Chapter 921 I Didn't Contact Mr Harrison

Helen and the rest of them gaped in surprise. At that moment, Matthew and Sasha rushed in from the main entrance of the hospital. "How's it going now?" Sasha asked in an anxious tone the second she arrived. "How did such a serious accident happen? How's Tate's condition now, Minerva?"

Minerva shot Sasha a sideways glance. "Stop acting like you care, Sasha. I don't need you Cunninghams to show concern about my brother's situation. You guys can spend your time thinking about how you're going to compensate for our losses instead!"

As if on cue, the deceased's family members huddled up and began to shout and demand compensation once more. Even the old lady, who had picked herself up from the ground earlier, lay down and began to wail and cry once more.

Sasha didn't know what to make of the situation. "Mom, what's going on? Why does our family have to pay compensation fees when it's their family who got into an accident? Mom, you didn't agree to help them resolve this matter, did you?"

Chapter 922 Did You Call Dr York?

Demi gave Matthew a disdainful stare. "How could you do that, Matthew? You shouldn't have promised them anything if you weren't able to do it! What's the meaning of this? You made a promise, but you didn't do anything in the end. Aren't you just embarrassing the Cunningham Family?" Even Helen shot Matthew a glare—her expression was one of pure anger.

"Are you guys done?" Sasha couldn't stand it any longer. "You guys are the ones doing all the talking. Don't you guys want to hear it from Matthew's end? How do you guys know that he didn't help?"

Helen waved her arm furiously. "I don't want to hear his explanation. He broke his promise—what's there to explain?"

The operating theater's doors opened at that moment, and Dr. York walked out with a bunch of other doctors following behind him. Jonah's eyes lit up as he hastily hurried over to greet the doctor. "Hello, Dr. York. I'm Jonah, the general manager of Gonzalez Corporation's branch in Cathay! Thank you so much for treating my son. How is his condition now?"

Minerva stood beside her father with excitement written all over her face. The doctor in front of their eyes was someone greater than Mr. Harrison. If she had the chance to build a connection with Dr. York, she would be able to brag about it in the future.

Chapter 923 Why Didn't You Tell Us Earlier?

Minerva's face was the color of a tomato—she couldn't utter a single word. After chatting with Matthew for a while, Dr. York excused himself and left the hospital. Everyone else kept quiet while Jonah, Chloe, and Minerva stood around, their cheeks flushed with embarrassment.

In the end, it was Helen who cleared her throat and spoke first. "Well, it doesn't matter who called the doctor over, right? What matters most is that Tate is fine. It's the best outcome we could've hoped for!"

Minerva hastily played along. "Yeah, yeah. It's great that Tate is safe! Mom, Dad, let's go visit Tate!" The three of them were about to escape the site when Demi stood in their way. "Why are you guys in such a rush to leave? We're not done talking yet! Matthew was the one who got Dr. York to come over. I think you guys owe us an apology for scolding us earlier, right?" she uttered in a harsh tone. Demi was a rather mean person, and she didn't bother concealing it. Recently, the Campbells had been causing too much trouble in her family—they'd gotten on her nerves since a while ago. I'm not going to let go of this opportunity to get back at them! she thought.

Minerva's face was beet red as she tensed her neck muscles before speaking. "H-How should I know that Matthew was the one who contacted Dr. York? He said that he would contact Mr. Harrison earlier; he didn't say anything about Dr. York!"

Helen nodded in agreement. “Why did you do that, Matthew? Why didn’t you tell us that you contacted Dr. York?”

Since they were in a hospital, the crowd managed to ask for an empty ward so that Helen could rest inside. While she rested, the rest of the victims’ family members waited around outside her room. It seemed like they had all come to the same unspoken conclusion—they would all request for Helen to compensate for their losses. The Cunningham Family looked like they had a lot of money to spare, after all.

The skies had turned bright by the time Helen woke up. She let out a long sigh when she saw the noisy crowd waiting outside her room. “What’s the situation right now, Demi? Is Tate alright?”

“How could you still ask about him?” Demi cried angrily. “His entire family ran off in the middle of the night!”

Helen was dumbfounded. “R-Ran off? Why would they run off?”

“Why else? They caused such a huge mess. Of course they’d run off! The deceased victims’ family members can’t find them now—that’s why they’re waiting around outside the ward! And they call themselves your family, Mom? How could they be so heartless?” Demi cried.

Chapter 925 Find Him a Lawyer

Sasha was about to peel an apple for her mother, but she threw the apple aside the moment she heard what her mother said. “I’m not going to get involved in this, Mom! You can do whatever you want—I don’t care. But listen closely—don’t you dare use Matthew’s name or mine to hire a lawyer! We refuse to engage in such immoral and heartless acts!” Sasha stormed off after finishing her words.

Meanwhile, Helen stared into space with a furious look on her face. “How... How am I being heartless? Those people are all dead; shouldn’t we focus on those who are alive first? Am I right, Demi?”

Demi stuck her bottom lip out. “I don’t care if you’re right or wrong. Either way, this has got nothing to do with me! I’m not a part of this, so don’t ask or look for me regarding this matter!”

At this point, Helen was starting to feel rather anxious. “H-How could you say such a thing, Demi? What am I supposed to do if both you and Sasha refuse to help me? Why don’t you ask Liam to find me a good lawyer, huh?”

“You can forget about it!” Demi cried as she gave Helen a dismissive wave. “Are you trying to ask us to do such inhumane and heartless things because Sasha refuses to do it? What’s going on with you, Mom? Can’t you tell between right and wrong? Your nephew killed four people—are you still trying to help him at a time like this? What about those victims? What about their families? This is such an inhumane thing to do!”

Helen stared at Chloe dazedly. She hadn't expected her own sister to put the blame on her.

"Helen, you idiot! How many times have I told you not to get involved with this family? You didn't just ignore my words; you even gave them money without telling me about it! What are you supposed to do now that such an accident has occurred? What are you going to do now that they're blaming you for this?" James roared.

"I-I didn't give them a lot of money. They wanted to use this money for investment. But I assumed that the money was all gone after Minerva said that her boyfriend had been scammed, and... I didn't know that they kept some of the money for themselves! I-I'm a victim too!" Helen cried anxiously.

When Chloe shot Minerva a glare, Minerva immediately spoke up. "Stop talking nonsense, Aunt Helen. You were the one who gave us this money to spend. What investment and what scammer are you talking about? I have no idea what you mean!"

"H-How could you say such a thing, Minerva? You were the one who borrowed the money from me, and y-you said that you wanted it for an investment. Did you forget about this? You need to be honest here, Minerva... Don't lie to us..." Helen uttered

Demi looked at Helen helplessly. "Mom..."

“Demi, you can get out of the house with her if you talk to her anymore!” James roared. “And Liam, if you try to help her, you can get out as well! I’ll find some other guy to take over the role as general manager of the construction company!” Upon hearing James’s words, both Liam and Demi hurried into the house—they no longer dared to linger around outside.

Jonah and his family were about to enter the house and protest when a group of security guards rushed in and chased all of them out. Helen, on the other hand, was about to let herself into the house when James rushed to her with a kitchen knife in his hand. She let out a shriek before she turned and ran off. She no longer dared to step foot into the house after that.

Tears quietly trickled down Helen’s cheeks as she stood outside the Grand Garden. I had never expected things to turn out like this. My biological sister is suing me, my husband doesn’t allow me into the house, and my daughter isn’t offering me any help! I’ve never felt so helpless in my life! After a long while of silence, Helen finally left the front porch of the house. She didn’t have a choice at that point—she had to go to Sasha for help.

When Helen arrived at the office, Matthew was sitting around in Sasha’s room.

Sasha was signing a few documents when she caught sight of Helen walking in with her red-rimmed eyes. Her face darkened immediately. “Don’t you dare utter a word if you’re trying to convince me to find a lawyer for Tate, Mom! I’ve told you this before—I’m never going to agree to it!” she uttered without any hesitation.

Helen’s face lit up immediately. “Are you sure? Then... Should we get the police to help search for this Peter guy?” The moment she finished her sentence, she threw her hands up while exclaiming, “Wait, no! We can’t make a police report! Peter took pictures of Minerva, and he’ll post those pictures up once we make a police report. Minerva’s reputation will be destroyed...”

Sasha was furious to hear Helen's words. "Mom, you need to consider the situation that we're in. How could you still be so considerate toward Minerva at a time like this? Look at the way she has treated you so far! You're too kind for your own good!"

Helen lowered her head in embarrassment. "Minerva's still young, and she needs to get married in the future..." she muttered.

Sasha was too angry even to speak. "It's fine, Mom. I can get my friends to look for Peter. You guys shouldn't be too worried. It's alright even if we can't find him. I'll get Tiger to find you a good lawyer. We'll definitely be able to resolve this issue!" Matthew reassured them.

Helen nodded gratefully. Matthew is so much more reliable than Liam—I can't believe I only realized this now, Helen thought. After that, Matthew got Sasha to bring Helen for a meal since Helen couldn't go home. That night, they allowed Helen to sleep over in the company.

Matthew stared at the conman for a while before he let out a laugh. "It's fine! I don't need the seven million! You can have all of it!"

Peter was dumbfounded, his face in disbelief. "H-How could I take your money, Mr. Larson? Please give me a chance. I've really learned my lesson this time. Please spare my life..."

James was stunned upon hearing Sasha's words. Helen shifted her gaze toward James before repeating Sasha's question. "That's right. Where did your twenty million go? You know what I did with my ten million now, James. But what about your twenty million?"

A rather uneasy expression formed on James's face as he stood up. "What twenty million are you talking about? I have no idea what you mean! I never took anything from the construction company!"

"Nonsense!" Helen shouted. "Who are you trying to fool? You definitely took the twenty million from the construction company and—"

"Stop creating a fuss! I'm wasting my time talking to you guys!" James growled before he stormed toward his bedroom.

Helen was fuming at this point. "Don't run away just yet! Explain yourself, James! Where did the twenty million go? Did you use it to get another woman outside of our marriage? I'll do anything to make you speak now, James...!" Helen shouted while following him to the bedroom.
