

Gluey Love 1471

Chapter 1471

"Hold on. The ambulance will be here soon." After Eden finished, she glanced at Paula on the opposite side.

She stared at her brother and her with a look of panic.

Why did Paula appear here so coincidentally?

Paula slowly looked away, not daring to meet Eden's gaze.

Eden frowned angrily as she had a vague idea of what Paula was trying to do.

"Eden, I'm fine." Delmont said with a smile. But the sweat on his forehead revealed his condition, and he looked not good at all.

He frowned in pain. It's after the numbness that hurts the most.

"Delmont, hang on for a while." Eden endured the pain in her body and looked at Delmont's bloody leg, feeling a little desperate.

If Delmont had been crippled to save her, she would have felt guilty for the rest of her life.

She suddenly noticed that there was blood running on the floor from her dad's left foot.

"Dad, you're hurt." Eden struggled to get up.

Wyatt looked at the blood on her forehead and was even more frightened.

"Eden, don't move. Your forehead is bleeding." He could not help worrying. If it weren't for Eden who pushed him, he would have been rolled up under the wheel.

Eden did not listen to him. Instead, she used all her strength to get up from the ground.

She said with a cold face, "Dad, I am okay."

She angrily walked toward the stopped car, ignoring her aching leg with icy eyes.

"Eden, stop. It's dangerous." Delmont shouted. The driver was obviously doing it on purpose. He only started the car when they came over. It was obvious that he was waiting for them.

If it weren't for the fact that he could not move his legs now, he would have given him a good beating.

Eden ignored him and continued walking forward.

Wyatt took out his phone and called Victor. He knew Eden was very angry now.

He was afraid that something else would happen.

Eden came to the side of the car and saw the driver sitting in the driver's seat trembling, not daring to come out. She could smell the strong smell of alcohol.

Drinking in broad daylight?

Eden was even angrier.

"Come down." Eden glared at him with hatred in her eyes.

Whether it was a conspiracy or an accident, her father had almost died under his wheels today.

If she hadn't experienced enough, Delmont would have suffered more terrible things today.

The driver was a man in his 30s. Looking at Eden's angry face, he was a little scared. "Miss, I... I'm sorry. I didn't mean it. I had a few sips of wine at noon and just got a little dazed and dizzy earlier. I... I do not want this to happen."

The driver looked at Eden with guilt and helplessness.

Eden sneered, "Do you think I will believe you? Get the h*ll down."

"Sorry, Miss. My feet are shaking. I'm afraid I can't stand still." The man looked scared.

Eden quickly reached out and grabbed his collar. He looked gentle and weak, but he was strong in fact.

Panic appeared at the bottom of the driver's eyes. Eden said coldly, "You're so sober when you're drunk? You're dizzy and you can still justify yourself like that?"

"I... I wake up in fright. If I hadn't, I... I would have run away long ago." This seemed to be in reason.

Eden didn't believe it. "You will be convicted of a more serious crime after the escape. You're staying but trying to mitigate the charges. Let me ask you just one thing, do you know Paula?" Eden lowered her voice and looked in the rearview mirror as she saw Paula limping toward Delmont.

The man was stunned and quickly denied, "No... I don't know who Paula Koch was. I just drank too much."

Eden's expression became even more furious, "Did I say her last name was Koch?"

The man was more flustered. "You... you just said it."

Eden sneered. It seemed that her guess was right. The d*mn Paula.

Someone around called the police. The sirens could be heard, and the ambulance arrived.

Eden did not continue to argue with the driver. She limped back to Delmont's side.

Seeing Paula squatting down to help her brother up, Eden pushed her away and said sternly, "Stay away from my brother."

Paula looked at Eden angrily, "Eden, at this time, do you still want to get mad at me?"

"Yes, at this time. Are you still so hypocritical?" Eden said sarcastically.

Paula was stunned for a moment before she immediately acted as if she had been wronged.

"Delmont, I'm just worried about you..."

"Shut up, Paula. We were high school classmates for three years. I know very well what kind of person you are. Don't let me find out that this matter today has something to do with you. Otherwise, I will kill you." She warned fiercely.

Paula was completely panicked.

Upon hearing these words, Delmont was a little confused because he had never seen his sister so angry before.

"Eden, what do you mean by this?" His tone was sharp.

Eden looked at him. "The ambulance is here. You go to the hospital first."

Delmont felt a great pain in his legs. If it weren't for the dignity of a man, he would have shed tears.

If his mother was by his side, he would definitely cry. But in front of his sister, he could not be weak, or she would be more worried about him.

Anton was also in the ambulance. Looking at Eden's injuries, he frowned, "Mrs. Alwynn, are you all right?"

Eden did not expect that Anton would come in person. She smiled gratefully. "Dr. West, I am more relieved with you here. My eldest brother's surgery depends on you."

Neal nodded, "Mrs. Alwynn. Let's go to the hospital first to deal with the wound."

Eden nodded, and then the four people got on the ambulance.

After arriving at the hospital, Delmont was directly sent to the operating room.

As for Eden, Wyatt, and Paula, they only suffered superficial injuries. The doctor treated their wounds.

Paula's injuries weren't too severe. It was just that her knee was scratched.

Eden and Wyatt were seriously injured, especially Wyatt. The skin on his knee was rubbed off and it looked shocking.

Eden looked at her father's injury and her heart ached terribly.

Her dad lived in comfort and he would never suffer such pain.

"Dad." Eden watched him frown in pain from the antiseptic wipe on the wound.

Wyatt bore the pain and smiled. "Eden, I'm fine." He was now worried that Delmont would be crippled at such a young age.

Eden was silent and watched with concerned eyes as the doctor treated his dad's wound. Every time the doctor moved the cotton ball in his hand, Wyatt frowned.

Eden's heart ached as well.

Paula sat on the side nervously, peeking at Eden from time to time.

Did Eden know anything?

"Eden!" Victor burst in.

The doctors present were startled.

Victor walked to Eden quickly and saw that her face was covered with gauze and her clothes were covered with blood. He asked anxiously, "Why are you bleeding so much? Where are you injured?"

Chapter 1472

Eden shook her head. "Don't worry, Victor. I have only superficial wounds and have already been treated. It's just that Delmont's leg was badly injured in order to save me."

"How did the superficial injury bleed this much? Did the doctor examine you properly?" Victor was still uneasy.

He didn't want to meet with Carney today, but Carney kept insisting, so he had to go over and tell him clearly that it was impossible to let Melissa go. He and Carney had just met and before they could get to the point, he got a call from his father-in-law that they had been in a car accident.

Eden took his hand, smiling and reassuring the worried man, "I've been examined and it's really just a superficial injury. I'm fine now. My dad is still being treated for his wounds."

Victor felt a little relieved. "Dad, are you ok?"

Only then did Victor look at Wyatt, who was being treated.

Wyatt endured the pain and looked at him. "Victor, look into this matter properly. If it wasn't for Eden, I could have died today. Eden and Delmont also suffered because of me."

He was still angry. It was not an accident. He had to find out who this car accident was trying to target.

Victor nodded with a gloomy look. "Dad, Dean has already gone to the scene. There will be a result soon."

Wyatt nodded, "Victor, I trust you."

What he was most worried about now was Delmont.

He was more worried that this car accident was aimed at Eden.

Next to them, Paula was very nervous.

Her plan had failed.

Not only that, things were completely out of her control. She now just hoped Victor wouldn't find out anything.

After treating his wound, Wyatt was sent to the ward to rest for an anti-inflammatory injection .

Victor accompanied Eden outside the operating room and waited for Delmont to finish the surgery.

Paula also followed them.

Only then did Victor see Paula.

"Paula, why are you here?" He gave a sense of oppression in his cold voice.

Paula, who was nervous, looked at Victor, whose face was cold, and did not answer him.

Eden glared at her in silence. She could only pray that Delmont would be fine.

As if sensing Eden's intense gaze, Paula lowered her head and remained silent.

Eden did not dare to call her mother. She was afraid that her grandmother would be worried if she knew it. She could only make a decision after Delmont's condition had stabilized.

After waiting for four hours, the door of the operating room finally opened.

Anton walked in front with a tired face.

Eden quickly got up and asked, "Dr. West, how is my eldest brother?"

Anton looked at her seriously and pushed up his glasses, then looked at Paula who was also nervous, "Mrs. Alwynn, Mr. Clement is disabled and has had his leg amputated."

"What?" Eden felt dizzy and Victor quickly held her up.

"Eden."

"How could this happen?" Paula couldn't believe what she had heard.

Thinking of the bloody leg, she could not believe it. This was not the result she wanted.

Eden glanced at Paula who looked incredulous.

There was no trace of concern on her face, only disbelief.

"Poor Delmont." Eden lowered her head and leaned against Victor's chest. Her shoulders trembled slightly.

In less than a minute, Paula took a look at the door of the operating room and made a decision. Delmont was disabled, and her dream was shattered. She didn't want to spend the rest of her life with a disabled person.

There was no need to sacrifice her own life for a disabled man.

Paula made an excuse to leave.

Eden asked her questioningly, "Paula, didn't you say you loved Delmont? Why are you leaving so soon when you hear he's disabled? Won't you stay and take good care of my brother?"

"I... "

Eden interrupted her. "If I were you, I would take good care of him in such a special time and win a good impression."

Paula didn't know how to answer. She would not like a disabled Delmont, and Delmont was not the only rich man in the world.

She could meet a better person than Delmont. so she didn't want to marry Delmont anymore.

"I... I still have work to do in the company. I'll go back to the company first." Paula left in a hurry.

As soon as Paula left, Eden's angry look immediately disappeared.

She looked at Paula with a hint of ridicule.

Paula, was this what you call love?

If you arranged this arr accident, I would never let you go.

Victor was confused.

Eden looked at Anton. "Dr. West, thank you."

Victor was dumbfounded again.

Neal smiled and said, "Mrs. Alwynn, you're welcome. Mr. Clement suffered a comminuted fracture caused by gravity. The operation is very successful. As long as he is not infected, he can get out of bed in about half a year. He just needs to take good care of himself, or his limb function will be hindered in the future, and there will be problems when walking."

Eden gasped when she heard that.

"Dr. West, please make sure you treat my brother well. Thank you." He was a surgeon with superb medical skills.

"You are too polite. Mr. Clement will be sent to the sterile room later. You can't visit him for the time being. So you can go back home first."

"Alright, Dr. West. You should go and rest too." Performing an operation for four hours really wasn't easy. He was highly focused and even more tired.

Neal nodded and left with a smile.

Delmont was sent into the sterile room. After being put under anesthesia, he slept soundly.

Eden and Victor went to Wyatt's ward.

"Eden, how is Delmont?" He had always been worried.

Eden smiled and said, "Dad, his operation was very successful. You don't have to worry and just take care of yourself."

Wyatt breathed a sigh of relief. "That's great. I'm worried that if he gets a crippled leg and doesn't get a wife, he'll have a hard time in the future."

Eden knew that her family had always been worried about Delmont's marriage and did not say anything.

Emotional problems can't be solved by rushing.

"Dad, Victor will take you back home later. Have a good rest. Delmont doesn't need to be looked after tonight. I will come to take care of him tomorrow morning."

"Okay, Buddy will come over tomorrow at noon to help you." Wyatt closed his eyes with tiredness.

After Victor sent Wyatt back, he went back to the hospital to pick up Eden.

Eden also took the opportunity to look at Candace.

Candace's pregnancy vomiting was severe. She had lost so much weight that she looked very weak and pale.

Brenda was worried, so she stayed in the hospital to take care of her and her son.

Brenda was really good to Candace, treating her as her own daughter.

Once she was so gossipy, but now she didn't even see her friends who played cards together and took care of her son and Candace almost all day long.

Chapter 1473

"Eden, thank you for accompanying Candace. She's had such a bad reaction to the pregnancy vomiting for a while that she's lost weight because she hasn't had an appetite. I'm worried about her." Eden looked at Candace who was suffering with concern.

Eden also knew that it was hard for pregnant mothers-to-be, "Auntie, I was like this back then too. She will be better after three months."

She looked at Candace again, "These three months may be hard. But when the baby can move, you will forget about the sufferings and just be happy."

She remembered the first time she was pregnant at that time. When she wanted to eat dumplings and sit down to make dumplings, she was kicked by the baby and her tears instantly flowed out. The happiness at that moment could not be described in words.

The strong existence of that little life made her feel wonderful and happy.

Candace nodded with a smile. Although it was uncomfortable, she was looking forward to the child of Adonis. "Eden, I'm often uncomfortable in the morning. I had a check-up, and the fetal heart sound is fine."

Eden comforted her, "That's good. You just take good care of yourself. Adonis is a lucky man and will wake up soon."

"I know." Candace looked at Adonis on the bed, hoping that he would wake up soon.

As long as he woke up, all her hardships were worth it.

Eden chatted with Candace for a while before leaving.

It was dark and snowing heavily again.

Eden looked at the heavy snow outside the window. Her face was as gloomy as this winter night.

She took out her cell phone and called Dean.

"Mrs. Alwynn." Dean said with a faint smile.

"Dean, how's it going?"

Dean replied, "The driver insisted he was driving drunk. He had a great attitude and was willing to take all the responsibilities."

Eden frowned. She'd had a hunch. "Dean, check to see if there's any extra money in his account."

"Yes, Mrs. Alwynn, I was just about to check that, too."

Eden said gratefully, "Thank you, Dean."

After hanging up the phone, Eden suddenly felt the familiar sensation of someone holding her around the waist. She looked up and smiled at Victor. "You are back."

Victor embraced her and walked outside the hospital.

"It's snowing. Let's go home." Victor did not ask anything and took her into the elevator.

After sitting in the car, Victor looked sideways at her. "Eden, should you tell me what happened today?"

On his way here, he was so anxious that his heart was about to jump out of his chest.

As soon as she was out of his sight, she might have an accident. The thought of this made him worried.

A stern look appeared on Eden's face, "I suspect that Paula arranged this incident today."

Victor looked at her and said, "Paula doesn't have the power to do that now."

Eden shook her head and analyzed, "I don't have proof that she did it. But with her personality, it is indeed what she may do. After all, if she wanted to marry Delmont, The battered-body trick was the best way to get Delmont to remember her. She knows Delmont would be grateful.

If she had saved Delmont and my dad, then she would have been pestering Delmont. I thought of that at the time before i pushed my dad away. I didn't want her to succeed."

"You little twerp, you almost scared me to death. You may die, you know that? Have you ever thought about my feelings?" Victor sounded angry. She always ignored her own safety.

Eden knew that he would be very angry.

She looked at him and said, "Victor, if I hadn't done that, my dad would have been knocked out and wouldn't have suffered only superficial injuries. He's old, so how could I watch him get hurt so badly?"

Although Paula bravely rushed out, the speed of the car was too fast, so she was still hesitant.

That was her father. How could she bear to see her father get hurt in front of her?

Eden were full of anger as she said, "I don't want Paula to pester Delmont with this matter."

"And as you can see, when she heard my brother was disabled, she turned and left immediately. She didn't really love him, instead she loved the money and status of the Clement family."

She was certain that Paula must have done something about this accident.

Victor had no choice but to drive back home.

And he asked Dean to thoroughly investigate Paula.

If she was someone with an ulterior motive, he was going to kick the woman out of the company.

Afraid that Eden would be suspicious, Paula went back to work.

Still not convinced, she called the hospital and still got the same answer that Delmont was disabled.

She was completely desperate.

She had not arranged everything properly today. However, she knew that the man would not reveal her. He would bear all the blame himself.

She originally planned to save Delmont or Wyatt, so that she could stay by Delmont's side afterwards, and Delmont would treat her well because of that.

A kind man like him would never forget her, his lifesaver.

But she didn't expect that Eden would see through her intentions and push Wyatt away desperately.

And Delmont also tried his best to save Eden.

It was beyond her control.

Paula was thinking about it when the phone on her desk rang.

She found out it was the phone number that had called her that morning.

It was Dahlia, Irving's fiancée.

Paula thought about the advice she had given this morning. Without any hesitation, she reached for her phone.

"Hello."

"Miss Koch, it's me. I don't know what's on your mind about what we talked about this morning?"

Paula looked at the dark night outside the window. It was snowing heavily, and this year's winter was very cold.

Now she's lost her chance to marry Delmont. She has nothing left to worry about.

Eden looked down on her, so she didn't need to be loyal to her.

In this world, with power and money, who cared about love?

That cheap love could not give her a wonderful life and future.

Paula thought for a while and said, "Why don't we meet and talk about it. I'm still in the office and there are some things I can't talk about here."

May smiled, "Okay then. The Night Bar? let's chat when we meet."

After Paula hung up the phone, she tidied up her desk, picked up her handbag, and left without hesitation.

Paula walked through the noisy lobby of the bar and went straight to the private room.

As soon as she entered the door, she saw the extravagant scene in the private room.

There were a few women in fashionable clothes in the private room. All of them were sexy and seductive. There were also a few well-dressed gentry who looked like they were from decent families.

Chapter 1474

Seeing Paula's arrival, Dahlia glanced at her attire, then took a sip of wine before standing up with a slow smile. A long, sexy red dress outlined her stunning figure.

"Miss Koch. Please take a seat."

"Thank you!" Paula also smiled to those beautiful women in fashionable clothes.

But when these women saw her, they all had disdain on their faces.

Some of them didn't even look at her.

A few men even looked at her with ulterior motives.

She was already used to the way people treated her differently and looked at her with disdain. She was not dressed up enough to go out with them.

She had always understood that and had always tried to join the high society circle, but unfortunately it was hard.

It's really hard without family and contacts.

Otherwise, she would not have pestered Delmont so endlessly and arranged the battered-body trick today. Unfortunately, she failed.

"Come on, Miss Koch, have a drink." Dahlia passed the glass in her hand to Paula.

Paula politely reached out to take the glass. The magnificent diamond ring on Dahlia's hand shone brightly in front of her.

Dahlia seemed to show off and waved the ring in front of Paula's eyes, seemingly conveying some kind of message again.

Paula envied Dahlia that she could be Irving's fiancée.

Paula took a sip of the wine.

May introduced the ladies around her to her.

"Paula, you could feel free when you're with us. This is Carolyn Meaker, Belinda Kuhn, and some of their friends."

Paula knew that Carolyn and Belinda were from the two great companies that had given up the Alwynn Group. Instead, they worked with Irving during this time.

Their status could not be underestimated.

"Miss Verrill, Miss Kuhn, nice to meet you." Paula greeted them politely with a smile.

Carolyn looked condescendingly at Paula, who was wearing cheap clothes, "Dahlia, why do you make friends with her? She's not worthy of entering our high society circle." Her tone was full of disdain and contempt.

Paula felt embarrassed to be pointed out in public like that. She felt nothing but anger or resentment.

"Yeah, so cheap. Dahlia, you can't let someone like her join our circle. She smells like copper and really pollutes the air." Belinda also smiled and echoed.

The women beside her also laughed with contempt.

It was hard to imagine that such a beautiful lady would say such harsh words.

Hearing the impolite words of the two women, Dahlia smiled and said, "Miss Meaker, Miss Kuhn, Miss Koch is my friend and a classmate of Irving after all. You two please play nice. Don't say something so offensive."

Hearing that she was Irving's classmate, Carolyn and Belinda looked embarrassed.

"Miss Koch, we were just joking. Don't take the words just now seriously." Carolyn immediately changed her attitude.

Irving's classmates still have to be treated politely.

"Yes, this is a joke in our circle. Miss Koch, don't mind it." Belinda also said so.

But her expression was even more dismissive.

Paula could tell that when they heard the name Irving, their attitude towards her immediately changed.

Irving was really well-known.

This differentiation made her more and more understand that only money could make herself glamorous.

If she could get Irving's favor and support, she would get more resources and contacts.

All Eden ever gave her was to crack down, not to let her succeed.

She smiled and said, "Miss Meaker, Miss Kuhn, it's ok."

Carolyn immediately took off the limited edition watch she had just bought and handed it to Paula, "Miss Koch, this is this year's new limited edition watch, famous for its sexy luxury. Miss Koch looks so beautiful and matches it very well. This watch is for you as an apology."

Paula knew that this limited edition watch was worth at least a few hundred thousand dollars. The exquisite classic design was ingenious, creating a very elegant taste.

"No, no, no, this is too expensive. I can't accept it. Thanks but no thanks." Although Paula said so, her eyes were fixed on the watch in Carolyn's hand.

If she sold it, she would be able to make hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In fact, she did not want to let go of the money.

But she also knew that there were unspoken rules in this circle, and wondered what they would want her to do with such an expensive watch.

It was already very risky for her to meet Dahlia here.

What if they asked her to steal Alwynn Group's top secrets? She dared not do that.

Carolyn smiled and put the watch in her hand. "Miss Koch, if you don't accept it, I will not feel at ease. It was my fault before. Please forgive me. This is just a small gift from a friend since we first met."

Carolyn's words left Paula with no way to say no.

And she also wanted to be friends with Carolyn.

Belinda also took off her expensive diamond ring and handed it to Paula. She smiled and said, "Miss Koch, Carolyn's right. This diamond ring is designed by a well-known designer. You have such beautiful hands. You must look beautiful with them."

Paula was stunned. She was excited but also worried after receiving these precious gifts.

All the gifts her ex-boyfriends gave her were not as expensive as the ones these two women gave her.

The two women really paid a high price.

Dahlia smiled with a complicated expression and persuaded her, "Paula, just take it. I just bought this diamond ring not long ago. As a friend, let me give it to you too. I will personally design a few sets of flashy clothes for you afterwards, so that no one will dare to laugh at you again."

In fact, they had a purpose tonight, to get Paula to stop hesitating to do things for them.

She had checked Paula's background, and she knew the woman loved money.

And she was in desperate need of money.

They were implying that she could join this high society if she was willing to do what she was told to do.

On the contrary, if she didn't want to do it, she would become a nonentity in the eyes of others.

These luxuries and money can easily tempt the poor Paula.

And most importantly, with such high-end jewelry, she can date a rich boy she desires. It was very obvious.

"Dahlia, this is too expensive." Paula looked at the three women in front of her and felt a little nervous.

She held the gift worth millions in her hands like she was dreaming. Although she said no, her heart wanted it so badly.

Chapter 1475

Paula hesitantly looked at the expensive gift in her hand.

Dahlia looked like she could see her hesitation and blinked her beautiful eyes, "Paula, we are so sincere to be friends with you. You must not refuse us."

"Irving said you are his classmate and let us be polite to you. Asking you out to meet is to deepen the relationship between us.

That's why I called Carolyn and Belinda to come over here to know each other with you. In this big city, there are always times when we should help each other."

"Am I right? Paula."

Paula smiled and nodded. These words were correct. However, she also knew that these three women did not sincerely make friends with her.

There was no friendship in this circle. They just used each other.

Moreover, with these three gifts, she would live a luxurious life for a while if she sold any of them.

"Thank you for your kindness. It seems that to decline would be disrespectful." After Paula figured it out, she accepted the gifts with ease.

Seeing her accept the gift, they were even more scornful in their hearts.

But this made Dahlia rest assured.

Only greedy people were the easiest to be used.

On the contrary, it was hard to seduce someone who didn't love money.

Paula did not care about their contempt. She only took advantage of them.

In any case, if something happened in the future, she could clear the relationship with them.

In this era, friendship is nothing compared to her own benefit.

The gifts were not symbols of friendship but rather sugar-coated bullets, and now she knew she was in danger.

At night, Eden tossed and turned and couldn't sleep.

Even though she knew that Delmont was fine, she was still very worried.

After she rolled over for the fourth time, Victor finally asked.

"Eden, can't you sleep?"

Eden opened her eyes and looked at him. "Did I wake you up?"

Victor shook his head with a smile. "No. I was just a little distressed to see you couldn't sleep.

Eden smiled. "I'm worried about Delmont."

"Little twerp, there's nothing life-threatening about him. He would be fine." Victor nudged her nose.

"Well. I'm also angry at the people who caused this crash." That's what she was angry about.

Victor frowned, "Dean is already looking into it. We'll have latest news by tomorrow night. Don't worry. If you can't sleep, we'll do what we just did again."

Eden blinked her beautiful eyes. Indeed, she couldn't fall asleep, but he couldn't bully her every night.

"Honey, they said the water in the stream is the clearest. I think they must have never seen your eyes."

Victor wondered what was on her mind.

"As long as you like them." He smiled, but watched his wife cautiously.

Eden smiled sweetly and caught his big hands that were touching her. She asked, "Honey, tell me, why do you take so long during sex? Are you secretly taking aphrodisiacs?"

Victor did not react for a moment to what it means?

After a while, he instantly understood what it meant.

Her wife actually questioned his impotence. How dare she say something like that?

However, Eden's next sentence made him even more angry.

"Taking aphrodisiacs regularly is not good for your health. I am more worried about my sex life in the future." Eden advised in a serious manner.

He was so strong that she couldn't help but doubt him.

Victor froze instantly, and his face was gloomy.

He felt so wronged by this kind of naked injustice.

As a man, being suspected by his own woman was such a shame.

She can't even satisfy his sexual needs now, and she's worried about her sex life later.

He, Victor, was strong and young now. Did he need to take aphrodisiacs?

That was absolutely impossible.

He immediately pounced on her.

His sudden action made Eden shrink her neck slightly. Her big bright eyes looked at him like a frightened rabbit.

This look of hers was d*mned tempting to Victor. The anger he had just felt immediately disappeared.

"Honey, you will be severely punished for doubting me," he said in a hushed, seductive voice.

His breath enveloped Eden.

Eden was stunned and instantly realized that her unintentional words had brought her so much trouble.

It hurt a man's pride when his woman said that.

And she had touched a man's sore spot.

She smiled sweetly like waving a dog's tail.

"Honey, I'm absolutely not suspecting you. I'm just worried about your health."

How could Victor not see through her mind?

However, it was too late. Tonight he's going to prove himself.

"Honey, everything is miserable. Only you can make me happy."

Eden looked at his passionate gaze and instantly regretted it. Why did she say that?

"Honey, that's not what I meant."

"It's too late, babe. Now, I need you to accept me for this sweet trouble. In this world, you are the only one I want. Now I will let you know if you will be happy in your sex life or not. "

He emphasized the word "happy".

Eden was so regretful at the moment. Why did she speak like that?

"Honey, the night is nice, suitable for doing something to enhance our relationship. You do not worry. I will make you very happy." Victor said with a grin.

Eden glared at him accusingly.

Victor lowered his head and kissed her red lips.

She was dazzling and charming in his heart like the brightest sunrise on earth.

It was a happy night for the couple.

The next morning, Eden had no choice but to get up early. With her tired body, she carried the breakfast made by Jaida to the hospital.

She found two strong men in dark suits and sunglasses standing next to the car.

Both men were inch-headed, looking strong and aggressive.

Eden was stunned.

The two of them went up to greet her respectfully. "Lady, good morning!"

Eden nodded slightly and asked, "You are...?"

"Mr. Calder has asked us to protect you from today on."

Eden was very grateful. However, it was very inconvenient for them to follow her like this.

"I appreciate dad's kindness. But I'm not used to you following me like this. I'm going to the hospital. It's very safe. You can rest at home." Eden said that and was about to get on the car.

One of the bodyguards stopped her.

"Lady, please allow us to follow you and protect you. We will not bring you trouble. His name is Anthony Welan, your driver. My name is Aro Welan, your bodyguard. We will only appear when you need us and won't disturb you at other times." Aro's tone was determined.

Chapter 1476

Eden smiled a little helplessly. She had previously refused the people Victor had arranged to secretly protect her.

Although they followed her secretly, she felt that she still had to rely on herself at the critical moment.

If they were too far away, they wouldn't catch up at the critical moment.

"By the way, why are you all surnamed Welan?" She was curious.

Aro answered, "We are all orphans adopted by Mr. Calder and do his bidding. All we have is from Mr. Calder and will serve you in the future."

Eden heard it and understood it.

Her dad was kind and generous. He helped many orphans. If they were willing to stay with him, they would be sent to learn skills. If they were unwilling, they could also live the life they wanted.

"Thank you. I am very grateful for you being so loyal. Let's go to the hospital now." Eden no longer refused. Dad should have sensed the danger, so he asked them to protect her.

Anthony took the things she was holding, opened the trunk and put them away.

Eden sat in the back seat.

Aro turned around and left, quickly disappearing from Eden's sight.

Anthony drove Eden to the hospital.

Delmont stayed in the sterile room all night and didn't get infected, so he was transferred to the VIP ward. He had long been hungry.

When he saw Eden come in with breakfast, he smiled and stared at the breakfast in Eden's hand.

He knew that it was made by Aunt Jaida. It must taste delicious.

"Eden, quickly, I'm so hungry." He couldn't help but urge her.

Eden smiled and put the porridge on the table beside him.

"The pork ribs porridge my mother made is really delicious." Eden looked at his legs with plaster and felt a little distressed.

"Wow! I knew it. Aunt Jaida always cooks very well." Delmont looked at Eden's slow movements with eager eyes. His sister always knew how to torture him.

When he woke up, there was no one here, which made him so lonely and disappointed.

Eden was not in a hurry to give him food, but looked at him with a smile. "Delmont, I told the outsiders that you are disabled and have amputated."

Delmont was lost in thought. He didn't expect his sister to do this.

He looked at his sister's innocent face and kind of wanted to punch her. He swallowed a mouthful of spittle, not expecting to be set up by his sister.

"Why? Do I look so much like a handicap?" He looked at his sister sadly and wanted to cry.

Sister, you can't slander your brother like that.

Eden laughed at the look on his face as he was about to cry, "Paula turned around and left as soon as she heard you were disabled."

Delmont frowned. He didn't take Paula seriously at all.

"Eden, don't tell me you're doing this just for her?"

Eden nodded and snorted. "She has been pestering you for so long. I also felt strange that she appeared at the scene yesterday. So I decided to put on a show with the doctor to test her. But the result was too chilling. She didn't believe it afterwards and called the hospital secretly to ask about it."

"Don't be mad at her. Give me breakfast quickly. "He had no appetite just now, but now he instantly had an appetite once he heard his sister's plan.

She did this to help him.

Eden poured the porridge into the bowl, shook the table and put the porridge in front of him. There were also two dishes for him.

For a starving Delmont, it was the most delicious food in the world.

He picked up the spoon and ate in big mouthfuls.

Eden was speechless. What patient has such a good appetite like him?

Eden said with some disgust, "You eat slowly. I won't fight you for food. There's plenty more. It's all yours. Don't choke yourself."

Delmont said vaguely, "Eden, I was hungry all night. Yesterday at noon, I only chat with you and didn't eat much."

After that, he lowered his head and ate again.

Eden did not say anything else and looked at him quietly.

She pursed her lips slightly. Before she came to the hospital, she asked Anton and knew Adrienne happened to be coming to the hospital for a review today.

She talked to Anton, and he understood what she meant.

It would depend on whether Adrienne had feelings for Delmont.

According to Delmont's personality, he would definitely not tell Adrienne about what happened to him.

"Brother, I'll go back to the company at noon. Buddy will take care of you."

"Okay, I won't feel bored when I have you guys to talk to." Delmont only cared about eating, and forgot his manner in front of his own sister.

"Well! If you feel bored, I'll ask Gia to talk to you. She's a little chatterbox and will keep you from getting bored all day long."

She was not as good at talking as her daughter and often just didn't know what to talk about.

Delmont was happy to hear that. "Tomorrow is the weekend. It's great to let her come here and accompany me. Gia and I will have a great time."

"Okay!"

Eden went to wash the insulated lunch box after he finished eating.

Delmont wanted to watch TV. Eden turned on it for him. Then she went to visit Candace.

She left at a certain time.

Adrienne was scheduled for a 10:00 review.

She did not go to see Candace, but waited outside Anton's office.

When it was ten o'clock, the nurse pushed Adrienne to the consulting room of Anton.

Eden waited patiently outside.

When Adrienne went in, Anton just finished checking an old lady.

Anton was washing his hands. Seeing Adrienne, he smiled and said, "Miss Parma, you are really punctual."

Adrienne smiled politely. "Sorry to trouble you, Dr. West."

Anton smiled and didn't say anything. He squatted down and carefully examined her leg.

After a while, he smiled and said, "Miss Parma has recovered very well. You still need to take a good rest afterwards. Remember to come over regularly for a review."

I just operated on Mr. Clement yesterday. His leg was crushed by the car and it was bloody. I don't know if it can still be saved. Miss Parma, you are really lucky."

Adrienne tensed up when she heard that. When she arrived at the hospital, she had also heard similar discussions on the first floor's hall.

She slightly clenched her fists. Mr. Clement? Delmont or Buddy?

She thought about it and asked, "Anton, which Young Master Gu?"

After asking that, she became more nervous.

Her beautiful eyes were fixed on the calm Anton.

Anton answered, "Mr. Clement, the eldest son of the Clement family. Delmont Clemen had a car accident yesterday and was sent to our hospital in emergency."

Adrienne immediately felt choked and her pupils constricted. Her tone was urgent, "Which ward is he in?"

Anton looked at her curiously. "Do you know Mr. Clement? He seems to be Mrs. Alwynn's brother."

Adrienne quickly nodded. "Yes. I want to see him."

Chapter 1477

Anton smiled and answered. "It's a coincidence that he's staying in the ward you were staying in before ."

"Thank you, Dr. West!" Adrienne asked the care worker to push her out.

She went straight to the ward on the eighth floor where she was staying before.

Eden received Anton's message and then turned to go upstairs with a smile.

After Delmont was full, he felt bored again.

After watching TV for a while, he again felt that there was nothing interesting.

He turned off the TV with the remote control.

He heaved a sigh of relief. Adrienne, who just pushed the door, also tensed up when she heard his sigh.

"Can this leg really be healed?" Delmont muttered to himself as he looked at his injured leg.

"The feeling of losing freedom turns out to be so painful. How does Adrienne put up with it?"

When he thought of Adrienne, he had a sad expression on his face.

He dreamed of figuring out what the conflict was between them?

The sudden return of the woman he hadn't heard a word from in six years revived his love for her again.

Adrienne felt both moved and distressed when she heard that.

"If you know that losing your freedom is painful, why did you let yourself get hurt?"

The icy voice startled Delmont and made him look at the doorway.

He saw Adrienne sitting in a wheelchair as she looked coldly at him.

Alas...

Delmont sighed inwardly. He had wanted to have a nice chat with her, but now both of them were going to be in wheelchairs.

"Adrienne, why are you here?" His tone was very gentle.

Adrienne sneered, "I heard that you were disabled, so I came to see you." Her voice was emotionless.

But her concerned look could not conceal her inner thoughts.

Delmont was speechless. That was all his sister's plan to get rid of Paula.

Delmont glanced at his leg and smiled. "It's okay if it's disabled. It's just a leg."

Even if a leg was disabled, it was worth it for him to get her to see him in person.

He didn't have her elite mind. He only had a simple and kind heart. It was too hard for him to read her mind.

Adrienne was instantly exasperated when she heard such an uncaring tone from him.

"If you don't care so much, why do you come to the hospital? Why don't you just take a knife and chop it up yourself?" She thought he was really disabled. But the patients who were transferred to the VIP ward were usually not serious.

However, she was still a little worried when even the highly skilled Anton said something like that.

"Adrienne, your words make me sad. It's better to be crippled than to have a limb amputated." He was a good-looking man, and if he was disabled, his life would be ruined.

Besides, he did not have the courage to chop his leg up yourself.

Adrienne was so exasperated that she didn't want to talk.

"Why didn't your little girlfriend who pestered you take care of you?" Adrienne asked sarcastically. There was not a trace of emotion on her beautiful face.

Delmont looked at her indifferent expression and felt helpless. He explained, "Adrienne, you are the only person I have ever thought of as my girlfriend in my life. I have never had a girlfriend after you left."

Whether she believed it or not, he had to explain himself. He thought he was really crazy. He was really a b*stard to hurt each other like this.

Adrienne stared at him without saying anything, but inside there was a hidden hope.

She felt better these days and asked around a bit about him. As he said, he had never dated other girlfriends in the past six years. He just liked to go to nightclubs, but also not with women.

His only blemish was that he had been framed and locked up in prison for a few days a few years ago.

And he was framed by another of his sister.

This idiot had always been so stupid.

"You are so stupid. How could I have fallen for a man like you?" Adrienne could not help but vent her anger.

He was framed by his sister so badly that he almost lost the entire Clement family.

Fortunately, the family put the big picture first and preferred to lose money to preserve the company.

Without those unfaithful shareholders, the management of their family was indeed much less complicated than before.

He can get a very substantial income just by running the supermarket business.

She had to admit that Delmont, after six years, had grown up.

His facial features, temperament, and expression all changed. The only thing that did not change was his straightforward heart.

She had seen all kinds of men from rich families, but he was the one who made her feel most sincere.

He spoke and acted in a strict and upright manner. Although he wasn't so smart, his kindness was valuable.

That's why she came back.

Delmont lowered his head. Her words really hurt his self-esteem.

Why was he stupid?

However, since she was here today, he had to make something clear.

"Adrienne, let me ask you just one thing, why did you leave me six years ago?" He looked at her with a serious expression.

Adrienne was taken aback. How did he not know why she had left him?

Ridiculous...

He was the most stupid person in the world!

"Idiot, think about it yourself. Why are you asking me?" Adrienne was angry so her tone was cold and heartless.

Delmont laughed mockingly, "Adrienne, it seems that I am really stupid. I haven't figured it out for six years. Now that you're back, I still don't know why you left me. I just respected your choice. I didn't expect that it kept us apart for so long."

Adrienne choked as she felt even more enraged. "That's why you are the most foolish fool in the world."

After Adrienne finished speaking, she asked the care worker to come in and push her out. She left without hesitation.

Delmont was puzzled but couldn't understand anything.

What had he done wrong?

Delmont was lying on the hospital bed with a depressed face, recalling what had happened six years ago.

He carefully recalled the memories of six years ago. He hadn't forgotten any of them, but he didn't find that he had done anything wrong. The only thing he did wrong was not to leave her behind. At that time he thought they were still young, and if she wanted to go out, he could wait for her to come back.

However, as soon as she left, she changed her cell phone number and only sent him a message, "Let's break up."

He instantly fell into a bottomless abyss.

His love ended like this.

He didn't even know why it ended.

"Alas!" Delmont sighed as he hoped he would feel better soon.

Eden couldn't get close with the care worker around. She didn't know what Delmont had said to Adrienne. Adrienne left in anger.

She wanted to go back to the ward, but she thought that Delmont should be in a bad mood right now, so she turned around to visit Candace in order to give him some personal space.

Chapter 1478

Forty minutes later, Eden returned to his ward. She saw her eldest brother eating happily and there were the dishes he liked on the table.

She was about to buy lunch for Delmont. Was Delmont so hungry that he ordered takeout himself?

Delmont grinned when he saw her. "Eden, thank you for your lunch. You're indeed my sister and know what I like to eat. It's so delicious that it's even tastier than the food in Michelin restaurant."

Eden wondered because she hadn't gone to buy lunch yet.

Had Adrienne ordered Delmont's takeout in her name?

Just like Delmont bought food for Adrienne in her name before.

Eden joked, "Eat more if it's delicious. Don't waste it."

Was it so complicated for them to be in love?

He wanted to be good to her, but he didn't want her to know.

This kind of love was so tough.

"That's for sure, these are all my favorite dishes. I just had a little porridge. Now I am very, very satisfied to have so many dishes to my liking. I feel much better, but my legs are not very comfortable." Delmont's heartless look was cute.

Eden smiled, "You're smashed. Can you feel comfortable?" It seemed that they loved each other. Well, in that case, she won't say much. Just give them a chance to see each other more often. Maybe they had their own destiny.

At this time, Buddy came in with the daily necessities of Delmont.

"Buddy, you've come."

Buddy nodded.

"Eden, have you eaten yet?" Buddy smiled dotingly and looked at his sister whom he hadn't seen for a long time.

"I'm going to the office for lunch. I have a meeting today, I'll come over after that." Buddy was also busy, while she had more free time to accompany Delmont more.

Buddy smiled and said, "Eden, you don't have to come here today. I'll stay here with Delmont. You would be tired. Just come here tomorrow morning. We'll be fine in two shifts."

Eden said, "No, no, no. Buddy, Glenn won't be happy if you don't come home. A care worker will take care of Delmont in the evening. I'll come over and leave at 9 p.m." She had to create opportunities for Delmont and Adrienne, otherwise it would be really hard for Delmont to get a wife.

Delmont smiled. "Buddy, so be it." He preferred his sister to accompany him.

Buddy did not say anything and just nodded.

His calm demeanor made him look charming.

After saying goodbye to her two brothers, Eden went straight to the underground parking lot.

The underground parking lot was a little quiet, and it was lunchtime so there was no one here.

Eden walked towards her car.

After a few steps, a tall man wearing a green raincoat and hat suddenly came out from behind a car.

Eden had a bad feeling when the man, whose face could not be seen clearly, walked straight towards her.

She was a little nervous. After thinking for a while, she changed direction to move forward.

However, just as she turned to another direction, the man in the raincoat walked towards her quickly.

Thus, Eden was even more certain that the man was aiming at her.

He was getting faster and faster and raised the baseball bat in his hand and slammed it towards her.

Eden felt the wind behind her. She realized the danger behind her and was about to run when Aro appeared behind her and kicked over the bat in the man's hand that was about to attack her.

Aro quickly stepped on the man's hand holding the baseball bat, causing him to scream.

The man let out a miserable shriek, and his hand was broken.

The man convulsed a few times and passed out completely.

Eden was stunned, not expecting Aro to have such extraordinary kung fu skills.

Aro saw that Eden was fine and heaved a sigh of relief. "Lady, leave here first. I will take care of the rest." His tone was extremely respectful.

"Okay. Be careful and don't get hurt."

Aro nodded lightly, like an emotionless killer.

Anthony took her back to the company.

She was not worried about Aro. The people her father sent to her were all extraordinary people and could help her a lot.

She would receive news about Aro soon. The person's identity would be revealed as well.

After all, the Alwynn Group has grown so fast in the past two years that it has really offended a lot of people.

Many people who hold a grudge because of the company's bankruptcy naturally do not want to let them go.

Business was like a battlefield where the strong survived and the weak died. That was the truth.

Eden had just arrived at the twenty-fifth floor when she received a message.

It was a message from Aro.

Aro was really more efficient than the average person.

Even more efficient than Brian.

"Lady, I found it's someone sent by Gwyneth."

Eden was shocked by the fact that Gwyneth had paid someone to kill her.

How dare she? The Alwynn Group didn't do anything to her. It was her problem.

She didn't keep her nose clean herself, and now she wanted to kill her instead.

Eden sneered. She was risking her neck.

She replied, "Aro, give it to the police directly."

She would never be soft-hearted if someone wanted to kill her. Moreover, there would be a tough battle and some trouble since some people would target her.

"Yes, lady!"

Eden walked into the office.

Without taking a few steps, she met Paula, who was dressed luxuriously.

"Hello, Director Bleu." Compared to yesterday, Paula looked better and was in a better mood.

Paula lifted her long hair and purposely revealed the diamond ring for Eden to see.

Eden has been married to the wealthy Victor for many years and has developed a sense of luxury, so she knew that the diamond ring on Paula's finger was worth a lot of money.

And it was from a famous designer.

Eden knew she was deliberately showing off, so she satisfied her vanity, "It seems that after just one night, you've met a rich man. This ring is very expensive, worth almost a million dollars."

Hearing this, Paula knew she recognized this, "I didn't expect you to develop an appreciation for luxury after marrying Victor, to actually see the value of this ring."

It was from Dahlia, that rich woman.

That's reasonable. Irving and Victor's financial strength was similar. Marrying such a man will have endless money.

But Irving was different from Victor. He was always accompanied by beautiful women. Men like him would easily lose their mind and would easily be tempted by women.

It was not like Victor. There was no other woman in his eyes except Eden.

Eden looked at her with an arrogant face. This was her nature.

Hypocrisy and affectation!

She thought she would change before, but luckily she didn't trust her completely. How could Paula change?

Chapter 1479

“Paula, Congratulations, but I’m a little curious. You who have been pestering my brother just fall for someone else in less than a day. Why is your Love so cheap?” Eden's tone was sarcastic. She had not yet asked Dean what the investigation of yesterday had revealed.

Paula looked calm. After a night, she had figured it out and retorted sarcastically, "Isn't that what you wanted all along? You didn't want me and Delmont to be together at all. No matter how hard I tried, you were going to break it up, weren't you? And why should I work so hard?"

She didn't like a disabled no matter how rich he was.

Moreover, people like Delmont were not very generous. He couldn't afford what she was spending.

"It seems that you have self-knowledge."

"Do I have to wait for you to insult me? You rich people are such hypocrites. I don't want to have anything to do with you guys anymore." Paula took it for granted.

Eden laughed. "We rich people are hypocrites. You poor people are high-minded. Paula, don't go blowing your own trumpet."

"Eden, you..."

"Stop talking about these things. Go get your work done. Your bragging means nothing to me." Her expression was suddenly serious then she walked quickly towards her office.

This kind of showing off was simply childish to the extreme.

Moreover, she knew Paula very well. She wasn't the kind of person who could hold her temper. She can't do it looking kind but evil inside, and her mind can be easily seen through.

She just got a little benefit and was showing off like this. Wasn't she afraid that she would embarrass himself in the future?

She didn't care about Paula's choices either.

"Hmph!" Paula looked at Eden in anger.

As the president's wife, her wedding rings were ordinary and even earrings were cheap.

How could she say that to her?

What a shame!

But when she thought of work, she was a little worried because she forgot about her work.

No, she had to work well and must not be fired. After she took the expensive diamond rings, just as she thought, Dahlia asked her to tell her about Eden's every move.

Dahlia was now her cash cow. She must get something of value to Dahlia as soon as possible.

Otherwise, Dahlia would not treat her kindly.

"Eden, you're back." Victor became gentle when he saw his wife.

Eden glanced at him but did not say anything.

She remembered clearly what happened last night.

This man was not gentle with her at all last night.

She looked at the dishes on the table, which had just been delivered and were undoubtedly all her favorites.

She sat down and ate without saying anything to Victor.

Victor was not angry and sat down next to her. The scent of her body intoxicated him.

Eden sat away from him slightly.

Victor frowned instantly and was very unhappy with her actions.

He looked at her with a smile. "Still angry?"

Eden glared at him. "If you were me, wouldn't you be angry?"

Victor explained innocently, "Honey, I was trying to make you happy, okay?"

Eden was speechless. Did he make her happy? That's just sugar-coated bullets. She was happy but also a little scared.

This man had sex that lasted too long.

Eden still did not speak as if she would ignore him forever.

Victor had always been shameless in front of her.

"Honey, don't be angry."

Eden remained silent.

""Honey, what's wrong with Delmont?"

Eden remained silent.

"Honey, where are we going for dinner tonight?"

Eden remained silent.

"Honey, I'll continue to make you happy after dinner."

"Bang!" Eden put down her chopsticks heavily.

Hearing his words, she felt her limbs tense up.

She felt his legs go weak.

She could feel her heart trembling. Just thinking about it made her exhausted.

She stared at the shameless man in front of her. "Can you stop thinking about that?"

Victor looked at her exasperated little face. She finally stopped ignoring him.

"No!"

Eden was speechless.

"Shame on you."

Victor immediately replied, "You spoil me."

Eden almost choked on her own saliva.

When did she spoil him? How could he say that?

Eden thought of something, so she did not argue with him. "Where is Dean? I have something to ask him."

She always suspected the car accident yesterday.

Victor put the chopsticks in her hand. "Enjoy your lunch. He'll be right back."

Eden felt no need to ignore the delicious food because she was angry.

Victor watched her start eating, then he picked up his bowl and joined her for lunch.

After lunch, Victor served her juice.

He knew that he had exhausted her last night. He has figured out what was in her mind and knew all her weaknesses. He had also learned how to coax her.

But she was so attractive that she was partly to blame last night.

The next day, he would be her massager and make her comfortable.

Eden enjoyed Victor's service very much.

"Knock.."

Eden thought that Dean was back, so she looked over instantly.

But the person who walked in was Paula.

She looked at Victor with a smile. "Mr. Alwynn, Miss Meaker and Miss Kuhn want to meet Director Bleu."

She didn't look at Eden. Obviously, she didn't take Eden seriously.

Anyway, Eden knew her very well. There was no need for her to please Eden.

When Eden heard this, she knew what the woman was thinking.

This woman showed her true colors so soon.

Victor frowned and looked at her coldly. "Which Miss Meaker? Which Miss Kuhn?"

Paula smiled gently, "Mr. Alwynn. It's Carolyn Meaker and Belinda Kuhn. They probably want Director Bleu to make them private custom clothes."

Eden glanced at Victor in confusion. These two women had never approached her. Now that they were working with Irving, why did they suddenly want her to do private custom for them?

Victor refused coldly. "Tell them that my wife is off recently and won't take the order."

Paula did not expect Victor to refuse so decisively. Carolyn and Belinda came with a purpose.

Over the past few years, under the development of Alwynn Group, their two families gradually declined. Irving cooperated with them with rich financial and material resources. They had managed to work with Irving, who was well endowed with financial and material resources. They joined hands and were determined to crush Alwynn Group.

This was what those women let her know on purpose yesterday.

Paula smiled and said, "Mr. Alwynn, they are guests. Director Bleu has just become famous. It's not good to refuse them."

Victor glanced at her murderously.

"Why don't you become the head of Alwynn Group?"

Paula looked at Victor's gloomy and scary handsome face, and jokingly replied, "If you agree, I can be it."

"Get out!" Victor's face was full of anger. What a shameless woman.

Chapter 1480

His anger made Paula's face pale abruptly. She turned and fled.

Eden looked at Paula who ran away and smiled, "She was frightened by you."

Victor's face was gloomy, and he said coldly, "She's an ungrateful woman. She's been looking down on you, and I can't stand to see that."

Eden smiled and didn't say anything. She knew what Paula was eager for.

As long as she got the benefit and joy she longed for, she would become more and more arrogant.

She just got a little benefit and ran to show off in front of her.

"However, why did Miss Meaker and Miss Kuhn suddenly come here?"

Victor said, "They have an ulterior motive."

Eden narrowed her eyes at him, "You mean I am their target?"

Victor continued to massage her shoulders.

"A kind person is bullied by others. You shouldn't be polite to her. Those two families are not kind people. They can no longer tolerate it when others endanger their interests. If someone gives them a hand, it fuels and indulges their desire to violate you.

Now that their two families have Irving, who is equal to my ability and financial strength, helping them, they are naturally rampant."

Like a clown.

"These two women are not good people. She came to our door at this time. They must be trying to set you up by coming to you at this time."

Eden nodded, "I think so too. However, I have been busy taking care of Delmont recently. I really can't take the order."

Making money was not the most important thing. The most important thing was that her brother could have a wife who was in love with him for the rest of his life.

She refused the two ladies, and with Paula's nature, she would only denigrate her in front of those two people.

Victor squinted at her. His girl was hiding something from him.

"Did Dad Zaiden send you a bodyguard?" When he left for work this morning, he saw him bring in two bodyguards. He didn't have time to ask about it at that time.

"Yes! Aro and Anthony are good fighters. They just saved my life in the underground parking lot today." Eden proudly looked at him.

Victor, however, was startled. "What the h*ll is going on? What happened?"

He had a feeling that he was going crazy. Why did something bad happen to her every time he left her?

Eden's face was cold. "It's Gwyneth. She's not willing to be fired by you like this. Today, she hired a murderer. Luckily, the bodyguards saved me. That man has been sent to the police station. You don't have to worry about it."

"If she fails once, she will plan for the second time."

Eden looked at him with a smile. "That murder has confessed. Can she get away with going to jail?"

Victor's face turned cold. "They're all shameless. She's an idiot to target on you instead of fighting with people who got her to betray the Alwynn Group."

However, Eden didn't think so.

"Victor, do you know what kind of women are the ones targeting me?"

"Women who are jealous of you, of course."

Eden shook her head. She looked at him seriously and said, "You're wrong. The women who would hate me like this are the women who love you. How much they love you, then how much they will hate me."

They regard me as a hateful rival to take away their lover because of my identity.

Of course, what I said is not because I want you to feel guilty. It is just a fact. Although I am very kind, I am also very principled and will never tolerate such a person."

Victor petted her head, "Eden, you did the right thing. If someone bullies you in the future, you can bully them back hard. With me around, you can do whatever you want."

He himself was not willing to bully his woman, let alone others.

Paula arrived at the reception room. Carolyn and Belinda were looking down as they used their phones.

Paula smiled apologetically. Pretending to be angry, she said, "Carolyn, Belinda. I'm sorry, Director Bleu said that she doesn't accept your orders, and she seemed to look down on you. I am angry for you two. She's arrogant and conceited and looks down on everybody."

Carolyn sneered and said mockingly, "Who is she to look down on us? It was an honor to her to ask her for a private custom. I didn't expect her to be so arrogant, not even willing to see us."

"It's really arrogant. Once a country bumpkin married to a rich man will naturally look down on the people around. It's not our style to argue with people like her. There are many designers who are more advanced than her. Since she ignores us, there is no need for us to give her money." Belinda looked down at her expensive crystal nails with a mocking look that was extremely malicious.

Carolyn didn't think so. She came here on purpose.

"Forget it, let's go back first." Carolyn picked up her silver diamond bag with a disdainful look and didn't even look at Paula. The plan would be further discussed.

She had to discuss it with Dahlia later.

And Belinda was just a stupid woman. Whoever Carolyn bullied, she followed her to bully that person.

Carolyn didn't believe that she couldn't find out a stick to beat them with.

If she got a chance, she must kick this woman's ass.

Over the past few years, the Meaker family was suppressed to the point of bankruptcy.

Victor infringed on the interests of many people.

Paula watched them leave with a venomous look on her face. She dissed Eden in front of them and they were not kind women. So Eden's gonna have a hard time later.

Besides, she also offended the daughter of the city head.

Paula was about to walk out when she suddenly saw Lucian leaning on the door and looking at her. His look was indifferent and seemed a little angry.

Paula tensed up and couldn't help but wonder if he had seen what had just happened.

She smiled nervously, "Mr. Ronen, why are you here?"

Lucian asked, "Can't I be here?" His tone was indifferent and emotionless.

Paula's heart was filled with apprehension. If he saw what just happened, then she was screwed.

However, Lucian did not say anything and left indifferently as if nothing had happened.

Paula took a deep breath. He probably didn't hear anything. Otherwise, with Lucian's temper, he would have fired her immediately.

Paula calmed down and walked out of the reception room.

She lowered her head and bumped into Dean, who had just returned.

Dean yelped in surprise, and the documents in his hands fell to the ground.

Dean glanced at Paula and frowned. But he didn't say anything and quickly squatted down to pick up the documents.
