Chapter 1001

Chapter 1001 Release Cosmo I “You’re asking for it, bastard!” Adam heaved angrily because Kaze was not in despair despite his exposed lies.

“I’m telling you now, Kaze. The Lees are in contact with Harrison about you posing as the God of War.

“If you don’t want Harrison to kill you, you should wise up in letting Cosmo go and apologizing to the Lees in person.

“They might just save you since you were part of the family.” Adam then turned to Darcy. “Your idiot husband can’t think straight. You should talk some sense into him before he harms your entire family.”

“Kaze, maybe you should release Cosmo.” Darcy gave Kaze a yank. She did not want to see Kaze confront a mammoth presence like the Lees.

Harrison was a terrifying figure, but he was a foreigner without strong ties to Arcadia.

The Lees were a different story.

As an affluent family, the Lee family was well-established and connected.

They had many ways to hurt them.

Kaze sighed. “I don’t want to fight the Lees, but they won’t get off my back.” He caught Adam’s flighty gaze.

i

The Lees would not save Kaze for releasing Cosmo. In fact, they intended to finish him off through Harrison. I The Lees would be the first to kick Kaze down if he put trust in them and let Cosmo go.

Only Kaze grasped the full depth of their feud.

“What? Are you scared? You should be.” Adam reflected contempt in his eyes, assuming Kaze was the type who never regretted his action until it was too late.

“You're better off having Harrison on your tail instead of the entire Lee family going after you.

“Let Cosmo go, and you can take shelter in Horizon Mirror Mansion. I doubt Harrison would enter the area, I “But you would have to stay there forever,” Adam said smugly.

The way Adam saw it, Kaze would succumb to the pressure.

The Lees would owe Adam a big one. I “Sigh. Why must the Lee family push me?” Shaking his head, Kaze took out his phone and gave Johnson, on standby at the detention center, a call.

“Hello, Johnson.” Adam chuckled in delight.

As expected, Kaze gave in to him.

“Harrison is here, Mr. Lee. He said that you agree to let him bail Jason and the others out.” I Johnson’s voice came on the other end of the line.

Kaze nodded. “That’s right. He has my permission.” “Alright. I'll tell Don to release them.

Is there anything else, Mr. Lee?” Johnson asked.

“Let Cosmo go.” Kaze glanced at Adam, who was smiling away, and added, “But break his legs before that.” Adam was stunned, wondering if he had heard it right.

To think Kaze wanted to break Cosmo’s legs. How dare he?

Kaze even instructed Johnson to do so in front of Adam. search the FindNovel.net website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

It was a blatant provocation.

“The nerve of you, bastard!” Snapping out of a trance, Adam yelled angrily, “Do you know what you’re doing, Kaze? Cosmo is the son of the head of the Lee household.

“The Lees will not stop until they get you for breaking Cosmo’s legs,” Adam threatened.

“That’s true. The Lees will take their anger out on me.” Kaze nodded and responded, “But if someone else breaks Cosmo’s legs, the Lees won't have a reason to take revenge on me.”

Chapter 1002

Chapter 1002 The Price of Ego Adam was stunned.

Kaze's way of thinking was too complex for Adam to grasp. Search The website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Before Adam could say anything, Kaze told Johnson, "Ask Harrison for a little favor, Johnson.

"you work for the government, so it won't look good on you to take the law into your own hands." Adam smirked in rage. "Kaze, the Lees have exposed your lies to Harrison. I can't believe you expect Harrison to do your bidding.

"He might be on his way back to kill you." "We shall wait and see." Kaze smiled.

Back in Lilyrose Detention Center, Harrison went through the formalities for Jason's and his crew's release. He received a phone call when leading them out of the detention center.

"Hello, Mr. Ford. I'm George, the head of the Lee family." Knowing who George was, Harrison said courteously, "What can I do for you, Mr. Lee?" "Here's the thing. I need to tell you something, Mr. Ford.

"The young man you met at the hotel tonight is Kaze Lee. You thought he was the God of War and kneeled before him.

«pruth be told, it's not his first rodeo posing as the God of War."

Harrison grimaced. He would never mistake the eyes that belonged to the Arcadian Satan.

Those eyes were imprinted in his memory.

"Shit! Are you doubting me? He is the God of War, the Arcadian Satan. I won't be mistaken," Harrison shouted.

"Fuck. These foreigners are too proud to admit their mistake." George cursed under his breath. He assumed Harrison's insistence on his truth was to preserve his dignity.

He understood where Harrison was coming from, though. It was less embarrassing to kneel to the God of War instead of a thieving moocher.

Many never had the pleasure to kneel before the God of War because he was so elusive.

“Alright, Mr. Ford. Let’s not fight over this. He’s the God of War if you insist. I just wanted to let you know the truth, so you would not be fooled.

“My family has disowned Kaze, and he is a loser that no one in the family cares about.

“But don’t worry, Mr. Ford. We will keep tonight’s incident a secret. We won’t tell anybody,” George patted his chest and promised.

Harrison was livid. “Shit! “What are you trying to say? I am the consul general of paladia. Do you think [won’t be able to tell if he’s a fake? “The Lees, did you say? You have the audacity to insult the great Arcadian Satan and anger me.” While Harrison was on the phone, the officer of the detention center brought a sick young man out.

The young man was George’s son, Cosmo.

Cosmo was a well-groomed young man. However, days in the cell had changed him completely.

“Huh? Are you Mr. Ford?” Cosmo paused at first before breaking out in joy. He said, “Did my family send you to pick me up? «Can I ask a favor? I want to take revenge on Kaze. I want to sleep with his woman in front of him,” Cosmo said menacingly.

He had been cleaning toilets for the past few days, and that humiliating experience alone fueled Cosmo to kill Kaze.

Harrison scowled and said, “Why don’t you watch your son lose his legs, George?” He hung up and requested a video call, aiming the camera at Cosmo.

“Do it, Jason.” Harrison waved at Jason.

Chapter 1003

Chapter 1003 Sam’s Tricked Jason was still limping from his injuries, but that did not stop him from dealing with a defenseless man like Cosmo.

He lifted Cosmo and broke his legs.

“Argh! Save me, Dad!” Cosmo's harrowing screams filled the air.

George observed his son's dismal fate on the phone, his eyes bulging.

“Watch this.” Back at the hotel, Kaze handed his phone to Adam which played a video sent by Harrison.

Adam took the phone for a look, and soon, he grimaced Harrison went through with breaking Cosmo's legs.

That was the last thing Adam expected from Harrison.

Adam dumped the phone back to Kaze.

He said angrily, “Idiot! Do you think the Lees will let you get away with it? They will make you pay! Just you wait!” Adam refused to believe that Kaze was the God of War.

It was likely that the Lees did not manage to get a hold of Harrison.

“Since you work for the Lees, you can let them know that the punishment on Cosmo is my final warning. They have one month to comply with my demands.” Kaze smiled nonchalantly and took Darcy's hand. “Come on, babe.” Darcy followed Kaze, her head still reeling in from the shock.

Everything that happened tonight was ridiculous. Search the Findnovel.net website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Kaze was assertive beyond her imagination.

However, she was relieved by his change. Kaze showed his tough side to protect her.

The couple walked out of the hotel and saw Sam getting out of the car and walking toward the hotel.

“what brings you here, Sam?” Darcy asked respectfully. She had the utmost respect for Sam “Oh. Talk about coincidence. Are you out on a date?” Sam teased them before uttering, “I was invited to attend a gathering.

“A superior in the Sunrise Health Department assembled many in the healthcare system to talk about an overhaul.

“I think it’s time to shake things up in the healthcare market.

“I was nearly tricked once to shoot an ad for Woodfield Hospital. That was bizarre.” sam could not be bothered to attend such events.

He was only willing to make time because Eli convinced him that Important matters would be discussed Sam could not tolerate the healthcare system being tainted with greed “You are tricked again, Sam,” Kaze said coldly.

Kaze was certain that Adam made up a story to get Sam to attend the event. He needed help from Sam which did not involve addressing the issue with the healthcare market.

Sam was fooled because his life only revolved around saving lives.

Kaze was furious.

Sam was taken aback. “What do you mean?” “There you are, Professor Whiteman.

Welcome. I am Adam Otter, the associate director of Sunrise Health Department.” Adam approached with a group and shook Sam’s hand.

As Kaze's words sunk in, Sam exchanged pleasantries with Adam offhandedly.

In the end, he grew impatient and cut to the chase. “Mr. Otter, did you call me to attend the gathering to talk about the healthcare market or something else?” “Oh, we can talk about the issue with the healthcare market later.

“The issue has been a long time coming. We can’t rush to solve it right away. Progress takes time.” Adam laughed awkwardly and said, “We have a more pressing matter at hand.

“I was asked to invite you to Sunrise City to treat an important patient.”

Chapter 1004

Chapter 1004 Adam Plays With Fire Adam’s words did not sit right with Sam.

Sam was lured under the false pretense of discussing the healthcare market, only to find himself expected to provide medical treatment.

Seeing that Adam, a high-ranking officer in the health department, was enlisted to help, the patient must be wealthy and important.

Sam could not stand patients who pulled strings to get what they wanted. Search The website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Nevertheless, saving lives was still Sam's priority. He asked patiently, "Who is the patient?" "Sam, the patient he's talking about is likely Narian, and now Cosmo too," Kaze said curtly.

Kaze was surprised that the Lees had not given up on getting Sam to treat Narian.

He turned to Adam and said indifferently, "You might not know, but I am the one who fractured Narian's legs.

"You can leave now. Sam will not treat any member of the Lee family." Adam was stunned.

Word that Narian was crippled had gone around the privileged community of Sunrise City.

Adam did not expect the assailant to be Kaze.

"Shut up, Kaze! Mind your own business. You're just a moocher who took your wife's last name. Who are you to influence Professor Whiteman's decision? "Get over yourself. Get lost!" Snapping out of his shock, Adam lashed out at Kaze before turning to Sam with a smile. "Am I right, Professor Whiteman? You're respected for your service to the people. You won't turn your back on patients." However, Sam blew up.

"Kaze is right. I'm turning my back on patients.

"The Lees reaped what they sowed.

They are delusional to think I would treat them.

"I'm not attending the gathering anymore. I'm leaving." Sam stormed off.

“Uh! Professor Whiteman, don’t leave!” Adam’s hands grabbed the air as he stomped his foot. He cocked his head back to glare at Kaze.

“You did it again, loser!” The others looked at Kaze in shock. All Adam did was criticize Kaze, and yet Sam threw quite a fit.

Sam refused to attend the get-together too, leaving the group behind at the hotel.

Kaze said to Adam, “I should let you know that the Lees had invited Sam to treat Narian before, but I told him not to do it.

“Sam’s first commercial endorsement is for my wife’s company. I told him to do it.” At that point, Kaze grinned. “You can tell me to get over myself, but Sam will not do that to me.” That was a huge slap in Adam’s face.

His face turned red.

The group behind Adam looked at Kaze in disbelief.

Adam said that Kaze was a loser.

Harrison kneeled before him and apologized, thinking he was the God of War.

Yet, Kaze had a highly influential figure like Sam eating out of his hand.

The group could not understand why Sam would be submissive to Kaze “Come on, babe.” Kaze took Darcy’s hand and left.

Adam scowled at their receding figures before bursting out. “Darcy, your dimwit husband has disrespected me.

If you don’t divorce him, your mother can forget ever coming back to the family.” Darcy froze.

Sensing Darcy’s emotional turmoil, Kaze stopped in his tracks and darted a look at Adam.

“you’re asking for it, Adam.”

Chapter 1005

Chapter 1005 Miru Snitches Adam had pissed Kaze off for the last time. He had been pushing his luck the whole night.

Kaze would have smacked anyone else a long time ago. However, he let it go because Adam was Darcy's uncle.

Yet now, Adam threatened that Agnes would not be allowed back with the family unless Darcy divorced him.

That was where Kaze drew the line.

Kaze narrowed his eyes and headed straight toward Adam.

"Kaze!" Darcy pulled him back and shook her head with worry. She was concerned that Kaze's drastic response would stir more trouble. With Kaze staying put, Darcy turned to look at Adam.

She took a deep breath before uttering, "Get over yourself, Uncle Adam."

"No one can step into my marriage to Kaze, not even my parents." Darcy's tone was firm and resolute.

She then took off together with Kaze.

Adam stood there, his face ashen.

Kaze and Darcy humiliated him tonight.

Adam did not believe he had done anything wrong. In fact, Kaze and Darcy had been aggressive all night.

"Without my permission, Agnes will never be welcomed back into the family," Adam said chillingly while staring at their backs.

Kaze and Darcy did not hear what Adam said, but even if they did, they would not care. They caught up to Sam and brought him back to Horizon Mirror Mansion.

Sam was in his advanced years. After a day of toiling, he was weary and went straight to bed.

Agnes had the utmost respect for Sam, helping him up the stairs and into the upstairs bedroom.

The smile on Agnes' face disappeared when she emerged down the stairs.

“What did you and Kaze do, Darcy? “Adam just called me and said that you made him very angry. For that reason, I cannot go back to the family.” : Agnes shot an angry look at Kaze. She knew Kaze had messed up and rubbed Adam the wrong way. Search the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

She had cut contact with her family for many years, hoping for a chance of reconciliation.

Now, Kaze destroyed that chance. Of course, she was angry.

“Mom, Uncle Adam was rude. He kept finding things difficult for us. It’s not our fault.” Taken aback by Adam’s finger- pointing, Darcy said furiously, “Besides, even if he agrees to let you go back to them, the Otters don’t seem to have any respect for you.

“Why do you want to return to them?”

I With Darcy’s words striking a raw nerve, Agnes fell silent.

Moments later, she glared at Kaze.

“The idiot is such a troublemaker.

“Miru called earlier to tell on Kaze. He missed work on the first day on the job.

A senior executive was arrested, and yet Kaze did not report the incident back to her.” “Why didn’t Miru call me?” Darcy asked curiously.

Agnes replied peevishly, “Miru said that you would come to his defense, so she didn’t see the point of telling you.

She wanted us to lecture him.” She darted another dirty look at Kaze.

“Can you make something of yourself, Kaze? Miru gave you a job because of Darcy. - “You prance around with a fancy job title and get paid over nothing.

“You can’t do anything right. What’s the point of having you around?”

Chapter 1006

Chapter 1006 Acting Mayor Agnes tore into Kaze.

Kaze listened quietly without defending himself.

“Miru even said that she’d assign a new deputy manager to Hudson Investment Firm. Kaze, you should work closely with this new deputy.” Agnes broke the news to Kaze before glaring at him. “You hear me, Kaze?” “Yes.” Kaze nodded, unconcerned about the new deputy manager.

He would not mind so long as the new deputy manager was capable, unlike Jem who kept harassing him, Once Agnes was gone, Darcy drew close and urged Kaze earnestly. “Cherish the opportunity, Kaze. Do your best, okay? “My mom will stop giving you an attitude when you show her results.” “your word is my command, babe.” Kaze hugged her with a smile, giving her a little squeeze on her hips.

“I’m taking a shower.” Darcy rolled her eyes and went upstairs. Search the Findnovel.net website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Kaze was about to hit the showers when he received a call from Johnson.

“What is it, Johnson?” Kaze took the call and asked.

Johnson replied, “Mr. Lee, Narian has been transported back to Sunrise City, but I received word that Taz, the son of the CEO of Lee Investment, fractured his legs in a fight.” “Oh, I ordered to have his legs broken,” Kaze responded.

Johnson had no words.

The legs of Samson’s son were broken first, followed by Narian’s.

Both incidents were linked to Kaze.

Kaze and the Lees were locked in a bitter feud.

“Is there anything else, Johnson?” Kaze asked.

Johnson cleared his distracting thoughts and said, “Here’s the thing, Mr. Lee. I was notified by the governor’s office to attend a high-level training course for two weeks. The training will be conducted with no outside world contact.” “Oh, that’s great news. Congrats, Johnson. It’s about time you get a promotion,” Kaze said with a smile.

The training course was Loid’s promise to Johnson.

It was to make it up to Johnson for the recent false accusation, and Loid granted the favor because of Kaze.

«pm indebted to you, Mr. Lee. I will not be where I am today without you. I will never forget what you have done for me, Mr. Lee,” Johnson responded.

He then added, “But Mr. Lee, we are going through troubled times in the city. Several affluent families are fighting over power while other prominent families and corporations bid their chance to swoop in.

“I’m concerned that my absence will give them a reason to shift the power dynamics.

“The order that you have brought might crumble once more, affecting the future and livelihood of the people of Lilyrose,” Johnson said worriedly.

The Vinlands and the Lees were aggressively dipping their fingers into the city before. Without Kaze to keep them in check, they would have turned the city upside down.

“Are you asking me to hold the fort?” Kaze understood where Johnson was coming from.

“That’s right, Mr. Lee. I hope you are able to stand in as the mayor for a while,” Johnson uttered anxiously, worried that Kaze would refuse.

However, Kaze was a highly decorated and respected figure in the military. It was a waste of his talent to work as an acting mayor.

Johnson could tell that Kaze preferred not to draw attention to himself. He returned to Lilyrose to live a quiet life, so he probably wanted to be far away from trouble.

To his surprise, Kaze readily agreed to his proposal. “Sure, no problem.

Lilyrose is my home. I won't let those thieves run the city to the ground.” “Thank you, Mr. Lee. I can rest easy knowing that you're in charge.” Johnson was relieved.

Chapter 1007

Chapter 1007 Team Governor Following the fall of the top three families, Lilyrose became a free-for- all.

Various powerhouses wanted a piece of the pie.

Johnson was a capable man, but he was at his wit’s end dealing with all the problems.

The Lees even openly demanded Narian's release. The arrogance of the rich and powerful knew no boundary.

With Kaze holding the fort, Johnson could relax.

Anybody would have to leave their cockiness out the door the moment they entered Lilyrose.

"But, Johnson, I prefer a hands-off approach. Don't bother with the daily duties of the mayor. I'll intervene only when necessary." Kaze made another request.

He did not want to stick around the mayor's office all day, toiling away at paperwork.

"Don't worry, Mr. Lee. I will tell my people not to disturb you on trivial matters." Johnson patted his chest and promised.

Soon, Lilyrose local council announced Johnson's participation in an exclusive training course, and a Mr. Lee would be standing in his position for the time being.

The news quickly reached the ears of the Lees in Sunrise City.

"Clang!" In the Sunrise Lees' estate, George smashed his favorite teacup to the ground.

Ashen in the face, he hissed through clenched teeth. "Johnson is a bastard! He's turning a deaf ear to our requests because he's on Team Governor.

"No wonder he's so undaunted. He's getting a promotion after the course, so we're no longer a threat to him." The only thing George could do about it was go off in a tirade.

Though the Lees had connections and wealth, they would not be so reckless as to go after Johnson.

That would be poking the bear—Loid. Search the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Besides, Johnson would become untouchable after the promotion.

"We can't do anything to Johnson, but we can still get to Kaze. George, it's time we deal with Kaze. I can't rest until he dies," Gregory said.

Adam was assigned to seek Sam's expertise, but Kaze foiled their plan once again.

That was not the only thing. The other prominent families in Sunrise City mocked the Lees because Cosmo's legs were broken too.

The Lees would not regain their pride if Kaze was left standing.

“I can’t wait to get rid of that bastard, but we can’t do it now.” George waved his arm and said solemnly, “Since Loid promoted Johnson, he must have placed his own people to serve as the acting mayor.

“From my observation of the recent events, I gather that the governor is trying to shut us down.

“I think we should be discreet for now.

At the very least, we should avoid conflict with Loid’s people.” As the head of a prominent household, George had the qualities to be a leader.

He put the pieces together and drew a conclusion.

The evidence supported his assumption. I.

However, Kaze was a maverick. George was far off the mark because Kaze did not think or act like most people.

“We can’t let the bastard get away with it,” Gregory uttered resentfully.

“put Samson back on the job.” George sighed and responded, “He has not been keeping his hands to himself lately, but if he can rip 10 billion dollars out of Kaze, ruin his wife’s companies, and break his family apart, I don’t mind giving him the 10 billion dollars.” Samson’s little antics did not escape the eye of the Lees.

Nevertheless, the family was willing to turn a blind eye since he was good at what he did.

Chapter 1008

Chapter 1008 New Deputy “Alright. We’ll leave it to Samson.” Gregory nodded menacingly. “Kaze broke the legs of his son too. I bet he’s more eager to kill that bastard.” Kaze had no idea that his brief stint as acting mayor would brand him a loyal supporter of Loid.

The Lees ceased fire for that reason, directly at least.

The next day, Kaze's presence was requested at the meeting room when he arrived at his office at Hudson Investment Firm.

"Why are we having a meeting?" Kaze asked Sophie after stepping into the meeting room.

Sophie whispered, "Miru was here after you were gone yesterday, Mr.

Chairman. She criticized your lack of accountability and informed us that her assistant would act as the deputy manager here.

"The new deputy is here, and she called for this meeting." While talking, a beautiful and commanding woman in a power suit walked through the door.

She glanced at everybody condescendingly and went on. "I should introduce myself. I am Jennifer Barwise. I am filling the role of deputy manager from today onward." "Clap, clap." The applause was scattered, half hearted at best.

Kaze earned the respect of his colleagues for putting Jem in his place yesterday.

Many did not take to Jennifer because she did not look at Kaze when she came into the room. She had no respect for Kaze.

As Jennifer's face fell, she said, "I was an assistant to Miru, the chairwoman of Lefteria Group before joining Hudson Investment Firm." "Clap, clap." The applause was a little better. SEAR\*ch the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality. still, the clapping fell short of Jennifer's expectations. Jennifer wondered if these people doubted her competence.

Upset, she asked, "Is Mr. Lee here yet?" The senior executives present frowned.

Jennifer talked as if Kaze was her subordinate.

Her tone suggested that she was the CEO while Kaze was the deputy.

Kaze replied, "Are you looking for me, Ms. Barwise?" With Jennifer's gaze falling on Kaze, she cut to the chase. "Mr. Lee, Hudson Investment Firm needs to make a big splash in the investment market, but industry peers know little about us.

«pve instructed our colleagues in PR to contact the media. We will be looking at many publicity projects.

“Mr. Lee, you carry yourself well. Since you have nothing better to do in the office, you should get out there and help the company with its publicity.

“There’s an interview for the financial channel this afternoon. You should attend it.” The senior executives exchanged glances.

The new deputy was a go-getter, putting Kaze up for a job without discussing it with him.

Jennifer appeared to have labeled Kaze as eye candy.

If the senior executives had not witnessed Kaze’s prowess yesterday, they would not have considered him more than a pretty face too.

Although Kaze was not pleased with Jennifer’s attitude, he recognized her work commitment.

Jennifer took charge and tried to get things done just hours into her job appointment.

She was driven just like Darcy.

Happy to leave the work to someone else, Kaze nodded with a smile. “Sure.

Since you have everything set up, I’ll go on. The senior executives present were speechless.

Was Kaze playing dumb again? Jennifer glanced at Kaze indifferently, realizing that Miru put her up for the job because Kaze was just a pushover.

He needed more than a few lessons on people management.

Chapter 1009

Chapter 1009 Swearing-in Jennifer was surprised by Kaze’s compliance.

The disdain she had for him ran deeper.

“Alright, that’s it for today’s meeting, Meeting adjourned.” Jennifer clapped her hands, announcing the end of the meeting.

She did not care whether Kaze had anything to say.

She saw herself as the highest-ranked superior at Hudson Investment Firm.

Once Jennifer was gone, the senior executives gathered around Kaze.

“You're the only leader for me, Mr.

Lee. I'll follow you wherever you go.” “That's right, Mr. Lee. We will only take your orders. Ms. Barwise doesn't even respect you. Why should we listen to her?” The group was eager to prove their allegiance to Kaze.

Yesterday's incident left a dent in them. These people would not take ~~ Jennifer's side right away because Kaze backed off.

“Enough!” Kaze yelled, interrupting the group's chatter.

The senior executives exchanged glances. They were only trying to show their loyalty to Kaze.

Kaze should be happy. Yet, he looked pissed.

“Are you here to join cliques or work? ) “Please don't forget that you work in an investment firm. The only way to prove your worth is to bring profits into the company.

“Now get back to work!” Kaze waved his arm indifferently and left the office.

The office politics were beneath him.

Kaze considered Jennifer's antics childish. He did not mind the woman's behavior if she could do her job right.

“Mr. Lee sure takes the high road.” The senior executives had themselves to blame for the chewing out.

“Sophie, I'm heading to the mayor's office. Call me if you need anything.” I Kaze told Sophie in the office and drove to the mayor's office.

Johnson would be leaving Lilyrose today for his training course.

Before leaving, he wanted to do a brief handover with Kaze and introduce a few leaders in the mayor's office to Kaze.

“Here you are, Mr. Lee.” Johnson led Kaze into the mayor's office. SEARCH THE FindNOvel.net website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Behind him were his high-ranking officers.

Kaze had met some of them before.

“Mr. Lee, these are my right-hand men, Caleb Lee, Lou Moor... You know Don.” Johnson showed Kaze around, and even Don was there.

“Hello, mayor.” Caleb, Lou, and the others greeted Kaze respectfully.

They were shocked.

It was not new news that Johnson was close and courteous to Kaze.

They just did not expect Kaze to become the acting mayor and their temporary boss.

“Hello, everybody. Today is just for formalities.”

Kaze nodded and exchanged pleasantries.

By right, all middle to high management of the local council would meet the new mayor during the swearing-in.

Nevertheless, Kaze informed Johnson in advance that he would not be conducting the daily responsibility of a mayor or making public appearances.

Kaze’s appointment to the role was only limited to a handful of people.

Afternoon quickly rolled after Kaze’s luncheon with the team.

Then came the call from Jennifer's assistant.

“Where are you, Mr. Lee? Ms, Barwise requested me to take you to the network for the interview.”
