

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 591

Chapter 591 Wholehearted Love

Nydia sighed helplessly, "Bryson must think that he will meet you alone tomorrow. He does not know we will also be here. Why don't I post a tweet?"

Jennifer sighed, "his condition is much better now, but he still can't stand mood swings or drinking. I'm afraid if we tell him the truth, he will indulge in excessive drinking again. Even if he will not drink alcohol, he might be depressed. What should we do if he..."

Now, Nydia and Jennifer were having a headache too.

Obviously, this was also what Gloria had been worried about. Otherwise, she would have long made it clear to him

Gloria pursed her lips, not knowing what to say or how to deal with it.

Nydia couldn't help but sigh, "Don't think too much now. Let's let him know we will be here too first."

Then, she sent the picture of the meal just now to the group and mentioned Bryson, saying, "Bryson, look! We came to squeeze Gloria! And we will stay here to take care of her tonight!"

Bryson replied, [Are you sure you're taking care of her? How could you let her cook? Don't you know she can't be tired?]

Jennifer said, [How can you be so biased toward Gloria? By the way, do you really think we don't care about her as much as you do?]

Bryson said, [My bad! Princesses, please forgive me.]

Nydia said, (Humph! It's good for you to admit your mistake. Otherwise, we would lock Gloria up and prevent you from seeing her for the rest of your life! If you want to be with her, you have to get Jennifer's and my permission!)

Bryson said, (Please let go of me! I chased Gloria for so long before she finally agreed to date me. You mustn't let her leave me! How much money do I need to spend if I want to win you over?)

Jennifer said, (Tsk, money can't buy true love! I love Gloria too! How about a fair competition between you and me?)

It was a joke, but when Jennifer typed those words, she felt heartbroken. She had secretly loved him so much but couldn't tell him about it, so she was very distressed.

Now, Bryson loved Gloria with all his heart. In his opinion, they were a couple and would get married in the future. So, it would be of no use at all even if she told him about her feelings for him. Maybe Bryson would even break up with her to prevent Gloria from thinking too much.

After all, Gloria was so important in his heart that he could sacrifice everything for her.

Jennifer lowered her eyes and sighed inwardly.

Bryson said, (I made a mistake again! Please forgive me! What about I go over to join you now? Can you take me in for one night?)

Nydia refused, (No way! There are only two bedrooms!)

Bryson said, (I can sleep on the couch.)

Nydia said, (Come on! We're all girls here! Gloria is your girlfriend, but Jennifer and I are not! You will look shameless if you live under the same roof with us!)

Bryson was speechless.

Gloria kept silent all the time, not knowing what to say, and she did not want to talk too much with Bryson either.

Now, she felt more overwhelmed, so the look in her eyes became even more complicated.

Nydia rubbed her temples because of the headache and said, "What should we do? We can't let things go on like this anymore. Bryson loves Gloria with all his heart now. If this continues, he will fall deeper and deeper. Gloria, if you don't break up with him right now, I'm afraid he will suffer a more severe mental breakdown in the future!"

Chapter 592 Too Early

Jennifer frowned, "But his current condition can't stand it. Didn't you hear the doctor's advice?"

The room instantly became quiet again.

No one said a word.

Suddenly, their phones vibrated at the same time,

Bryson sent another message to their chatting group, saying, (Why didn't you invite me for dinner today? If I had known it, I would have joined you.)

Immediately afterward, he sent a crying emoji.

Gloria pursed her lips and finally replied, (It's too late. You can't get out of the hospital at night because of your physical condition. We will invite you next time after you recover.)

Nydia echoed, (Gloria is right. Don't you know your current condition? Even if Gloria has agreed to meet you, you can't be so impatient. Otherwise, you would scare her away.)

When Bryson saw the message, his heart skipped a beat.

Was he too clingy?

Would Gloria dislike him?

Recently, he felt Gloria had become a little colder than before.

After a moment of hesitation, he sent a message to her, saying, (Gloria, Are Nydia's words true? I just want to see you very much, but I don't want to be clingy. I won't restrict you. You can do whatever you want.)

Nydia heard Gloria's phone vibrate, so she looked at her and asked, "Did he send you a message?"

Gloria showed her phone to Nydia and Jennifer and said helplessly, "What the hell should I do?"

Now, she could deal with others easily and was always tough and decisive. But when facing Bryson, she didn't know what to do.

Jennifer couldn't help sighing with more sadness in her eye, "Why doesn't Bryson like me? If he liked me, neither of us would have suffered from love."

Gloria took her phone back and slowly typed, (Don't think too much. Take good care of yourself.)

Bryson replied, (Okay! But please don't hesitate to tell me if you feel any discomfort. I'll correct it.)

The guilt in Gloria's eyes became stronger before she sighed and slowly replied, "Okay."

Both Nydia and Jennifer fell silent, and so did the chatting group.

Nydia had a headache. She raised her hand and grabbed a handful of hair, saying, "I think we should tell Bryson's family about it and let them try to think of a way."

Jennifer couldn't help nodding, "His mother has known about his disease, so she must be trying to figure out a way now."

"What about we ask her out for a chat?" Nydia looked at Gloria, waiting for her confirmation.

Gloria had no choice but to nod her head, saying, "We seem to have no other choice now."

They had only thought of this solution although they had discussed it repeatedly.

When it got late, they took a shower and went to sleep.

Bryson arrived before nine o'clock the next morning because he was eager to see Gloria.

When Nydia opened the door and saw him, she was a little speechless. Holding the toothbrush with toothpaste on it, she said, "Come on! How can you come so early? Don't you know Jennifer and I are here?"

In fact, they had long changed their clothes for fear of his surprise attack.

Bryson didn't expect Nydia to get up so late, so the corner of his mouth twitched slightly before he said, "It's nine o'clock! Why haven't you brushed your teeth yet?"

"Come on! It is too early now!" Nydia said in a blaming voice. As soon as she finished speaking, the bedroom door was suddenly pushed open.

Gloria walked out in simple and light yellow home clothes, and her hair was hanging down loosely. so she looked like a young college student, taking Bryson's breath away.

And he couldn't take his eyes off her the moment he saw her, and then he said, "Good morning.

Gloria."

Nydia was speechless and thought she should go to the bathroom to brush her teeth right away.

Jennifer had been sitting on the sofa in the living room all the time, but he had not seen her yet.

Gloria nodded at him and said with a smile, "Here you are. Please take a seat."

Then, she walked to the sofa.

Jennifer was sitting in the middle of the three-seat sofa, so after Gloria sat down beside her, Bryson could not sit close to her.

But he didn't mind it but sat down beside Jennifer and asked, "How are you feeling now?"

It seemed to have become his favorite phrase.

Gloria nodded as usual, "I've almost fully recovered."

Bryson nodded with a soft smile on his handsome face, and his black eyes could only see Gloria now.

Jennifer felt distressed and envied Gloria, but at the same time, she felt sorry for Bryson. Everyone knew the truth, but only he was kept in the dark..

However, they could not let him know...

Only the three of them could understand these ambivalent and complicated feelings, but they could do nothing to release the negative emotions.

Jennifer couldn't help sighing in her heart.

In the Collins Group.

Jordy was working in the office.

His cold face was a little gloomy because he was dissatisfied with the document in his hand.

In front of him stood a middle-aged man who was a little fat. The man adjusted his rimless glasses and wiped the cold sweat that was being uncontrollably exuded.

The document Jordy was reading now was the case plan made by the middle-aged man's subordinates.

His department had worked on this plan for half a month, and he was quite satisfied with it, but seeing the gloomy look on Jordy's face, the middle-aged became more and more frightened.

Although he wanted to ask what was wrong, he didn't dare, so he could only stand stiffly in front of the desk with his head down, daring not to raise his eyes.

Three minutes later, Jordy slowly raised his head and looked at the middle-aged man.

"I waited for half a month! How dare you give me such a plan?" Jordy's voice was cold and sharp with obvious dissatisfaction.

The middle-aged man trembled violently and shook his head in a panic, "Mr. Collins, we worked overtime and made a painstaking effort on the plan... Is there any problem? Would you please give me some suggestions on revision? I will..."

The middle-aged was flustered, so his words were a little incoherent. Before he finished speaking, he felt the temperature in the office keep dropping.

It was bone-chillingly cold as if it were winter now, so he swallowed back the rest of his words.

"I will give you three more days. You will be fired if you can't hand in a satisfying plan!"

When he threw the document to the middle-aged man, the latter subconsciously caught it with both hands.

Hearing that he might be fired, he hurriedly nodded, "Okay, I'll let them improve the plan. Mr. Collins, please give me one more chance."

Jordy stared at him sharply in silence, signaling him to get out immediately.

The middle-aged man didn't dare to think much but exited in a panic. As soon as he opened the door, he saw Harold standing outside and raising his hand with a serious face. Obviously, he intended to knock on the door.

The middle-aged man was stunned but didn't dare to think much. As soon as Harold stepped aside.

he walked out.

Jordy raised his head to look at Harold. Closing the door, Harold immediately stepped forward and said solemnly, "Mr. Collins, Mr. Lloyd is at Miss White's home."

Jordy's face became gloomier.

He looked at Harold coldly and asked in a deep voice, "Are they at home alone?"

"No, Miss Maguire and Miss Thomas are also there, but Mr. Lloyd went to Miss White's home as her boyfriend."

As soon as he finished speaking, Harold felt a sharp gaze hit on his face and felt a sharp pain as if he had been cut by a knife.

"Mr. Lloyd's situation was awfully bad before, so they deceived him. Now, his brain can't stand mood swings, so they haven't told him the truth yet. But I'm worried if things go on like this, Miss White will be moved by his deep love."

Jordy tightened his grip on the pen.

Later, he put it down, not wanting to read the document anymore.

Harold touched the tip of his nose and bowed his head after saying what he should say.

Now, Mr. Collins was more nice than wise and refused to admit he had fallen in love with Miss

White, so he was always in a bad mood. Mr. Collins had even ordered to him keep an eye on her,
•which was tiring.

But Harold was just his employee, so he could not and dared not persuade him.

He just needed to do whatever Mr. Collins ordered him to do.

Because he did not give any order, Harold coughed lightly and asked, "Is there anything else I can do for you?"

Jordy pursed his lips in silence.

Harold knew there was nothing he needed to do now, so he walked away.

Then, Jordy was left in the office alone. He picked up the phone irritably, but as soon as he unlocked it, he put it down in a fret.

What would he do?

To question Gloria?

She was free to do whatever she wanted, right?

What was the point of his previous warning?

Since their relationship had reached this point, his warning was meaningless.

Jordy was instantly at a loss for words

And what Carlos had told him suddenly popped into his mind.

. "Jordy, you like her! Admit it. There's nothing shameful about it! And you don't need to deny it. You like her and can't let go of her. Admit it! Don't you think your current way of doing things is very paranoid? Since you're divorced, you shouldn't try to control her anymore. The fear of losing face is just your excuse. You've never been afraid of being talked about or disliked! The only thing you want is to control her. You didn't cherish her before, so you should reflect on yourself now. She loved you so much in the past. Maybe, you still have a chance to get back together with her.

Jordy had scoffed at those words back then.

He had said he would never like Gloria who was a vain woman.

He did not care about other people's opinions, but he could not stand people questioning his taste. And Gloria used to be the biggest flaw in his life.

Now, things had not changed.

When his phone suddenly rang, he came back to his senses.

Seeing it was Angela who was calling him, he frowned, rejected her call, and directly blocked her.

But then, he began to suspect she was pretending to be crazy.

So, he unblocked her and called her back.

Angela quickly answered the call and said, "Jordy, you're finally willing to call me."

Jordy frowned and started recording the call as soon as she began to speak.

Chapter 595 Losing His Temper Again

"What's up?"

"Jordy, believe me! I didn't do it!"

Jordy frowned slightly, "Do you think I will buy your story?"

"You have to believe me! Jordy, I really did not do it!" Angela said in a cracking voice as if she was very emotional.

Then, Martha said in an extremely helpless voice, "Jordy, Angela has been insane since that incident. And she is depressed in silence every day! As long as she can speak, she tries to get in touch with you because she must explain it to you. Jordy, Angela is kindhearted, so she must not have done such a thing! You know..."

Hearing this, Jordy ran out of patience and interrupted, "Don't bother me anymore! My patience is limited."

Then, he hung up the phone.

His patience was really limited, and he didn't want to watch them act anymore.

Putting down the phone, he thought of Gloria again and even began to imagine how intimate she and Bryson were now, so his face became extremely gloomy in an instant!

Jordy rubbed his temples irritably and threw himself into work again.

But things were not as simple as he had thought. Since knowing Bryson had gone to Gloria's home, he had felt ill at ease!

So, he dialed Harold's number with a frown, and as soon as the latter picked up the phone, he said in a deep voice, "We will start the meeting ahead of schedule. Ask everyone to get to the conference room in 20 minutes."

Harold was stunned, but he didn't dare to say anything redundant. After he replied, Jordy hung up the phone.

Then, Harold had no choice but to inform everyone that the meeting would be held ahead of time, and people were all confused, wondering why they would have the meeting two days earlier than scheduled. They hadn't finished the preparations yet. What if Mr. Collins got angry?

But no one dared to complain that Mr. Collins didn't do things according to the schedule.

Everyone else was worried and curious, but Harold was not surprised. Mr. Collins was terribly angry now, so he needed something to distract his attention. Therefore, he decided to have the meeting ahead of time. Harold only felt sorry for those employees.

After Gloria had acted for hours, Bryson finally left her home in the afternoon. In fact, he had wanted to stay and have dinner with them, but Gloria asked him to go back and have a good rest because he could not be too tired. After the other two girls echoed her words and asked him not to let them worry about him, he went back helplessly.

The girls didn't breathe a sigh of relief until they saw him get into the car.

Standing downstairs, Jennifer and Nydia didn't intend to stay. Nydia looked at Gloria with a smile and said, "Gloria, I'm going home. Sleep early. It was a long day today. Have a good rest."

Gloria nodded, "Okay, I will."

Jennifer looked at her a little worriedly and said, "Gloria, you've suffered a lot recently. Because of Bryson, I used to... I'm sorry. Please forgive me. I will restrain myself in the future. I was indeed going too far back then."

On the day Bryson had been hit, Jennifer had said something harsh. Although she had apologized to Gloria, she still felt very guilty now, thinking she shouldn't have been that mean.

Gloria smiled, "I've never blamed you for what you said that day. I should not have behaved like that either. Jennifer, you did not do anything wrong."

Hearing this, Jennifer was relieved and nodded gratefully, "Thank you for not blaming me and being tolerant toward me. I will definitely not be so impulsive or throw temper tantrums at will anymore. You're not to blame for what happened that day."
