Chapter 11 All Eyes Will Be on You

Gloria shook her mobile phone and said, "I'll see you again."

With that, she left in high heels before Jonathan could respond.

Jonathan sat in his chair and Irene smiled at him, grabbed her cell phone and chased Gloria out.

They got in the car, but Irene didn't start the car. She looked at Gloria who was sitting in the co-driver's seat in disbelief, "Norma, are you going to get over Jordy by dating Jonathan? Jonathan is a not good choice. Aren't you afraid that you will get hurt again after you are in love with him?"

Gloria froze for an instant, but the next moment she reacted. She gave Irene a helpless smile, "What are you talking about? What I hate most now is a relationship. How can I be in love with him?"

Besides, how could Jonathan like her?

Gloria laughed, "You think too much. Even if I want to be with Jonathan, he wouldn't agree."

Irene frowned and looked at her suspiciously, "Are you sure you are telling the truth?"

"Sure."

Irene looked at her for a long time and couldn't find the clue that she was lying. Then she started the car and left the car in gear. She sighed, "Men are all jerks! We should be strong and competent women. Gloria, you are now such a woman. Don't let men be a drag on your prospects."

In the past, she only called Gloria Norma, but she called her Gloria, which meant she was very serious at this time.

Gloria smiled, "Don't worry, I won't let that happen again. This countermove against Jordy is the beginning.

Trust me."

Irene breathed a sign of relief inwardly, and turned the steering wheel, "Of course I trust you!"

The White family

At the moment, the White family had just finished their dinner. Angela had a ruddy face and didn't look like someone who had just recovered for a month.

Her mother was over forty years old, but she was always gorgeously dressed and seemed to be in her early thirties.

Angela glanced at her mother who was sitting on the sofa, and said with a frown, "Mom, I think something is wrong. Jordy doesn't seem to want a divorce."

Sometimes a woman's intuition was the most accurate, especially bad intuition. What she feared would certainly happen.

Martha looked at her, "Why?"

Angela pursed her lips, "He was moody because of Gloria these days. Yesterday, they went back to the old mansion of the Collins family together."

Martha frowned, "What? Gloria is so shameless!"

Angela gnashed her teeth in anger, "The night before yesterday, I tried my best to keep him and let him stay with me. Even though he would say something to comfort me, he was always indifferent and alienated to me. I asked him to divorce Gloria tentatively, but he didn't even want to mention it. Even if he said he would marry me, I have a premonition. Gloria will ruin this thing."

Martha's face darkened, "Why didn't I find Gloria so scheming? If she plays tricks like that again and your grandma likes her, the whole thing will be tricky! Angela, we should stop being so passive."

Angela immediately raised her eyes at Martha, "Mom, you've got a plan?"

Martha nodded, raised her hand and gently stroked her face, "My baby girl is so beautiful. You must get all eyes on you."

"Huh?"

Angela was puzzled. Martha continued, "Old Mr. Murray will have his birthday party in ten days. All you have to do is try to appear there as Jordy's date."
