

Wasn’t he told that they couldn’t even afford plain toast?

How was it that they could afford meals worth hundreds of thousands now?

Unfortunately, what he didn’t know was that the restaurant he came to was Eastcliff’s most high-end restaurant.

Upon seeing that Demi was about to start ordering, Minerva quickly called out, "No! I-I mean, please don't order the signature dishes. T-They don't look particularly interesting. Uh... Why don't we order some local cuisine? Aren't you always saying that you miss that kind of food, Mom?"

Chloe immediately understood and she answered with a smile, "Oh—yes, I am. I didn't get to eat the local food from my youth while I was abroad, so I missed them dearly. Let's just get those, then."

With a pout, Demi protested, "I thought you said you were no longer used to the local food, Aunt Chloe!"

This successfully made Chloe incredibly embarrassed.

Glaring at Demi, Helen said, "Shut up! Just ignore her, Chloe. You haven't been home in so long; it's completely understandable that you would like to have some local food. Minerva, you don't have to order too much. I'm not quite hungry tonight and your uncle has had quite a few snacks this afternoon, so we won't be able to eat much."

Dumbfounded, James stared at his wife. Since when did I eat any snacks? he grumbled to himself.

However, he couldn't criticize her right now because he knew that she was only trying to make Chloe feel better.

Overjoyed, Minerva flipped to the back of the menu, where the local foods were listed.

Unfortunately, even after doing so, she was unable to make her decision.
