Chapter 10

Chapter 10 Birthday Present.

What? Did Darcy recover the debt?

How? Deborah just told everyone that Pietro was furious because of Kaze and Darcy.

Deborah and the others were stunned, including Master Quint who then dug his ears and asked, "You... You really got the money back?"

Darcy nodded and gave the man the check and the account book.

"Grandfather, this is the check, please have a look."

Master Quint stared at the check for a while before he breathed a sight of relief. He nodded, "It's a check from Pietro Beneli."

The rest of the family members felt relieved.

It seemed Pietro was not mad at all because Darcy got the money back, which meant the Quint family would be safe and fine.

"Hmph! Do you really think it's you who recovered the debt? Stop dreaming!"

Deborah stepped up and shouted, "If not for me, Pietro would never give you two the money! He slapped me! He must have given the money back to compensate me!"

The other family members nodded in agreement upon hearing Deborah's explanation.

She was there to buy a car but was slapped instead. In order to compensate the Quint family, Pietro paid his debt. It all sounded reasonable.

Darcy panicked. Deborah was distorting the facts, but she could not do anything. She looked at her grandfather, hoping that he could Master Quint pondered for a moment and said, "Deborah is right. It was her who recovered the debt and Darcy had nothing to do with this."

Anxious, Darcy asked, "What about the bonus?"

She did not care who collected the money as she was just concerned about the confiscated bonuses.

"If it was Deborah who got the money back, then the bonuses should go to her."

What?!

Darcy was so shaken that she could barely stand still.

Kaze's expression turned grim. He did not expect the Quint family to be this shameless.

Deborah was over the moon when she got the check from Master

Quint.

She was slapped but she got a few million in return. It was quite bargain.

"Thank you, Grandfather. I can use the money to buy the Goddess Heart!"

She was planning to buy a car as a birthday present but with the extra money, she could buy something more expensive.

Master Quint was not bothered. He asked, "Your birthday is in three days. Have you selected the venue? Do you want my Cloud Nine Golden member card to hold a party on the third floor?"

"Thank you, Grandfather. Vincent has the Platinum card and he has already booked the sixth floor for me."

Master Quint, was slightly embarrassed, but he said nothing. He motioned for the maid to take him back to his room to rest.

The other family members were jealous.

The Goddess' Heart and the sixth floor of Cloud Nine-Deborah was having a grand birthday par party.

Darcy did not care about that. She looked as if her soul left her body.

Deborah ridiculed, "Darcy, have you selected your venue? Have you bought your presents?"

Darcy bit her lips to prevent herself from crying.

Deborah persisted. "Okay, okay. Don't need to show me that face. Everyone knows you are poor. Why don't you kneel and beg me to lend you the Goddess' Heart for a few days?"

Kaze glanced at Deborah and said, "The Goddess' Heart is not something you are worthy to wear."

"Why are you arguing, you retard. If I am not worthy, then who is? Darcy? She couldn't even afford a birthday cake! What a joke!"

Deborah rolled her eyes scornfully at Kaze.

Kaze nodded and said, "You are right. Darcy is the only one worthy the Goddess' Heart."

Deborah scoffed. She wanted to scold some sense into the retard but then hurried footsteps came from outside the door.

A group of men in black suits escorted a box into the mansion.

"The Goddess' Heart is here. Please accept it, Ms. Quint."

Goddess' Heart?

The other family members were baffled. Deborah had not bought it

Kaze did not expect Jasmine to deliver the Goddess' Heart this quickly.

"Darcy, your birthday present is here."

Everyone in the room looked at Kaze.

Kaze, the retard, bought the Goddess' Heart?

That necklace was worth thirty million!

Deborah was astonished.

"Impossible! Where did a retard get the money to buy the Goddess' Heart?"

If he did, that fact would be more torturing to her than watching Darcy wear the Goddess' Heart.

Darcy was shocked as well. She helplessly said, "Kaze, this..."

"Darcy, I bought this for you. I'll explain why later," Kaze said with a smile.

Darcy received the box but was still shocked.

As a woman, she too liked expensive jewelry, especially as a birthd present.

Darcy felt like the happiest woman on earth right now.

Then, Deborah's phone rang.

Vincent's voice came through the phone, saying, "My dear, have you received the present I prepared for you? Do you like it?"

Present?

Deborah screamed.

e then snatched the box away from Darcy and did you know I want the Goddess' Heart?"

Goddess' Heart?

Vincent was confused. He simply transferred some money to Deborah as her birthday present, so how did it become the Goddess' Heart?

It would be embarrassing to confess now, so he simply played along. "As long as you like it."

They chatted briefly and ended the call.

The other family members finally knew what happened.

"It was Vincent who bought the Goddess' Heart for Deborah. I was shocked."

"Yeah. It was such an embarrassment."

"I almost believed what the retard said just now."

Deborah held the box happily in her arms and said arrogantly, Vincent bought this for me as a birthday present. You stupid retard trying to take it away from me? You must have a death wish."

Darcy was shocked and disappointed.

Kaze frowned tightly and said fiercely, "Deborah, that does not belong to you."
