Chapter 1251 She Has Had Enough

"I've never seen anyone dumber than you." Irony filled Jordy's cold eyes. Before leaving, he warned her in a cold voice, "Don't ever think you can do whatever you want with Grandma's protection. This is my last warning for you, Gloria White. Goodbye."

Then Jordy left without looking back.

When the door was closed, strength seemed to have drained from Gloria's body. She slumped on the bed. Propping herself with one hand, she didn't fall.

Yanking herself out of the memories, Gloria was sitting on the bed, just like that day. The difference was that she didn't have to prop herself up today. An ironic look flashed across her eyes. This place only carried her memories of a miserable and tragic life.

Probably because she had been single for too long, she had even forgotten the unpleasant things that happened between Jordy and her.

Or probably because Jordy's attitude towards her was different from before, those memories gradually faded.

However, when she came back, she felt those memories come back to her. The misery and tragedy she had suffered seemed to have happened yesterday.

There was a knock on the door.

Gloria lifted her eyes to look at the door without moving because she knew it was Jordy.

She vaguely remembered she drifted into sleep in his car and then she didn't know what happened later. It must be he who took her here.

But why didn't he wake her up?

Gloria frowned slightly and said quietly, "Come in."

The door was pushed open.

Jordy looked calm, which formed a sharp contrast to his cold face in her memories.

"Have you slept well?"

Gloria shot daggers at him, forming a sharp contrast to her old humble self as well.

Jordy's eyes narrowed. He clearly sensed that she was in a bad mood.

After a while, Gloria said in a deep voice, "Why did you take me here?"

"You fell asleep last night," Jordy answered expressionlessly.

"You can wake me up."

"But you looked so tired. I have no access to your house, so I bring you here."

This place was where she used to live, so Jordy guessed this place would not repulse her.

But what he didn't know was that this place carried Gloria's bad memories.

Gloria remained indifferent. Instead of saying anything, she got up and went to the bathroom.

But...

The memories came back to her again when she walked in.

One day, while she was washing up in the bathroom, Jordy barged in like the last time and questioned her about Angela.

Gloria closed her eyes.

She thought she had let bygones be bygones, but those memories just kept coming back to her. After the divorce, she had never recalled those things, but when she came back here, she had flashbacks again and again.

She felt awful.

Gloria tried her best to control her emotions. After calming down a little bit, she washed up and walked out.

Seeing that Jordy was still in the bedroom, Gloria frowned slightly. Nevertheless, it was his house, so she didn't intend to say anything but walked out.

She didn't want to stay here for a second longer. She had had enough of living here.

Seeing Gloria leave silently, his eyes were dark. And yet he followed her out.

Following her downstairs and seeing Gloria walking outside, he frowned immediately.
"Where are you going?"

Chapter 1252 I Told You I Am Not in The Mood

“I am going to work.”

“Eat your breakfast.”

There was breakfast laid on the table.

But Gloria wasn't in the mood to join him. Starving as she was, she said drily, “I'm not hungry. There is some urgent business waiting for me to deal with in the office.”

Considering that he had stomach cancer, she managed to contain herself and did nothing radical.

Gloria told herself repeatedly in her heart that she should not be mad at him, or simply should not be emotional at all. Let bygones be bygones.

She must bear the consequences of her own acts and choices.

She had no one but herself to blame as she was the one who loved Jordy and chose to marry him without hesitation even knowing that he had no feelings for her. She thought the combination would fix everything. But the failure of it dealt her a head-on blow and brought her back to her sense.

It didn't matter that much any longer as it was a done deal. What mattered now was to correct the wrong.

She eventually realized that she had Jordy to thank for bringing her back.

Gloria closed her eyes, taking another breath. When she reopened them, the world became clearer.

She seems to have recovered.

But this time, she felt completely sober.

This change had given her a new perspective on Jordy.

Seeing her leaving, Jordy's face darkened. “Gloria White, what are you running away from?”

As he spoke, he made a stride forward and seized Gloria's hands swiftly before Gloria could recoil.

Gloria frowned slightly and struggled. "Let go," she yelled.

Jordy stared at her coldly and silently, as if waiting for her to respond further.

Gloria made another futile struggle and frowned slightly as she replied, "I'm not in the mood to have breakfast with you. Is that a satisfactory answer?"

Jordy's eyes grew darker, his eyes piercing into hers. "I need an explanation," he demanded.

"An explanation?" Gloria could no longer keep her anger in check after hearing what he said. This man knew nothing. "This place has been a place of sorrow for me. I was too stupid to stay here and wait for your response which never came. Nothing has changed. Every corner of this place is reminding me how pathetic I was and what a failure I have been. I owe it all to you. So, Jordy Collins, what more explanation do you want?"

Gloria was getting even more emotional, raising her voice higher.

Jordy's eyes glistened blankly. Gloria's answer was such a shock to him. He still held Gloria's hand, his lips tightly shut.

Gloria tried to wave his hands off, but it had been proved to be another futile try. "Let go!" Gloria asked irritably.

She wanted to go, to run away from this shadowy place of sorrow.

"Breakfast first," Jordy said in a husky voice.

Gloria's face went even darker as the man dragged her back to the table. "I told you, I'm not in the mood," she said irritably as she struggled.

Chapter 1253 I Owe You An Apology

"You are the doctor. Since you've asked me to take good care of my stomach, you should also know that it is as important not to upset me. Have breakfast with me."

Gloria was amused by his requirement. Her morning peace of mind was disturbed by this man in front of her.

“You are the one who gets stomach cancer, not me. If you don’t even care about your own health, no one can help you! Because you don’t deserve to live, you’d better die early to make room for good people in the world.”

Jordy felt the veins on his forehead throb, but calmed down and said to her, “Stay with me, so that I’d be able to eat and care about myself.”

Gloria laughed mockingly, “Moral blackmail?”

In those years, Jordy was ruthless and emotionless to what she did and how she felt. He would rather believe in a liar who was full of sh*t than take a word of hers for it. She did not know why she would care and pity him so much then.

Was he really that good?!

Gloria’s heart was filled with grievance right now.

Even though she was a doctor and should have put her patient first, the sight of Jordy put her on edge of losing her temper.

Jordy remained seated next to her and held one of her hands, saying calmly, “You can interpret it that way.”

Gloria threw his hand violently, but still could not break free. She snapped angrily, “It would make things easier if you die. You eating breakfast or not has nothing to do with me. I have shown extremely forbearance in saving your life. Don’t push your luck I advise you, because you are unworthy and a nobody to me!”

Gloria was so full of resentment right now that every word out of her mouth seemed like it was without thinking, but...

Her gaze was particularly cold with a sense of calmness, as if everything she said had been given deep consideration.

Being angry while remaining calm, she managed and balanced these two emotions well.

She was angry because the memory of the physical and mental torments she had gone through was refreshed. She felt calm because she had learned to live with it.

Jordy suddenly loosened his grasp.

He was gifted with an extraordinary retentive memory and remembered everything that had happened.

Every scene was played out in his mind vividly. And Angela was involved in most of them.

Jordy's eyes were cold. The veins on his forehead were about to burst. He said in a low voice, "It was all my fault."

Gloria turned to the man in front of her with a surprised look. He apologized to her?

What a big surprise!

Gloria stared coldly at the man in front of her and said nothing in response.

The breakfast was still laid on the table. Neither of them touched it.

Gloria's wrist was still tightly held by the man. He would probably find it red due to the grasp if he let go of it.

Gloria did not want to engage in any further talk with the man before her eyes as it was in vain, but she was not able to leave. It made her inexplicably frustrated.

"Sorry for the harm I have done to you because of my negligence. I fell for Angela's lies and her tricks. I lent a ready ear to her parents' alienation. It was my fault, and I want to apologize to you."

Gloria was somewhat surprised. Proud as Jordy was, why would he apologize to her now?

She stared at the man in front of her and said drily, "You think apologizing will help?"

What made things worse was Jordy still didn't know what harm he had caused her.

Chapter 1254 Would He Really Be so Obedient?

Taking another deep breath, Gloria tried her best to calm down the irritability in her heart and said, "Jordy Collins, I don't need any apology from you. Everything that has happened has something to do with you, but it's also my fault. If I haven't been so stubborn and obdurate, I wouldn't have been hurt so badly. I don't blame you. I can't blame you. But it doesn't mean I can forgive you, so enough is enough. I would keep every detail in mind. It is over between us. I would never repeat the same mistakes again."

Jordy was lost for a proper answer.

Gloria was like a rose with thorns right now. But when Jordy heard her say that she did not truly blame her, an inexplicable emotion welled up in his heart. He felt... somewhat flustered.

Jordy's brows were deeply knitted. But he remained silent.

He refused to let go of her hand despite her struggle to get freed.

Gloria frowned and asked, "What do you want me to do before you can let go? I am treating you with your disease. I am working with you to please your grandma. Jordy Collins, what more do you want me to do? Don't you think you're being ridiculous now?"

Jordy pressed his lips, stared at the woman in front of him and said nothing.

Gloria took another deep breath. "Just tell me, will you? You clearly don't like me. Why do you have to imprison me here with you? Grandma is happy with the state we are, isn't she?"

Jordy frowned. After a pause, he said coolly, "Breakfast first."

Gloria was bewildered.

She had never known Jordy could be so horribly stubborn.

At this time, he did not want to argue for himself. All he wanted was to have her eat breakfast. What was wrong with him?

Gloria did not move, but looked at Jordy coldly.

People would have envied how sweet this couple was to hold hands while having breakfast.

Gloria remained still and looked coldly at Jordy.

Jordy, who suddenly shied at her gaze, paused for a moment before saying, "I'm not going to force you to do things you don't like, except for breakfast."

Gloria felt confused.

Was he implying that she could leave after finishing her breakfast?

And, he would leave her alone and stop bugging her?

With this thought in mind, she asked the question directly, "Are you saying that you won't force me to be with you again as long as I eat breakfast?"

Jordy frowned mildly and responded in a cooperative tone, "Yes."

A hint of doubt shone across Gloria's face as she wondered why Jordy would be so obedient.

"Eat," Jordy added more food in front of Gloria.

After a moment of thinking, Gloria frowned and picked up the spoon.

Why be harsh on herself? She would just eat.

Seeing that she really wasn't going to leave, Jordy let go of her wrist.

Gloria didn't try to flee. She started eating her breakfast, not intending to say a word to Jordy.

With his face lit up a little, Jordy joined Gloria in eating.

For some reason, he longed to seize every second to be with Gloria. It felt like he was actually eating a meal instead of going through a usual mechanical routine.

Chapter 1255 Call Him by "Jonathan"

Soon they both finished their breakfasts. Both of them had eaten less than properly.

Gloria put down her spoon and did not spare another look at Jordy

Jordy, on the other hand, fixed his eyes on Gloria. He stared at her and calmly asked, "How prejudiced are you against me right now?"

"Prejudiced?" Gloria cast him a cool look and asked, "After everything you have done, you wanna concluded it as my prejudices against you?"

Jordy pursed his lips, as if he didn't know what to say, while seemingly he was acknowledging Gloria's claim.

Gloria snorted and stood up. Enough was enough. She did not want to waste another breath in arguing with him.

“There aren’t more to talk about. Stop dwelling on this topic. We are good as long as we aren’t with each other.”

With that, Gloria got up to leave.

Jordy sat where he was with a scowl that lasted for quite a while. He did not detain Gloria any further.

About an hour later,

Gloria arrived at her office.

She took Uber to the company.

She still needed to have someone fetch her car for her as it was parked in the place where she went yesterday.

But, when she turned her phone back on, a message from Harold popped up. He messaged to tell her that he had driven her car back and parked it in the underground garage. Her assistant was having her car key.

Gloria texted her back and put the phone aside. She wanted to get back to work.

But...

Somehow, she could not stop thinking of what just happened this morning. Jordy had behaved in a more aggrieved way than she was while having breakfast with her this morning.

A feeling of irritation was bugging her again.

She turned on her computer mechanically and felt not in the mood to work at all.

With her elbows resting on the table, she cupped her palms on her forehead and closed her eyes, as if to calm herself down.

Her cell phone suddenly rang, seizing her attention.

She managed to assume an air of calm and put the call through after seeing it was from Jonathan.

“Mr. Brown.”

Jonathan sighed somewhat helplessly. “So official again?”

With her eyes glistening slightly, Gloria changed the subject of conversation in a gentle voice. "What can I do for you?"

"Well, There is something. Do you have time? We would talk about it over lunch?"

Gloria frowned slightly. Now everything was fine with Grandma. She didn't want to upset her by any means as it was bad for her recovery. Moreover, she still needed Misty Lucid Ganoderma. Without getting a hold of the situation, she could not afford to be careless.

After a moment's hesitation, she whispered, "Can't you talk on the phone?"

"It's better we talk face to face. But, anyway, it is up to you, we can meet in a private place if it is not convenient for you," Jonathan said casually, trying not to put pressure on her.

Gloria thought for a moment and then whispered, "OK, I'll be there at noon with my assistant."

Between the lines, she made it clear that the lunch date was for business only.

Jonathan's eyes twitched slightly. After a pause, he sighed and said, "Sure."

"See you at noon then."

"See you."

Gloria hung up without saying another word, leaving Jonathan to sigh by himself as he stared at his phone.

All he felt was that he was drifting further and further away from Gloria.

She would call him by "Jonathan" not long ago, but now...

Chapter 1256 A Thoughtful Gentleman

Jonathan heaved a deep sigh.

By taking no initiative, he was only putting her in a difficult position.

But he had recently found out something about Jordy's grandma, which was why he had stopped pressing her.

But after all of this, he would go back on the fright for her. Gloria was set freed from Jordy. Never would he give Jordy a second chance to win her back.

It had been a busy morning for everyone. Jonathan didn't go pick up Gloria at her office as he knew Gloria did not want him to come.

When he arrived at the agreed place, Gloria and her assistant had been waiting. She nodded at him when Jonathan showed up at the door of the box, "Here you are."

Jonathan responded with a nod while Gloria's assistant stood up to salute him, "Hello, Mr. Brown."

Jonathan nodded.

Eaton, Jonathan's assistant, also greeted Gloria and her assistant with a nod.

'Why are you here so early?' Jonathan sat across from Gloria and asked softly.

Gloria raised her eyebrows and replied, "It has been a smooth ride."

Janice, Gloria's assistant, took her seat next to Gloria. She did not say anything. She did not have to do anything except for being Gloria's escort today.

However, she could not help but take a close look at Jonathan. Jonathan had been more easygoing than she expected. Compared with Gloria, he seemed like such a harmless gentleman although she heard that he was a cunning businessman.

His eyes glistened the light of tenderness and fondness when he looked at Gloria. Although it was a room of four, Jonathan saw not Eaton, nor her, but Gloria alone.

Both Janice and Eaton felt they were unwanted in the room.

"Let's place order."

Gloria presented the menu to Jonathan. She was implying that the lunch was on her.

Jonathan took it over and said in an unexpected natural tone, "Yeah."

Even Janice was surprised to see Jonathan accept the menu so spontaneously. Was he going to let Gloria buy the lunch?

That was just unusual...

Soon, the waiter came in. Jonathan placed the order directly. Janice soon came to an understanding.

I see...

I see!

Although it was Mr. Brown who placed the order, all the dishes he ordered were Gloria's favorite. All eight of them!

What a thoughtful gentleman he was!

He was so sweet and considerate to Gloria.

Janice could not help but steal an envious glance at Gloria.

Gloria's eyes twitched, but she didn't say anything after all.

She was out here to have lunch with him solely for business and cooperation.

After the waiter left with the menu, Gloria turned to Jonathan and asked in a low voice, "So what is it about, Mr. Brown?"

"It's still about the jewelry. Someone's already given the publicity program."

Gloria was surprised. "They act so fast?"

It hadn't been that long since they last discussed.

Besides, everyone was busy nowadays and could not prioritize their project.

Jonathan pouted his lips, but said nothing.

Eaton handed the documents he prepared in advance to Gloria.

Gloria took them over and placed them between her and Janice, gesturing for her to read them as well. Jonathan heaved a deep sigh.

Chapter 1257 A Gamble

There was a stunned silence after they finished reading the documents.

Gloria's first reaction was, "It is... it is going a bit too far."

Janice refrained from making any comment although she felt so stirred by the program.

“Such a bold promotional stunt. Fans may not buy it. But if they do, it would undoubtedly become an unprecedented hit.”

Jonathan curled his lips and said, “It’s a gamble, isn’t it? With what we have accomplished, we are either being in a rut and making zero movement forwards, or we make a breakthrough.”

Gloria did not chime in. He was making a point here.

But... It was indeed...

Silence fell again.

Jonathan did not urge her. He was giving her time to consider.

Janice did not dare to utter a sound. What they were to bet on was too big for her to decide. Only Gloria could make the decision.

Gloria remained silent even after the waiter came back with the dishes.

It was like they were just here to have lunch rather than talk about any other things.

Jonathan offered Gloria the spoon and fork. Gloria accepted them and started eating directly.

The business could wait. They had developed a habit during this period of time that nothing mattered more than eating food.

Neither Eaton nor Janice said a word during the whole process.

What they did was run errands for them and take notes of what they said.

It wasn’t until Gloria had finished the food on her plate did she started reading the documents again.

Jonathan had also finished his lunch.

Janice and Eaton put down their forks as well after seeing Gloria and Jonathan put down theirs.

Jonathan wore a faint smile on his lips.

“What do you say?” he asked tenderly.

“It’s a really big deal, and I may have to think about it for quite a while, but I decide to trust Mr. Brown’s vision.”

Jonathan shook his head and complained, “Do you have to be so distant by calling me Mr. Brown?”

Gloria raised an eyebrow and said, “It is more professional.”

“Why do we have to be so professional?” He preferred to be called “Jonathan”.

Gloria pursed her lips and deflected the subject again. “The stakes are a little high. I would have to talk to my fellow shareholders and I’m going to convince them.”

Jonathan nodded and said, “Of course you will. I believe in you, and if you agree, I will act accordingly and immediately.”

Gloria nodded and said, “Go ahead.”

It was getting bolder and bolder in jewelry designing. But people had been expecting a surprise.

After all, it’d been quite a while since Poppy released any new products. Fans had been waiting for a perfect masterpiece from her.

They were dying to hear this official announcement.

“A successful cooperation,” Jonathan said with a big smile.

Gloria chuckled as well, “A successful cooperation.”

In this way, she stood up directly, “Now that we have reached an agreement, I will ask my assistant to help me with the contract. I’m sorry I have been so busy lately and don’t really have time.”

“I understand,” Jonathan nodded cooperatively. Gloria was a bit surprised when she met his meaningful gaze.

A mixed feeling welled up to her heart as she stared at him.

Did he understand?

What exactly did he understand?...

Was it...

Did he know about her Grandma’s condition?

Chapter 1258 The Man Who Suddenly Appeared

Gloria frowned slightly. If Jonathan was determined to pry into it, no matter how tight-lipped Jordy's doctors were, he would know, more or less.

Maybe he already knew something?

Gloria scrutinized Jonathan's expressions. He remained cool and casual as he had always been. That was when she withdrew her gaze and pursed her mouth, saying, "I'll have to dash."

"Okay."

This time, Jonathan did not offer to give her a ride.

Soon, they got into their respective cars.

Sitting in the passenger seat, Gloria was still wondering what Jonathan's gaze had meant.

But before she could think it through, her phone suddenly vibrated. It was a WhatsApp message from Jonathan.

-Jonathan Brown, ["I know things have been extremely inconvenient for you lately. The old lady's health condition is what concern you the most right now. So I won't bother you and interfere in whatever decision you make. But Gloria, it doesn't mean I am ready to let go with you. When things get better, I will come for you again."]

Gloria's eyelids quivered. Of course he knew it.

What about her identity as Orycho?

She narrowed her eyes and shrugged off her guilt.

Instead of replying to his message, she simply deleted it so that none of those who had evil intention was able to read it.

Gloria enjoyed a peaceful road trip back to the company. In the afternoon, she convened a meeting to announce to every board member the decision.

After hearing the decision was made by Jonathan and the program was designed by the guy who was said to be an expert, the board members thought it was somewhat ridiculous but agreed eventually.

The meeting went well.

Gloria texted Jonathan right after the meeting.

But just as she was about to go back to the office, she was confronted by a fat middle-aged man.

The man was clearly here for Gloria.

Gloria paused after taking two steps forward. The man stood before Gloria. Instead of feeling cocky, he looked somewhat humble and embarrassed.

“Gloria...” Claude called out her name in the voice without much confidence.

The blue folder in her hand fell down as she let her hands hang by her sides vertically.

Claude stole a glance at the folder and turned to look at her again. “It is a bit embarrassing, Gloria. But... I have no other choice. Is it convenient to talk in your office?”

Gloria raised her eyebrow and wondered what was his game about.

“Come with me,” she nodded and said.

On her high heels, Gloria led the way to her office.

The quiet corridor echoed with the tapping of the high heels.

Claude followed behind closely. The humbleness in his eyes turned into darkness and slyness as if he was going to kill her the next moment.

Soon, they were in the office. Gloria shut the door and turned to look at Claude.

“Go on. Say what you have to say.”

Gloria took her seat and stared coldly at the man in front of her.

Claude looked around the office with a complicated expression.

This office once belonged to him, but now this god-dam*ed girl stole it from him.

Read Novel Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 1259

Chapter 1259 On What Ground?

He hated her to the marrow!!

Were it not for this god-dam*ed girl, he wouldn't be living his life like this!

Were it not for Gloria, he and his family could live a happy life. He was now like a stray dog!

Luckily, he had bought another property under his mistress's name. Otherwise, there would have been nothing left for him!

He took a deep breath to smother his rage and then put on an awkward and obsequious smile. "Gloria, listen, you have made my life miserable like hell. I know there was some misunderstanding between you and us. But you should know that your auntie was doing what she got to do for your father's good. It was what he wanted. Gloria, I know you bear grudge against us. But, we have got what we deserve. Would you spare me?"

Gloria burst out laughing, "Spare you?"

Claude nodded repeatedly and pleaded sadly, "Everyone in this company is giving me a hard time. I might have been a bit harsh to them when I was the CEO. But it was for the good of the company. They are all pointing fingers at me whether they are on higher positions than me or not. I can't live my life like this anymore."

Claude was on the verge of tears.

Taking a deep breath, he added. "Gloria, I am your dad's blood brother. Why would I murder my own brother... He died all because he got that incurable disease..."

Gloria's pupils shrank at his mention of the incurable disease.

As a doctor, she saved many lives. But she had paid little attention to her own father. If she checked out his condition regularly, if it were not for her negligence, they would not get to chance to murder him...

Gloria White felt only a throbbing pain in her heart, but she restrained herself and did not show any emotions on her face. Instead, she stared at the person in front of her.

"I also want to know why you, as his blood brother, would do such a horrible thing to him."

Claude shook his head violently and argue miserably, “Gloria, it was not what you think it was. We told you the truth, every bit of it...”

Gloria snorted and said nothing more.

Claude became anxious at Gloria’s silent response. He pleaded again, “Gloria, I know I have made a mistake. I don’t expect you to give me some shares of the company, nor did I expect you to give me some money. But would you please give me a promotion? I need people to know that you care about me as your uncle. Will you do that for me?”

Gloria smiled bitterly and asked, “Uncle, on what ground do you think I would grant you such a request? Or, you are well prepared and have something to give me in return?”

Claude was a bit surprised by her reply. This damned girl was clever, although what she said might sound harsh!

Knowing that he could not get what he came for without paying the price, Claude took a deep breath and said, “Smart girl! you are, Gloria. It won’t be a waste of your time. I would return your favor eventually. Anyway... I feel sorry for letting you help me without getting anything for yourself.”

Gloria did not even bat an eye. She obviously did not believe Claude.

Chapter 1260 This Is No Joke!

She said nothing but raised her eyebrows, as if waiting for Claude to go on.

Claude secretly scrutinized her. Although her straight face was expected by him, he still felt torn and upset.

Why would Gloria always get the upper hand against him?

Had he known this dam*ed girl would be such a pain in the a*s, he would have taken her out along with Declan at any cost and avoided trouble later on!

Yet now...

Now!

He felt so regretful!

He now, however, had to deal with it head-on. Claude sighed at the indifference of Gloria, "I know, your trust for me has been completely shattered. But I am your uncle anyway! You have to trust me. I did not mean to hurt you or your father."

Gloria let out a cold snort and looked to the other side. "Save your hypocritical high-sounding words, will you, uncle?"

Claude was left speechless.

Gloria White!

What a stubborn silly girl! He cursed in his heart.

He took a breath and added, "I may not be able to tell you the exact things, but you have to believe me! I have been the CEO here for some time. We have two traitors in the company. I have gathered enough evidence against them. Given a few more days, I would find out who they are. Gloria, I won't make a mistake this time!"

Claude vowed solemnly and seemed trustworthy this time.

Gloria cast him a casual look, but remained silent.

Claude was at a loss. What did she mean by not speaking?

Did she already know who it was? Or did she not believe what he was saying at all and think he was up to something here?

Claude wasn't able to make out what was on Gloria's mind. After waiting for a while, he still didn't get a response from Gloria. He took a breath and said, "Gloria, why... Why don't you say something? Did you already know who those were? Or do you still not believe what I say?"

Gloria turned to look at Claude slowly with a smirk of sarcasm on her lips.

Claude said assertively, "Gloria, what I just said is all true! Although it is a pity that I can't continue to be the CEO, at least I was dedicated to this company. The reason why the company remained stagnant was that these two traitors were causing trouble. Luckily, I am about to find them! Gloria, if we don't take these traitors out, White Group's development in the future would still be compromised!"

Claude was as earnest as he could be, as if he truly cared about the White Group.

But to put it plainly, he cared nothing more than his own promotion in the company. He wanted to use this intelligence as his bargaining chip. If Gloria was not going to give him a promotion, he was not going to tell her. This was the so-called dedication he had to the company.

Gloria pursed her lips and mocked, "Sorry, I am not interested in knowing it. Is it the best you could do, dear uncle?"

Claude's face turned pale all at once as he said anxiously, "Gloria, this is no joke! I was telling you the truth! These two traitors lurking in the company would bring the company huge...!"
