Chapter 92 She Has Left

Dorian stared at Adrian's side profile in shock. "Master Bolton, this..."

"Thank you for telling me this."

The man raised his eyes to look at Dorian. There was an extreme coldness in his eyes as he spoke, "These photos were taken secretly since she was pregnant."

"When she was in labor and in pain, the camera was focused straight at her face."

There was no emotion at all in Adrian's voice. "You did not just find out about her past, but you have always known about it, and had been following her."

Dorian suddenly had a bad premonition. He quickly defended himself, "No, no!"

"These pictures were not taken by us. It was given to us..."

"Then who took them?"

Adrian changed into a more comfortable position. He put his long legs on the desk and crossed his arms in front of his chest. He looked ready to probe about this matter. "You can tell me who took the photos, and how much did you spend to buy them."

"You need not worry about them taking revenge against you. I am the most powerful person in Ryzan."

Dorian panicked.

"There's no... no need for that..."

"Actually, this matter has long passed. There is no need to pursue it."

However, Adrian answered with a faint smile on his lips. "But I want to pursue this matter."

Dorian's face turned as pale as paper.

He never expected things to turn out like this.

He took a deep breath and coughed lightly. "You will feel more comfortable if you don't know so much."

"I'm showing you this just to let you know... what a loose and shameless woman Cathy is."

Adrian's face was cold. He stared at Dorian arrogantly. "How did she turn out to be loose?"

"She... She has given birth to a child before..."

The man changed into another comfortable position. He lowered his head and fiddled with the mobile phone in his hand. There was a mocking smile on his lips. "Are women who have given birth before dirty?"

Dorian's face went pale.

He took in a deep breath and continued. "I did not mean that... What I meant was, Cathy got pregnant before marriage. So no matter what, it was a promiscuous act..."

Adrian glanced at him and repeated, "Loose and shameless..."

"You keep mentioning that Cathy is no different from your biological daughter to you. But if this happened to Ember one day, would you have described her like this?"

Dorian's face went pale. He did not speak.

"The Cathy you see in this photo is loose and shameless."

"But that's not the case at all in my opinion."

"A woman needs care and company of her family the most when she is pregnant."

"And in these photos, I do not see any of her family members or friends, apart from Quinn."

"The Shaw family had the time to hire a private investigator to secretly follow her around and take photos. But no one was willing to take the time to care for her."

"Was this what you meant by treating her as your own daughter?"

Dorian could finally take it no longer. "Master Bolton, that is not the point..."

"In order to secure her boyfriend, Xavier, a contract, she had shamelessly gotten pregnant with someone else so as to pull strings. So even if we knew who the father of the child was, we wouldn't want to care about her and the child in her stomach..."

Adrian's face got even darker.

Did she do all of these for Xavier's sake...

He recalled the night she married him.

That night, she sat on the sofa and drank while watching Xavier and Willow's news.

He still remembered her hugging him aggrievedly and telling her not to despise her for losing her virginity...

The man's stare turned colder as he thought of this. "How much did Xavier's breach of contract cost?"

Dorian immediately became more enthusiastic when he heard Adrian's question. He immediately disclosed, "Xavier was not famous at that time, so his termination fee and the cost for clearing his name added up to only two million!"

"Isn't Cathy cheap?"

"Although this does not sound too appropriate, I have to say, despicability is in her blood!"

"She is exactly the same as her drunkard father. She can sell herself for money!"

"Our Ember, however, is different..."

Adrian narrowed his eyes. "Two million is not a huge amount for Shaw Group, isn't it?"

"Of course!"

"Although Shaw Group is not comparable with Bolton Group, it is still a family business with over a hundred million assets..."

Adrian stood up. His tall build brought an unseen pressure to Dorian.

The man looked down at the middle-aged man in front of him. "So the Shaw family did not extend their help to Cathy when she had encountered problems in the past."

"Even if two million was just a piece of cake for the Shaw Family, you did not help her. Finally, she had no choice but to make money in her own way. But you even photographed all of these and kept them so you can humiliate her in the future. Am I right?"

The air in the study froze instantly.

Dorian's face went pale as he stared back at Adrian.

He opened his mouth to say something. But the powerful aura of the man in front of him made him at a loss for words.

"Are you quietly admitting that I am right?"

Adrian's lips curled upwards into a mocking smile. "I thought she had a bad relationship with you before this. But I didn't expect that she had to live such a miserable life in the Shaw family."

"Please do not use the status as her adoptive father in the future anymore. She has paid what she had owed you long ago."

"And don't tell others that you are my father-in-law either. My real father-in-law should be the poverty-stricken slum."

After he finished speaking, the man got up to leave.

When he arrived at the door, he turned around, as if he had suddenly remembered something. He stared indifferently at Dorian and said, "If I hear any news about Cathy's childbearing in the future, I will hold accountable."

"The Shaw family better learn to keep this matter hidden under the rug."

After saying that, he slammed the door of the study shut with a bang.

Dorian remained frozen on the spot. He was stunned for a moment as he watched the closed door.

How could this be...

A person like Adrian should be very concerned about this type of matter!

Why did he defend Cathy...

"Evan."

As soon as he came out of the Shaw Villa, neither Cathy nor Ember was in sight.

"Master."

Evan glanced at the alley and said, "Both of them went to the alley. Mrs. Bolton seemed to have beaten Miss Shaw up..."

"I thought it wasn't appropriate for me to watch, so I've been waiting here..."

Adrian frowned. He could hear a woman's moan in the alley when he listened carefully.

"How long have they been inside?"

"Twenty minutes."

Twenty minutes...

Adrian strode over. "Let's go have a look."

Will there be permanent injury after twenty minutes of fight?

But when he walked into the alley, he found Ember lying on the ground. She was alone, and almost out of breath.

"Help..."

Adrian looked down at her and asked. "Where's Cathy?"

"She has left..."

Ember squeezed a weak smile at Adrian and continued. "Cathy knows that she herself is a promiscuous person. She was afraid that you'd get furious after learning about her past, so she left..."
