Chapter 70: Shooting

Benson felt an unprecedented danger.

He roared and swung his fist at the dark devil in front of him fiercely.

The chain on his wrist clanged as it was pulled.

Juliana leaned away from his fist. She did not hasten to strike at him, but spoke to him in a gentle voice, "Benson, it's me. Calm down."

However, her voice became a devilish voice in Benson's ears, a terrible devilish voice.

Benson's strikes became more and more vicious and his punches all went towards the fatal points on Juliana's body.

Juliana kept dodging instead of fighting back while calling out to him, "Benson, Benson."

No matter how she called him, she seemed to be a deadly demon that would kill him in Benson's eyes.

Zach covered his nose, but blood still dripped out through his fingers, "You're not helping. He won't listen."

He shouted at Juliana, "You're such a pest! You're making it worse. Just wait until you get killed."

Zach was really angry and wouldn't feel sorry for Juliana if she was killed.
