

Chapter 2771 Power Of The Primordial Beast

Right when they were about to engage the wild animals in battle, something shocking happened.

Those beasts rebounded when they arrived at approximately half a meter in front of the crowd. Some of the animals even dropped dead after shattering their skulls upon collision.

None of the beasts could get near to them.

Only then did clarity wash over everyone. Mr. Williams already set up a protective barrier for us. This barrier is so amazing. Mr. Williams is really a god among men!

Zeke became even nobler in everyone's hearts.

The beasts were insignificantly weak to Sole Wolf and the others.

In the blink of an eye, Sole Wolf and his peers eliminated over three hundred wild animals.

They had accumulated over a thousand kill count thus far.

Meanwhile, at the mire located in the deepest part of Theos Island, the primordial beast, a gigantic buffalo, had just drifted off to sleep when it abruptly opened its eyes.

Its heart suddenly twinged moments ago. The agonized screams, shrieks, and pleas for help of its brethren filled its mind.

Whoosh!

The gigantic buffalo stood up and listened carefully.

It seemed to hear the terrible screeches of its subordinates being slaughtered.

Moo!

Enraged, the gigantic buffalo let out a deafening moo at the sky. This is outrageous! Completely intolerable! How dare they kill my subjects! They must be tired of living. I will seek vengeance. I shall avenge my subjects!

It spewed flames from its nostrils, illuminating the sky as anger churned within it.

At the same time, on Zeke's end, everyone was thoroughly enjoying their fight with the wild animals. Suddenly, a pillar of flame shot up into the sky, followed by an ear-splitting moo.

The moo appeared to be laced with some kind of magic.

Any human who heard it would feel dizzy and temporarily lose consciousness.

Not to mention the commoners, even Zeke wasn't spared from suffering the adverse effects.

Speaking of which, Zeke's mental energy was considered very formidable. Even a Celestial Class warrior couldn't shake his mental energy.

However, the moo had unbelievably rendered Zeke light-headed.

Although the deep call of the creature didn't cause him to pass out, it substantially impacted his consciousness.

D*mn it. D*mn it! Zeke panicked. What produced that cry, and what exactly is the extent of that thing's capabilities for it to be stronger than me?

When his consciousness was affected earlier, he subconsciously retracted the defensive energy barrier protecting the citizens. Are they being attacked by the beasts?

Zeke immediately forcefully regained his composure and scanned his surroundings.

Fortunately, the wild animals appeared to have fled in fear after so many of them had been slaughtered, or perhaps they were summoned by the loud moo. Zeke noticed the beasts escaping the scene instead of hurting the citizens.

Some of the civilians fainted from the shock while others staggered around. Only very few of them managed to pull themselves together.

Zeke was baffled by the observation. Logically, if that moo could influence my consciousness, it would've easily shattered a commoner's mind. Permanent dissipation of one's consciousness is no different from death. Even Sole Wolf and the others wouldn't have been able to endure that attack, so why have these ordinary people merely sustained minor injuries?

After much pondering, Zeke could only come up with one explanation. "I'm afraid the moo is a targeted attack. Stronger people will be affected more significantly and vice versa."

When Sole Wolf and the others returned to their senses and noticed all the beasts had retreated, they scolded, "D*mn it! They're a bunch of cowards. How can they run away just like that? My thirst for blood has yet to be quenched."

Ares uttered warily, "What was up with that moo earlier? It was so powerful."

Zeke replied, "I suppose that is the legendary primordial beast."

Ares inhaled deeply. "Have we finally awakened the primordial beast? I'm afraid a great battle will descend upon us in the near future."

Noting Zeke's pale face, Sole Wolf asked cautiously, "Zeke, don't tell me you were also affected by that moo?"

Zeke nodded.

Everyone fell silent at once. That primordial beast's roar could affect Zeke's consciousness even from such a far distance. Does that mean it is possibly stronger than Zeke?