```
Chapter 94 Don't Disturb Her Rest
```

The heavy rain spilled all over the man's furious face. He looked particularly sexy and charming at this time.

Cathy stared blankly at Adrian. Her voice trembled slightly. "What... do you mean?"

Was he not angry about her past? Didn't he follow her here because of it? "I meant..."

Adrian clasped her chin and uttered every single word slowly. "Cathy Shaw, I am very bothered about the fact that you have given birth for someone else." The woman's heart froze instantly.

Certainly...

What he said about not giving her up ever was all false.

He was still an ordinary man no matter how special he was.

She did not blame him for not accepting her past.

"So I will not let you leave me."

Adrian narrowed his eyes and said in a low voice. "You will have to stay by my side as compensation and bear me three children."

arms.

She held the man's shirt subconsciously. Her voice trembled as she cried, "Oh, Adrian..."

The coldness of the heavy rain and the warmth of his chest made Cathy dazed for a moment.

"I'm sorry."

"I'm sorry..."

"I did not want to lie to you, but when I married you at first..."

She really did not put so much consideration into it.

"At least you wouldn't turn out like this."

She just wanted to follow the Shaw family's instructions to write off her debt with them.

have never done a background check on you."

"I will protect you properly."

He frowned in surprise as he asked, "Do you like stars?"

She had also said that she liked stars.

"I do..."

The woman uttered these two words weakly. The next second, she fell backwards limply—

The man stretched out his long arms and carried her right away. "To the hospital!"

Cathy was still in a daze, but she could hear a man sighing.

bear the blow and went crazy."

senses."

She tried to open her eyes but failed. "All the information about her in the asylum is here."

There was the sound of paper flipping after the man's voice stopped.

"She lost her child, and I lost my children's mother."

His words made Cathy's heart stop.

"Is that how the word redemption is used?"

Then came Adrian's deep voice. "We seem really fated for each other."

"So both of you complement each other." Yoel sighed lightly. "Both of you can find redemption through each other."

After speaking, he frowned. "What are you concerned about?" Adrian turned his head and glanced at the woman, whose eyes were still closed, on the bed. "I fear

"Depends. It might relapse under extreme stimulation."

that she might hurt herself again in the future."

He understood the pain of burns best.

mental breakdown."

while?"

that Cathy had an accident."

He didn't want to be nagged.

Adrian looked up at Yoel, displeased. Then he turned around and walked out of the door. "I'm leaving."

"I'll ask the psychiatrist to prescribe some medicine just in case. There isn't prevention for a

After speaking, Yoel seemed to remember something. "By the way, your father called me just

"The old man might come and see her in person later. Do you want to stay here or leave for a now. He wanted me to go to the Boltons residence to check on his health. I refused him by saying Adrian, he...

"You are right." After he heard his daughter's words, old master Bolton quickly lowered his voice. "We cannot disturb her rest."

home and you have treated me like your own daughter since then. Aaron and Andy have treated me like their biological sister too." Cathy frowned.

The old man sighed again. "Everyone thought that you would be an item with Adrian at first. But fate played its game. First, there was Abner and Arius' mother, now there is this girl..." "It is all in the past."

Karen responded gently, "Well, Andy took pity on me when he saw me that time. He brought me

She never learned about Adrian's family members. She only knew that Adrian was the third child

Old Master Bolton frowned. "Didn't Yoel say that it was caused by the rain?" Karen smiled obediently. "Uncle Bolton, you have underestimated this matter."

Old Master Bolton thought for a while and answered. "Alright, you may go."

She had been by Adrian's side for so many years. Why would any woman be Mrs. Bolton?

It was all her fault. She had hidden this from him...

"If you can't do it within a year, then do it in two years. If not, then you're stuck with me for the rest of your life. Don't even think about leaving if you do not give me three children!" Cathy stared at him in shock after he finished speaking. The man immediately pulled her into his

"I'm sorry."

"I should be the one apologizing." Adrian closed his eyes and hugged her tightly. "I have always thought that you were naïve, so I "It never crossed my mind that you would have suffered such a tragedy before..." The man's deep voice made Cathy feel hot inside. "What would you do if you had known earlier?"

Crying painfully with a tombstone in your arms alone in the cemetery. He had children too. He couldn't help but think about Abner and Arius' mother when he saw Cathy. The fire from five years ago appeared before him once more.

He could not see the woman's face in the thick smoke. He could only hear her hoarse and weak voice. She told him to take good care of the children and find a new mother for them.

Adrian reached out to catch her, only to find that she had fainted.

"I have found the medical record file you asked for. She really went through a tragic fate. She had a car accident when she was eight months pregnant, and the child was a stillborn. She couldn't

"According to her biological father, she had followed him back to the slum to rest after labor. But he didn't expect her to set fire to herself at home. Only then, her father realized that something was wrong with her, and sent her to the asylum."

"Later, she received burn and mental treatment. It took more than half a year for her to regain her

"She was caught in a fire. So was I."

Adrian put the file down and glanced at Yoel lightly. "Will her mental illness recur in the future?"

Fortunately, she had lost her memory. So she did not remember the pain she suffered at that time.

Yoel tried to hold his smile. "Alright. You go to work first. I will inform you when the old man is gone." Adrian lowered his eyes and looked at the time. It was already half-past eight in the evening.

If not, they would not be able to fall asleep tonight because Cathy did not return home. The two children were greatly interested in Cathy's well-being.

After a long time, he finally sighed. "Master Bolton might just fall for you for the rest of his life."

It was time for him to go back and explain what had happened today to the children.

After Adrian had left, Yoel stood by the door and looked at Cathy's face silently.

Cathy lay on the bed with her eyes closed. She trembled slightly.

What he cared about was whether her mental illness would recur.

How lucky was she to have met a man like Adrian in her life?

Suddenly, Old Master Bolton's voice sounded at the door of the ward.

A tear slowly slid from the corner of her eye.

"Uncle, keep your voice down. Don't wake her up."

Cathy frowned. This must be Adrian's father.

The woman tried hard but still couldn't open her eyes.

So she laid helplessly on the bed. She was still groggy.

But who was this woman?

"What's the matter?"

After speaking, he turned to leave.

He seemed not to mind that she's ever had a baby.

Just as the old man's voice fell, a female voice was heard. It sounded like a young woman.

She should be up greeting the old man at this time. But she couldn't use any strength at all.

"Karen, you are so considerate." Old Master Bolton sighed. "It has been ten years since Andy brought you home, hasn't it?"

This matter was never brought up in front of her. "Hey."

nurse and ask about the reason my sister-in-law fainted."

in the family, but she never knew that they had an adopted daughter too.

Karen's voice was very gentle. "Uncle Bolton, why don't you accompany her first. I will go to the

"Who would foolishly run outside under such heavy rain?"

Karen turned around. The concern on her face immediately turned into indifference the moment she turned around.

Cathy and Adrian were in a dispute, so this would be the perfect opportunity for her to break them up!