Chapter 29 Slut! How Dare You Seduce My Boyfriend!

Xavier's displease was all over his face, "When Willow was about to enter showbiz, you were the one who suggested, no matter what role she took up, you will always help her."

"What, after just a year, you are going to eat your own words?"

Cathy smirked, "Well, you also said that you will marry me, and be with me forever."

What Cathy meant was that if Xavier's words never materialized, why should she keep on to her promises?

But Xavier took it the wrong way.

Xavier smacked his lips smugly, and with some pity looked at her, "Cathy, I was very clear that someone of my stature and identity will never marry someone who has given birth to other people's children." "I understand your feelings towards me, but I have already decided to be with Willow, I think we Cathy was startled.

After a while, she only got what he was trying to express.

Did he think that when she mentioned his previous promise, it was because she was reluctant to part with him?

What kind of divine fool is this? "Also, you are now married, you betrayed me first, thus you cannot use this against me, what

"Sure!"

As she just took off her top, the door flipped open. Cathy covered her chest instinctively.

Willow tucked her hands and stood by the door. With a cold glaze, she browsed at the bandage on

Cathy's shoulder, "Tsk tsk, how many days have passed by, hasn't this injury healed?"

Frowning, Cathy turned around. With her back against Willow, she started to change into her costume, "Did you travel all the way to the changing room just to observe if my injury has healed?"

"Of course not."

She buttoned up her shirt and her lips curled upwards, "What slander?"

When she first married Adrian, she thought that it was indeed as per rumors that he was old, ugly, and cruel.

"Worried? If so, you better keep your mouth shut!"

With that, Willow huffed and left with her head held high.

Cathy was petrified in the room and was dazed for quite a while.

"Will he view you as a filthy harbinger, bringing in real stench?"

So, she did not expect her past to be of any significance to him.

Cathy clenched her jaw, unwilling to continue her train of thought. Willow gloated at Cathy's silence.

The truth could not be further; Adrian was young, stunning, composed, and responsible. He was Behind the lens, Cathy's vision was locked on Xavier and yet Adrian's distant image was projected in her brain.

Her blood drained from her face, lost her balance, and fell headfirst towards Xavier –

Detecting the foreign scent of the man, Cathy's complexion paled and she instinctively rejected

She tried to shove Xavier, however, Xavier's grip was firm, and her struggles were to no avail.

Even though she was unwilling, now that she was here, she should finish off what she started.

"There isn't much to hide anyway, why worry about others seeing it?"

Cathy's shoulder injury was caused by Willow switching out the prop for a real blade at the neighboring studio.

"Your slander today has tarnished my reputation."

With her arms still tucked and a jeer, Willow threatened, "Cathy, you better keep that mouth of

If he knew about her past...

As for her ... For a scum like Xavier, she had done an abomination, an absolute disgrace.

Xavier as the knight saving the damsel in distress, grabbed Cathy by the waist and held her.
