

Chapter 2732 Ridiculous

The screams at the scene, the sound of shouting and killing, the roar of wild beasts, and the sound of fighting were deafening.

Seeing that the warriors were about to get defeated, Zeke jumped into the air and landed on the city wall. There, he casually unleash a wave of energy and killed a beast.

That beast didn't even have time to self-destruct. Instead, it disintegrated on the spot.

After that, Zeke killed another seven beasts with ease.

The last wild beast was a rhinoceros. Instead of rushing in for the kill, Zeke gave it time because he wanted to confirm if it was the Core exploding when it decided to self-destruct.

However, something unexpected happened.

That rhinoceros ended up kneeling before Zeke, and it had a sincere look in its eyes. At the same time, it froze in fear.

Sure enough, the rhinoceros showed the mental capacity to beg for mercy.

Before Zeke could attack it, however, it suddenly died after self-destructing its Core.

What on earth is going on? Zeke was stumped. That rhinoceros kneeled before me, no? Doesn't that mean it was begging for mercy? Why did it self-destruct before I could do anything? Was it insane?

After the beasts were all dead, the guards quickly kneeled before Zeke. "Greetings, Commander Williams."

"Prior to this, did the base often get attacked by beasts? Why did they attack the base?" Zeke asked.

The captain of the guards answered, "It happened before, but it's rare. Throughout my life, I've only seen such an attack twice. The previous time these beasts appeared, there were only a couple of them. I've never seen ten beasts attacking at once."

Zeke fell into deep thought and nodded. "Okay, got it. Continue guarding the city gates."

Zeke wasn't keen on investigating the matter because he thought it was an ordinary occurrence.

On the way back, Fortuna suddenly said, "Zeke, something's wrong."

"Huh? What is it?"

"You may not believe me, but before the rhinoceros died, it communicated with me through telepathy," Fortuna answered.

Really? Zeke was a little surprised. If it could communicate through telepathy, then it should be at least a King Class warrior. Does that mean not only could that rhinoceros cultivate, but it also achieved King Class? This is unbelievable! It's such a shame! It would be nice to ride a King Class rhinoceros.

Ossa Dei was skeptical. "Are you sure you didn't imagine it? If that was actually a King Class rhinoceros, why did it self-destruct? It would've at least fought back."

"I ordered the rhinoceros to self-destruct its Core," Fortuna replied.

What? Both Zeke and Ossa Dei thought they heard Fortuna wrongly. "What did you just say?"

"It used telepathy to communicate with me and addressed me as its king. It told me it was willing to heed my orders. I thought it was merely an imagination, so I told it to self-destruct its Core. A moment later, it really did just that," Fortuna said.

Uh... Zeke and Ossa Dei were astonished. That rhinoceros called Fortuna its king and committed suicide after getting the order from Fortuna. What the f*ck is happening?

As they recalled the fact that Fortuna could have been making divine weapons in the past, a horrifying thought came to their minds. Could Fortuna be from Theos Island? Was Fortuna the ruler of this place? Could all the beasts on Theos Island be Fortuna's subordinates? T-This is ridiculous!
