Chapter 101 Buy Miru Lunch

Miru sounded delighted. Her attitude toward Kaze was totally different from yesterday.

“Fine. I'll buy you lunch.”

Kaze was on the way to have lunch anyway. If he returned to Horizon Mirror now, Agnes would probably scold him again. He might not even enter the house, let alone having lunch there.

“Where are you? Ill go pick you up.”

Kaze told Miru his location and she arrived after a while.

Miru drove a Mercedes AMG that cost two million dollars and her arrival attracted much attention.

A sweet lady driving such a big and sturdy car would easily turn heads wherever she went.

Kaze opened the door and entered the passenger's seat under the passersby's envious gaze. “Let's go.”

Miru drove off without asking Kaze, the one who was paying for lunch.

At the same time, in the chairman's office of the Hilfinger

Corporation, Roger leaned back in his chair as he spoke to Kelly, who was seated across from him. "How's the preparation for tomorrow's event going?"

"Everything is progressing smoothly. We even spent some money to invite two top celebrities, Andrew Shawn and Liv Ackerman, to perform at the rebuilding ceremony. They are already here in Lilyrose,"

She was able to play a vital role in preparing for the rebuilding ceremony and it became a great chance for her to appeal to Roger with her capabilities.

Once she gave birth to Henry's child and strengthened her position in the company, she might even take over the Hilfinger Corporation in the future.

"What are the other families' reactions?" Roger asked.

"The first-tier and second-tier families said they would attend the ceremony. However, the top three families, Everia, Golding, and Chapman, plus the Lefteria Group, declined our invitation."

Kelly paused before she continued carefully, "The chairman of the Lefteria Group, Alan Cunningham, said you had underestimated Ray Forrester's capabilities and challenging Perfect World Group was unwise."

Roger grunted as his expression turned bitter. "Alan Cunningham is the past now. How dare he question me? Just ignore him."

Roger had partnered up with all the mob bosses, making him the underworld king of Lilyrose. He felt an unprecedented confidence.

He did not take seriously the once powerful force of the underworld, Alan Cunningham.

However, Lefteria Group was resourceful and influential, and Alan Cunningham was known to be unpredictable. Neither did he want to offend Alan just because of the invitation.

decline nor be on bad terms with him and the Lefteria Group.

Aside from that, Roger was irritated when the top three families of

They must have known that the Hilfinger family would soon rise to their level and the rejection was a sign that they were displeased with him.

“Hmph. I don’t care what they think of me. They have to tolerate me because now I have the support of the Lee family!” Roger grunted and he put them behind him.

No matter how much the other top families were displeased, it would not change the fact that the Hilfinger family would rise to prominence soon.

Meanwhile, Miru drove Kaze to Lily Garden Hotel. Kaze did not expect Miru to come here for lunch. The Joestar family had given the hotel to him as a token of apology the other day.

“Is it too much for you to buy me lunch at such an expensive place? One meal here costs around a few thousand per pax, ten grand if you want to have a better selection. Should we go to another place?”

Miru noticed the surprise on Kaze’s face and teased him, finding Kaze’s reaction satisfying..

“Few thousand? That’s cheap. Let’s go in.”

Kaze got out of the car.

Miru frowned. It seemed like the stupid son-in-law of the Quint family had some money in his pocket.

However, as far as she knew, Kaze was a full-time house-husband and he did not go to work, so how did he get that much money?

She grunted and got out of the car as well, already deciding to order. Then, she would make Kaze pay for the lunch. If he could not afford it, she would use it to threaten him to divorce Darcy.

Chapter 102 Booked Out

When Kaze came out of the car, he realized Lily Garden Hotel was decorated grandly today.

The fiery red carpet rolled out to the front as if to welcome a VIP.

Kaze was not concerned and headed in.

With her slender long legs, Miru followed Kaze to the entrance.

Manager Keegan was at the entrance talking to a group of hotel employees with his back facing them.

“Manager, the boss is here. He’s with Ms. Miru Scarlet of the Lefteria Group,” notified one of the employees after Kaze and Miru were spotted.

Miru was a regular at Lily Garden Hotel, or else she would not bring Kaze here to have lunch.

The employees recognized the beautiful and rich lady.

Manager Keegan immediately turned around when he heard the employee and led the others to bow at Kaze. “Mr. Lee, Ms. Scarlet, welcome.”

Miru was surprised by the warm welcome.

Despite being a regular at Lily Garden Hotel, the employees had never welcomed her with such courtesy, which caused her to overlook the fact that besides her, they also recognized Kaze whom she assumed could never afford a meal there.

“Having a meal at the restaurant or looking for a suite to stay the night?” Manager Keegan asked Kaze.

The boss of the hotel is accompanied by a beautiful lady and it could be for anything but inspecting their work. That would be such a mood killer.

Manager Keegan's inquiry annoyed Miru. She glared at him and said, “Don't speak if you don't know how to choose your words. Who's staying the night with him? Are you kidding me?”

The manager immediately apologized. It seemed like his boss had not even reached first base with the lady. He did not take Miru's words seriously though, as Miru might be rich but not richer than his boss.

The son of the original owner, Ren Joestar, offended the current boss, so his father, Jack, apologized in person and transferred the ownership of the hotel as a token of apology.

Not to mention, the Joestars were a first-tier family!

Kaze did not want to be calculative with Miru. He said, “Ms. Scarlet here wants to have lunch. Arrange a quiet place for us.” The boss wanted a quiet place, so Manager Keegan immediately told his staff to clear the restaurant.

“Put the sign out. The restaurant is booked out for today and won't be accepting walk-ins. Cancel all the bookings as well.” Miru was once again shocked.

The manager cleared the restaurant just because the two of them wanted to have lunch?

Kaze frowned. "There is no need to clear the place. We're just having lunch, no need to grant us such privileges."

He disliked being treated differently because of his status.

God he

When he came back from the battlefield and was conferred the title " God of War", someone suggested a lockdown of the entire airport for a welcoming ceremony.

He rejected it immediately. "Mr. Lee, don't get me wrong. There are two celebrities currently staying at our hotel today and they've booked a lot of rooms, so we have planned to clear the restaurant after they check in for the sake of their safety and privacy."

Manager Keegan realized he flattered the wrong person, so he quickly came up with an excuse, while being impressed by his new boss for being so low-profile.

Back then, whenever Ren came to have lunch with a female companion, he would always clear the restaurant.

The previous and current owners of the hotel were worlds apart.

Miru finally understood the situation. She almost thought the manager cleared the restaurant because of a word from Kaze. If that was not the case, then Manager Keegan's attentiveness should be because of her, not Kaze.

Having invited numerous clients to lunch at a restaurant in Lily

Garden, it was not surprising that the hotel staff recognized her as an executive of the Lefteria Group.

“Kaze, aren't you quite good at pretending?”

Chapter 103 Hotel Lockdown

Miru grunted in disdain. She tossed her car key to the chauffeur and walked inside.

Kaze smiled without being concerned and followed her inside.

The restaurant was located on the left side of the lobby.

The two of them sat down at a quiet table.

Miru picked up the menu and started ordering.

First on her list was a bottle of wine that cost ten thousand, then air-flown caviar for two and some other dishes.

The dishes' she ordered cost around two hundred thousand.

“That will be all.”

Miru closed the menu and saw the bitter look on Kaze.

“What's wrong? The price scared you?”

She thought Kaze was shocked by the price of the wine and the caviar, which delighted her. “Miru, I think you are just being rude. That's all you ordered? It's not even enough as an appetizer.” He was displeased by how few dishes Miru ordered. He took the menu and had a look himself. “A few more sets of caviar, and this, and this, this too. Make it double for all of them...”

Kaze knew that high-end restaurants always made food in small portions to match the ambiance and status. They might look good but they could barely fill the stomach.

He was a soldier who fought on the battlefield, so the ambiance and status during a meal were nonsense to him. The sole purpose of eating was to fill the stomach. Only then he would have the energy to fight the war.

Kaze ignored the price tags and ordered based on the pictures. He even ordered another bottle of expensive wine. The total price surged from two hundred thousand to nearly a million.

Miru was shocked but then she scoffed. She believed Kaze was just pretending in front of her.

She assumed an idiot like Kaze would not even know how much the food he ordered cost, wondering if he would cry a river when he saw the bill later.

Soon, the dishes were served and they started eating.

“Kaze, are you never going to divorce Darcy?” Miru asked after a few bites.

Kaze knew Miru had an agenda. He said, "Miru, you are too naive. Other than Darcy herself, no one can make me divorce her." He paused before saying in a strengthened tone, "Not even you, her best friend."

The atmosphere in the restaurant instantly turned awkward.

Kaze exuded a strong murderous aura.

Miru was not a weak lady like Darcy; she was the goddaughter of the former underworld king, Alan Cunningham. She was no stranger to gory fights and brutal massacres, even having participated in a few herself.

Yet despite her experience, she was still frightened by the terrifying

It must be because of the wine! She must be drunk!

She shook her head and discarded the fear from her mind.

Her initial intention was to sway Kaze with emotions and sentimentality, but Kaze was stubborn and shameless with the sole intention of clinging to Darcy no matter what.

No persuasion or swaying would work now.

She looked at the menu and decided to stick with her original plan. When Kaze asked for the bill and could not afford it, she would use it to threaten him to divorce Darcy.

"Excuse me, I have to go to the washroom." Miru went out to call her subordinate and requested a transfer of some money to her bank account.

Kaze ordered nearly a million worth of wine and dishes.

She did not have that much money in her bank account at the moment.

Suddenly, loud and tumultuous screams came from outside the hotel. Several commercial vehicles stopped in front of the hotel entrance and were instantly surrounded by a frenzied crowd.

“Andrew! Andrew! You are the best! We will protect you!”

“Liv! Liv! Living idol! Number one idol!”

The frenzied fans surrounded the commercial vehicles with screams and passion. Banners and lightsticks were raised high in the air.

A large group of security personnel in uniforms rushed down from the suddenly barged into the restaurant.

Several tall and intimidating security guards started to ask the customers to leave. One of them went over to Kaze.

“We are locking down the entire hotel. Please leave immediately.”

Chapter 104 Garo Special Operation Team

Kaze did not expect someone would ask him to leave while he was dining.

“Can't you see I'm eating? Why must I leave?”

Kaze remained seated. He did not even look at the security guard.

“Hmph. I don't care if you are eating or sleeping.”

The security guard glared at him like a ferocious tiger.

He was from a professional security firm experienced in escorting celebrities and VIPs.

Andrew Shawn and Liv Ackerman were the two biggest celebrities in the entertainment industry at the moment and their fans could get rough easily.

Some fanatics would even get information about their idols' flight and hotel information so they could buy the same flight or check in to the same hotel..

The extreme fanatics would even book a room at the hotel one month in advance just to see their idols up close.

It was a nuisance to the celebrities as it would disrupt their normal lives.

Other than zealous fans, there were also haters whose existence would threaten their safety directly.

Kaze was having lunch alone so he was treated as a suspect.

“Do you understand English? Leave immediately. The celebrities are checking into the hotel. We have to clear out the place.” Kaze remained unfazed. The security guard got annoyed and started acting rude toward him.

Kaze's expression turned cold. "I am just having lunch here. What am I going to do to the celebrities? Is this the celebrities' privilege? They check in and everyone has to leave?"

Manager Keegan wanted to clear the restaurant for him but he rejected. Even the hotel owner did not possess such privileges, so why would celebrities have them?

"This is what celebrities get. Two top celebrities are checking in today. Each of them has tens of millions of fans. They can earn ten years of your salary from a single event. What's wrong with them. having some privileges?" the security guard argued.

Kaze was unfazed and the security guard started to suspect his intention.

He spoke into the walkie-talkie, "There's a suspect here in the restaurant. I need backup!" All the other customers in the restaurant had left, and Kaze was the only one remaining. The other security guards came over.

"We are locking down the entire hotel for a fast check-in. If more and more fans gather outside, the celebrities will be at risk. We cannot afford anything to go wrong or waste our time on a single person. Use force if we have to!" the leader said after observing Kaze for a while. He signaled his men to do their job immediately.

Several security guards approached Kaze and wanted to take him out.

"Lock down the whole hotel? That's a little too much for two actors."

Kaze scoffed. He pulled his phone out and called Draco, "Is the Lone Wolf here?" "He's on the way," Draco said.

Kaze said strongly, "I want to inspect the Garo Spec Ops Team, for the sake of tomorrow's operation. He has ten minutes to completely lock down Lily Garden Hotel."

He wanted the security guards to know what a real lockdown was. The so-called celebrities had never contributed to society or the people. Coming to Lilyrose only to attend some event, they requested a lockdown of the entire hotel, telling customers to leave prematurely and disrespecting others. Yet the security guard claimed it was a privilege that came with their status!

Who made the rules? "Roger!" Draco hung up immediately and informed Koga Atlas.

Kaze phoned Draco in front of the security guards, claiming he wanted to lock down the hotel himself, which left the security guards confused.

One phone call to summon a special operation team for a lockdown? Who exactly was the punk? He seemed to be bluffing.

The leader of the security guards grunted and scoffed. "Garo Spec Ops Team? Who are you kidding? We've heard of the Tiger Fangs of Lilyrose but Garo? You made that up!"

Chapter 105 He's the Owner of the Hotel "Just because you've never heard of it, doesn't mean it doesn't exist." Kaze scoffed.

The special operations team was more secretive than normal soldiers. Even their files and documents were coded with numbers. only, so it was normal that these security guards had never heard of them.

Then, another group of people came in. The leader of the group was a petite woman in glasses.

She looked harsh and cold. When she saw the security guards surrounding Kaze, she bellowed, "What's going on here? You guys still haven't cleared the restaurant? More and more fans are gathering outside. If something bad happens, are you going to take responsibility?"

"Ms. Young, this person refused to leave and claimed he's having some spec ops team lock down the hotel," the leader of the security guards said ingratiatingly.

At the same time, he shifted the blame to Kaze, indicating that he had nothing to do with the delay.

The other security guards nodded. When faced with the tiny woman, these burly men were like mice in front of a cat. The woman was Lily Young, a seasoned manager for celebrities.

She was skilled, well-connected, and had elevated the status of many top celebrities.

The newest top idol waiting in the car, Andrew Shawn, was her latest

Given her status in the entertainment industry, even the boss of the security company had to flatter her, let alone the team of security guards.

Lily looked at Kaze with contempt.

They usually attended events in bigger cities. If not for the lucrative offer from the Construction and Material Society, they would never agree to attend the ceremony in a small city like Lilyrose.

Lily refused to believe someone of such power resided in the tiny Lilyrose. "Are you people stupid? Why would you believe what he said?"

She glared at the security guards and then went up to Kaze. She pointed at him and said, "Please leave this place immediately or | will make you!"

Kaze chuckled. He did not expect a mere manager to have the audacity to behave so arrogantly to him.

He put his smile away and said coldly, "Then | would like to ask you to leave this hotel immediately as well. "You asked for it."

Lily's expression changed. She looked at the security guards and bellowed, "Take him out!"

“Punk, let's go!”

The security guards approached Kaze.

“Hold on!”

It was then Manager Keegan and several hotel employees came in.

He glared at Lily furiously and said, “Ms. Young, what is the meaning

He just had a brief conversation with the woman and had agreed for the celebrities to check in, before going off to have a brief meeting with the hotel employees to reconfirm the procedure.

As soon as he came down, he saw the security guards trying to throw his boss out of the hotel.

“What? This person here is the owner of Lily Garden Hotel?” Everyone, including Lily, was stunned. They all looked at Kaze. Kaze’s identity surprised them.

Kaze tapped on Manger Keegan’s shoulder and said, “Richard, give them back the deposit and tell them to leave. We are not accepting celebrities.” He had no good impression of the celebrities despite having never met them in person.

If the manager of the celebrities was this arrogant and disrespectful, then the celebrities themselves would only be ten times worse.

Lily scoffed when Kaze wanted them to leave.

“So you are the owner of Lily Garden Hotel? It’s your honor that we’ve chosen your hotel, and you want us to leave? Don’t make me force you to apologize to the media for what you have done.”

Chapter 106 Publish a Post

Kaze did not expect Lily to continue her arrogant tone after having made known that he was the owner of the hotel. As the owner of Lily Garden Hotel, he had the right to decline a customer's check-in.

Yet Lily made it sound like it was a favor done by her celebrities for choosing his hotel-it made no sense.

Manager Keegan approached Kaze and whispered, “Boss, as top celebrities, they are quite influential. If they released a statement that puts us in a difficult position, it might affect the hotel's business.”

“Really? How influential are they?” Kaze scoffed.

Influential? How exactly?

Lily was infuriated that Kaze refused to believe her.

Then, the commercial vehicle’s door opened up.

The celebrities exited the car and the security guards escorted them through the sea of barricaded fans to enter the hotel. Lily was aware that Andrew and Liv had come in, so she called them over to the restaurant.

“Lily, what's going on?”

Andrew and Liv came over.

Kaze sized up the so-called top celebrities. They were handsome indeed but dressed a little too extravagantly.

Lily looked at Kaze coldly and said without turning back, "Andrew, this is the hotel owner. He wants to reject our stay. | want him to up you can publish a post on your social media."

She was the one who molded Andrew into the top celebrity that he was now.

She knew what influence and popularity could do..

Anything that Andrew posted online, regardless of how trivial, would go viral with an astronomical engagement and top the trending list. The clothes and shoes he wore became top-selling fashion items of the season and the hotel he stayed in would be a hotspot for the fans.

Therefore, whenever he visited a city for events, the local hotels would compete with each other just to be selected. Now, however, Kaze was doing the exact opposite and wanted them to leave.

How amusing.

One post from Andrew and a few words saying the hotel took advantage of him would completely ruin Lily Garden Hotel's reputation in less than five minutes.

Countless fans would condemn Lily Garden Hotel online and give bad reviews on booking sites while some zealous fans would even cause a scene at the entrance to demand a public apology.

Lily and her team did not even need to do anything and Lily Garden Hotel would be over.

On top of that, it would be the fans who ruined the hotel, not them, so they were not directly responsible-the reason for Lily's arrogance.

Andrew did not take Kaze seriously because of his popularity. He was mad when he learned that Kaze wanted him to leave.

“You, apologize to me right now!” he said coldly as he pointed at Kaze.

“No one has ever told me to leave since the day | debuted. If you don’t apologize, then you will go bankrupt!” Liv pulled out his phone and was ready to publish a post online.

Lily was delighted by Kaze’s silence. She assumed that he was afraid.

“Afraid now? Too late. Not only apologize to us, we don’t want to see you here either. Stay away from the hotel while we are here!”

Kaze was infuriated by the bunch of fools. He pulled his phone out and called Draco. “Tell Lone Wolf if he isn’t here in the next minute, he won’t have to show up anymore.”

Chapter 107 This Is the Real Lockdown Draco was shocked. He could tell his boss was furious.

He immediately said, “Boss, Koga just updated me that he’s nearby, observing the hotel’s surroundings for better planning. It’s to ensure your safety.”

“| don’t need him to ensure my safety. | just need him to lockdown the hotel. He has one minute!”

Kaze angrily hung up the phone.

If there were anyone who could actually threaten his safety, then not even the Garo Spec Ops Team would suffice. Pft!

Lily cackled. "Look at you, still pretending! Do you really think you are some military commander? One call and you summon the army?"

Andrew and Liv laughed as well. They heard about Kaze claiming to lock down the hotel with his troops, which was amusing. While they were still laughing in stitches, endless cries of surp came from outside the hotel.

The fans gathering at the entrance looked up to the sky and saw dozen attack helicopters appear.

The noise of the spinning blades filled the entire airspace as they hovered above the hotel.

Ropes were thrown out from the helicopters and armed elite soldiers descended rapidly.

Some of them descended onto the surrounding buildings to secure vantage points while those who landed on the hotel's roof

Chry

The elite soldiers were taking over the hotel floor by floor, removing threats and securing safety.

Agroup of soldiers landed outside the hotel and immediately secured all escape routes.

The fans' cheers were overpowered by the loud helicopter blades.

Lily and company were unaware of the situation outside. They simply thought the fans were too passionate and cheered louder to attract their attention.

Lily sneered at Kaze, "See, this is Andrew's power. Who do you think you are? We can put you out of business immediately!" Andrew and Liv lost their patience since Kaze barely reacted.

"Let's skip the nonsense and post a status. Consider it an advertisement for your hotel!"

"Yeah! Let's teach him a lesson!"

The two of them started composing their messages for their social media.

Bang! Bang!

Multiple explosions were heard.

The thick glasses of the restaurant were blasted to pieces and armed elite soldiers roped in swiftly. Before the security guards reacted, they were subdued to the ground.

Some resisted but they got hit by the gunstock, knocking them out.

Andrew and Liv were horrified. Their phones fell onto the ground.

Lily widened her eyes in disbelief and stared at the elite soldiers who

At the same time, another group of elite soldiers rushed in from the hotel's entrance and multiple corridors.

All the security guards were subdued and seized with a gun to their heads.

From infiltration to total control of the hotel, the Garo Spec Ops Team only took less than fifteen seconds.

It happened in a flash, so fast that no one was able to react in time.

Lily cried, "What are you doing? We are top celebrities! This is Andrew Shawn and Liv Ackerman! They are famous..."

"Shut up!"

The leader of the elite soldiers bellowed. Lily was frightened and deterred immediately.

Chapter 108 Brigadier General

The elite soldiers were no fans of the celebrities. Their only objective was to seize the hotel, put it on total lockdown, and ensure a VIP's safety.

"Sir, report, sir! We have total control of Lily Garden. The VIP's safety is secured!"

The chief tapped on the earpiece in his ear and updated Lone Wolf on the situation.

He had eyes on Kaze and was cognizant that Kaze was the VIP the team was protecting. "Very well. I'll be there right away!"

An excited voice came through the earpiece.

"VIP? What VIP? There's a VIP in the hotel?!"

Lily, Andrew, and Liv were mortified.

Soon, a man in a military uniform appeared at the entrance and came to the restaurant in a hurry. When Lily and company saw the man, they turned pale.

A brigadier general! An actual brigadier general! Someone they could not afford to mess with! Their faces looked as pale as paper.

Who was the VIP in the hotel?

That was right, they had no idea who the VIP was.

They wanted to apologize and ask for forgiveness yet they did not know who to look at. Then, the brigadier general walked up to Kaze and lifted his right hand to salute.

He looked excited when he saw Kaze.

“Instructor Lee, Commander Koga Atlas of Lilyrose Strategy Department, Garo Spec Ops Team, reporting in!”

Swoosh!

All the idle Garo Spec Ops Team soldiers saluted at Kaze en masse respectfully.

They did not know who Kaze was but since their commander saluted to the man, it was enough for them to know Kaze was not just any John Doe.

Koga was called the Tactical King of the Lilyrose Strategy Department.

If he called the man instructor and showed such respect, the man must be ranked higher than him.

How powerful was Kaze?

Lily and company were mortified. They all looked at Kaze with disbelief, same went for the security guards. The young man that they ignored was not just the owner of the hotel but also military personnel with an extremely high rank.

Andrew and Liv, the top celebrities, were shaking in fear.

They had millions of fans and they were the favorite children of capitalism, yet they were nothing in the face of Kaze, who possessed real power.

One word and Kaze could remove both of them from their existence. The entertainment industry might be ruined as well.

Andrew and Liv could be easily replaced. If they offended someone with real power, the forces behind them would abandon them without a second thought as they could nurture another top celebrity with ease. "Sir..."

Kaze remained silent and it made Koga nervous. He thought Kaze was unhappy with the Garo Spec Ops Team's performance. His heart started pounding.

He had no idea that Kaze was reminiscing the old days since the moment he heard Koga call him instructor.

Kaze regained his composure and said happily, "Garo Spec Ops Team seems to be in good shape. I'll put you in charge of tomorrow's event."

"Thank you, sir! We will do our very best tomorrow!"

Koga lifted his chest and saluted once more.

Getting praised by his instructor was worth risking his life.

Those who did not participate in Kaze's special training could never understand Koga's excitement.

Koga Atlas-the commander of the Garo Spec Ops Team of Lilyrose Strategy Department and the youngest serving brigadier general one step shy from being promoted to general-was a rugged man yet he was tearing up excitedly because Kaze praised him.

He even got emotional. His men looked at Kaze with even more reverence. Lily and company drowned in fear and anxiety. They finally realized how big of a snag they hit this time.

Kaze then looked at them.

Chapter 109 Free Advertisement for the Hotel

Lily and the celebrities wished they were dead when they heard Kaze.

They tried to make him apologize and even claimed that they could make his hotel go bankrupt. They had hit the biggest snag in the world.

"S-Sir, you are obviously someone powerful. We dared not ask you to apologize to us. We should be the ones who apologized to you. Forgive us for being blind..." Lily begged meekly.

"Powerful?" Kaze's expression turned grim. He sneered, "If I am not powerful, you wouldn't apologize to me but the other way around. You even threatened to bankrupt my hotel by posting stuff online."

Andrew and Liv almost passed out when they heard Kaze because Kaze clearly remembered what they said to threaten him earlier.

Chills ran down their spines. They messed with someone they could not afford and there was no turning back.

Lily shuddered in fear. "Sir, we're sorry. We shouldn't ask you to leave or threaten you..."

She peeked at the soldier beside her,

The black muzzle was pointed at her head and the soldier's finger was on the trigger.

She believed with just a word from Kaze, the soldier would pull the trigger without a second thought.

Her mind went blank when she realized her life was in Kaze's hands. She did not know what to say except for sorry. "You asked the other hotel guests to leave, cleared out the whole famous people enjoy? Who gave you that privilege?" Kaze bellowed.

"Sobs... | am so sorry, sir. We dared not..."

Andrew and Liv who had lived the extravagant life because of their fame cried like little girls before Kaze.

"Shut up!" Kaze shouted.

It was irritating to listen to grown men cry.

The two of them immediately covered their mouths, afraid to make a sound.

"Thank goodness most men in this country aren't wimps like the two of you."

Kaze shook his head in disapproval.

If men in the country were like Andrew and Liv, then it would be the end for real.

Kaze did not have the time to lecture the wimps.

“Lone Wolf, take them away and make them write an apology letter. When they realize what they've done wrong, let them go.” Andrew and Liv were mortified. They were treated like kings for their status and now they were forced to write an apology letter. However, they dared not say a word to the expressionless Kaze.

“Yes, sir!”

Koga saluted once more and then signaled his men. “Bring them all back.”

Lily and company followed the elite soldiers away. “Hold on!” 25 BONU

Kaze suddenly held them back. He pointed at Andrew and Liv and slightly curled his lips. “You two, post the apology online and give the hotel a little exposure.”

Andrew and Liv tacitly knew what Kaze meant.

When they threatened Kaze earlier, they said they would do an advertisement for Kaze’s hotel, not to promote it but to destroy it. Kaze used their words against them and made them release the apology online.

With their fanbase and reputation, it would surely reach the first place on the trending list.

It would be embarrassing but they were forced to comply.

Chapter 110 Free of Charge

The Garo Spec Ops Team retreated in a flash and the hotel resumed normalcy. The fans outside the hotel were confused.

They saw the elite soldiers put the hotel on lockdown and bring their idols away. “What happened? Are Andrew and Liv going to be okay?”

“They are so kind and hard-working, why are they arrested?! They will never do anything wrong! The soldiers must be here to protect them!”

They made their speculations.

Back in the hotel, Manager Keegan and the hotel employees took a while to regain their composure. They did not expect their new boss to be such a powerful figure in the military.

One phone call and the Garo Spec Ops Team arrived.

How awesome was that!?

They were proud of their new boss.

Manager Keegan said respectfully, “Boss, should we allow those celebrities to check in later?”

The foolish celebrities offended his boss, so to clarify his boss’ thoughts, he had to inquire properly.

Kaze waved and said, “If they want to stay here, let them, but treat them like any other guests. We must be fair to all our guests. Of course, safety measures must be taken given their status but don’t go.

He shook his head helplessly when he looked at the fanatics outside the hotel, failing to grasp why the people would chase after idols and celebrities.

If the soldiers who served the country could enjoy the same level of respect, it would be great.
Celebrities produced by capitalism should not be admired blindly.

“Go back to work. | want to finish my lunch. Oh, and invite the customers back. Apologize to them and take care of the bill for them.

Kaze sent Manager Keegan and the other employees back to work and returned to his table to continue eating.

He ordered a lot of food and they should not be wasted.

The customers who were asked to leave earlier were invited back and the hotel apologized for the inconvenience caused. The customers were understanding enough to know that it was not the hotel’s fault but the celebrities.

Miru came back as well.

Afraid, she asked, “Kaze, did you know what happened just now? Some spec ops team was here and | was stopped outside! | only came in when they left!”

She noticed two-thirds of the food on the table was gone and she pursed her lips.

He must have starved for days.

Though she was impressed that he could continue eating after what happened. His mentality left her in awe. Kaze said as he munched his food, “Two celebrities came and Garos Spec Ops Team to bring them away.”

He knew Miru looked down on him and wanted Darcy to divorce him so he decided to tell Miru his identity.

Miru rolled her eyes at him. “You really think you are that VIP? On phone call and the spec ops team arrived?”

She refused to believe Kaze was the VIP, but from his words, she learned about what happened inside the hotel earlier. AVIP was having lunch and the celebrities disturbed him, so the spec ops team was called in to arrest them.

How amazing was that?

Miru was curious as to who the VIP was and it was unfortunate that she did not get the chance to see him in person.

Kaze shook his head with a sigh. He could not make Miru believe him either and it would be foolish to call the Garos Spec Ops Team back just to prove his point.

He should have told Koga to let Miru in and prove it to her then.

“Isn’t the washroom in the hotel? Why did you go out?” Kaze asked.

“I was afraid you couldn’t handle the bill, so I went out to make a call to get some money.”

Miru glanced at him and scoffed. “Do you have any idea how much you ordered? It’s almost a million!”

“That much?!” Kaze was surprised.
