Chapter 21 Our Relationship Would End Badly

Gloria sighed, "Grandma... he doesn't love me at all. You know that. If I stay in this marriage, he'll get sick of me. I should divorce him. This will be the best for both of us."

Gloria's voice trailed off when the last few words came out of her mouth.

Karen felt sad and paled,

What a great granddaughter-in-law she is!

That bastard Jordy is gonna lose her!

Gloria insisted that she should divorce Jordy, and nothing could dissuade her from that idea. Even though Karen liked her and wanted her to stay as Jordy's wife, Karen had to stop being selfish...

Jordy never loved Gloria with all his heart. She had been living without him all year round. He never did his husbandly duty to take care of her. If they were forced to be together any longer, she would only get hurt.

But Karen could not bear to see them apart. She was feeling a storm of mixed emotions!

Now all she wanted to do was call Jordy. She was furious with him.

Karen took a deep breath before saying, "Gloria, hold on a second. I am gonna call that bastard!"

"Grandma."

Gloria's calm voice called out before Karen could hang up. Karen's hand on the phone trembled.

Gloria continued calmly, "You like me and have taken care of me all these years, and I appreciate that. But... all good things must come to an end. Jordy and I can't keep this marriage going, but that doesn't affect the bond between you and me. I'll still think of you as my own grandmother, and I'll visit you often and chat with you, okay?"

Karen's heart melted and her hand holding the phone began to shake.

Karen didn't know what to say. It took her a long time to speak in a sobbing voice, "Okay."

Gloria's heart slowed a bit. Karen finally agreed to let Gloria divorce Jordy. Gloria chuckled, "...why don't you stop calling him? The marriage between him and me is doomed to end..."

If Jordy and Gloria kept this marriage going, it would end badly someday.

Gloria was keenly aware that Karen loathed the fame and fortune of the Collins family and missed the long-lost warmth of home.

Thus, if the group went bankrupt, Karen would stand by and watch without blinking an eye.

That was why Gloria dared to take Jonathan's case.

Karen sighed, "Alright, since you've made up your mind, I can only respect your choice. Gloria, you're a good girl. Leaving you is the biggest mistake Jordy has ever made. You'll encounter a man 100 times better than him. You deserve to have a great relationship. Don't beat yourself up, okay?"

Gloria felt touched. Since she married into the Collins family, Karen had been the only one who gave her support

"Okay, Grandma. Thank you for your support."

Karen had a sad look on her face and shook her head. "... don't thank me. I really appreciate all the effort that you've put into the Collins family without complaints. And I feel very sorry for you."

"Grandma, don't say that." Gloria clenched her cell phone and continued softly, "I'll come and see you sometime."

“Gloria, be a good chooser of men. If you’re not sure if he’s the right one, come to me, and I’ll give you some advice. Nobody can take advantage of you!”

Gloria smiled, her eyes moist, “Okay.”

“I need to use the bathroom. I’m hanging up.”

“Bye, Grandma.”

Their conversation ended. Karen’s heart sank a little, and she looked depressed.

I’m gonna lose my granddaughter-in-law...

Forget it!

She’s my granddaughter anyway!

We become closer! That bastard Jordy will regret it!

At this thought, she could not suppress her anger anymore. She called Jordy to take out her anger on him!

Chapter 22 Screwing Things Up!

“Sorry, the subscriber you dialed is busy now...”

Karen slammed down her phone angrily. Suddenly, she heard Joseph’s voice from somewhere.

Karen looked confused and crept silently to the door.

“Good job! They’re getting divorced. Has the divorce decree come through yet?”

Karen’s face turned paler!

This old bastard is gonna screw things up even worse!

He doesn't want such a good granddaughter-in-law! He'll regret it too!

I must marry off my granddaughter to a better man! And they will know they've made a bad decision!

Karen thought she was wrong. She shouldn't have forced Jordy and Gloria to be together!

This marriage was sheer torture for Gloria from start to finish. Karen should have not intervened in this.

The more Karen thought about it, the worse she felt. She began to wonder what kind of man would be good enough for her perfect granddaughter.

"You just signed the papers? This has to be quick. After it's done, I'll put the word out that Angela saved your life and clarify your history with Gloria."

"Don't worry. I know what I'm doing. What's the point if it affects the company?"

Karen was boiling with anger.

She was not going in. She didn't care what Joseph planned, but the point was that Jordy didn't want Gloria anymore. She only hoped Gloria could be happier than him!

Starting today, she was going to sift through the rich young guys to find out the best one for Gloria!

Gloria slept soundly tonight.

After due consideration, she decided not to live in a villa but found an apartment closer to her workplace.

The next day, Gloria took a nap after breakfast. She had been behaving in a frightened way since she married into the Collins family. She enjoyed such a morning nap for the first time.

As she stretched, her cell phone rang. She raised an eyebrow at the caller ID.

The call was from one of her best friends, a lawyer who liked to have fun.

Gloria answered the phone. Before she could speak, an excited voice squeaked, "Gloria, I need you! Are you available now?"

Gloria's mouth twitched. "Are you in trouble again?"

“No!”

The lawyer was in denial. Gloria asked, “What is it then?”

“I’m so mad! That bastard cheated! He pulled out in front of me!”

Gloria frowned, “Are you racing again?”

It’s dangerous, but she likes it!

The lawyer sensed that Gloria was a little annoyed, but she could not stop begging her for help. “Gloria, please! I just don’t want to lose face. I really need your help!”

Gloria sighed, “Send me the address.”

The lawyer exulted, “Great, Gloria, show them your stuff! I’ll see you later.”

Without waiting for Gloria to respond, the lawyer hung up the phone and then sent her the address.

Without any hesitation, Gloria changed her clothes and set off.

Fifty minutes went by.

The lawyer kept calling Gloria until she was there. The lawyer was finally relieved and ran over to hold Gloria’s hand. “Darling, you’re finally here! You are a life saver!”

Nydia looked spruce in jean suspenders with ear-length flaxen curls, and her large bright eyes stared excitedly at Gloria.

Gloria looked around at the racing cars and the spectators with a scowl. “Why are you out racing during working hours?”

Nydia pursed her lips and gave a little shrug with her hands outstretched. “There are no cases today. You know, the law firm I work for is going bankrupt... I’m looking for another job.”

Gloria had nothing to say to her.

Gloria was wearing casual clothes and dark glasses, but she exuded queenliness, attracting a lot of attention

She even caught the attention of Nydia’s rivals.

A voice full of disdain suddenly rang out. "Hey, is this the extra pair of hands you've got?"
