

Chapter 908 Asking Jennie For Help

---

Loraine was astonished, yet she also recognized that the origins of the necklace were unusual.

Initially, she had sought to preserve her parents' necklace by having someone repair it. Little did she anticipate that the restoration of the necklace would lead to so many mysterious events.

Was someone anxious that she would uncover secrets tied to the necklace?

A myriad of suspicious figures flashed through Loraine's mind. Could it be Jaden?

She had already sent people to keep a close eye on him, but they had noticed nothing out of the ordinary so far.

If not Jaden, then who could it be?

With the Torres family having limited involvement in the jewelry industry, Loraine found herself lacking connections in this realm. All she could do was ask around for information with the photo she had, but it proved to be an impractical approach.

After some contemplation, Loraine instructed Remy to in this realm. All she could do was ask around for information with the photo she had, but it proved to be an impractical approach.

After some contemplation, Loraine instructed Remy to persist in the investigation and then decided to call Jennie.

The call connected swiftly, but before Loraine could utter a word, Jennie exclaimed, "Lorrie! Where have you been? Why didn't you tell me that you eloped with Marco? When I visited the Torres' house to see you, I learned that you and Marco had both gone out..."

Hearing Jennie's familiar voice brought warmth to Loraine.

Amidst her time in Zodiac, she had been consistently yearning for Vagow, her true home with the familiar faces of her family and friends. The only reason she still remained in Zodiac was because she wanted to return with Marco.

Once Jennie was done venting at her, Loraine smiled and said, "Well, I'm in Zodiac."

After a brief pause of surprise, Jennie cautiously asked, "Did you return to the Cruz family with Marco?"

Loraine lapsed into a thoughtful silence, eventually wearing a wry smile as she contemplated the complex situation between her and Marco.

Marco had been put under house arrest by the Cruz family. For him to slip out to see her without alerting the guards watching him would be no easy feat.

Jennie wanted to say something but stopped on a second thought. In the end, she let out a heavy sigh and advised, "Lorrie, I respect your decisions, but I urge you to be cautious and prioritize your well-being. I know Marco was kind to you in Vagow, back when he didn't have any money. But now, he's a member of the Cruz family. Who knows what's on his mind?"

Hearing this, Loraine didn't know whether to laugh or to cry. She wanted to explain to her best friend that Marco was not that kind of a person.

However, before she could, Jennie continued, "Lorrie, I believe that Marco is a good man, but you must protect yourself. Things have changed. Even if he means you no harm, those around him might. I can't bear to see you hurt again!"

Touched by Jennie's concern, Loraine nodded and reassured her, "I'll be careful, Jennifer. Thank you. But don't worry. I didn't come to Zodiac just for Marco. There's also some investigating for me to do."

Being inherently optimistic, Jennie grinned at Loraine's response. "That's good. As long as you know what you're doing. Lorrie, what are you investigating? Do you need my help? Just let me know. I'm here for you!"

Loraine pursed her lips, and a smile formed on her face. "I have an expensive necklace. Can you come to Zodiac to appraise it for me?"

Without a moment's hesitation, Jennie enthusiastically agreed, "You're the best, Lorrie! Ever since my mother arrived a few days ago, she has been driving me nuts with her non-stop nagging. I actually needed a reason to escape her! Wait for me, I'll buy the ticket right now. Pick me up at the airport tomorrow, okay?"

In a rush to secure the ticket, she swiftly hung up, leaving Loraine staring at the phone in amusement.

The next morning, Loraine headed to the airport to greet Jennie.

To keep a low profile, she intentionally disguised herself and stood in a corner, like a celebrity who wanted to avoid attention.

But it was precisely because of this that she caught the eyes of many passers-by. It seemed that a big star was supposed to arrive at the airport today, because the place was buzzing with excitement, and there were many fans waiting with huge banners.

Suddenly, a cheerful roar erupted, with fans fervently screaming a name. "Vincent Cohen! Vincent Cohen!"

A group of people ran past Loraine. Despite warnings from the security guards, the fans excitedly searched for the elusive Vincent. "He seems to be over there!"

Back when Loraine was the lead singer of a group, she had also been chased by fervent fans, but she was still a little taken aback by the chaotic sight in front of her.

Clicking her tongue in surprise, she covered her face with a mask as a precautionary measure, and then texted Jennie to inform her that she would wait in the lounge nearby.

However, as soon as Loraine reached the entrance of the VIP lounge, she found herself unexpectedly pulled into a corner by a man sporting sunglasses and a mask.