Chapter 361 A hedgehog

“Or you could beg for it.”

Gloria felt lost for words.

She looked at him and snapped, “Jordy Collins, what’s wrong with you?”

“If it weren’t for me, you’d still be in the water. My phone was soaked because of you. Isn’t it the treatment that you deserve?”

Gloria sniffed, “Don’t you call me an ungrateful person in this case. I knew you saved me for your own sake, for fear of grandma. If you weren’t there to get me up today, someone else would.”

But then again, she should be grateful to whoever saved her. After all, there was no denying the fact that it was a life-and-death moment then.

But now...

Facing Jordy, she found it so difficult to put a grateful word out of her mouth.

Consider me a vindictive person, thought Gloria.

Sure enough, Jordy’s face seemed to grow darker, but Gloria was undaunted. She looked over at Jordy and asked, “Do I really have to beg you to buy me a phone?”

There was no way Jordy would let her walk out of this door today. So, she did not see a reason why she should provoke him at the moment.

It could be dangerous out there. Angela was a real psycho who would do whatever she could in order to get what she wanted.

Jordy had been mad at Gloria.

“Why didn’t you tell me?”

It took Gloria a moment to realize what he meant. She just smiled. “Would you believe me?”

Jordy did not answer.

Gloria was amused at his expression. Apparently, he also remembered what his reaction was whenever she told him something.

Jordy closed his eyes. "I'll have my assistant buy a new phone for you. Call grandma right now and tell her that you are okay. She had been asking about you."

Gloria didn't say anything. She picked up the phone and dialed the number of Karen.

Karen put it through almost immediately. "Hello."

"Grandma, it's me, Gloria."

Karen was taken aback and then she asked anxiously, "Gloria, how are you doing? I saw you were all wet. What happened?"

The room was quiet. Even without the call being put on speaker could Jordy hear clearly what Karen was saying?

Gloria took a seat on the sofa and regained her usual grace and composure. "I just slipped into the water by accident. I'm fine, Grandma."

"Nonsense! You must be more careful next time. Don't park in that sort of dangerous place, understand?"

"Yes! Don't worry, grandma. It won't happen again," Gloria kept her voice softly while saying.

Jordy grew increasingly agitated.

This woman got two faces. In front of his grandma, she was tender and amicable but while facing him, she turned into a hedgehog and always stayed on a high alert against him.

After some more talking, Gloria hung up.

Someone was knocking at the door.

"Mr. Collins."

That was Harold's voice.

Gloria was a bit surprised.

Jordy answered the door. Gloria saw Harold hand Jordy a white bag he was carrying, "It's Miss White's on the top."

Without saying a word, Jordy took it over and closed the door.

Gloria felt bewildered. It didn't look like a packed dinner. Was it...?

Jordy took an emotionless glance at her and opened the bag to take out his belongings.

Chapter 362 Understanding Girlfriend

When he returned to the bedroom, Gloria went to the couch and opened the bag.

It turned out to be a cell phone case with a box of ointment underneath.

Feeling somewhat surprised, Gloria took out the ointment box and found it was for the bruise. She looked a bit startled. At the banquet, she did lift her gown to show him her legs.

But she wondered why would Jordy be so thoughtful.

Gloria left the ointment behind, inserted the SIM card into her new cell phone and headed to her bedroom, where she could call Irene.

The call was put through almost immediately.

"Gloria?"

Gloria's eyes twitched. "Irene, my phone fell into the water and was damaged. I just got a new phone."

"What was going on?" asked Irene with concern.

"I don't know exactly. Someone pushed me into the water while I was chilling out in the open." wex

Irene snorted unhappily, "I'd like to see who did that to you! I've had my people look into it. It won't take long. Fortunately, you've told me just in time."

"Most likely, whoever he or she was, they must have found a scapegoat, but there are details we are gonna dig out anyway. I appreciate what you do for me, Irene."

“Don’t even mention it if you consider me your friend,” Irene said, making a pretence of displeasure.

Gloria giggled, and Irene’s worried voice came again. “How are you feeling anyway? Everything okay?”

“I’m all right, Irene. Thank you for your concern.”

“Well, be careful with whatever you do and try not to be alone while you are out there.”

“Yes.”

She was about to say something to Irene when a cold voice called out to her, “Get out. Time for dinner.”

“Irene, I have other business to attend to. I will call you another time.”

“Oh, yeah, go ahead and always take care.”

“Bye.” Gloria felt touched.

After hanging up the phone, she walked out.

Jordy had set the table.

Gloria washed her hands and sat down across from him.

Jordy had picked up his fork. For a moment, Gloria found it a bit magical.

Her relationship with Jordy might not be so tense. But they had, after all, divorced. It just felt bizarre to live under the same roof and sat even closer to each other than when they were still a married couple...

In the past three years, they had never had dinner together all by themselves.

Every time when they dined together, it was under the pressure from his grandma, but now...

Well, it may also be at the adamant demand of his grandma too, otherwise, why would he bring her on this business trip?

Gloria said nothing. She picked up her fork as well.

Jordy’s cell phone rang at the moment. He was obviously unhappy about it as he frowned slightly when he saw the caller ID.

Gloria thought he must hate being interrupted at dinner.

Jordy put it through reluctantly after seeing Gloria's expression and put the call on speaker.

Before Jordy could speak, an anxious voice came through, "Jordy, are you okay? I saw you carry Gloria out. Did you jump into the water to rescue her? How are you both doing?"

It's her, Gloria felt a strong sense of sarcasm. She sounded like such a sweet and understanding girl.

Instead of feeling upset by the fact that Gloria, her little sister and ex-wife of her fiance was now living under the same roof with her fiance, she seemed concerned about their conditions. How touching!

She looked up and saw the complexity in Jordy's eyes.

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 363

Chapter 363 Are You with Gloria?

"We are fine." Jordy's tone was softer than when he spoke to Gloria,

Gloria raised her eyebrows and continued eating.

Instead of feeling sad, she felt somewhat amused.

How fortunate was she to hear such an intimate conversation between her ex-husband and elder sister?

They were talking on the phone, and she was sitting across from her ex-husband listening to them.

Should she call herself a shameless mistress?

On the other end of the call, Angel heaved a sigh of relief all of a sudden and said, "You scared the hell out of me. I was worried that you might get hurt. What happened to Gloria, why would she fall into the water?"

Jordy narrowed his eyes as he glanced up at Gloria, who bowed her head down and focused on eating

Jordy's eyes went even darker as he said calmly, "She's just stupid."

Gloria's clasped the fork tightly.

Did he expect Angela to be worried about her?

"Er.... Gloria tended to be prudent. But well, it could be an accident. Jordy, thank you for saving her life. Gloria can't swim. God knows what would happen to her if..."

Angela stopped talking suddenly as if she found it hard to put the words out.

Gloria lowered her eyes and wondered what she meant by saying she could not swim.

Seeing that Gloria did not seem to care at all, Jordy looked ever unhappier. "She is just such a pain in the ass," he continued in a tender voice.

Gloria tossed her head and stared at him without saying a word. Could he be any meaner?

Angela sighed helplessly, "Jordy, I know that you still care about her although you usually act like you don't. Although you guys have got divorced, your friendship is still there. You have every reason to save her. Don't worry, I am not saddened. On the contrary, I feel grateful for what you did. Jordy, thank you."

It now sounded like Jordy had saved Gloria all because of Angela.

Gloria pursed her lips. It seemed Angela had moved on to a new stage.

In the past, she pretended to be the most selfless girl who would be the last person in the world to be the third woman in a relationship.

But now she had become his girlfriend. Her role also changed accordingly. She tried to be a tolerating and understanding woman who would not mind even if Jordy was having an affair with other women.

Gloria could no longer hold her laughter back anymore.

She was such a generous woman.

Jordy's face went even darker.

Angela pricked up her ears, waiting for Jordy's response. But what she heard were giggles of Gloria. They might be faint but were still loud enough for Angela to tell.

Angela's reason told her to pretend that she did not hear it but she could not help it. "Jordy, are you with Gloria?" asked Angela in a whisper.

Jordy replied coolly, "Nope."

“Oh?”

Angela was full of suspicion. Did she hear that wrong? But, she could almost be sure that she heard Gloria’s laughter of mockery!

Jordy cast Gloria a look of threat and continued, “I am having dinner. Take care of yourself and don’t worry about those useless people.”

Gloria rolled her eyes to air her silent disapproval.

The doubt haunting Angela did not get dispelled. She made up her mind secretly that she would have her men look into it.

She took a breath and pretended to buy his words. She smiled at Jordy, saying, “Well, Bon appetite. I will talk to you later.”

“Sure.” Jordy’ voice seemed softer than it had just been, but... his eyes seemed more sinister when he saw Gloria’s indifference.

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 364

Chapter 364 Gloria, That’s Not Nice of You

After Jordy hung up, the silence was restored in the dining room. Gloria found her food to taste better somehow.

To be honest, the food was delicious,

Jordy, on the contrary, had his appetite spoiled. He felt a pang of anger. And he had no idea where did it come from.

He suddenly put down his fork, making the atmosphere of the room unusually gloomy.

Gloria, however, did not seem to be influenced by it at all.

She was used to his capriciousness.

Jordy looked at her coldly, trying to vent his anger at her. But he saw no fault in her.

Gloria’s lips twitched as she said, “I did not mean to sow discord between you and her. I just could not help it...”

Angela’s lame performance was to blame.

Angela used to adopt an air of selflessness and grace.

But now Gloria thought Angela was more like a noble lady.

And she had gone further and further on this way.

Gloria would like to see when Angela broke down, fell apart and failed to keep her noble pretence someday.

What would Jordy's reaction be like? Would he regret what he did?

Jordy sniffed and said nothing.

But the irony in his eyes showed that he didn't believe a word she said.

Gloria raised an eyebrow and said, "If you don't believe me, I'm not going to explain."

Jordy's eyes went darker.

Gloria soon finished her meal and smiled at the man in front of her. "Enjoy your meal, Mr. Collins. I need to wash up."

Jordy had long since lost his appetite. If he kept dining together with this woman, he would explode sooner or later.

He hadn't realized that Gloria could do this before.

It was just...

Gloria's cell phone started ringing all of a sudden. She was surprised to see the caller ID on it, but after a moment of hesitation, she put it through.

"Mr. Brown," she greeted him.

As she spoke, she got up and went in the direction of the bedroom.

Jordy was even sullener, which made the atmosphere of the dining room eerily gloomy!

Even Gloria could feel it when she got into the bedroom and closed the door behind her.

"How are you doing lately?" on the other end of the call, he sounded relaxed, although there was a hint of concern in his voice.

Gloria, her eyes twitching, responded as calmly as usual, "I'm fine, thanks for your concern, Mr. Brown."

Jonathan sighed somewhat helplessly and asked, "Why do you act so aloof and detached even till now?"

Gloria laughed and soon changed the subject breezily, "Anything else I can do for you, Mr. Brown?"

"Yes."

'What is it?' Gloria thought Jonathan might need her help.

But what he said surprised her.

"I miss you."

Gloria fell into silence.

Her mouth twitched after a moment of hesitation. She then said sarcastically, "Mr. Brown, are you hitting on me? Because it sounds a bit improper."

"When will you accept me?"

Jordy was right outside the door!

Gloria's voice could be heard as the door was not so soundproof!

He could have imagined what he was talking about without hearing his voice!

For a moment, Jordy felt like tearing down the house.

"It's greasy." Gloria felt speechless. "Come on, tell me what you want this time, Mr. Brown?" "Can't I call you if it's not about business? I remember that you want me to consider a project, and now you're treating me so aloofly?" Jonathan heaved a sigh of displeasure. "Gloria, that's not very nice of you."

But before Gloria could say anything to defend herself, a loud bang from behind gave her a Jolt!

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 365

Chapter 365 You're Insane, Jordy Collins!

Gloria turned around to see Jordy appear in the doorway.

She held her phone and looked at him in bewilderment. She did not respond to Jonathan.

“What happened?” Jonathan’s worried voice came through.

Jordy strode over with a grim face, and before Gloria could react, he snatched over her phone.

“Jordy Collins, you’re out of your mind!” Gloria snapped.

Jonathan’s eyes turned cold.

“I don’t want to see you flirting with your boyfriend here during work hours.”

With that, Jordy hung up for Gloria directly.

Jonathan’s face turned grimmer. He called Assistant Henry almost without hesitation.

“Mr. Brown,” answered Henry.

“Book me the flight to San Diego now.”

Henry felt shocked and bewildered.

“Mr. Brown?” he asked curiously.

There was no meeting waiting for him to attend in San Diego. Besides, he would be the one to remind Jonathan where to go normally. What happened?

“Now!” Jonathan emphasized.

Henry stopped questioning his order and asked, “Yes, do you wanna take the first flight available?”

“Yes.”

“Consider it done.”

Jonathan hung up.

His face remained expressionless.

Gloria and Jordy live together?

Why are they still together at this hour?

Jordy threw her phone on the bed after hanging up for her.

Gloria looked at him and asked him in disbelief. "Jordy Collins, what's wrong with you? What kind of work hour is that?"

Jordy looked at her darkly and asked, "You haven't facilitated any project for me yet. Shouldn't you work overtime to make up for your incapability?"

At one point, Gloria thought Jordy should go see a doctor to make sure he was mentally stable!

"I refuse to work overtime. I have nothing to do tomorrow. I can do it during the daytime. Now, please leave my room!"

Gloria raised her hand and pointed at the door, signaling that she wanted to take a rest.

Jordy looked in the direction in which her finger pointed and saw the box of ointment which was lying on the couch.

Pursing his thin lips tightly, Jordy dragged the arm of Gloria and walked out.

Jordy was so forceful that Gloria bumped against his back head-on when he made a sudden stop.

The body contact sent a shiver down Jordy's spine. His body stiffened.

Gloria shook his hands off and looked at the unreasonable man in front of her angrily, asking, "What the hell are you trying to do?"

Jordy had acted so weirdly today, which left her speechless.

Jordy held her down on the couch and then sat next to her.

There was something cold and sinister about Jordy, which enveloped Gloria almost right away.

She felt as if she were trapped by some sort of enchantment.

The next second, Jordy's palm was holding her calf.

The touch sent an electric current down their bodies.

Gloria struggled, but Jordy held her legs on the top of his lap.

Gloria struggled ceaselessly, but Jordy pressed her calf down and said sternly, "Don't move."

"My God, you're crazy, Jordy Collins! Do you know what you're doing?!"

Barely had Gloria finished talking when her shoes were suddenly pulled off by Jordy?

Gloria struggled even more desperately.

Unhesitatingly, Jordy had opened the box of ointment.

Gloria's face blushed awkwardly.

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 366

Chapter 366 Weirdo

He... He just wanted to help her apply the ointment personally?!

Gloria stared at Jordy with her mouth wide open as if she was looking at a madman.

After a moment of futile struggles, Gloria gave up. She looked at him incredulously and asked, "What the hell is wrong with you?"

During the marriage, she got hurt sometimes. But his reaction after seeing that was turn a cold shoulder on her

Why would he want to apply the ointment for her personally this time? Her ankles hurt simply because of the uncomfortable high heels.

Gloria found this man unpredictable and weird.

He was such a weirdo...

Gloria's words fell on deaf ears. Jordy opened the box of the ointment and carefully applied it to her ankles.

Gloria was so shocked that she could not think of anything to say.

The cool touch of the ointment and the softness of his fingers made Gloria get goosebumps all over her body

Gloria did not recover until he had finished one foot. She reached out to take the ointment from him and said, "You are flattering me, Mr. Collins. I'll do it myself."

Jordy gave her a cold look and, without speaking, forcibly lifted her other leg and repeated the same steps.

By the time her both feet were finished applying the ointment, Gloria still felt like she was dreaming.

Why would he do this for her today?

If he was to put up a show in front of his grandma, it didn't seem to have any practical effects as there was no surveillance camera in the room and his grandma was not even there. Besides, her legs were just swollen and red. There was nothing serious about them.

What the hell is he doing?

Gloria hastily retracted her legs, and Jordy remained seated on the couch. His terrible mood was manifested in his gloomy expression.

Gloria coughed and put her shoes back on. With a cheesy smile, she said, "Thank you, Mr. Collins. I am going back to my room. You should get some rest, too."

Jordy looked coldly at Gloria and asked, "Gloria, how can you be so heartless?" "Excuse me?" Gloria was in bewilderment.

Jordy got up expressionlessly. And, without another word to Gloria, he strode into the room. Gloria had no idea what had she done to provoke him again.

He accused me of being heartless after everything I have done for him over the past years.

He was such a weirdo.

Gloria felt lost even when she lay on the bed.

What Jordy did made Gloria feel confused instead of feeling touched.

Why would someone like Jordy apply ointment on her personally?

What the hell was wrong with him?

Perhaps due to the effect of the ointment, Gloria slept soundly that night.

She got up and washed up as usual the next morning, getting ready to go out with Jordy.

But when she came out to the living room, it was eerily quiet. Is Jordy still sleeping? Or Does he leave? She wondered.

A moment later, there was a knock on the door. "Miss White, it's me."

Gloria went to answer the door. It was Harold who came serving her breakfast. He smiled at her and said, "Good morning, Miss White. Mr. Collins has something to do this morning. He asked me to prepare breakfast for you and said that you could have half a day off this morning." Gloria pouted her lips and replied, "Thank you."

Harold examined the expression of Gloria in surprise before leaving.

He gave her a tacit nod and left.

What he didn't know was that Gloria didn't buy the words about Jordy asking him to prepare breakfast for her at all. She knew it was just Harold being a good assistant.

After finishing her breakfast, Gloria turned on the computer.

Since Jordy was going to give her a break, she could get on with her own business.

At this time, her phone rang again.

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 367

Chapter 367 Not to Take a Step Back

She was a bit confused to see Jonathan's number on the screen.

"Mr. Brown?" she put it through and greeted him.

"Well, have you had breakfast?" asked Jonathan.

"Yes, why?"

"Where are you? I'll come to you. We'll talk about our project."

Gloria was surprised. "You're in San Diego?"

Jonathan pursed his lip and answered, "Yes."

Gloria paused before saying, "I only have time this morning. After that, I'm not sure."

"One morning would do. We could also have lunch together."

"Send me where you are. I'll go out for you."

"Sending my address on your phone now."

Gloria received Jonathan's location, picked up her purse and headed out.

It was a club for rich people where Jonathan was in.

Gloria got there soon and was led to the box by a waiter, where Jonathan had been waiting for her.

Jonathan beamed at Gloria with undisguised admiration for her slender figure. "Have a seat, Miss White."

Gloria nodded and came over. "Sorry to keep you waiting," she apologized.

Jonathan's smile was as soft as ever. "I just got here, too."

He poured Gloria a glass of red wine and said softly, "Have a taste of this famous local wine. It's excellent both in flavor and color."

Gloria sat across from him and took over the glass of wine.

She was not in a hurry to drink, but looked at him leisurely, "Is there anything else you wanna do coming so far to San Diego?"

Jonathan rested his arm on the armrest of the sofa, his knuckles tapping on it.

There was no rhythm when he tapped the armrest, giving the atmosphere of the room an unspoken tension.

His dark and sinister eyes became clear as he smiled, "Would you believe it if I tell you I come here to San Diego just to see you?"

Gloria's long, thick eyelashes quivered, and the next moment she said with a smile, "Does Mr. Brown make jokes like that often?"

Jonathan raised his eyebrows and said somewhat seriously, "I am always serious when I am with you."

Gloria did not interrupt him.

Then, in an even softer voice, he added, "I don't even bother to talk with the others usually."

Disgust flickered in Gloria's eyes. She knew Jonathan was not a good joker but a big liar.

She smiled and did not want to continue the topic. "Mr. Brown, what's your opinion on this cooperation?"

Jonathan sighed and said, "It is a good project indeed, but there are conditions before you can get my approval."

Gloria stared seriously at him, her eyes twitching.

"Since it is your proposal, I want you to look to it carrying out with me. After all, it is a project costing hundreds of billions of dollars. It is not a small number. I hope you can understand that," Jonathan said with a faint smile on his lips.

Gloria knew he was competing with Jordy. That was why he wanted her to be part of the project, too.

Jonathan pursued after seeing her silent response, "The project you brought up in a good one. In good hands, it could bring me great rewards. But since it is your idea and inspiration, I think you could give me a better result. I consider the investment from the angle as a merchant. As for the nuts and bolts, they are all up to you."

In other words, he was not to take a step back from this.

Gloria hesitated for a moment and said, "Following up this project would consume me so much time. It is not just about one month or two. That's not what I want at the first place."

"I think you could wrap it up within three months, four months at most. To take back the White group is gonna take you even longer, isn't it? You should know the influence by getting the project done in time. I bet you know better than anyone else how is it gonna facilitate your plan to take over the Whites. If the project could be fulfilled perfectly, I would give you the credit and make your name known to all. Isn't it a fair deal to you?"

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 368

Chapter 368 /Ire You Resuming the Romantic Relationship with Him?

Gloria pursed her lips and was lost in thought. Indeed, it was a fair deal to her, but...

She seemed hesitant.

Jonathan, however, pursued by saying, "Once this project succeeds, you may be able to enter the core of the company. I would give you the full authority to deal with the Whites in the business cooperation. After all, you are the only one who could promote the development."

Gloria turned to look at him with a sweet smile on her face. She said calmly, "Mr. Brown, I really appreciate your willingness to help me and invest in me. But, what do you really want from me?"

She stared straight at him, trying not to miss any hint of emotion on his face.

Your love! All I want from you is your love! Jonathan wished he could put it out loud to her. But he didn't. Instead, he said casually, "Except for the fact that I adore you, I have got to admit that the proposal you made impressed me. No others in the company are able to bring forward such a perfect plan. Besides, the White Group has developed quite a several good projects. It was a pity that I had always been not optimistic about their senior management layer and their management idea. But with you, the relationship between the two groups might be promoted. So, why not? I am a merchant, so are you, right, Miss White?"

Gloria fell silent for an instant, her eyes tinged with ineffable complexity.

Every word Jonathan said intrigued her so much that she could not wait to say yes to him.

But she refrained from doing so, instead, she adopted an air of indifference and said, "We would negotiate for the others in the future. As for the cooperation this time, I can agree with you. But the company would decide how it is gonna be carried out."

Jonathan smiled and said, "I believe in your ability."

In another word, they had agreed to work together and officially embarked on the cooperation.

Gloria's eyes glinted, but as she got up, trying to leave, Jonathan Brown smiled and said, "You don't wanna go out now. Jordy is next door. You might run into him."

Gloria's eyes narrowed and turned to look at him. "You chose this place on purpose?" she asked.

"No."

Gloria shifted her gaze from his face in disbelief.

“It was purely a coincidence,” said Jonathan. “I saw him when I came here.”

Gloria did not buy it, but Jonathan was telling the truth.

a wa

She said nothing. Although she had got divorced with Jordy and she had the freedom to go wherever she wanted to go, she didn't want Jordy to see her with Jonathan.

Jordy and Jonathan were on bad terms for a long time, and if Jordy saw her with Jonathan, she'd, without doubt, have a hard time for the next days. She had to take care of these things first.

Gloria looked back at Jonathan and said, “In the next few days, I will be on a business trip with Mr. Collins, and our cooperation can only be carried out when I get back. Mr. Brown must be very busy these days, too, so I suppose you won't call me unless it is emergent.”

She was reminding him not to disturb her for the next few days.

Jonathan picked up the goblet and took a sip of the wine. With a faint smile on his face, he said, “Are you trying to get back with him?”

“Get back?” Gloria laughed self-mockingly. “Why would you say that while we have never truly been together?”

These days, it was just Jordy being Jordy, capricious and unpredictable. She never thought about having any more connections with Jordy.

Jonathan smiled and said, “I believe in you, and I promise I won't call you for the next few days.”

Gloria gave Jonathan a meaningful look and said nothing.

Jonathan and Jordy had been a pair of bitter rivals, and it was only natural that Jonathan didn't want her to be with Jordy.

A knock disturbed the harmony of the room at the moment.

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 369

Chapter 369 You're Still Gonna Work with Him?

Gloria and Jonathan both looked to the door.

“Come on in,” beckoned Jonathan.

A waiter opened the door and came in with bottles of red wine.

Jonathan smiled and said, “I ordered them especially for you. They taste good, but you didn’t even take a sip. Are you afraid that I might drug you?”

Gloria withdrew her gaze and replied calmly, “I was just afraid that drinking might be a distraction for our business talk.”

Jonathan looked intrigued. “Even wine?”

A figure seized his attention at the moment.

Gloria, who had her back turned to the door, clearly sensed that something was off too.

Her body stiffened uncontrollably but, as if she had noticed nothing, she raised her hand and picked up the goblet.

The back of the chair was unable to cover her figure.

Jordy obviously recognized her.

A burst of footsteps sounded behind her.

Gloria’s heart thumped in her chest.

Jonathan looked at him with a half-smile and asked, “Mr. Collins, are you done with the business talk with your partners?”

Jordy walked over to Gloria and stopped by her side.

He ignored Jonathan completely. His cold eyes were fixed on Gloria’s face.

Gloria looked up to stare back into his sinister eyes. Her heart missed a beat.

She might as well have just gone out. Maybe she might not even run into him if lucky.

How unfortunate it was to be seen by him in such a short period of time when the waiter served the wine,

Jordy sniffed coldly at her, "Even with only half a day off, you have made good use of every single minute you got, haven't you?"

The sarcasm sounded so harsh like a knife thrusting into Gloria's heart.

She looked calmly at him and asked. "Mr. Collins, what can I do for you? Since it is half a day off for me, I think it is the time fully at my own disposal?"

Jordy's thin lips pressed tight, the veins on the back of his hands throbbing.

"Very good."

Jonathan smacked his lip and scrutinized Jordy's expression, asking, "Is Mr. Collins going to have a drink with us?" he asked.

"I am here to take her home," his voice could not be any colder.

The tension in the room continued to mount.

Before Gloria could think straightly, Jordy gripped her wrist and gave her a forceful tug.

"Jordy Collins, you let go of my hand!" Gloria struggled.

Jonathan remained seated and unmoved.

Since he and Gloria had reached a consensus on their cooperation, he had time to get Gloria back to him.

Just like that, Gloria left with Jordy.

"Jordy Collins, you let me go!"

Gloria was now enveloped by the sullenness of Jordy. What was wrong with the man?

Soon after, she was thrown directly into the back seat of his car by Jordy.

Gloria frowned at him and remained silent.

Jordy sneered and asked, "Gloria White, you are very impressive. Don't you know that he is my biggest rival?!"

"I don't care. He is a cooperative partner to me just as you are."

"You're going to work with him?!" Jordy growled. His sinister gaze sent a shiver down Gloria's spine.

For the first time, she felt the strong dominance of Jordy.

Gloria took a deep breath and said softly, "Jordy Collins, calm down. Let's talk about it."

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 370

Chapter 370 Up to Not Good?

Jordy did not answer her. What Gloria said was like a blow to his head.

What am I doing? He came back to his sense.

His brow was tightly knit. His face looked awkward.

God knew how bad and irritable he was.

Jordy closed his eyes, sat back in his chair and said nothing.

Gloria heaved a sigh of relief.

She wasn't even sure what would have happened if he did something back there in that state.

Her phone buzzed at the moment. Gloria put it through directly.

But before she could say something, a loud voice came through.

"Gloria! How are you feeling now? Yesterday, I was grounded by my old man and I just get released a while ago. I heard that you fell into the water? Damn it! What happened!"

Jordy frowned slightly, but because it was a woman's voice and because the call did ease the tension in the car, he did not say anything.

Gloria's eyes dimmed as she asked, "What did your father do to you?"

"Just what he usually did. He is my father after all. He won't kill me. So, tell me did you get hurt or get cold because of the falling?"

Nydia didn't want to go into details about her family issues at the moment, nor did Gloria think it was the right time to ask. She replied breezily, "I'm fine. Everything's okay."

Nydia breathed a sigh of relief. "That's good... But I saw that you were actually carried out by Mr. Collins. What's going on between you two now?" she pursued.

Jordy opened his dark eyes abruptly, waiting to hear how Gloria would respond to Nydia.

Gloria looked calm and answered, "Nothing's going on."

"I thought you guys got divorced! I remember that you hated him but why are suddenly you guys so close to each other again?"

The temperature in the car dropped abruptly!

Even Harold, who was driving the car, was also jaw-dropped.

Gloria stole a glance at Jordy, only to see that he was at his tipping point of exploding.

She looked away quickly and made an excuse by saying, "I have an emergency to deal with. Talk to you later."

Nydia did not buy it. She cut in, "Don't you dare hang up on me! Are you still my best friend or not?"

Gloria was a bit speechless.

She dared not to hang up on Nydia, who was now in a fit of pique.

She turned the volume down secretly, but Nydia yelled even louder!

"Gloria! What the hell is wrong with you today?! Why do you stick with Jordy Collins? He would only ruin your reputation. Moreover, I am worried that someday Jordy Collins's fans would set you up again!"

"I know. I would be more careful next time."

As Gloria spoke, she felt vividly a burning gaze from Jordy.

"When are you coming back?"

"After we finish the business trip."

"Well... take care of yourself, then. I think he's up to no good by approaching you, and..."

Gloria's eyelids twitched. For the moment, she felt Jordy was gonna eat her alive, she took a breath and interrupted Nydia by saying, "Nydia, I'm out with Mr. Collins right now. I'll call you later."

And before Nydia could say anything else, Gloria snapped off the call and put the phone back into her purse as if nothing had happened.

Jordy glances at her and asked word by word, "I am up to no good?"
