

Gluey Love 1311

Chapter 1311

Watching Eden approaching her step by step, she felt a bit nervous.

Eden's eyes were cold. She no longer looked like a meek kitten, but like a fierce wild tiger.

As Eden got closer to her, the atmosphere became stiff instantly.

Eden stood in front of her, crossed her arms and looked at her with a smile, "You asked me to behave myself, didn't you?"

"Yeah!" The model nodded, but looked at Eden with vigilance in eyes.

"You said that my husband is very pitiful, right?" Eden asked with a smile again. She was smiling, and her tone was normal, but anger was growing, bubbling up inside her.

"Yes!" The model did not know what Eden wanted to do. She did say so just now, and she couldn't give her a slap in the face, could she?

"Ha-ha... Why don't you teach me how to behave myself? Should I reveal my slender waist in such a cold winter or say to a woman that her husband is pitiful?"

Was Victor so pitiful?

She was a victim, and they were hurt by turns. A few days ago, Victor was rumoured, and she was slandered that day.

She happened to run into Melissa yesterday, and she had to suspect her.

By the way, since Victor was so narrow-minded, would he take revenge on her and run away from home?

Thinking of this, Eden was a little worried. Based on Victor's character, it was really possible for him to do such a thing. It seemed that she had to behave coquettishly after she went back.

"I..." The model thought for a long while, but she couldn't say a word.

"Mrs. Alwynn, I didn't mean anything else. I just feel that Mr. Alwynn is wronged." She said with confidence.

Eden sneered in heart. Why didn't anyone come forward and speak for her when she was wronged?

The woman's words were more and more ridiculous. She even said that she felt sorry for Victor. Eden narrowed her eyes and asked with a smile, "Did my husband tell you that he was wronged to be with me?"

The model was speechless. She just thought so.

In all fairness, which man would not feel wronged in such a situation? Not to mention such a noble man like Victor.

"No, I just think that Mr. Alwynn..."

"Even he didn't say anything, but you speak for him with grievances here! What do you mean?" Eden asked with her face darkened. Did she look so easy to bully?

Why did these women always like to provoke her?

"I... just feel sorry for Mr. Alwynn. You're just a b*tch! How can you deserve to be with him?" The model suddenly said harshly. Eden pushed her so hard that she spoke her mind without thinking.

"Crack..." Eden raised her hand and slapped her in the face fiercely.

Everyone was stunned. Eden was gentle all the time, and it was the first time they had seen her lose her temper.

Melissa was dumbfounded. How domineering Eden was! This model was so annoying, and she even thought about seducing Victor.

"Eden, you... actually slap me!" The model's eyes turned red in anger. She was not as gentle as just now and looked at Eden with a twisted face.

"Can't my wife slap you? You asked for it!" In the distance, someone said neither fast nor slowly. His voice was low and deep. There was a surge of fury in his tone, but it was pleasant to hear.

Everyone was very surprised at Victor's sudden arrival.

Looking over, they saw Victor rush over with Dean. He was dressed in a white shirt, looking as charming as ever.

It seemed that he left the conference in a hurry. He didn't even have time to put on his coat.

Behind him, Sean was smiling.

When Eden saw Sean, she knew why Victor came here.

She glanced sideways at Margery, lowered her head and whispered, "Margery, does your boyfriend have such a big mouth all the time?"

Margery glanced at Sean and smiled, "Eden, he just doesn't want you to be wronged."

Eden was speechless. Well, Margery and Sean were really suitable for each other.

As soon as Eden turned around, she saw Victor approaching her, "Honey, does your hand hurt? If you want to beat someone, just call me. Why do you have to do it by yourself? Your hand must hurt."

Everyone was taken aback. They had never seen Victor so cautious and considerate.

Eden nodded, "It's a little numb."

Everyone was surprised. They really chimed in with each other.

The model, who had been slapped by Eden, looked at Victor with panic in her eyes.

She was so shocked. She had worked here for half a year, but it was the first time that she had seen Victor at such close range. He was more handsome than in the posters.

But why did Victor suddenly come here?

Victor lowered his head and blew on Eden's hand with distress, "Honey, I'll apply some medicine for you later."

Eden raised her head and glanced at him casually. Did he have to be so serious?

However, thinking of what the model had said, she narrowed her eyes, "Okay! Now my hand is burning hot."

The model was dumbfounded. Her face was really burning hot, wasn't it?

Eden looked soft and weak, but she really had great strength.

However, would she have a chance to defend herself in such a situation?

Victor blew on Eden's hand with his head down and rubbed it tenderly.

Everyone froze on the spot.

Sean looked at Victor in disbelief with his mouth wide open.

So many people were watching Victor. Did he have to be so humble? He even felt too embarrassed to tease him.

Dean ignored Victor directly. He had witnessed public display affection early in the morning, and he was not surprised at all.

Victor was holding a meeting, but he immediately took him to the eleventh floor after glancing at a message. He was confused, but he instantly understood what had happened when he saw Eden.

"Does it still hurt?" Victor fixed his eyes on Eden's face.

Eden shook her head slightly, "Thanks to you, I feel much better."

"That's good! Honey, just wait. I will take revenge for you right now. I can't let you be wronged in our own company." Saying this, Victor immediately turned around and looked at the model who had been beaten by Eden.

As soon as the model met Victor's cold and horrible eyes, she shivered.

"Mr. Alwynn, I... saw the news, and I... felt sorry for you. That was why I spoke recklessly." She lowered her head pitifully, and her eyes were brimming with tears.

She looked delicate and extremely wronged.

Seeing this, Eden felt that she could definitely be a movie queen. She had excellent acting skills, and her eyes and expression were all miserable.

Victor sneered and said, "You feel sorry for me? So what do you want to do, huh?" Every word he said was cold, stimulating the model's heart like a pointed piece of ice. The model couldn't understand what Victor meant at the moment.

Victor opened his dark eyes and looked at her apathetically.

Chapter 1312

Even the onlookers who were watching a good show didn't dare to stay there anymore, but they were reluctant to leave.

The model glanced at Eden and slogged her guts to say, "Mr. Alwynn, my name is Irma Obrien. I have been in Alwynn Group for almost half a year, and I admire you all the time. Eden once stayed with a handsome young man and even dated with an old man, so I think that she's not good enough for you..."

"Wait. An old man?" Victor couldn't bear it anymore.

At this time, Dean had seen the news, and he was surprised. The news was too shocking. He couldn't even imagine that Eden could date with an old man. It seemed that those people were really cunning.

He immediately handed the phone to Victor, "Mr. Alwynn, this is today's news. It's said that Mrs. Alwynn went to River City Restaurant with an old man."

Eden was speechless. She felt that Dean was a flatterer this morning. But why was he behaving like a scheming man at this time?

Seeing this, Irma knew that Victor hadn't seen the news, and she looked at Eden smugly.

However, Eden smiled faintly. Did Irma think that she had won?

Her optimism was premature.

Victor scanned the news. Seeing that his handsome face was replaced with an old man's, he felt that Eden had been insulted.

"Honey, what's going on?" Victor pointed to the news on the phone.

Eden was speechless. Didn't he know what had happened?

Seeing Victor's reaction, those people who wanted to watch a good show were all gloating. If any of them could become Mrs. Alwynn, she would enjoy endless wealth and glory in her life.

Irma said fearlessly, "Mr. Alwynn, don't you know what is going on? Everyone can see that Eden did something shameless to disgrace you." If she could make use of this opportunity to attract Victor's attention, she could become rich overnight. Eden was thin, and she was not as well-shaped as her.

As for her appearance, she was confident that she was prettier than Eden.

"Shut up! What do you mean? Tell me! Why is my wife shameless?" Victor wished that he could kick the woman who was trying to gain his favor out of here.

Being roared at by Victor, Irma jumped up in fear and took a step back, "Mr. Alwynn, didn't Eden..."

Victor glanced at her coldly, and she immediately bit back what she would like to have said.

It was incredible. Was there such a generous man in the world? Wasn't Victor angry when he saw such news?

"Honey, who edited my photo like this? When I find out this person, I won't spare him!" Victor said furiously.

Eden was very calm. Seeing that Victor didn't intend to take revenge, she nodded hurriedly, "Honey, you can not let him go. Since he dared to replace your face with an old man's, you must give him a lesson to vent your anger."

"That's right!" Victor glanced at Dean who was standing beside him, "Dean, go and ask the technical department to handle this. It was me who went to River City Restaurant with Eden.

Someone actually edited the photo in this way, which really humiliates her. Go and get the surveillance video in River City Restaurant to improve Eden's innocence."

Dean looked at Victor and blinked, "Mr. Alwynn, is this really you?"

Victor said, "Except for me, who dares to hold my wife's waist? Yesterday night, we went to River City Restaurant for dinner. It seems that we were photographed again. By the way, investigate this model who found fault with Eden. Maybe she is the spy sent by those people."

"Okay, Mr. Alwynn, I'll check it right now." Dean turned around to deal with this matter.

Irma was stunned. That old man was actually Victor, and Victor was going to investigate her.

A trace of panic flashed through Irma's eyes, and Eden happened to see it. She lowered her head slightly and didn't show any emotion on her face.

Everyone was dumbfounded.

Victor looked at Irma. His gaze was like a sharp knife stabbing into Irma's heart. "Apologize right now."

Irma came to sense and immediately realized that she had made a mistake.

The sudden change caught her off guard.

It was obviously Eden's fault. But why did she become the winner in a blink of an eye?

She should be the winner.

"Mr. Alwynn, I..."

"Apologize to my wife!" Victor repeated it.

Irma was in a dilemma. She did a very unwise move. She didn't expect that Victor really doted on Eden so much. But the more he acted like this, the more she got obsessed with him.

"Mr. Alwynn, Eden slapped me in the face." Irma lowered her head with grievance. Covering her cheek which had been slapped, she pouted slightly and looked more wronged.

Seeing this, Eden couldn't feel more disgusted.

How hypocritical Irma was! Fine! She might as well take advantage of Victor's power to bully her.

Who said that there was no accident in life?

Her life was full of surprises!

Eden pulled Victor's arm gently and said with her face full of grievances, "Honey, my hand still hurts."

Margery was stunned. She had never seen Eden act like a spoiled child like this, but why did she feel that Eden looked so lovely?

She whispered to Sean, "Eden is really good at acting."

Sean lowered his voice and said to her, "Margery, I'll be very glad if you can act as coquettishly as Eden."

Melissa was speechless. People of one mind fell into the same group. Sean and Victor were so similar.

"Okay, I'll take you to the hospital immediately after dealing with the things here." Victor said, caressing her fair hand tenderly.

Those people couldn't stand it anymore. Victor and Eden were too affectionate.

Victor thought about it and decided to deal with it quickly, "Margery, let her go to the finance department to get her salary, and then she should leave here immediately. Alwynn Group doesn't need such an ungrateful employee."

"I see!" Margery nodded. She had disliked Irma for a long time because Irma was d*mned snobbish.

Irma's eyes widened in shock. Was Victor going to... fire her?

She couldn't pretend to be wronged anymore and immediately walked to Eden, apologizing to her, "Mrs. Alwynn, I'm so sorry. I was wrong. Please forgive me."

Eden's eyes were distant and indifferent as she glanced at her, and she did not say anything.

She always suspected that Melissa was the one who had been slandering her and Victor online.

With Melissa's personality, she would bribe people in Alwynn Group and ask them to make things difficult for her.

Irma happened to mock her that day, and there were only two possibilities. One was that Irma was so bold. The other was that she had a way out, and that was why she dared to slander her fearlessly.

Chapter 1313

"Well, Victor, you're going too far by doing this. She's the woman who's speaking out for you. Wouldn't it seem insensitive of you to just fire her?" Eden looked at Victor with a smile.

Victor was speechless at her worry.

Besides, he hadn't asked the woman to speak for him.

"Eden, I don't even know her, so who is she to speak for me?" Victor was a little exasperated.

Irma looked embarrassed.

Eden thought he spoke so straightforwardly that it would really piss people off.

"Honey, I can't let you be wronged under my nose."

Eden smiled brightly with her eyes sparkling, "Dear, I haven't been wronged."

Eden looked at Victor and blinked her beautiful eyes. Under the bright light, her smile was so dazzling and charming.

Victor also blinked his dark eyes as if he had been influenced by her.

"Okay, honey, I'll do whatever you want." Victor couldn't help but nod.

Sean wondered if this man was still the Victor he knew.

Eden really has him whipped!

How amazing!!!

When did this world change? He always witnessed PDA.

Irma heaved a sigh of relief.

"Thank you, Madam!" She quickly expressed her thanks and looked at Eden with great gratitude. If she got fired in this way, she would never be able to find a better job for herself than here.

Although she had Plan B, the job here was clearly more promising.

"You don't have to thank me." Eden smiled meaningfully. It was too early for Irma to thank.

She was certain that there was something wrong with this woman.

"Victor, I'm going to have a meeting. You should not rush over when you encounter something like this later. Even if you have to come over, you should put on more clothes. It's very cold." Eden gave him a reproachful look. it wasn't nice to be sick.

Victor embraced her, "Honey, I'll be careful next time. I'll go to work first." He didn't know how long he would be working today.

Eden tiptoed and kissed him on his handsome face. And Victor was satisfied before he left reluctantly.

She rarely kissed him in front of outsiders. This was the second time except for the night of the banquet. He was so happy that he wanted to carry her back to the room and then throw her on the bed.

They were so lovey-dovey that they made everyone jealous and envious.

Victor, who was always cold, could be so gentle now. The women present all wanted such tenderness.

Many people who worked in Alwynn Group knew that they were very affectionate, but there were also a few women who wanted to break them up.

Eden knew this, but she was not afraid at all.

Seeing Victor disappear completely, she slightly restrained her smile.

She glanced at the models and said in a calm tone, "Well, All the models went together to the conference room to discuss the release of the new product."

Everyone nodded and entered the conference room together.

Irma looked at Eden's back with hatred and jealousy. But since she hadn't been expelled, she had the chance to see how they broke up.

When Lucian woke up, he was at the Marriott Hotel. It was almost noon.

The night's hangover gave him a splitting headache.

He shook his head out of pain and looked up at the familiar room. It was empty, and there was only loneliness and desolation.

He sighed and fell back heavily into bed, staring at the roof of the room in a daze.

He has been suffering from insomnia lately. Last night, he was a little drunk and disoriented, so he subconsciously told the driver to go to the Marriott Hotel.

He didn't expect to get a good night's sleep here and was in surprisingly good spirits today.

This room was where they made love for the first and last time. In the bathroom, on the sofa, on the carpet, on the bed.

Lucian's mind was filled with memories of Amelia. He remembered the look on her face when she had no choice but to obey him.

Every time he thought of her tolerance and obedience to him, his heart ached.

They once loved each other so much, but now they were strangers, disappearing from each other's lives.

He remembered a saying he had heard: If you love, love deeply, if you don't, please leave!

She had literally disappeared so completely that he couldn't find her again.

"Amelia, you d*mn woman. You'd better not let me find you, or you're dead," Lucian growled in a low voice.

This was the first time for him to vent his dissatisfaction in this way since she left.

He thought that alcohol would help him forget everything, but he thought wrong. The more drunk he got, the more his heart ached.

Physical pain was nothing. It was the loneliness and the inside that was the most deadly.

Lucian blinked his eyes and felt his vision blur a little. He covered his eyes with his hand but touched the tears. It had been almost half a month since she had left and he missed her so much.

It had been just half a month but he felt like it had been half a century.

It wasn't that he couldn't cry. It was just that no one other than Amelia had the right to make him cry.

He trembled slightly. It turned out to be such a feeling to lose a beloved one. His heart ached, as if he was being poked by a knife. He could not find a way to relieve himself.

Lucian wiped the tears off his face with the back of his hand and pulled the covers over himself.

He had never felt so lonely and heartbroken. He had loved her to the point of madness.

Lucian hid himself under the covers for a long time. It was only after he had calmed down that he slowly pulled back the covers and his eyes looked much redder.

"Knock knock knock..."

There was a knock on the door. Lucian knew it was Adonis.

He took a deep breath and went to the bathroom to wash his face in cold water before he went to open the door.

When he came out, the door was still violently knocked. He frowned with displeasure and slowly opened the door.

Adonis looked at him with a displeased expression. He carried a lot of takeaways in his hands and said discontentedly, "What took you so long to open the door? I went from the west side of the city to the south to get you something delicious."

Lucian glanced at the takeaway he was carrying in his hands in silence, then turned around and went back into the room.

Adonis was speechless. Didn't he know to give a hand?

Chapter 1314

Adonis went in with his takeaway and Lucian had already gone to the bathroom, where the sound of running water could be heard.

He put all the food on the table, and waited for Lucian to come out for lunch while using his phone.

He saw Candace sending him a message early in the morning, and he instantly felt in an overwhelmingly good mood. These past few months, he always looked forward to hearing from her. They would chat almost every day, talking about idle chit-chat, but they both still enjoyed it.

"Mr. Church, I failed on my twentieth blind date. :("

Adonis was speechless. In these few months, she went on blind dates twenty times.

Adonis felt unhappy for some reason.

However, upon seeing that her blind date had already failed, he felt a strange sense of comfort.

Adonis pursed his lips slightly and stared at the message. He did not like her to go on blind dates. What should he say?

After a while, he replied, "Why did it fail this time? Was that man bad?"

Adonis didn't understand how he had asked such a question. He was trying to compare herself to that man.

Candace seemed to have been waiting for his reply and replied to Adonis in almost seconds.

"This time, he is a very handsome man, and I like him. Unfortunately, he is a mommy's boy. When he came to the blind date, her mother followed him secretly and sat at another table behind us. I asked him, if we could get married in the future, would we live with your mom?"

He looked at his mother for a long time, and didn't dare to answer. Later, when I noticed him looking behind me frequently, I turned around to find a stylishly dressed lady sitting behind me. He nodded when his mother agreed with me and shook his head when she didn't. I was so shocked that I almost spat out the ice cream.

I can't live with such a mummy's boy. Although I didn't like to socialise, I am an independent woman. How could I put up with this kind of man? So I was so angry that I left.

Adonis smiled when he saw this. He could imagine the adorable look on her face as her eyes blazed with anger.

"Miss Aiken, you're right. He's not someone who can live with. You're right to leave." Adonis found that he really didn't know how to have a good chat with a girl after sending this message.

He should have just taken the opportunity to ask Candace if she thought they were right for each other, because he wasn't a mummy's boy.

Adonis slowly leaned back, waiting for Candace's reply.

"Mr. Church, my parents have been forcing me to go on a blind date, but I actually don't want it at all. I want to travel to A Country, but I grew up in C Country and I'm very unfamiliar with it. So if you are not busy, can you accompany me for a few days?

It won't be too long. I'll write in the morning so we can have fun for a few hours at lunchtime.

Adonis took one look at the message and got excited. He thought he had misread it and read it again carefully before confirming that Candace was really coming to visit Country A. Did this mean they had a chance to be together?

He quickly replied with a message.

"Miss Aiken, I am a native from the A Country. I have a lot of free time to take you out. There are many famous tourist attractions in River City, and Miss Aiken is welcome at any time."

Adonis carefully confirmed the message before sending it over.

He half-closed his eyes and his thick eyelashes were long and curled. At this moment, he was extremely charming with a smile.

He gently stroked his chin with his fingers, but his eyes were fixed on his phone, waiting for the response.

One minute, two minutes and ten minutes passed. Lucian had already come out of the bathroom, but Adonis did not receive a response from Candace.

Adonis had that anxious feeling again, and he double-checked his reply to make sure it was okay before he let out a sigh of relief.

Did he scare her because his reply was too direct?

After Lucian took a bath, he had already put on his clothes. He felt much better after a good night's sleep. After being decadent for more than half a month, he had finally regained his former refined disposition.

He stood by Adonis' side. But Adonis, who was focused on waiting for a reply, did not notice Lucian's presence.

Lucian glanced at the takeaway and felt hungry.

He elegantly walked to the opposite side of Adonis and sat down, watching Adonis still staring at the phone.

He opened the takeaway package to find it was filled with his favourite dishes. He ignored Adonis and picked up his chopsticks to enjoy dishes.

Some of the dishes didn't taste very good because they had been packed for a bit too long, so he took a couple of tastes and didn't eat any more.

"Did I say the wrong thing?" Adonis muttered to himself, somewhat chagrined that he had answered too directly.

"What did you say wrong?" Lucian asked casually.

"You scared me! When did you sit here? You walk without a sound?"

Adonis looked at Lucian with some embarrassment. Could it be that he saw what happened just now?

Lucian narrowed his eyes a little and raised an eyebrow at him. He'd started lunch and Adonis hadn't even noticed him. Why was Adonis so serious that he didn't even know there was someone across from him?

Lucian said, "I'm almost full. Are you waiting for a text from Miss Aiken?"

Adonis looked at him in surprise. "How did you know that?"

He had been standing next to him long enough to see that the name of the person he was talking to was Miss Aiken, and even if he hadn't seen it, he knew that the only woman who had been haunting Adonis all this time was the one called Candace.

It was the first time that he saw Adonis want to chase a woman so seriously. It was somewhat different from the past.

Adonis looked apprehensive, "Lucian, she said she wanted to come to River City for a trip, and I said I had time to take her out. Did I say it wrong? Why does she seem angry? Over half an hour has passed and she hasn't replied to me."

Lucian put down his chopsticks. In the light, he sat elegantly, looking unmistakably noble and his slightly narrowed eyes looked charming. Every move he made showed his unique elegance and nobility.

"Boring." He finished and went back to eating his lunch.

Adonis couldn't understand why this was boring.

No, Lucian was upset right now so he saw things differently. Adonis felt that he was full of passion and love now, and could not be disheartened by Lucian's coldness. Think about what he's been through these days.

Ever since he returned home, he had dreamed of Candace's cute and adorable appearance every night.

Chapter 1315

It was a first for Adonis, a careless man, that he couldn't get his mind off a lovely lady like that.

"Lucian, you look good today." Adonis looked down at his phone. Candace still did not reply him, so he also picked up the chopsticks and began to eat lunch.

He decided to have lunch before continuing to wait.

Lucian nodded and did not say anything else as he continued to eat.

But Adonis had no appetite at all.

After another 20 minutes, his mobile finally vibrated.

Adonis quickly picked it up and glanced at it.

[Mr. Church, I have already bought a ticket. Tomorrow evening, I will arrive at Country A's airport.]

Adonis laughed. All the anxiety he had just felt disappeared, "No wonder she hasn't replied to my messages for so long, she's gone to book a flight."

Adonis seemed to be talking to himself as he quickly replied.

"Miss Aiken, I'll pick you up at the airport tomorrow night."

"Thank you, Mr. Church. See you tomorrow! :)"

Adonis couldn't stop laughing.

Lucian laid down the chopsticks in his hands and got up to make himself a cup of coffee. Then he sat down on the sofa, folded his long legs up and leaned back gracefully with his eyes closed.

Adonis knew Lucian's character, so he didn't mind him. At the moment he thought even the semi-cold takeaway was a delicacy on earth.

He gorged himself on the rest of the dish.

With a full stomach, Adonis felt incredibly satisfied. The thought of seeing Candace tomorrow night made him even more excited.

He gracefully picked up a tissue and wiped his mouth, glancing back at Lucian.

He said with a smile, "Lucian, try to deal with anything in the morning and at night. Give me some downtime during the day. I want to date with a girl."

"Up to you," Lucian responded casually and didn't say anything else.

Adonis sat down beside him and looked at the cold expression on Lucian's handsome face. Amelia's departure was really upsetting for him. Two weeks had passed and he still hadn't pulled himself together.

Adonis was a casual person, and his way of comforting people was also very direct.

They were also very sad when they looked at Lucian's despair during this time.

Lucian suddenly opened his eyes and glanced coldly at Adonis.

Was it for his own good that she had left? Why was she so unconvinced that he was capable of protecting her?

The thought of her, so innocent and thin, being out on her own made his heart ache as if he had been cut hard by something.

The thought of their past started to break him down.

Amelia, you were really something.

Everyone said you left for my own good. But I didn't think so. For me, your departure was as if I had been banished to hell.

Lucian's hands hung on both sides powerlessly. He tried all he could to find any trace of her. But it was as if she had vanished into thin air.

She had really made up her mind to avoid him completely.

Adonis looked at him in such despair and couldn't bear to say anything for fear he might say something else that would upset him.

"Come on Lucian, we've got a lot of work to do today. Did you manage to convince those old fogeys on the board last night?"

Adonis sounded a little more serious once they got down to business.

Lucian nodded. "After meeting Victor and Eden, four of them were convinced. The other two have always been my brother's followers. Since they are willing to follow him, let them be."

Some people wouldn't change their minds, so he won't force them.

"Okay!" Adonis took a sip of Lucian's coffee and said, "It's just these two shareholders. We don't have to mind too much."

Lucian saw the scene and frowned slightly to express his displeasure. Adonis often drank his coffee in such a casual manner.

Sensing his displeasure, Adonis unhurriedly put the coffee on the table before saying, "I know you can't finish it, and I drank half of it for you just so it wouldn't be wasted."

Lucian was speechless at his excessive economy. No wonder he has been single.

He got up and put on the coat on the sofa. The slim black coat gave him a dignified and dazzling appearance.

He picked up the car keys from the table and headed out of the room.

Adonis finished the rest of her coffee before following Lucian out.

V&E Club was a private club under Victor's name. This was the most luxurious high-end club in the center of River City. Money was not enough for a person to become a member to enter here. He still needed a certain status and interpersonal network.

The nobles at the upper level of society would come here when they came to River City, because the service and food here were the best.

The interior of the club was spacious and available 24/7 for members to work, dine and socialise. Inside the ten-storey building were restaurants, bars, private dining rooms and salons, as well as an alfresco restaurant with views across the city.

And it was brilliantly and dazzlingly decorated by top designers!

The service fee here were high because of the security facilities and the focus on privacy.

Eden took Paula straight to the fourth floor, a private meeting room that Victor had prepared only for her. With the increase in clients this year, Eden would meet with her VIP clients here, as the confidentiality of the place was very reassuring.

Paula looked at the resplendent private club in surprise.

This was a place where only rich people could enter. She couldn't afford to pay the fee even if she worked for ten years.

Eden walked into the conference room and found nobody. She had always been punctual. When she saw customers, she would go out early and made sure she was not late, which was her principle.

The client was expected to arrive for another hour and a half, and she still had time to have lunch.

Eden and Paula had just sat down and before Paula could ask a curious question, a waiter walked in and looked at Eden with a respectful smile, "Ma'am, welcome."

Eden nodded politely with a smile. "Serve me two A Combo Meal."

"Yes, madam." The waiter smiled and left. After a few steps, she turned around and said, "Madam, it's quite a coincidence that Mr. Ronen, Mr. Church, and Mr. Joye are all here on business today."

Eden nodded. "Thank you, I see."

Then the waiter turned to leave.

Eden sat by the window and looked out at the beautiful view, thinking that Maureen should be fine since Jasper had started negotiating business.

She wondered how Jasper was doing.

"Eden, is this also the Alwynn family's property?" Paula asked with a smile.

Eden was thinking about Maureen and nodded perfunctorily when she heard her question.

Chapter 1316

"Eden, you're really amazing. Marrying Mr. Alwynn is equivalent to owning half of River City." Paula was envious, but knew that no matter what she did she could never get into this high society circle.

Now that Eden was taking her to these high-end places, she must have had a chance to meet a single aristocrat.

Eden knew Paula pretty well. Listening to her, Eden took one look at the excited expression on her face and knew exactly what was going through her mind at the moment.

Eden suddenly wanted to tease her a little. To be honest, Paula had always tried to make a fool out of Eden in high school, but every time she had failed, and it was herself who ended up making a fool of herself.

If you knew someone too well, you only needed one expression to know what they were thinking.

She looked at Paula with a smile, "Paula, are you very envious of me and eager to marry a rich man?"

Paula was a little embarrassed when she heard this. She lowered her head slightly and whispered, "Who among the women here doesn't envy you. Besides, all women want to marry a nice man. I'm not the only one who thinks that way."

Eden smiled. Well, that was Paula, relentlessly dragging others down with her, no matter how embarrassed she was.

After all these years, she still hadn't changed at all.

"Knock knock..." As the door knocked, a man with tall figure came in. "Eden."

Eden's eyes suddenly brightened. She looked at her handsome elder brother and stood up with a smile. "Delmont, you are here too."

Delmont smiled and nodded. He walked up to her and caressed her head affectionately. "Yes! I'm here to meet a client. By the way, I'm going to buy the basement-1 floor of west city for a supermarket."

Eden was slightly surprised. "That urban villages in the western part of the city?"

Delmont nodded.

Eden was a little confused. Wasn't she the biggest investor over there now? So she should be the one talking to her brother about a business partnership.

Well...

Was her innocent brother being tricked by someone else?

She pondered for a while, then looked at her big brother with her big bright eyes, and asked, "Who are you talking business with?"

Delmont said with a smile, "Brother-in-law of the Monroe Group said he had investments there. Buddy's business is getting better now and I don't want to be worse than him, so I'm thinking of expanding the supermarket operation. It's a densely populated area and there are no large supermarkets, so I'm going to open one there."

"The brother-in-law of the Monroe Group? Who is he? Brother, It's okay that you were often cheated out of money when you were a kid. How come you're still as innocent as before when you grow up?"

If he hadn't come to see her today and said this thing to her, she would not know until the money had been swindled out of his hands.

Delmont blinked his eyes in confusion. "Eden, Why do you remember so well the embarrassing things I did when I was a kid? Can't you remember something about me being nice to you? For example, you pulled my hair and asked me to go to our father behind your back, and I walked behind your back in the big sun. Why don't you remember these things? "

Eden blinked her big eyes innocently, "Because bad things always stick in people's minds. It's hard to forget it."

Delmont felt ashamed that his sister remembered all the embarrassing things he had done as a child.

Eden said, "This is not the point. The point is that you've been tricked."

"What?" Delmont looked at his younger sister in disbelief. Stunned for a moment, he asked again, stupidly, "Eden, when did I get tricked?"

"Just now." Eden looked helplessly at his innocent and ignorant expression on his face.

Eden shook her head helplessly. "Delmont, the biggest investor in that urban village. If you want to buy the basement-1 floor, the person you need to see is me. Why did you see the Monroe Group's brother-in-law? Are you sure you found the right person?"

Delmont couldn't help but wonder when his sister got into the real estate market.

He suddenly remembered that Zaiden was her father. If Eden would inherit his company later on, it was to be expected that Eden would be in the real estate business.

D*mn!

Why was he so stupid that he was almost tricked again?

He said with a sad face, "Eden, I find our parents so biased."

Eden didn't know what this had to do with mum and dad.

"What do you mean?"

Delmont said, "They made you and Buddy so smart. I'm the only one who's stupid. They're so biased." Delmont was aggrieved as he looked at Eden.

Eden was speechless.

How could he blame their parents for this?

Eden couldn't help but laugh. "Delmont, can you find a decent reason? But there is still a way to resolve this matter. Isn't your current cooperation not yet negotiated? I originally had this plan of setting up a supermarket as well. As the saying goes, benefits should always be kept for our own people. Even if you don't have such an idea, I would still go for your cooperation."

Delmont looked at his sister's beautiful eyes and smiled at her words, "Eden, you're so nice. I'm going to find and teach a lesson to the guy who dared to lie to me. How dare he!"

Eden looked at him worriedly. "Delmont, don't go too far. It's certainly hateful for him to lie to you, but there should be the law to punish him." The crux of the matter was that her eldest brother was easy to cheat, which was why others came to find him.

There was nothing wrong with her brother, just too much kindness.

"Well, I know. Eden, if you are free, remember to take the kids home. Let's get together as a family, and Glenn misses his brothers."

"Okay! I'll go back when I can." Eden realised that she really hadn't been home for a long time. Although she texted her mum and dad every day, they would prefer her to go back and accompany them.

"Well, Eden, I'll be off then." A look of anger appeared on Delmont's face as he turned around. D*mn that b*stard who tried to cheat him out of his money!

As soon as Delmont left, the meal she ordered was sent in.

Eden sat back on her seat and watched as Paula stared blankly at the door. She didn't even react when the delicious food was placed in front of her.

Eden glanced suspiciously at Paula, who was dumbfounded and seemed to be lost in her own world.

She knocked hard on the table, then Paula immediately came to her senses and looked at Eden with a somewhat embarrassed smile.

"Eden, is he your real brother?" Paula asked with a smile.

Eden nodded with a smile.

She took a piece of chicken and waited for Paula's next words.

"Eden, is your brother married?" After Paula finished asking, she looked at Eden nervously.

Eden looked up at her as if she knew that she would ask such a question.

She slowly swallowed the food in her mouth.

Then, Eden smiled and narrowed her big watery eyes. "Paula, I knew you would ask this question. But I'll be the first one to disagree with you being my sister-in-law." Her brother was a bit silly and easily fooled. She remembered that she had fooled him when she was a child. But he was willingly tricked by his own sister.

However, she couldn't stand others cheating on her brother.

Paula's face turned a little sour when she heard that. The Clement family was the second most powerful family in River City. She remembered that the Clement family's adopted daughter had been in trouble with the Clement family before, but she had been too busy working at the time to pay attention to that incident.

"Eden, do I really suck in your eyes?" Paula asked, a little disgruntled. She had only bullied her for a few years in high school, but she hadn't done anything mean to her either.

Eden nodded. "Don't we know each other? Don't you remember what you did in high school? I told you to stay away from my brother."

Eden warned with a serious face. Although her brother was stupid in other aspects, but he was very serious in relationships.

"I'm not really worried though, because my brother has high standards for girlfriend. He really wouldn't like a normal woman yet. My other brother married a woman he liked, so this brother is probably going to marry a lady with a prominent family." Eden said with a serious expression.

In fact, after what happened to Buddy, her mother's thoughts had already changed a lot. She was just saying that to get Paula to change her mind.

The Clement family was not short of money, and there was no need to obtain cooperation through marriage. As long as the children lived happily, her parents and grandmother would agree to their choice.

"A noble lady?" Paula's expression turned instantly disappointed. She was a girl from a poor town in the middle of nowhere and really didn't deserve to marry such a nobleman.

Eden nodded. She wanted Paula to give up the idea of marrying her brother. Because if Paula, who was mean, became part of the Clement family, there would be no peace in her family.

As soon as Paula heard this, she knew there was no hope of marrying Eden's brother. Then she lifted her pretty face proudly, "I'm just asking. Who wants to be your sister-in-law?"

Eden just smiled not breaking her lie, "I knew you didn't have that in mind. I was afraid you would."

Paula was a little angry. "Eden, don't you just despise me? Do you think I'm not good enough for your brother? But I'm pretty."

Paula was very dissatisfied with Eden's arrogant attitude. Many Cinderella could marry her Prince Charming. With her pretty appearance, she could win the favor of her Prince Charming.

Eden also said bluntly, "What's the use of being good-looking? A pretty face isn't the most important thing, a good character is."

Paula felt so wronged that she almost shed tears. "Eden, do you mean that I'm not a good person?"

Eden shook her head while eating. "I didn't say that." Did Paula not know what kind of person she was?

Eden had just seen the look on Paula's face when she was charmed by his brother. It was like a hungry wolf seeing a piece of meat.

Paula just had a flattering smile and seductive expression on her face. Unfortunately, her brother was really a naive man and didn't even look at her.

Paula continued disgruntled, "But that's what you think."

Eden said, "Are you a mind reader?"

Paula pouted and looked embarrassed as if her thoughts had been pierced. "Because I know you." Eden looked gentle and easy to bully, but she was so fierce that she could make you go to hell without a word.

She remembered that when she was in high school, she was indeed jealous that Eden was good at studying. Eden was pretty but she pretended to be ugly and hid her beauty. Although she was the prettiest girl in the class, she still felt a little dissatisfied.

So she was always trying to make a fool of Eden, but it was always she who ended up making a fool of herself. It had happened many times before.

Eden looked at her with a smile, "Tell me. How much do you know about me?"

She didn't believe Paula knew her very well.

After all, in high school, she didn't give anyone a chance to get to know her. Myra didn't know her, let alone Paula.

Paula pursed her lips. She wanted to say something but was unable to.

How much did she know about Eden? She thought to herself. All she knew was that once Cyan, the adopted daughter of the Gienger family, had low self-esteem and was not a talker. And there were obvious things, like the fact that she was bullied every day, that she studied well and that boys handed her love letters every day.

Paula was a little jealous at the mention of the love letter. She was the prettiest girl of their class, but all those boys handed Eden the love letter.

Paula looked at Eden with some jealousy. "Cyan, do you still remember those boys who delivered love letters to you in high school?"

Victor, who had a dinner party here at lunchtime, had heard that his wife was here. He was just about to push his way in when he heard Paula's words and he froze. Had many boys written a love letter to his wife before?

Eden nodded as she ate, while Paula lost her appetite at all.

"Eden, I've always wondered why so many boys liked you when you were ugly and outdated, and you were nothing but a good student?" She had actually never been able to figure out this question.

Eden looked at her with a smug smile and said proudly, "Paula, ugly and outdated doesn't hide a person's true charm."

D*mn!

Paula was exasperated by her words, Eden, you're too much.

Do you have to be so smug?

If one was so self-conceited, he would be struck by lightning one day!

Eden couldn't help but smile at the way Paula gritted her teeth in anger before she continued to eat her lunch.

"Cyan, do you still remember Irving?" Paula asked again.

Eden looked at her in confusion and shook her head. Back then, she either studied or worked part-time. She did not remember many of the 48 students in their class.

She only remembered Paula fondly as one of the few people who used to bully her.

"Cyan, I find you really heartless!" Paula's somewhat indignant tone made Eden even more confused.

She blinked her eyes as she looked at the exasperated look on Paula's face.

Chapter 1318

Seeing Eden's confused expression, Paula sneered, "Cyan, do you really not remember or did you deliberately forget him? He liked you for three years in high school. Because he always liked you, he still hasn't married a wife yet."

Eden frowned. How could she not know that there was such a boy who loved her?

Besides, how could a high school student know what love was?

No, absolutely nothing like that would have happened to her.

At that time, they were still children.

"Paula, what are you talking about? Don't you talk nonsense. If there was someone that fond of me, how could I not remember him?"

Paula's sneer was harsh.

"Eden, are you kidding me? Don't tell me that you haven't received any chocolate and love letters from him. Don't tell me that when you were on duty, he didn't help you and that he had been helping you with your posters. Don't tell me you didn't know he deliberately ran with you when you were punished for running around the playground."

Eden looked at Paula with a stunned look. She frowned and thought for a while, but she still had no memory of the boy. It had been too long. How could she have noticed who liked her when she was just trying to make a living?

"Paula, I did receive love letters every day, but those love letters were lying quietly in the trash can. I have never read any love letters.

As for the chocolates, didn't you guys eat them? How do I know who gave them to me? It's you who eat those chocolates. So you should remember it, right?"

Paula didn't know what to say, because those chocolates did get eaten by them.

"Isn't that because you don't want to eat?" Although Paula was trying to defend herself, her face flushed first.

Eden sneered as she recalled the past. "How could I possibly be in the mood for chocolate? You four have been bullying me every day. I wanted to eat it, but you took it away from me."

At that time, she couldn't even afford to eat, so why not eat chocolate? When she wanted to eat it, they had took it away and ate it.

Paula blushed even more, regretting why she had mentioned such embarrassing things, which seemed to make her look bad indeed.

They were very young at that time to do that. The moment she saw her years later, she pretended to be familiar, but inside she was still very embarrassed to have done so many bad things to her after all.

"But Eden, Irving really never got married for you. Jodie liked him so she kept an eye on Irving all these years."

Eden was speechless!

Was this really related to her?

"Paula, you can't talk nonsense. I don't know why you're putting this big blame on me. You're trying to make me feel guilty."

Eden knocked on her plate with chopsticks. "We've got to meet with a client later. You've got half an hour to eat your lunch."

"Eden, you are such a careless woman. Can you be more serious about the people around you?" Paula was a little anxious.

Eden smiled. "Sorry, back then all I could think about in my mind was how I could afford my next meal. How would I have had time to think about other people's feelings and pay attention to them?"

"I give in to you! Why does Myra hate you so much? She won't even pay for your meal. Maybe because you have such a don't-care-about-anything attitude." Paula huffed and started eating.

Eden smiled but did not say anything.

Victor, on the other hand, left in silence and gloom.

"Sorry, back then all I could think about in my mind was how I could afford my next meal. How would I have had time to think about other people's feelings and pay attention to them?"

The words made him sad.

She never mentioned the old days to him.

He only knew that she had a bad time, but he did not expect it to be so bad.

She was his cherished little princess. He had never imagined that his little princess would suffer so much because of him.

Victor only felt so sad that he could not breathe, and his dark eyes were full of pain and self-blame.

Half an hour later, Eden met with three key clients of the company. Because she met them in person and her design had always been very amazing, it went well when they talked about cooperation.

Almost without much negotiation, the clients agreed to sign the contract.

Eden always knew that the business was like a battlefield. It was the ability to do what's important.

After the three clients had left, Eden started to sort out the things on the table.

Paula found Eden to be really amazing when it came to business.

One of the clients, a lady who looked tough, was easily persuaded by Eden. She didn't have much of a smile on her face, but she was happy when she left. Paula wondered what Eden had said to her to make her so happy.

Eden packed up the contract and whispered, "Let's go."

Paula followed her out, feeling as though she was of no use whatsoever. She did not say a word during the entire process.

Eden glanced at her watch and realised that there was no time to say hello to Jasper. Besides, after such a long time, Jasper should have left.

So she went to the elevator.

After taking a few steps, she met Jasper. However, he seemed to be preoccupied with a lot of things. He lowered his head and looked very bad. Dressed in a suit, he was still so elegant and noble, but his body was slightly shaky.

"Jasper." Eden called him softly.

Hearing the familiar voice, Jasper, who was in a very complex mood, suddenly looked up and saw her worried face.

Paula was instantly attracted to Jasper the moment she saw him. Why were all the men around Eden so handsome?

This man was as handsome as Victor.

"Eden." He called out. He stood three steps away from Eden and looked at her helplessly.

He felt so upset and wanted to hug her. But he tried his best to restrain himself. He knew that he was not qualified to do that.

Eden was worried because she knew he must be having a hard time right now. He seemed thinner than ever.

He, who had always been arrogant, would never show such a helpless look.

Eden walked to him. He was much taller than her and she always looked up when talking to him.

"You're thinner. Why don't you take good care of yourself?" Eden looked at him with concern.

Chapter 1319

Jasper looked quietly at her concerned little face, feeling touched. He wanted to say something but ended up saying nothing.

"Eden... I." Jasper couldn't help but reach out his arms and take her in his arms. He buried his face reassuringly in the nook of her shoulder.

"Eden, please, just a moment. I can't breathe, Eden..." Jasper's voice was whimpering a little, but getting smaller and smaller.

Seeing the two hugging each other, Paula opened her mouth in shock.

Was Eden blatantly cheating on his husband?

Just then, the door behind Eden was opened.

As soon as Victor went out, he saw the two people hugging each other. His pupils shrank sharply, and his expression became gloomy.

Dean, who followed him out, was also shocked to see this scene.

Seeing Victor's gloomy face, Paula was even more shocked. What a coincidence!

It was seen by her husband.

Eden, however, didn't notice the others. She felt that something was wrong with Jasper.

His whole weight was on top of her and she was barely able to support him.

"Jasper, Jasper..." Eden called out a few times, but Jasper did not respond.

Victor found Jasper faint. He walked over and helped Jasper up from Eden's body.

Eden was about to say thank you when someone was helping her. She looked up and saw a pair of dark eyes filled with jealousy and pain. The word "thank you" was stuck in Eden's throat.

"Victor, Jasper, he..."

Victor said to Dean. "Call an ambulance."

"Okay." Dean quickly took out the phone and called the emergency call.

Eden looked at Jasper and was very worried.

Why did he suddenly faint? Had he not rested well all this time?

Victor saw her face full of anxiety and felt more and more pain in his heart.

He admitted that he was jealous. This was the man Eden cared about the most besides him.

"Mr. Joye, what's wrong?" A man in suit ran over.

Eden knew that he was Jasper's assistant, Jason.

"Jason, do you work in River City now? Hasn't Jasper had a good rest this time?" Eden asked.

Jason shook his head. "Mrs. Alwynn, haven't seen you for a long time. I've just been transferred to River City recently and only felt that Mr. Joye had lost a lot of weight. I haven't even started taking care of his daily routine, but he rarely went to the company recently."

As Jason spoke, he helped Jasper up from Victor's body.

Eden gave a hand and Dean brought over a chair. They positioned Jasper on it as they waited for the ambulance.

"Jasper, wake up." Eden gently patted his face.

However, Jasper did not react at all.

Watching the scene, Victor felt jealous to the point of madness. A tense atmosphere spread.

Paula felt that she was wrapped in an invisible chill. She held her breath nervously and felt more nervous than Eden, who was about to have a problem.

No man could watch his woman care for another man like that in front of him, especially not the possessive Victor.

Soon, the sound of an ambulance came from downstairs.

Eden glanced at Victor. "Victor, come and help."

Victor clenched his fists and went over to help.

Paula was a little confused by Victor's attitude.

Had she guessed wrong?

Victor and Jason helped Jasper into the elevator and they went downstairs together.

Jasper was soon sent to the ambulance.

Eden wanted to go to the hospital without even thinking about it.

Victor, however, pulled her back with an aggrieved face and wouldn't let her go.

He knew that in order to forget Eden, Jasper made a great determination. But if she followed Jasper, many things became different.

Feelings are something that couldn't change easily.

Love is hard to restrain. He himself was such a typical example. For Eden's sake, his sanity almost collapsed.

Jason knew something about Eden and also knew that their president had always been in love with her.

He smiled and said, "Mrs. Alwynn, I will take Mr. Joye to the hospital. He will be fine. When he wakes up, I will tell you."

"Okay!" Eden took a look at Jasper, whose face was pale, and nodded. Then the ambulance closed its doors and left.

Paula and Dean, who were following behind Eden and Victor, looked nervously at them.

In the past, when Eden had a problem, Paula would gloat in her mind. But now, for some unknown reason, she really didn't want anything bad to happen to Eden. She had made it to the Alwynn Group, and she didn't want to leave.

Eden knew that what happened just now had made him sad. She never had feelings about Jasper. Jasper had always been her family member. So if Jasper had an incident, she would really not be at ease and would be very anxious.

It was hard to meet such close, family-like friends in a lifetime.

There was a real bond between her and Jasper, Abby.

"Victor, are you angry? You know that Jasper is in a bad condition." Eden's voice was gentle.

Victor shook his head slightly and stared at her with a complicated expression on his face. Such Victor made her feel like he was alienating her.

He was well aware of the relationship between her and Jasper. He was just jealous.

Apart from him, Jasper was the person she cared about very much.

In fact, he hated himself more for losing her and losing more than ten years with her.

Instead, Jasper had accompanied her for ten years.

When she needed him the most, he had done nothing for her.

When he saw Victor shake his head, Dean, who had been scared to death, was relieved.

He could see exactly how jealous and angry Victor was just now.

What kind of man would have the generosity to tolerate a woman who has intimate contact with another man like that?

Victor whispered, "Eden, let's go back."

"Okay!" Eden smiled and let him lead her along.

Eden looked at his lost expression and felt guilty.

After all, that scene just now could easily be misunderstood. She was grateful that Victor had chosen to believe her.

When Paula was about to chase after them, Dean immediately stopped her. "What are you doing over there?"

Paula quickly made an excuse, "I am afraid they will quarrel."

Dean sneered, "Come on, I think you want the president to quarrel with his wife. Only shallow people like you can be so mindless. Do you know who that man is and what relationship he has with Mrs. Alwynn? Do you really think that she cheated on Mr. Alwynn?"

Chapter 1320

Paula said seriously, "Isn't it? They're hugging each other."

Dean was speechless. Did this woman think about the consequences when she said this?

Dean said sarcastically, "I admire your courage. If you want to follow them, that's fine with me." If she shamelessly followed them, she would definitely be kicked out of the car by Mr. Alwynn.

Mr. Alwynn looked like a gentleman, but Dean knew he was by no means a gentleman.

He recalled how Mr. Alwynn had treated Melissa. Mr. Alwynn was a man who had no other woman in his eyes than his wife.

Paula froze for a moment at his words.

Then...

She glanced at Victor and Eden.

Victor gentlemanly pulled open the car door for Eden, let Eden sit in, and bent down to help Eden fasten her seat belt.

Then he hurried back to the driver's seat.

The car did not drive away as expected.

As soon as Victor got into the car, he held Eden in his arms.

Eden wrapped her arms around his firm waist and she knew what was on his mind.

His lips were by her ears. She could feel his hot breath and his uneasiness.

Her face suddenly became a little hot.

"Victor, I'm sorry." Eden apologized in a low voice. Victor had been very wary of Jasper, so nervous that he could get jealous whenever she smiled at him.

Hearing her apology, Victor smiled slightly, and his jealousy dissipated a lot.

His expression was also no longer gloomy from jealousy.

"Baby, you don't have to apologize. I just want you to love me wholeheartedly." He said in a low voice, as if in supplication.

Eden pushed him away slightly and then looked at him aggressively. "Victor, are you doubting my love for you? To be honest, you are the first and only man I have ever fallen in love with. Although I did not show this love as strongly as other women, but this is also my only and most precious love."

Seeing this scene today, would he not trust her and doubt her love?

Jasper had just been in a terrible state. As his friend, was it wrong for her to let him lean on her shoulder?

She couldn't stand that the people she cared about were sad. In this world, there were only a few people that she cared about.

Hearing this, Victor was very happy. He knew that his Eden only loved him. But the human mind was so contradictory. How much he loved her was how afraid he was of losing her.

He knew that her and Jasper suffered a lot from this ten-year relationship and limited her emotions.

She was unwilling to hurt him, and Jasper was unwilling to let go.

Even though she never gave Jasper any hope, and Jasper understands that. That was why she would feel guilty.

"Eden, don't feel bad. I've always believed in you. I just don't like the way he's holding you, like you're being taken away from me and I'm scared." Victor said what he was thinking.

Eden smiled. He's always been this way. "Victor, Jasper has made it very clear that we can't be together. Jasper and I have known each other for ten years and it's not easy for a friendship."

Victor nodded resignedly, "Eden, I know, but I'm still jealous."

Eden knew he still wasn't happy about it.

She pinched his waist.

Victor's whole body trembled at her sudden move and subconsciously groaned.

"Honey." His voice sounded aggrieved.

It instantly reminded Eden of the cute little dog.

Eden smiled with bright eyes, "You deserve it. Why do you like to be jealous so much? I'm the only one in the world who can stand your personality."

Victor's possessiveness had always been so strong that she could feel it.

Victor pinched her nose with a smile. "Of course, only my wife is qualified to tolerate my personality."

Eden was speechless at his shamelessness.

"I have completed my work today. Let's go home. The kids are almost out of school." Eden leaned back wearily against the passenger seat.

"You're tired?" Victor rubbed her head.

"Yes. We should spend more time with the kids. Lately I've noticed that Kenny seems to have something on his mind. Haven't you noticed it?" Eden tilted her head and looked at him.

Victor blinked his eyes in confusion, "No."

Kenny who was a silent child had a personality like him.

Victor suddenly remembered that he and Kenny still have a deal, but Eden had an accident before and did not implement it. Their opponents obviously still haven't given up targeting them.

There would be a social gathering tomorrow night, which was a good opportunity and did not need to be deliberately arranged.

But did his son have something on his mind?

He would go back and observe Kenny carefully tonight.

His son was very mysterious, and he didn't know him very well.

He seemed to be very obsessed with computers lately. After finishing his homework, he had been using the computer.

The child's IQ was amazing, and even he admired his computer skills.

But this child was very silent and lonely.

"Eden, let's go home."

Eden nodded.

Paula and Dean watched Victor's car leave before they returned to the company.

Paula couldn't understand what she had experienced today.

The closer she got to Eden, the more she found that Eden was truly amazing.

She was a far cry from Eden.

After comparison, she realized that she had really lived for nothing in the past few years.

When they were having fun, Eden was busy learning. When they were busy dressing themselves up, Eden would make money to support herself.

Paula sighed and had the feeling that if you don't work hard when you're young, you'll be sad when you're old.

Dean drove the car and asked. "What's wrong? Are you upset because you didn't see the president and his wife quarrel?"

Paula glared at him. How loyal of him to keep being sarcastic about her for the sake of his Mr. and Mrs. Alwynn.

"Do you think I'm such a bad person?"

Paula was a bit speechless. She just felt that she had wasted many years in vain.

Dean put on a false smile. "You look like a scheming woman, don't you?"

Paula was speechless at his words and cursed him silently in her heart.

"You are really rude. No one told you that you offend people by talking like that?" Paula gave him a cold glare. How could he be so shameless and impolite?
