

Chapter 1359 Marco Had His Eye On A Specific Singer

Loraine went back to her room, ready to write her song.

Even though she had promised something amazing, she still lacked a clear idea—just a blurry vision.

After pondering for a while, she considered Qbot. Maybe it could lend her a hand!

She grabbed her phone and used Qbot to search for helpful info. As she scrolled, Loraine slowly remembered what it felt like to write songs. She created a song about new beginnings from her experience at the music festival.

At the same time, Rita told Marco about the director through Carl and mentioned Loraine's choice.

Marco's expression turned grim as he listened.

Carl hesitantly asked, "Sir, should we put some pressure on the director?"

After a brief pause, Marco replied, "There's no need for that. Loraine said she wants to handle it on her own."

"So... are we just going to let it go?" Carl couldn't quite figure out what Marco was thinking.

Marco paused for a moment before saying, "Reach out to the organizer of the music show and offer an investment. Then, as an investor, ask for a ticket."

Carl quickly responded, "Got it, I'll take care of it right away."

Marco added, "And remember, keep it quiet. No one should find out."

Before long, the director received the investment.

He was shocked that someone as powerful as Marco would invest in his small show. It was unexpected.

Then, he had a realization.

Could it be that Marco had his eye on a specific singer and wanted to back her?

In show business, that wasn't uncommon. The director felt more convinced by his hunch.

He quickly called Marco, inquiring, "Mr. Cruz, thank you for supporting our show. May I ask which singer has caught your attention?"

Although the director was careful with his words, Marco caught the hidden message.

He hadn't forgotten Loraine's wish to succeed on her own without relying on connections. Knowing she, as a newcomer, would likely be scheduled first, Marco paused and replied in a serious tone, "It's not like that. I'm just supporting your show because I like it. I'll only be staying for the opening performance."

With that, Marco hung up the phone.

The director was left confused, unable to figure him out.

Still, based on his instincts, he was convinced that Marco must have taken a liking to some singer and was trying to keep it discreet.

The director went over the list of singers in the show.

Only Loraine and Miranda stood out as the most attractive.

After comparing them, he figured Marco must be interested in Miranda, not Loraine, who had been accused of copying Alice's style.

The director quickly shared the news with Miranda.

Feeling confident and pleased, Miranda asked the director to let her perform in the opening.

Before long, the day of the music show's recording arrived.

Loraine showed up early at the site to get ready.

When the director saw Loraine, he asked with a mocking tone, "What? Have you crafted your own song?"

Loraine felt confident about her song, but she maintained a calm and composed attitude as she nodded. "Yes, I have."

The director sized her up and mocked her, saying, "Showing up early won't change anything. You're new. Even if you have creativity, you're still inexperienced. You won't be performing in the opening."

"But why?" Loraine was confused.

The director answered sarcastically, "It's for your own good. If a newcomer like you goes on first and the audience leaves early, it will be disastrous for the other singers, won't it? I'm just trying to help you."

Loraine frowned and glanced at Rita.

Having heard Loraine's song, Rita didn't object but replied coolly, "Oh, it's your own decision, right?"

The director stayed calm and said, "Yes, it's my decision. Any

Not wanting to argue more, Rita turned to comfort Loraine, saying, "Don't be discouraged. I believe in you. Your song is great, and the audience will love it."

Loraine forced a smile and nodded.

Rita added, "Besides, performing later has its perks. You'll have more time to get ready and give the audience an amazing show!"

Chapter 1360 Last To Perform

The crowd slowly gathered in the venue, and the music show kicked off!

Marco showed up fashionably late. He settled into the front row next to Carl.

As the lights dimmed, Marco watched the stage intently, excited for Loraine's performance.

After waiting a while without seeing her, he started feeling confused.

He turned to Carl and asked, "When's Loraine going on?"

Carl quickly messaged Rita to check on Loraine's performance time.

The response made his expression darken.

Marco frowned and asked, "What's happening?"

Carl hesitantly replied, "Loraine's performing last this time..."

"Last?" Marco's face shifted immediately.

Just then, Carl got another message from Rita and told Marco, "She was supposed to open the show, but for some reason, her slot got moved to the end."

Marco's displeasure was obvious.

Feeling the tension, Carl nervously asked, "Do you want me to talk to the director?"

Commented [Ma1]:

Marco coolly declined, saying, "No. Let it go for now, but keep an eye on the production team. Make sure they don't pull any more stunts."

Carl quickly nodded in agreement.

Soon, it was Miranda's turn to take the stage.

The moment she stepped up, her eyes landed on Marco.

As the music started, Miranda flashed a playful look at Marco and launched into one of her early, sugary love songs.

During her performance, she kept her gaze on Marco, throwing in some flirty gestures.

But at her age, singing sweet love songs with those flirty moves only came across as unpleasant.

Marco frowned, completely ignoring her. He didn't even look her way; instead, he stared at his phone, engrossed in work.

By the end of her song, Miranda noticed Marco hadn't been listening at all, which made her so upset that she hit a wrong note in the finale.

Luckily, the song finished without any major slip-ups.

Then, the host stepped out.

"Now, let's welcome the judges to share their thoughts. But first, I'm excited to introduce a special guest, Vincent!"

The crowd went wild, many cheering for Vincent.

After waving to the audience, Vincent settled into his seat.

The other judges started sharing their thoughts on Miranda's performance.

With her years of experience and strong reputation, they couldn't help but praise her.

"I believe Miranda sang wonderfully."

"Her emotional performance truly resonated with the audience. Every lyric carried real feeling, making us feel like we were living the story of the song."

"Absolutely, Miranda was at her best today."

"Her stage presence and strong vocals were remarkable. Her movements were smooth and in sync with the music, offering the audience an enjoyable blend of sight and sound."

Vincent, on the other hand, dismissed the compliments with a scoff.

He had seen Miranda trying to flirt with Marco, and when Marco didn't pay her any attention, she almost slipped up.

Once the other judges finished their feedback, Vincent boldly asked, "Do you honestly think you did a good job on that song?"
