

GREED 1231

Chapter 1231 What's Blue And Sounds Like Thunder?

It is a good idea to try and create a system of resurrection independent of the void universe as it will grant them the ability to resurrect like Origin gods without being Origin gods and they won't lose this ability if the void universe is destroyed. But Legion-7 himself who is to be the foundation of this system is vulnerable.

If he is to try to eliminate Legion-7's weakness then it will take a lot more of his divine ability slots which will disrupt his plan for the other clones. Hence why Legion-5 is not sure they should do it.

Legion-7 made his point. "I don't think we have to think much about it because it will benefit all of Legion and eliminate a very important weakness. After all, if you are unkillable that means I am unkillable. And if I am unkillable then we are all unkillable. If we are all unkillable, then whatever doesn't kill us will only make us stronger."

"That is true. But are we even sure that you can do it?" Legion-5 asked as he moved to take what he exchanged for.

He opened the door of the portal room to find a large crystal within it. The crystal is round and blue. It has a rough jagged surface so it looks more like a rock. If not for the fact that it is transparent then it would be considered a crystal.

Because it is transparent, Legion-5 could see that there are faint white streaks of energy within it that branch out like roots and flicker rhythmically. If the white roots of the crystal are considered blood vessels then the flickering can be considered the pulsing of blood as it is pumped.

Legion-5 carried the crystal out with both of his hands. The crystal was that heavy. It is about 10 meters tall and very heavy. He had to use both his arms.

Legion-7 observed, "It is beautiful and powerful. What a wonder it is."

Legion-5 grunted. "And heavy."

"It is the source of dragon Supremacy so it should be heavy."

"And now it shall be ours."

They laughed about the prospect.

"It wouldn't even be the only one. It is just the first step towards greatness."

"Many more will fall and serve as nutrition to our obsession."

The crystal is bigger than him in his normal state but he is more than strong enough to carry it. Even so, he still treated it with care. This is because, despite how powerful it is, the heart of a dragon is fragile. So he used both of his hands to carry it back to the central room. It is the most secure location in the whole base.

Legion-5 said. "Witt this we will gain some immunity to lightning. Legion is counting on you for the first step of unity. It will be a waste if you fail."

Legion-7 promised. "I won't fail as long as you are unkillable. We should be able to match Legion-8 if we work together."

Legion-5 placed the blue crystal heart on the ground gently. He tapped it lightly. It made a sound like that of thunder. Legion-5 winced at the sound.

"Lightning is truly violent. This is not going to be easy to assimilate."

Legion-7 commented dryly. "I expect this to be very painful for you. It is not going to be easy at all."

Legion-5 sighed. "I guess there is no use delaying."

Then he began to assimilate the dragon heart. His form collapsed into a blob of whitish fluid. He spread his fluid form all over the blue crystal and engulfed it. Then his form reverted to his humanoid form. He has shrunk and the dragon heart shrunk with him.

Legion-7 observed, "That didn't seem so difficult."

Legion-5 shook his head. "It is just the beginning."

He felt the heart buckle within him just as he said that. It made him stumble. The dragon that the heart belongs to is dead so the heart is not the one resisting the assimilation. The resistance comes from his existence needing to shift to accommodate such a powerful and foreign object.

After all, as a post-origin dragon heart, it must have come from dragon that was a titan of law or Sovereign of law. It has made it extremely tasking for his existence to shift to try and match the requirements of the dragon heart.

It took a while to stabilize himself. But he couldn't remain standing. He had to sit because of the fatigue. He felt as if he was suffocating, burning, drowning, and tired from lifting a mountain all at the same time.

He said to Legion-7. "I feel so sleepy."

"Don't worry. I'll be here to protect you."

Legion-5 slept off at that point. He couldn't maintain the awareness of his consciousness anymore. It is a common occurrence for Supreme Beasts when they are assimilating divine abilities. He is stronger than his peers but he is absorbing two divine abilities at the same time so sleep cannot be evaded.

In fact, assimilating Legion-7 is more than enough for him to sleep. Legion-7 alone is more tasking than absorbing 10 divine abilities at once. After all, Legion-7 has his consciousness intact while seeds of powers are dead things.

If not for the fact that Legion-7 is not resisting then he would never be able to assimilate Legion-7. It is more likely for him to be assimilated if the two of them were enemies. This is because Legion-7 is more experienced in eating and assimilating others.

Things went without a hitch despite the weird changes that Legion-5 went through during the assimilation process. His existence didn't break down due to Legion-7 like the poor boy who was possessed. But his existence had to make a lot of changes for Legion-7 and the dragon heart.

So it was perfectly normal that his body expanded and became horrifically mutated during the assimilation. He grew several arms, legs, and many tentacles. Those are due to Legion-7. But even those changes were not as weird as the effect the dragon heart had on him.

Chapter 1232 No Escape From Pain.

The dragon heart made him grow blue scales and his skin became hardened like rock. Giant toothy maws, skeletal wings, and tails on different parts of his body grew during the assimilation process. There were numerous other weird body parts that were grown and absorbed in different cycles as his existence shifted to assimilate the two divine abilities.

Other races can use a dragon heart without the need to go through the changes he is going through. But the dragon heart won't be able to grow with them. It will just be an organic accessory that will empower them. They will never be able to convert it into their own organ. This means they will never become a true dragon and the dragon heart will not follow them when they become Origin gods.

In turn, their form doesn't need to ripple and change during assimilation. The assimilation process takes minutes at most and they don't get fatigued enough to sleep.

He on the other hand became a worm, a slug, and a rock at some point. All the while lightning was burning him from within and explosions like thunder rang from within his body. He felt the pain even though he wasn't conscious. There was no escape from it.

Things got worse until they stopped. Then they reverted slowly as Legion-5 got used to Legion-7. This process took more than 27 days to complete.

Meanwhile, the outside world was full of actions as he slept. Supreme beasts vied for supremacy everywhere. Some even came to his base while he was asleep.

"Are you sure this is the base of Agrivo839,371,456A?" One of the 5 Supreme Beasts asked.

"Yes, it is. I was close by when his base was completed. It was at the same time that the announcement went out. I am sure he is Agrivo839,371,456A."

They stood some distance away from his base watching it. There wasn't any activity in the base. No bots were mining and every access to the base had been locked. No one can get in unless they barge in.

One of them observed. "The price for divine abilities in the reward list has gone up so he has acquired a divine ability. His divine sense is absent which means he is currently sleeping. He must be busy assimilating it and will be vulnerable now."

"Should we attack? This seems like the best opportunity to do so." Someone suggested.

Another agreed. "This is a good chance to stop his streak. He is already assimilating a divine ability while we are yet to get one. He will be a Sovereign when he wakes up and we will still be transcendents."

The leader of the alliance shook her head. "It is a good chance but we are lacking and unable to take advantage of it. We will need to break the defense barrier of his base. We are not strong enough for that and we don't have troops that are strong enough either. And that's just the problem of his base. What if he has helpers and alliance mates? They won't stand back and watch as we attack him so we have to be ready to fight others."

"Besides, we won't be able to eliminate him now even if we succeed. We are still in the protection phase."

A third agreed. "And wasting our time here to stop him from progressing indicates that we don't believe that we can catch up with him. It is admitting loss before fighting. I think our time should be better spent developing ourselves and acquiring points."

The leader nodded. "We have 3 against the proposal and 2 for it. That means we won't attack. We shouldn't be discouraged that he is making progress. We can make progress too. And making enemies of someone so dangerous is not a good idea this early into the rite of passage. Who knows, we might even get to work together with him in the future. There is room for cooperation between us."

This group gave up on the attacking Legion-5. They are one of the largest alliances and yet they decided not to attack him. It is not out of cowardice. They have several reasons not to and it isn't worth it.

Several groups came to look for him. They came mostly to know the location of the first of them who built a base and acquired a divine ability. That information will be crucial if they want to work with him in the future or attack him.

Some were not so smart though. They tried to break into his base. This is after they knew that one would need the power of a Sovereign to break the lowest level of the defense barrier.

Only one out of the four that attacked got to touch the barrier before they were shot out of the sky by the defense cannon lying on the top of one of the walls of the base. They expected the attack and they thought they were fast enough to dodge it. They were wrong.

Legion-5 enjoyed peace during his vulnerable state. His base didn't progress at all during this process because of the state it was in. All the bots and other operations were paused and energy was redirected to the defense, attack, and surveillance systems. He prioritized safety in exchange for progress.

Others made progress during that time. They met with the inhabitants of the plane and started the process of spreading the influence of the Supreme Alliance. They did this through peaceful methods or violent coercion.

Someone subdued a hex in that short period of time. They became the first to do so and were rewarded with a special point for it. They can use that special point to acquire any divine ability regardless of the price as long as it is in their class.

Some even managed to mine a lot of resources and upgrade their bases during that time. They were able to turn their small bases into war fortresses. The rite of passage moved on without Legion-5.

Chapter 1233 Next Step Is Fusion.

Legion-5 didn't let up after he assimilated Legion-7 and the dragon heart. He can use the dragon heart now but that is not enough for him. Legion-7 and the dragon heart have to fuse. It is only then can he successfully create a synergistic effect between the two divine abilities that amplifies the power of both of them.

Legion-7 spoke. "I guess it is my turn now."

"Let's see what I can do first before you get to work."

Legion-5 tried the effect of the heart first. His hand became scaled and clawed. Blue lightning flickered playfully in the palm of his hand. This is something that only Supreme beasts can do. Other races that fuse with a dragon heart can not bring it back to life and use the element that the original dragon could use while it was alive.

"It is not bad. But it is not enough. You can get to work now."

Legion-5 reverted the changes so that Legion-7 could get to work. He has become a true dragon complete with the inner world of a dragon and the paragon ability of dragons. He has also gained Lightning resistance but Legion-7 hasn't. Seeing as the major reason why they chose a post-origin lightning dragon heart was for its resistance, then their arrangement is still lacking.

This is where Legion-7 comes in. Legion-7 likes to devour laws and concepts not because he is a glutton but because he can evolve with them. He will assimilate the laws and evolve as long as he can devour the laws and have access to cosmic energy to assimilate them.

They intend to use this ability of his to fuse the two divine abilities together. Normal Supreme beasts can do this too. They just have to make sure the concepts are compatible and then comprehend the laws of the concepts to fuse them. They will then gain a synergistic effect between the concept that amplifies them.

They have comprehended the laws they need thanks to Soverick and while the two slots are not compatible, Legion-7 can overcome any resistance to fusion by assimilating the dragon heart and evolving. Legion-7 will gain the lightning resistance he craves and since Legion-7 is Legion-5's divine ability, that means he has succeeded in fusing the two divine abilities.

Legion-7 warned, "Prepare yourself, this is going to be painful."

Legion-5 sighed. "I thought as much."

Other Supreme Beasts won't experience pain at this stage since the fusion is peaceful for them. But his fusion will be violent. He expected to feel the kind of pain the law matrix felt when Legion-7 started devouring it. It is this kind of pain that made the Will of the void universe decide to kill Legion-7.

Within Legion-5 are 9 empty orbs. 2 of them are no longer empty. There is a small jellyfish with translucent flesh, tentacles, and several spots of light within it in one of the orbs. In the other orb is a blue shell of an inner world.

Translucent tentacles extended out of the first orb to the blue orb. It grabbed the blue orb forcefully and pulled it to itself. Legion-5 didn't try to resist the fusion but he still felt pain due to the pull and more pain when Legion-7 began to force the assimilation.

His body shook in pain and his existence experienced a feeling of imminent crisis. This feeling of crisis is because what was going on within him is far from normal. A strange entity eating your divine ability from inside of you is usually the prelude to death. After all, what's to say the entity will stop at eating your divine ability and leave without doing more damage?

It took all of his restraint not to try and resist. Meanwhile, Legion-7 was enjoying himself.

"I've never had a dragon heart before. They taste delicious."

Legion-5 had black lines on his body and face. They were created when blue lines appeared all over his body and then faded away as the dragon heart was devoured.

He couldn't help but say, "And you wonder why the Will of the void universe, the will of a plane, and some Celestials ganged up on you."

There are some times when Legion has been treated unfairly and when they deserve revenge. Like the time Legion-7 was enslaved. But the time Legion-7 was "bullied" and almost killed until he ran out of the plane for his dear life is not one of those cases of unfair treatment.

The two occupied slots eventually merged and became one. The merging was quick and easy. There was no rejection whatsoever. The total number of slots within Legion-5 became 8 because of it.

The slot glowed briefly as cosmic energy from the mind network entered it. Legion-7 evolved and became stronger which means Legion-6 became stronger too.

The translucent jellyfish appeared with the inner world of the dragon heart.

Legion-7, "That was easy."

"Easy for you to say."

Legion-7 ignored him. He felt relaxed and peaceful. "This is so good. I am the spirit of this world now. The void universe won't be able to trouble me here."

Legion-5 let go of his grievances too. His pain is gone and feels stronger. In fact, he feels relaxed and peaceful too.

Legion-7 said to him, "My new powers are great. I can produce dragon force and we have the POWER stat now."

"Dragons are too blessed. We used to look up at them but I have caught up to them now and we will soon surpass them."

Legion-7 agreed. "It is only a matter of time. The strength of our Unity will be unparalleled."

"Are you confident? Won't the two inner worlds clash?"

"Everything looks perfect. We are one so Legion-1's inner world shouldn't resist me."

"Alright. Let us start with the first step of unity."

Legion-1 also agreed. "Let us begin.

Legion-7 extended his tentacles out to the only inhabited of this world apart from him. His tentacles spread throughout Legion-5's existence. There was no resistance during his search and the information from Legion-5 helped him to find the hidden soul sphere.

Chapter 1234 First Level Of Unity.

?Legion-7 said excitedly, "I have found it."

The soul sphere didn't escape his grasp by becoming intangible. Legion-7 was able to wrap his tentacles around Legion-5's soul sphere because he is a spiritual entity too. Then his tentacles entered the soul sphere.

"Nice," Legion-5 exclaimed.

He and all the clones felt Legion-7's invasion into their mind network. It filled them with anticipation, not fear. They haven't been able to interact with the soul sphere since they got it more than 3 Origin cycles ago. Even Legion-1 who is in the possession of their Origin couldn't do it. They have resigned themselves to its passive functions until now. So every clone is looking forward to what this will achieve.

Legion-7 said, "Don't rejoice yet. Let's see what else I can do."

His tentacles went through the soul sphere and into the main one present in Legion-1.

"It seems I was right. I can move easily between the two inner worlds. There is no resistance."

Then his entire body followed the soul channel and appeared within Legion-1's inner world. His tentacles spread from Legion-1's soul sphere to the other clones. He planted a part of his tentacle into their existence.

"I can even use the mind network to enter the other soul spheres which means I should be able to perform the first stage of unity." He said with confidence. "Who wants to go first?"

Legion-1 volunteered. "I will be one. I can resurrect if something goes wrong. The others are too important to risk or can't even be united yet." The debut release happened at N0v3lBiin.

Soverick agreed. "That's true. I will go second."

"Alright then."

Legion-1 opened himself up to Legion-7. Legion-7's tentacles drilled into his Origin soul and absorbed it. At this point, his Origin soul and Origin body haven't completed the fusion due to the need for a second concept so Legion-7 could only assimilate Legion-1's soul.

A large burble containing a black-purpish scaled and reptilian humanoid beast appeared with the jellyfish. It formed a face on the gemlike head of Legion-7.

The inner world of the world beast rattled but didn't collapse. The presence of the tree father and reinforcement of the Authority of the Celestial Supreme held up the inner world in the absence of Legion-1's Origin soul. It provided enough time for Legion-7 to re-create Legion-1's soul.

One of Legion-7's tentacles began to expand as he siphoned divine life energy, Origin energy, and Origin essence from the tree father. This white swollen tentacle then detached and morphed into Legion-1's soul.

This world beast looks the same as the one that Legion-7 absorbed but they are not the same. The bubble with the black-purpish scaled and reptilian humanoid beast is still present within Legion-7. This thing that looks like Legion-1 is in essence a portion of Legion-7. It is just a part of Legion-7 with the same physical and spiritual characteristics as Legion-1. It is Legion-1 v1.

"That was a success," Legion-1 said as he examined his body. "I feel just the same. It is as if I closed my eyes to sleep and woke up."

He is Legion-1 v1 because he is a tentacle of Legion-7. But he is also Legion-1 because Legion-1 is now a part of Legion-7. So Legion-7's tentacle is Legion-1's soul or to be more accurate Legion-1 v1 because there can be later versions of this tentacle if it is destroyed. This is a resurrection system independent of the void universe.

All the clones who had been holding their breath finally relaxed.

Soverick spoke first. "That's good. Save me next."

"What's the rush?" Legion-7 asked.

"I have a feeling that something bad is going to happen to me soon. I have felt the gaze of powerful entities which can only be world gods on me and something weird is going on in the plane. Someone is spreading the method to take my title from me. I noticed it when I killed a bunch of troublesome people. I am sure it is related to the sages since they are the ones most familiar with the title of the child of the plane because I don't know who else knows how to take my title from me."

Legion-7 agreed. "Better safe than sorry then."

The tree father suggested, "I think we should plan for the eventuality of losing the title. We aren't going to have it forever. We need something powerful to help us stand out from the other origin gods."

Soverick thought about it and said, "I currently don't have any ideas. The best bet is the shards of power but we can't use them without a Supreme law and a law matrix. There is no way to get a Supreme law without reaching the peak as Origin gods."

Legion-1 added his opinion. "Let's just focus on unity for now. This is just the first stage. It wasn't planned for but it turned out right. It shows that my plan for unity has a higher chance of success. If unity works, then when all of you reach the Origin stage Legion won't be normal Origin gods. We will stand out then without the shards of power."

Soverick had to agree. "If unity at the Origin level works, and I believe that it will work, then we should be able to have multiple worlds as world gods."

Helios joined in. "There's also me and Aeternus. If we master the two Supreme laws, it will grant us a lot of power."

"We are on the right path. There's no need to trouble ourselves with the unreliable shards of power."

Legion-7 assimilated the clones as they chatted. He couldn't assimilate all of them though. Aeternus is too dangerous to work with. They won't be able to insure him until they master the Supreme law of Chaos.

Helios can't be detached from the law matrix or they will lose access to cosmic energy. Ragnarok is being watched and surrounded by the demon god of Carnage. CARNAGE likes to hunt and kill spiritual entities and Legion doesn't want to risk their independent resurrection system for one clone so Ragnarok will remain on his own for now.

Chapter 1235 What Class To Choose.

Legion-8 is a no-go since he hasn't hatched yet. Legion-7 couldn't assimilate the tree father either because of the god fire that he bears. The god fire of gods is one of the things he is vulnerable to. He's extra vulnerable to it since he doesn't have a physical body. Anything that comes in contact with a god fire burns including him.

Legion-7 did what he could do for now. He spread some of his tentacles into the mind network and into the clones he could access for now. Soverick is one of those clones. The tentacle entered his soul through the soul sphere and began assimilating it.

Then it also extended to his body. This all occurred without anyone knowing. Not even Hadrack realized that Soverick was being replaced. Only one world god who had an eye that could identify secrets could tell that Soverick was not a battle sage monkey anymore.

From that moment on, the physical Soverick became a shell of matter and energy that led directly to Legion-7. If anyone pries into his consciousness they will find Soverick there waiting for them. But if one digs deeper and Legion-7 allows them permission, then they will find a bottomless abyss containing a tentacle monster waiting for them.

Legion-7 used Soverick as an anchor to spread his tentacles throughout the Virit plane. This is to collect information and to acquire vessels that can be remade into Soverick if necessary.

He can recreate Soverick's body in Legion-1's or Legion-5's inner world but it is better to have other options in the realm. Then he returned to Legion-5's inner world and assimilated him too.

Legion-5 said, "Now that that has been settled and our future path has been ascertained, I can solely focus on immunity now. Let's discuss my future path."

He examined his body as he talked. First, he lifted his hand and looked at it. His hand divided and morphed into two. Then it became four. He straightened them and turned them into tentacles. These tentacles wiggled slightly as he shook them about. He even produced four more arms and converted them into tentacles.

"I am assuming this is because I assimilated you. My existence is capable of greater changes that won't cause my consciousness to collapse. You have increased the limit and adaptability of my shapeshifting."

Legion-7 replied smugly, "You are welcome."

Technically, transcendents can change their form to a certain extent but there is a limit on the degree of change to their physical form which is placed on them by their consciousness.

This is because any change to their body is also a change to their consciousness so they are stretching their consciousness whenever they try to morph their form. So what he is doing right now is definitely odd. Even other shapeshifters can't do it.

Legion-7 interrupted him. "Stop admiring yourself. We have work to do. Let's focus on your class

"What's the rush? No one is trying to kill you."

"You're wrong. No one is trying to kill me yet. I have to take the void universe seriously if I want to continue to live so I must prepare for its attempt to take my life before it makes its move."

Legion-5 mocked him. "You are too afraid of death. You are like Hadrack."

"You will be afraid of death too if you felt what I have been through. You only know what I went through but you didn't experience it. Knowledge is different from experience. And don't say I am being paranoid. I am certain that the universe is after me. It wants to get rid of me just like it wants to get rid of Hadrack."

"Alright. Let's get a move on. There are only two classes that will make it difficult to be killed. There is the scout and assassin class. The other one is the warrior and self-supremacy class. Which one should we take?"

"Take the self supremacy class. The scout class is fast, can avoid danger, and possesses high-damage outbursts but they are all useless against the void universe. You can't avoid the void universe no matter how fast you are. You can't escape the danger of tribulation no matter how quick you sense it and you surely can't attack the void universe no matter how fast your attack speed is. So prepare yourself to take a beating from the void universe and survive it."

"That's true. The Lightning immunity from the dragon heart will work well with the warrior class. Plus I have already taken the dragon heart which means I have already been assigned the warrior class. It will be expensive to switch classes now."

Legion-5 agrees with Legion-7 to pick the warrior and self-supremacy class. All of Legion also agrees that Legion-7 should be protected. That means Legion-5 who is the host of Legion-7 has to become indestructible and unkillable.

Prioritizing defense will obviously affect his attack potential but it is a sacrifice he is willing to make. Legion doesn't need another clone chasing after omnipotence. They already have Legion-8 for that. Besides, the second level of unity that will occur when the clones become Origin gods should fix his weakness.

So Legion-5 went through the classes and the divine abilities available to them. There are several classes because the Supreme Alliance encourages the specialization of Supreme beasts. Each Supreme beast specializes in one aspect and becomes unbeatable in that aspect. Then they use division of labor and cooperation to act together and overcome their individual weakness.

The warrior or self-supremacy class are Supreme Beasts that focus on close and physical fighting. They are not particularly powerful in terms of attack power. They have an advantage when fighting a single enemy but can be ineffective when fighting numerous enemies at once. However, they can not be killed easily.

Warriors can be defeated with speed or advantage of numbers of numbers, but killing them is another matter entirely. So even though they can't harm several enemies at once unlike the one-man army class, they are unrivaled when it comes to survivability so they are not afraid to be ganged on.

Chapter 1236 Many Many Classes.

The warrior class lacks fatal or debilitating weaknesses and as such are very difficult to kill. They can't hold back numerous enemies but numerous enemies can't kill them either. They are most capable in the thick of battle or on the frontlines. They can walk through the battlefield unhindered. Their lack of weakness makes them the best soldiers to field in every situation.

They are usually used as Frontline soldiers to test the waters in uncertain situations because Warriors focus on defense, resistance, and immunity. They do this to achieve self-supremacy. They can ignore the suppression of the realm on Origin gods and the suppression of the divine plane.

A perfect warrior is a warrior that any Supreme Beast with the special class will be unable to defeat much less kill. As for scouts, they focus on perception, mobility, stealth, and damage outburst for assassinations.

The difference between them is that a warrior with a supreme law can survive the explosion of a star while a scout with a supreme law can outrun the explosion of a star. Scouts have a lot of weaknesses but they can perceive danger and escape easily.

There are 4 other classes. There is the negative buff class that focuses on creating favorable battle situations for other Supreme Beasts. They do this by applying negative states to the enemies and weakening them. So they are the masters of curses, illusions, negative emotions, and fear-mongering to destroy enemy morale.

In special cases, the negative class creates specific weaknesses in enemies that the special class can take advantage of to kill in droves. This way, the special class can always be useful, and while the negative class is not deadly in itself, they are capable of bringing enemies one step closer to death.

The opposite class to negative buff is the positive buff. Their job is to increase the power of Supreme Beasts. They help other Supreme Beasts attain victory by healing them and increasing their speed, defense, and attack. They even make energy available for allies in situations where there is no ambient origin energy.

The positive and negative buff are incredibly weak in other aspects. They can't perceive danger, escape it, or take a beating. This has made them easy to kill so they need to be protected. That's why they are usually paired with warriors.

Warriors protect them as the positive buff enhances the warrior's power, speed, and healing meanwhile, the negative buff suppresses their enemies to make it easier for the warriors to kill them. The combination of the three classes creates a deadly combo that brings despair to the enemies.

The greatest class is the one-man army class. They are Supreme beasts capable of fighting a whole army on their own without breaking a sweat. They use at least one of the great divine abilities to achieve this combat power.

Even the lowest one-man army that uses bug army or beast enslavement are walking powerhouses who can take on a plane on their own. They just need a massive amount of resources to raise their armies.

One particular aspect of the one-man army is the fact that they must always be able to fight at any moment. That means their army must be created on the spot or they carry it with them at all times. That way they can be ready to deploy their armies at any time and in any situation.

The bug and beast enslavement divine abilities don't have the perpetuation ability of the great divine abilities so they can't create soldiers whenever they need them. But they fuse with special divine abilities that create a pocket of space within them to carry their army around with them.

The one army class is hardly vulnerable seeing as they always have the advantage of numbers on their side. But they do have weaknesses. They hate the negative buff class since those ones are capable of reducing their power en mass.

They also hate the scout class since those can escape and can assassinate them. They have a love-hate relationship with warriors because warriors can't harm them but warriors are also tough nuts to crack.

The last class is the special class. This class is the direct opposite of the warrior class. They target specific weaknesses and take advantage of them. A single Supreme Beast in this class can become so powerful that no amount of enemies with a particular weakness can beat them.

For example, a supreme beast might collect divine abilities that are fire-based and enhance fire attacks. This will make it so that no amount of enemies with a weakness to fire can match them. They will be able to cripple if not massacre multitudes of enemies that are weak to fire.

Elves of any kind can't fight this kind of enemy. It is why they were the major force in the hunt for Monarch High Heaven when he was just a Sovereign. It is unfortunate that the realm lord already overcome that weakness by the time he became a titan of law. He didn't follow the path of his divine ability and that saved him.

Each Supreme Beast in this class focuses on a single weakness and collects divine abilities that boost each other and make the possession of that weakness fatal. The disadvantage is that they become largely useless when fighting enemies that don't possess the weakness they specialize in.

Legion's aim for Legion-5 is to become undefeatable against any Special Class. Only then can he be certified to possess no weakness. That will be difficult to achieve but he has to achieve this not for Legion-7's protection but to eliminate Legion's weakness as a whole.

Legion-5 suggested, "While the classes are separate, some divine abilities in all classes are important for us to get to make sure I am unkillable. For example the heart of a life tree that the positive buff class have. With it, I will be unkillable."

Legion-7 agreed. "You are right but we don't need that one."

Chapter 1237 Across Class Combination Potential.

Legion-7 continued, "We have the tree father for healing, and his divine life energy is many times better. It is almost above the level of life essence. But I see what you are going for. Let us take a spatial manipulation divine ability from the scout class. It will make it easy for me to move around in the law matrix and I will also be able to transfer Matter between all of us. It will also prevent you from being sealed and make it easier to escape."

Legion-5 thought about it before he gave his answer. "Yeah, let us do that."

Some divine abilities are for specific classes but they are also useful for other classes. The dragon heart for example is best for warriors but it is also very good for every class. The dragon heart empowers every other divine ability with dragon force so it is an all-rounder without any weakness.

The major reason why the dragon heart has been assigned to warriors by the Supreme Alliance is because it helps them resist suppression of any kind which is the cornerstone ability of warriors.

Warriors have to be capable in any situation and must be able to maintain their fighting prowess in any situation including fighting in the divine plane. But dragon force is largely wasted on the Warriors since they have very few attacking methods.

The amplification of dragon force will show a greater effect if it is used on divine abilities with powerful effects. That's why the one-man army class also covets the dragon heart. The amplification of an army will cost the same in terms of dragon force as amplifying a single warrior but the effect on an army will be greater than amplifying a single warrior.

Another example of a better use of the dragon heart is the pairing of two great divine abilities like the dragon heart and the metal fire of the one-man army class. Such a combination can create someone as powerful as the Metal Emperor.

The Metal Emperor is different from the Mechanical Emperor. She took the warrior path instead of the one-man army path. She changed her body into a metal elemental and achieved unlimited regeneration with the aid of the metal fire. As long as she was on a plane with earth around her, she couldn't be defeated or killed. She could always recover from injuries by refining earth into metal.

She had great strength but she had a weakness which was that she could be killed in water bodies and areas without earth. But she overcame that weakness by using the inner space divine ability of the one-man army class to carry metal and earth around so that she would always have whatever she needed to regenerate whenever she needed it.

Such is the potential of combining the divine abilities of different classes and why other classes are not content with a single great divine ability. It is not forbidden by the Supreme Alliance but they will make it difficult to be achieved so that only the strong who can bring out the potential of the great divine abilities can have more than one of them.

There is also another great divine ability that is controversial. The Warrior class wants the heart of a life tree. With it, they will be able to easily heal themselves from the most serious injuries. When combined with their various immunities and defensive divine abilities, it becomes nearly impossible to kill Warriors.

But this divine ability is meant for the positive buff class. They pair it with a divine ability that enables them to share their life force and energy with others and hence heal other classes. The Supreme Alliance believes that it is better suited to the positive buff because they can share the power of the heart of a life tree with others and therefore utilize it better.

A warrior can't share the effect of the heart of life so the Supreme Alliance considers it a waste to assign it to them. After all, every class wants healing. It would be too expensive to give every class the heart.

While the Supreme Alliance doesn't make it impossible for warriors to get it, any warrior who tries to get the heart of a life tree will face great difficulty.

Great divine abilities are already the most expensive divine abilities, but if you try to get the great divine abilities of other classes, then you must be willing to pay a very high price.

The Supreme Alliance does this to discourage hoarders who want the best divine abilities but will waste them. Each class is supposed to specialize in an aspect and work together to make up for each other's weaknesses.

It is in Legion's nature to be greedy but they can't have every divine ability. They can't use everything and they can't afford every divine ability either so they will focus on one of the first goals that Gehaldirah wanted to achieve which is to eliminate weakness.

Legion-5 now wants to get the spatial manipulation divine ability of the scout class. It is mainly to overcome the weakness of warriors which is their inability to escape danger and attempts to seal them.

The spatial manipulation divine ability belongs to the scout class so it is going to be very expensive for a warrior to acquire but he is not discouraged because he has a special point which he got for being the first to set up his base in this rite of passage. He can get any divine ability of his choosing with that point regardless of its price.

Legion-5 went through the reward list and looked at the price of the spatial divine abilities. What he saw made him whistle in surprise.

He grumbled and complained. "It isn't a great divine ability and yet the cheapest spatial divine ability costs 20 points for those in the scout class but it cost 40 points for me. This is a direct increase of 100%. It is too expensive."

Chapter 1238 Seal Breaker.

?The difference in cost of the spatial divine ability that Legion-5 saw for warriors and scouts was 100%. It was not the outlier in terms of differences in prices of divine abilities across classes. Some divine abilities had a difference of 150%.

The expensive situation made Legion-7 lament the fate of the gods. "I don't see how the gods are going to survive this rite of passage. They are the largest source of points and points are in high demand."

"I just need to kill a high-god and I will have enough points to purchase this. It is a pity that I can't attack the divine plane on my own yet. They won't watch me kill one of them without doing anything."

Legion-7 said with confidence. "Give me the spatial divine ability first and I will show you how to hunt gods. They won't be able to run away from me anymore. And fuse with that Origin diamond ability too. It will make this hunt very easy."

The two of them chuckled evilly as they schemed. The other clones couldn't help but pity the gods. As if Legion-7 is not already enough of a calamity. The combination of the two of them has practically doomed the gods now. They won't be able to send Legion-7 running no matter how they try like the last plane that Legion-7 was in.

Legion-5 asked, "Which spatial divine abilities should I pick? There are so many of them here. They range from all three states of space."

He saw several types of spatial manipulation divine abilities. There are divine abilities for teleportation, spatial lock, spatial attack, space compression, portal opening, and space surfing. It is a dazzling sight to see.

All of them are under spatial manipulation under the scout class. There are still other perceptions and stealth divine abilities apart from these. Legion-5 couldn't help but marvel at the power of the Supreme Alliance. After all, they were able to capture or conquer races with these powerful divine abilities. Even races with the teleportation divine abilities couldn't escape from their reach.

Legion-7 suggested, "Choose the spatial surfing of the crystal space butterfly. It allows for more malleability since it is in the fluid phase of spatial manipulation."

"Are you sure? Something from the fragmented phase of space like teleportation will be very good for escaping."

"Teleportation is too fixed but I can use spatial surfing to create spatial warping between all the clones and it won't be easily blocked by the frozen phase of spatial manipulation like space lock or space anchor."

Legion-5 still wasn't sure it was a good idea, "But using us as beacons will limit your options. You will only be able to escape to other clones and nowhere else. What if all of us die?"

"If all of you die either at the same time or I can't resurrect you guys at all, then we are already in big trouble."

Legion-5 admitted, "That's a good point."

They have so many methods to resist death now. The soul sphere can't resist death but it will ensure the continuation of the clone through resurrection from Legion-1. But the clone that resurrects won't be the previous one but another clone with the same memories.

And the soul sphere is especially vulnerable to supreme laws. If the law of order can affect the Cosmic energy within their mind network then other Supreme laws can infiltrate it through any clone.

Legion-7 on the other hand can help them resist death even from a world god because it won't be them but a shell of themselves that dies. Legion-7 can also cut off the shell like cutting off a tentacle to cut off the influence of a Supreme law.

If those two options fail and they can't resurrect at all, then they are screwed far more than the inability to escape. So Legion-5 got the Crystal Space Butterfly. It will make it very difficult for them to be sealed.

Legion-1 already has a very powerful concept for the manipulation of space but he can still be sealed. This is because the weakest and simplest seal for Origin gods freezes and cuts away the space within it from the world. They will separate its captive from the law matrix. They are unlike the seal that the tree father and Helios created that instead use the law matrix to strengthen the seal.

By separating an Origin god from the law matrix and creating a difference in the spatial coordinates, it will be impossible for any being to teleport away from the seal. Even Legion-1 won't be able to escape. But if each clone is a spatial anchor then there will be a spatial connection between each one regardless of any difference in spatial coordinates. All they have to do is use each other as spatial beacons to escape from any sealed space.

The Crystal Space is a divine ability of a race of transparent flying insects that live in the gaps of space. They are not like world beasts. They are flying insects and not great beasts. They don't have an internal world and they are weak. But they are also very difficult to catch.

Most people don't even know that they exist since they are not visible in the world of manifestation and their ability to surf space like an ocean makes it near impossible to be captured by those that can see them.

They can't even be attacked by anything without the law of space because they can pass through most attacks. But if by chance they are caught unawares and their surroundings were to be suddenly encased in earth or metal, then they would be captured.

That's how the supreme beasts captured them. The crystal space butterfly would break if they tried to pass through any barrier of hardened earth or metal that surrounds them.

The Crystal Space butterfly can pass through fire, earth, wind, and water normally. But they lose the ability to pass through earth once it forms an enclosure around them.

Chapter 1239 Bravery Or Folly.

?It was postulated that the gravity field of the enclosed earth formed a distortion field that disrupted their divine ability. So the weaknesses of the crystal space butterfly are spatial and gravity manipulation.

It costs 40 points for a warrior to get. He went to receive it from the portal room then he returned to his seat and began assimilating it together with the Origin diamond divine ability of the Stellos race. He engulfed them with his body to start the assimilation.

His body became sluggish and difficult to move again but he didn't sleep like before. He has Legion-7 now so the burden is not too much for his consciousness to bear anymore.

He checked through the list while he waited for the assimilation to complete. He saw a lot more divine abilities.

"Look, there is even the ocular divine ability of the battle sage monkeys. It is under the perception section of the scout class."

He noticed that there were a lot of perception divine abilities for the Supreme beasts in the scout class but one of the best available is the ability to slow down perception and see ahead of time. This divine ability belongs to the race of battle sage monkeys which is why it drew his attention.

But he also noticed that there was no divine ability of the eye of the sage. In fact, there isn't any divine ability of any sage or their lineage.

"I bet the first sage is the main reason why the Supreme Supreme hasn't laid its hands on battle sage monkeys with the bloodline of the sages or the Virut plane."

"If that is so, then there are still some people that the supreme alliance doesn't want to mess with."

Legion-7 asked him, "What does that say about us who are messing with the first sage?"

"Greedy? Suicidal? Ignorant? Take your pick."

The Supreme Alliance managed to get the divine ability of normal battle sage monkeys without bloodlines and those with normal bloodlines even royal bloodlines but they couldn't get those that had awakened their divine ability further or those with the bloodline of the first sage or the divine ability of any sage lineage. It made them wonder why.

It could be because those people who have awakened the main divine ability further at the titan of law stage and above are very rare and difficult to raise in captivity. They also have the ability to see fate so killing or capturing them will be difficult.

As for the ones with the bloodline of the sages, he is willing to bet that the first sage is responsible for the lack of them in the reward list. After all, antagonizing the first sage is not antagonizing a single person, it is antagonizing fate.

A few schemes from the first sage here and there can cause devastating damage to the Supreme Alliance. It makes a fight with the first sage detrimental to the Supreme Alliance.

Furthermore, the first sage only cares about a few things while the Supreme Alliance has a lot of investment in the realm which the first sage can find if he is serious about it. If he tips the dragons and other powerful races who are enemies of the Supreme Alliance with the information he gets, then the Supreme Alliance will have a big problem on its hands.

All of these thoughts and conjectures propose that the first sage is too dangerous an enemy for the Supreme Alliance to make. But it inadvertently made them consider themselves who had already made an enemy of the first sage and what their future would be like because of it.

Legion-7 said after thinking about it, "I think we were ignorant and surely greedy to mess with the first sage."

"Ignorant or not, we had no choice. He was coming after us. We had to make the first move or be on the defensive. At least now, we are not so passive. Besides, it's too late for regrets now. We can only move forward not backwards."

They stopped thinking about their future fight with the first sage and focused on the present which is to eliminate their weaknesses. Legion-5 went through other perception divine abilities. He found several that impressed him.

There is a heart that can sense emotions and an ear that can hear people's thoughts directed at the wielder. With them, scouts will be able to avoid enemies and will always be able to escape when their identities as spies are discovered.

There is also an eye that can ensure perfect accuracy. It is especially paired with any powerful divine ability that is difficult to control.

"Look at this. A scout with this eye managed to shoot an arrow that hit someone from across a plane."

Legion-7 explained. "It is more like it performs a spiritual lockdown on the target and uses wind and the divine sense to direct any thrown object to always hit the target. It should have passive abilities for body-eye coordination too."

Legion-5 wasn't impressed, "We don't need it anyway."

Legion-7 agreed, "We have Soverick. We should focus on the warriors instead and what will make you unkillable."

They went through the list and checked out the divine abilities of those in the warrior stage. Now that he is out of special points, the best option for him is to focus on the divine abilities of warriors.

Legion-7 suggested, "Take that one. What is it called? Liquid graviton divine ability."

"It is expensive but its price is understandable for its title of the best defensive ability for warriors."

"Yes. 30 points isn't so bad except that it has some serious weaknesses."

"It should go well with the Origin diamond divine ability. The combination should form the best offense and defense. I will be counting on you for the fusion. It is going to be a difficult one since it is not compatible with both the lightning dragon heart and the Origin diamond divine ability at all."

"I'll see what I can do."

Chapter 1240 Offense And Defense.

They decided on his fifth divine ability. The Liquid graviton divine ability is from a race of special earth elementals. They live in an environment with a high gravity so their bodies adapted to it. The usual solid form of earth elementals was ditched for a special dense fluid state that can withstand pressure and impacts.

Its major weakness is that it is very heavy so anyone that possesses it will become very slow. Its second weakness is that it consumes a lot of energy to maintain. The density of the liquid graviton is achieved at a very high cost in Origin energy. Origin gods can handle the energy requirements but it is highly restrictive to Sovereign Supreme Beasts.

Its third weakness is that it doesn't fuse with any divine ability that doesn't have the law of earth in it. The best way to use it is to fuse it with a post-origin dragon heart with earth affinity or a pre-origin dragon heart without any affinity and high compatibility. But even that combination makes Supreme beasts heavy and slow.

That weakness cannot be rectified easily because the divine ability for speed that is earth-based is even more expensive than it. So this makes it very unpopular despite its defense.

It should be a great divine ability if not for the fact that it makes Warriors too slow and lacks compatibility with other powerful divine abilities. All of its weaknesses make it cost a cheap 30 points despite the fact that it has the strongest defense for warriors.

They decided to get it because it fits their goal for a powerful defense and if combined with the Origin diamond divine ability which can turn powerful defense into a powerful means of attack then the Liquid graviton will be put to great use.

They went through more divine abilities and planned for Legion-5's path as an indestructible being that could take a beating. They were able to settle on some divine abilities but they also made sure to leave two slots open for his plan to become a world god without a Supreme law.

Legion isn't sure if he will be able to gain the power of a world without becoming a world god but they have something that can substitute for a supreme law which is Legion-7 and a dragon heart that can substitute for a world engine if upgraded with the necessary abilities. So why not try and see what will happen if they add a world seed into the mix?

Legion-5 finished their planning session with some objectives that must be accomplished. "The rest of the rite of passage can be lost after we have gotten the needed divine abilities but the authority of a Celestial Supreme has to be acquired. We need it and Aeternus's help to strengthen my dragon heart and become able to use cosmic energy too."

Legion-7 suggested, "We should probably test the feasibility of your plan first before we make any more commitments."

Legion-5 accepted the advice. "Hmm. You make a good point. Let's start with the godhood of a great god then. And maybe some other items with divinity to test my compatibility."

Legion-9 interjected, "It better be compatible or my efforts will go to waste."

Legion-5 tried to reassure him, "It will be compatible. Trust me. Origin weapons are bad for me but I can still fuse with them. Divinity should be better since it likes to fuse with living things. You as a Celestial should know this."

But Legion-9 was not convinced. "You know what. Maybe you should perform the test before I risk my Authority in this scheme of yours."

"I am not asking for your life. I just want you to help me create the perfect demigod for me to steal its divine ability."

"That right there is asking for my life. You know how dangerous the child of a Celestial can become. We could be risking my whole Authority if anything goes wrong. And a lot of things can go wrong. I have a lot of enemies looking for weaknesses in me. They will pounce if they smell any weakness. A demigod is a big weakness."

Helios joined in too. "The Tree Father makes a good point. Besides, there is no harm in waiting until we see some results from your testing."

Legion-5 had to agree. "Fine. We will test with the godhood of a great god. Then you can start on your end."

They are of one mind but no one ones to give up their goal for the other and Legion as a whole doesn't want to give up any individual goal. They want everything. Only when there is a greater benefit for Legion would they want to make sacrifices.

Asking the Tree Father to make a demigod is one such sacrifice. The tree father was resistant to sharing his power and making himself vulnerable just like Legion-5 didn't want to give up more slots for Legion-7's safety. But Legion-5 finally decided to give up the slots after Legion-7 proved his usefulness and so will the Tree Father after Legion-6 proves that his plan to become a world god without a Supreme law is not a wild goose chase.

Legion-7 interjected to assure them, "Getting the godhood of a great god shouldn't be difficult. My god-hunting plan won't work on the Celestial Supreme and it might not even work on normal Celestials but great gods should be easy to nab."

Legion-5 nodded. "It is too bad that there is no good god-slaying divine ability for us to use."

Legion-7 scoffed. "You're being greedy. I am your god-slaying divine ability. I am the best you can get without being an Origin god."

Legion-5 chuckled. "Yes yes. I am greedy but I can't help my nature."

Legion-7 is good enough even though he is currently not strong enough to hunt Celestials. That will wait until they become Origin gods. This is because the Authority of Celestials is too strong to fight without a concept.
