Chapter 811 God Favored Her

Gloria snapped back and shook her head. "Not really."

She thought of Angela but felt that there was nothing she could share with Jordy.

Their relationship was subtle. Even though he had found out that Angela was not his rescuer, she was still special in his heart.

As Gloria was reluctant to tell, his face turned sullen. So, he was meddling in her business. She didn't even consider turning to him for help.

Heh...

Jordy got up and headed out without another word.

Although he closed the door with ease, she could tell that he was unhappy.

Leaning against the head of the bed, she didn't bother to call out to him or say another word.

Jordy was absent all day, and Gloria felt at home. Nydia kept her company, chatting and laughing with her. She was also forced to rest from time to time.

In the evening, Nydia asked her with a smile, "Girl, what would you like to have for dinner?"

"Anything will be fine." She was not picky about food.

"Okay, I'll get it ready."

"Thanks."

"No problem, I've kept it on record, and you will cook for me in return. As the saying goes, a drop of water in need shall be returned with a spring in deed. I'll have someone get the food ready, and you will cook for me in person. It's called reciprocity," Nydia enthused.

Gloria was amused. "Fair point."

Nydia laughed. In fact, she had bummed meals off many times. "Alright, I'm going to get the food for you."

"Go ahead."

No!

No way!

Why did we sell our properties for no reason? My dad is the chairman of the White Group. There is no way we've come down to this.

She retorted at once, "Cousin, you're talking nonsense again!"

Her voice was accusatory, but her heart was in her throat. Holding her breath, she listened with rapt attention and never missed a word from Gloria's mouth.

In response, Gloria chuckled, "To be honest, I am not quite sure. It was told by others, and I haven't confirmed it yet."

Angela was petrified.

She had just lost interest in continuing the conversation with Angela.

She had revealed much for Angela to dig deeper into.

Given her intelligence, Angela probably had figured out a lot. When they fought in the evening, she would dig out more.

Gloria curled her lips. It had upset her to see her enemy living with no pressure.

Because of the things she had done, Angela had been summoned by the police many times. It had made her panic and depressed, so Gloria didn't believe Claude would tell his daughter about it. Angela was in the dark and living in peace, which was not what Gloria wanted. She would like to see her cousin suffer.

Just then, her phone rang again. She thought that it was Angela again but saw Jonathan's number on the screen.

She picked up the phone but remained silent.

Jonathan's soft voice came. "How is your trip?"

"Good," Gloria replied in a bland tone, as usual.

Jonathan raised an eyebrow. "Too much?"

Henry changed color and cleared his throat with embarrassment. His eyes narrowed into a line, and he looked like he was asleep.

Henry stroked his nose and said, "Mr. Brown, you... know that she's injured, and you're worried. Why didn't you ask her about it?"

"That would make her think that I was spying on her."

Henry was speechless.

You're on 24-hour standby. It's not spying or what.

Even if you mean her no harm and want to protect her, she'll think that you have crossed the line.

Claude was excited. "Wonderful! I'll try it."

Angela took a breath. Anger was written all over her face. "Why? Why are you keeping things from me? Do you think I'm ignorant and will reveal it to others or do you think I'm not capable of handling it? Whichever the case, we're a family. I'm your only daughter. Why wouldn't you tell me? I can face the problem with you."

"You shouldn't hide it from me. That's not fair. You think you're protecting me, but I don't think that way. It's kind of deception to me.

Her voice got louder, and her eyes were filled with disappointment.

Claude's face changed. He let out a sigh and asked, "What it takes for you to believe us?"

Angela shook her head and looked at them in an incredulous way. "I've said so much, but you still refuse to be honest with me."

It's not about whether we're keeping things from you, but what you said is confusing. What's his aim of telling you that our

Her daughter was too smart. Even if they refused to tell, Gloria would tell her everything sooner or later and might even exaggerate things. That would stimulate Angela even more.

Claude had the same thought. His face was ashen, but he couldn't argue about it.

He looked gloomy.

Angela got the answer from their looks.

"Why? We had such a great family. Why did we come to this? Jordy has found out it was your doing. Dad, have you thought about how to face the consequences?"

She had asked a lot of people in the office today, but no one had said anything. It showed that her father hadn't told anyone about it, or else the White Group would have been in chaos.

Claude took a deep breath, put his hands down, and said in a helpless tone, "I know that I did something wrong, but what's done is done. We can only go on and see what happens. Angela, I know what is troubling you, but people from the Collins Group haven't taken any action. Do you really think that's because Jordy is busy?"

Martha blanched!

Goodness me!

The mystery person that Angela has been in contact with is trying to kill Gloria!

If Gloria is dead, then the White Group...

At this thought, Martha suddenly panicked!

Claude looked confused. "What are you talking about?"
