

Guardian 21

Chapter 21 Destroy The Quint Family

Darcy could no longer control her anger. She shouted, "Chief Brooks, don't do this! I'll call the police!" "Haha! You're threatening me?"

Ned laughed maniacally and slapped Darcy on the face.

Darcy covered her swollen cheek and wanted to run but Ned caught her other hand. He pointed at the table and said, "Lay down and I'll fuck you here and now! You bitch! Stop pretending!"

"Let go of me!"

Darcy struggled but she was no match for the man.

Anxious, she grabbed a tumbler on the table and smashed Ned's head with it. "Aaargh! You fucking bitch! You hit me? I'll fucking rape you!"

Ned covered his bleeding forehead and cried in pain. He was forced to release Darcy. Darcy tossed the tumbler away and ran out of the room immediately.

After she left the place, she wandered alone on the street aimlessly. She was still terrified with her mind blank and clueless of what to do.

Suddenly, she received a call from Samus. "Where the hell are you? Come back here right now!" Darcy headed back to the Quint family mansion.

The Quint family was holding a family meeting. When she came in, everyone glared at her as if she was the prey who delivered herself to the predators.

Deborah's boyfriend, Vincent, was also there, and he was chatting with Master Quint.

"Grandfather, that witch is here," Deborah said.

"You little... On your knees!"

Master Quint slammed the table furiously and shouted, "Why did you hit Ned Brooks? Did you know he's the nephew of the mayor, Johnson Brooks? The Brooks family is a first-tier family in Lilyrose! Ned said he will take revenge on us! Are you trying to get us all killed?"

Darcy pleaded on her knees, "Grandfather, Ned Brooks said he would only give me the pre-sale certificate if I sleep with him, and he even tried to rape me, I..."

"Shut up! You hit him and yet you are arguing!"

Samus rudely interrupted her and shouted, "So what if he wants to sleep with you? Are you being serious right now? If you can get the pre-sale certificate by sleeping with him, isn't that great? He's ten times better than your retarded husband!"

"She's just trying to put us all in danger!"

The other family members berated her.

"Enough. Let's think of a solution first," Master Quint stopped the others with a frosty look.

Then, he swapped his frosty look for a flattering one as he turned to Vincent. "Vincent, can your family help us?"

Deborah curled her hands around her boyfriend's arm and said proudly, "Grandfather, don't worry. The Hanser family is also a first-tier family in the city. They are quite close with the Brooks family as well. I believe Vincent will help us overcome this problem."

She then glared at Darcy and ridiculed, "Unlike someone who married and clean her mess!"

THE LIG CITU,

"Yeah. Vincent will be our best son-in-law. Kaze is a useless trash who can only play pretend. He's not even in Vincent's league!" Vincent chuckled. "Of course I'll help, but Darcy hit Ned Brooks, and you guys have to come up with an explanation. I think we should turn Darcy in..."

"We have to!" Master Quint nodded strongly.

"Father, no! Darcy is still young! She might end up behind bars for assault! Her life would be over!"

Agnes came over and knelt before Master Quint, pleading.

The moment she got the news, she rushed to the mansion with Hector.

Master Quint bellowed, "She deserved it. She hit someone. If she doesn't turn herself in, she will be destroying our family!" "Then just let her destroy the family!"

It was Kaze who came in with Hector.

Chapter 22 Beat Up Ned Brooks

Ignoring the ferocious glares of the Quint family, Kaze went over to help Darcy up. "Darcy, let's go home. | assure you nothing will happen."

He also helped Agnes up and brought them out of the mansion.

"Darcy, you hit Ned Brooks! Do you really think you can run away like that? Turn yourself in!" "You better surrender for the sake of our family! Think of your parents! Hmph!"

The others continued to threaten Darcy, causing her face to turn as pale as paper.

"Kaze, send Mom and Dad home. I'll go turn myself in."

After leaving the Quint family's mansion, Darcy held Kaze's hand a tears washed her face. She said, "Please take care of them. | do believe my grandfather and the others, but | believe in you."

Agnes was worried. She pulled Darcy away and said to Kaze, "Kaze, why don't you take her spot? Darcy has suffered enough for the past few years and it's all because of you."

Kaze's heart was broken, but it was indeed his fault that Darcy and her family suffered terribly for the past few years.

He ignored Agnes and said, "Darcy, I'm telling you this isn't serious at all. We'll go talk to Ned Brooks and | assure you nothing will happen to you."

“Kaze, do you even know how serious the problem is? The Brooks family is a first-tier family, his uncle is the mayor of the city, Johnson Brooks. This is serious. It’s my fault for being reckless.”

Darcy covered her face with her hands and tears would drip through the seams of her fingers. She then wiped the tears off and said, “Kaze, bring Mom and Dad home. I’ll turn myself in at the police station.”

No matter how Kaze tried to convince her, Darcy refused to believe him. He felt helpless. He knew he had to act fast to solve the problem, and only then Darcy would believe him.

“I’ll go talk to Ned Brooks now.”

As he walked away, he pulled his phone out and called Draco. “I told you to contact Johnson Brooks. Is this how you do your job? | want to see him at the Housing Department in thirty minutes!”

“Kaze Lee, come back here! I’m telling you to turn yourself in on behalf of Darcy, where are you going?” Agnes shouted but it did not stop Kaze.

Infuriated, she bellowed, “Darcy, look at the man you married! He can’t do anything for us! You went to ask for the pre-sale certifiact and now that things have gone wrong, he left us! Look at how supportive Vincent is of Deborah...”

“Mom, stop it. Kaze might not be much help, but he won’t abandon me. After he hits a snag at the Housing Department, he will come back.”

Darcy then headed to the police station.

Meanwhile, at the Housing Department's office, Ned had just come back from the hospital after getting treated. He slammed his office door shut and shouted, “That bitch! No one has ever done this to me in my entire life, and it's by a woman!"

"Chief, I got the news that the woman is going to turn herself into the Ned's subordinate grinned wickedly and continued, "Until then, she's yours to play with."

"Hahaha! Good idea. I have never tried a female prisoner before!"

Ned laughed hysterically upon hearing his subordinate's suggestion. Bang!

The office door suddenly blasted in, hitting the subordinate in the head.

Before he could even scream, he was knocked out cold.

"Who the fuck..."

Frightened, Ned looked at the doorless entrance.

"Darcy's husband, Kaze Lee."

Kaze strode into the office.

Chapter 23 Uncle is Mayor.

"What the fuck are you trying to do? Don't come near me!"

Ned instinctively retreated. His face turned pale. "Your wife hit me! One word and I can throw her behind bars for life!" "Are you threatening me?" Kaze darted forward and lifted the bastard by the collar.

Bang!

He rammed Ned's head against the glass partition, leaving his head dangling outside while the rest of his body hung over the metal railing.

"Aaaaaah!"

Ned screamed at the top of his lungs while struggling to get unstuck.

The broken glasses cut his face, causing him to bleed terribly.

"I am the Chief of the Housing Department! How dare you hit m fucking retard! You and your family are fucking dead!" Kaze did not say a word. He simply kicked the man's bottom.

"Aaaaaah!"

The kick squeezed Ned's upper body out of the glass partition.

The metal railing was crooked after the impact.

Ned felt like his bones were all broken.

Kaze went outside the office, grabbed Ned by the neck, and pulled his entire body out of the glass partition.

He screamed excruciatingly as he was being dragged out of the broken glasses.

“Chief of the Housing Department is it? I’m scared already. Let’s go down and let your men see how scary you are.” Kaze grabbed Ned by the ankle and dragged him across the floor as he walked downstairs.

When he arrived at the lobby, Ned barely looked like a human.

The entire building was alarmed by Ned’s scream and more than a hundred people gathered at the lobby.

“Call my uncle! Tell him to bring the police chief, Don Braders, here and shoot this son of a bitch!”

Ned started screaming for help again once he regained his breath.

“Let go of Chief Brooks! His uncle is the mayor, Johnson Brooks! You are breaking the law by beating Chief Brooks here in the Housing Department!”

Someone called the police while some berated Kaze and some tried to fight him. Kaze’s fierce gaze easily scared them off. “You pieces of shit! Help me!”

Ned was never so embarrassed and insulted. He continued shouting, You fuck! You better let go of me before my uncle arrives! Kneel and beg for your life! Or else | will make sure to fuck you and your family up.... Ugh!”

A foot stomped on his face, silencing him completely. Kaze sat down with his foot on Ned's face and asked, “Where is Johnson Brooks?”

Then, a fleet of cars arrived outside the building.

The mayor’s entourage arrived at the entrance. Johnson Brooks was

When the parade of cars stopped, Johnson emerged from his car. With him was Don Braders and other high-ranking police officers from the local police force. “Haha! My uncle is here! You fucking retard! You and your stupid wife are dead! Even if you kneel, I’ll fucking kill you!”

Ned struggled to move his face away from Kaze’s foot. He looked at the entrance as his savior had arrived. He screamed, “Uncle Johnson, you’re here! Help me! I’m dying here!”

The moment Johnson saw Kaze, he shuddered.

Others might not know Kaze’s real identity but as the most powerful man in Lilyrose City, Johnson knew. God of War, Kaze Lee!

Ned continued screaming, “Uncle Johnson, help! Lock this son of a bitch up! Shoot him to death!”

“Shut your mouth!” Johnson bellowed.

He pointed at his nephew and scolded, “You shameless little p You accused Ms. Darcy Quint and tried to hurt her! As the mayor this city, and your uncle, I shall not tolerate your criminal act!”

Chapter 24 Righteousness Before Family

Everyone was shocked.

What happened?

Ned was beaten and stepped on but Johnson, his uncle and also the mayor, scolded him instead of apprehending the culprit. Johnson clenched his teeth tightly and stared at his nephew viciously.

“Uncle Johnson, can’t you see? He almost killed me!” Ned continued screaming for help.

“You got what you deserved!”

Johnson then looked at the expressionless Kaze. He clenched his fists and teeth tightly. Then, he looked around and walked to an employee to take the baseball bat away.

The employee planned to beat Kaze with the baseball bat, but it did not happen.

Johnson raised the bat in the air. As more than a hundred pairs of eyes watched in disbelief, John swung the bat down at Ned. “Aaaargh!” Ned cried in pain.

It was just the start. Johnson beat Ned furiously and he did not hold back at all.

Ned continued to wail in pain.

He had never been so insulted and humiliated before, being beaten up by his own uncle in front of more than a hundred people. Clank!

Johnson then tossed the bat away and went up to Kaze. As everyone

Mr. Lee, it’s my fault for not teaching my nephew well. I am so sorry that this little bastard offended Ms. Quint. Please accept my apology.”

Everyone was silenced, shocked, and could not believe what just happened. Even Ned was speechless. The entire lobby hall was quiet.

Who exactly was Kaze? Why would the mayor of the city bow respectfully to him?

Countless pairs of eyes stared at Kaze, wondering his true identity.

Johnson remained bowed with his heart pounding as he waited for a reply from Kaze. His forehead was covered in sweat, because the entire Brooks family would vanish with just one word from Kaze.

“I won't put the blame on your entire family.”

Kaze was satisfied with how Johnson handled the matter. He said, “I just want two things-Ned Brooks must apologize to my wife at the station and give her the pre-sale certificate.”

“Thank you, Mr. Lee!” Johnson breathed a sigh of relief.

He was frightened when he learned that Darcy had gone to the police station to turn herself in because of his stupid nephew. He sweated profusely as he told the chief inspector, Don, to bring Ned back to the station for the apology.

Meanwhile, at the southern branch of the police station, Darcy fought her thoughts for a long time before she bit the bullet and went up to the officer on duty.

“I am here to turn myself in. I am Darcy Quint, and I accidentally hit the Chief of the Housing Department, Ned Brooks.” Soon, a middle-aged woman in uniform and heavy makeup appeared and glanced at Darcy.

She scoffed and scolded, “So you are the little bitch who's trying to seduce Ned, and even hit him!”

“Hey! Watch your mouth!” Agnes stood up and defended her daughter.

The middle-aged woman's expression turned grim.

Then, a middle-aged man, who was the officer on duty, scolded Agnes, “Mind your tone! She's Nara Nalano, senior office of our branch, and also Mr. Brooks' wife! Show some respect!”

Agnes' expression shifted. Her tone grew weaker as she said, "My daughter didn't try to seduce your husband..."

"She did! Little bitch, I'll teach you a lesson!"

Nara went up to Darcy and raised her hand in the air.

Darcy was so frightened that her face turned pale.

"Stop it right there!"

A bellow came from outside the station.

Ned came in limping and slapped Nara to the side.

Confused, Nara covered her face and cried, "Ned Brooks, what is the meaning of this? You slapped me?"

"Shut up, bitch! You have no right to slap Ms. Quint! Get out of my face!"

Chapter 25 Fawning Ned glared at his wife. He then turned to Darcy, who was mortified, and bowed apologetically.

"Ms. Quint, | am so sorry, please don't turn yourself in or whatever. | should be punished for what | did to you, you have every right to hit me!" He then slapped himself a few times.

Nara was stunned by her husband's action but she dared not say a word. She knew her husband must have offended some powerful people.

“Chief Brooks, uh...”

Darcy and her parents were stunned as well.

Then, Kaze showed up. Darcy asked hurriedly, “Kaze, what is going on?”

“I went to the Housing Department, beat him up, and he swore not to take revenge on us,” Kaze said with a smile. Darcy and her parents then realized Ned was covered in injuries.

Ned then said timidly, “Yes, yes. Mr. Lee has taught me a lesson and I learned what I did wrong. I will never do it again.” “Chief Brooks, you're not taking revenge anymore?”

Darcy was still concerned. She was afraid that Ned simply agreed not to take revenge now because Kaze beat him up but went against his words after they left.

“No, no, no. Ms. Quint, I will never take revenge on you even if I have the nerves. Besides, Mayor Brooks has also taught me a lesson.

Ned wished he could lower his head down to the floor.

Then, he took a stack of documents out from his briefcase and handed them to Darcy respectfully. “These are the pre-sale certificates for Passion Fragrance District. Please have a look.”

Darcy was stunned even when she accepted the documents.

Kaze went to the Housing Department, beat up Ned Brooks, and startled the mayor. Then, the mayor taught Ned a lesson and made him apologize to Darcy, and surrender the pre-sale certificate?

Darcy and her parents found it unbelievable but it was actually happening before their eyes. After they went home, knowing that the problem had been solved, the family finally breathed a sigh of relief.

Nevertheless, Agnes nagged at Kaze for his recklessness. “Kaze, you almost got us all in trouble! If not for the mayor who is understanding, you'll get us all in serious trouble.”

Kaze simply nodded. The next morning, Kaze's phone rang.

“Mr. Chairman, the developer of Horizon Mirror Mansion, Bruno Bandino of the Heavensward Group, just called. He said his cousin runs a furniture company and they specialize in building custom furniture. | believe the mansion is still unfurnished, do you want to browse their collection?”

It was Ray who called. “Sure. I'll go have a look.” Kaze nodded. Ray was being considerate since the mansion was indeed unfurnished. He needed to buy a set of furniture.

“I'll tell my secretary, Snow Frost, to pick you up. She's also an employee of Perfect World now, and she will be tasked to serve you from now on.”

“Sure,” Kaze said.

An hour later, Kaze and Snow, together with the manager of Heavensward Group, Bruno, and the owner of Saika Furniture, Brock Bandino, visited the showroom to have a look at the products.

“Mr. Lee, what do you think of the rosewood study furniture set?” Bruno asked respectfully.

“I am sure that once it's laid out in the study room, it will be the most elegant study room in the city.”

“Bruno is right. The entire set of rosewood study furniture is designed by Saika Furniture's chief designer and handmade by a master carpenter. There is only one set in the entire world..."

"Just name the price."

Kaze did not bother listening to Bruno's sales pitch, he simply stopped the man and asked for the price. He was fond of the rosewood furniture as well. If placed in the study room, his father-in-law would like it. Bruno said timidly, "It's not always about the money. If Mr. Lee likes it and considers it a gift..."

Kaze glanced at him.

Snow then said, "Mr. Bandino, Mr. Lee's favor isn't something you can buy with a ten million dollar furniture set. You better put your thoughts away and talk business. Let's deal fairly."

Chapter 26 Meeting Kelly Again

Bruno nervously wiped his sweaty forehead. He scolded himself inwardly for being impatient. After Kaze moved into Horizon Mirror Mansion, Bruno had many more chances to flatter the man.

"Yes, yes. I'll tell my men to prepare the necessary documents."

Kaze nodded.

Bruno breathed a sigh of relief and immediately left.

"I have to go to the washroom," Kaze said to Snow and went ahead.

Snow was smart enough not to follow.

“Hey, isn’t this Kaze, who impersonated the chairman the other day? What are you doing here in Saika Furniture?” Before Kaze entered the washroom, the strange voice of a woman resounded in his ears.

Kelly, with her heels clacking, came over with a contemptuous look.

Kaze had no good impression of the woman. He wanted to ignore her but the woman got in his way. He smiled and said, “I am here with Bruno Bandino to choose some furniture for my house.”

Kelly looked at him with disdain. The useless retard was bragging in front of her. Of course, she knew Bruno Bandino. The man was the general manager of Heavensward Group.

She was supposed to interview at the Heavensward Group for the position of the general manager's secretary, but she was told to Kelly scoffed.

Saika Furniture specialized in making expensive furniture and would only accept orders for expensive mansions. Each set of furniture would cost at least ten million.

“Kaze, you are really funny. You came here to shop for furniture? Can you even afford a nail?”

Kelly crossed her arms and laughed, “My guess is you're here to look for a job. You wasted the favor of the chairman just like that, so what else can you do? You useless thing | bet you're here to interview for the security guard's position.”

Kaze noticed the resume in Kelly's hand. He laughed, “I guess that makes two of us. You are also here to look for a job, why must you look down on me?" "Hmph! | am the general manager's secretary, a much higher position than yours! You stupid security guard!"

Kelly added scornfully, "And if you really became the security guard here, don't tell anyone you know me! | am not that familiar with you!"

Kaze did not want to waste his energy on the woman. He waved at the woman and said, "Alright, you can piss off now. Stop bugging me."

Kelly was agitated. "Piss off? Believe me if | say | can get you thrown out of this place! You will lose the security guard's position and you will starve!"

Then, she screamed, "Security! Security!"

Two security guards came.

Kelly pointed at Kaze and said angrily, "| am Mr. Bandino's secretary. Throw his man out the gate immediately!" The owner of Saika Furniture was Brock, cousin to Bruno, but Kelly acted like it was her own company.

The security guards looked at Kaze hesitantly.

They saw Kaze looking through the furniture with the Bandino cousins.

Kelly was Bruno's new secretary.

While the security guards hesitated, Snow came over after noticing the commotion. The Bandino cousins also rushed over.

Bruno did not spare a glance at the others and ran straight to Kaze. "Mr. Lee, this is the contract. All you need to do is sign it and the set of furniture will be yours."

"Mr. Lee, I will arrange for my men to deliver the set of furniture to Horizon Mirror," Brock said. Kelly's jaw dropped. "Kaze, you..."

She could not believe that Kaze was indeed here to purchase new furniture for his house. Bruno then finally noticed Kelly. He asked, "Who might this be?"

"My wife's classmate."

Kaze then walked into the washroom.

"Oh, you are Ms. Quint's classmate? You have the resume with you, so you are here to interview for the general manager's secretary? You got the position!"

Chapter 27 Not Familiar With Her

Kelly was thrilled when Bruno accepted her resume.

She then widened her eyes at Kaze, who made her pass the interview with just one word.

Who exactly was the man?

Kaze was inside the washroom but then his voice rang from inside, saying, "I'm not familiar with her." His words destroyed Kelly's hopes and excitement.

She saw Bruno tearing her resume into pieces in front of her.

“Take care, Mr. Lee!”

When the Bandino cousins sent Kaze out, he saw Kelly being throw out by the two security guards.

Kelly saw Kaze entering the car with Snow. She ran over to the doo and cried, “Kaze, | was wrong! Sorry, | shouldn’t have scolded you or asked you to leave! Please forgive me! Please tell Mr. Bandino, | really need the job! Please!”

Snow sharply noticed the expressionless face on Kaze. She said to the driver, “Drive.”

The window was wound up and the Maybach drove off.

Samus and Deborah went to Master Quint.

“Grandfather, do something about Darcy and her family. They got the pre-sale certificate and are moving into Horizon Mirror!”

Deborah cried and grumbled, “Grandfather, our company is having a financial problem yet Darcy and her family didn’t choose to sell the mansion to help us. They chose to move in and enjoy their lives!”

Master Quint stared at Samus coldly, “What about the guy your mentioned? Gold Tooth’s man?”

Samus helplessly said, “I contacted the man already but it won’t be that fast... But we should be the ones staying in Horizon Mirror! Why them? Grandfather, while we're facing a crisis, Darcy and her family are enjoying life. It’s so unfair, they don’t even care if you are dead...”

Before Samus could finish, Master Quint slapped him in the face. “What are you talking about? I’m still alive!”

Master Quint sighed strongly. He got up from the bed and said, “They are moving into a new house while we are having a problem. They disrespect me as the elder of this house!”

“Come, we shall go to Skylar View District to have a look!”

He brought the entire family along and marched to Skylar View District.

“Sir, this is private property, you are not allowed...”

“Hush! My granddaughter is the owner of Horizon Mirror! She’s moving in today and I’m here to have a look! Let us in immediately!”

Master Quint shouted at the security guard impatiently at the entrance of Skylar View District. Knowing that they were the owner’s family, the security guard immediately opened the gate for them and allowed them entry. “That’s such a huge lake with yachts!”

“So this is the Skylar View District? It's beautiful! It can fit a fleet of

The Quint family members were in awe when they entered the grand and luxurious residential district.

“The yachts are prepared for the residents. They can use them for any purpose. Why don’t you guys go have a look?” The security guard brought the family up to the yacht and they cruised smoothly on the beautiful lake.

The greens by the shore were lush and refreshing.

“This lake is named Horizon Mirror, the same name as the mansions here. The water here is actually fresh water from Thousand Island Lake.”

“The entire residential district has only a few mansions and they are all separated by lake canals. It protects the owners’ privacy and stops outsiders from disturbing them.”

The Quint family was envious as they listened to the security guard cum guide’s introduction.

The Skylar View District was a residential area on a massive a lake with fresh water from another lake. It was glorious and outrageously beautiful.

Chapter 28 A Bet Master Quint pointed at a mansion by the shore and asked, "Is that the Horizon Mirror?"

"No. That's the mansion of Draco Lang, the new Chief Commander of Lilyrose Strategy Department. The Horizon Mirror is on another side," explained the guide as he pointed at the nearest building by the shore.

"That means we will be neighbors with the Chief Commander if we live here!"

Rudy's eyes glimmered with hope upon hearing the guide.

Meanwhile, at Horizon Mirror, Kaze was bringing Darcy and his i laws around the mansion.

in-

They had not officially moved in, but his mother-in-law was bragging to everyone about moving into the mansion soon.

"This open kitchen is really huge! And the dining area! Why don't we move in today?" Agnes said excitedly as she touched everything she saw. Darcy chuckled helplessly and said, "Mom, you are rushing things. We still need to buy a lot of furniture..." "Darcy, at least you know that you are poor and unable to afford all those expensive furniture!"

Deborah's annoying voice came from the door.

Darcy turned to the entrance and her expression changed.

Master Quint and the rest of the extended family marched in righteously as if the place was theirs.

“Father, you guys are here! You should have called us and we would

Have pickou you up:

Agnes went up to them with a flattering smile, the delight on her face was obvious.

The extended family had always looked down on her and her family, She was and now they came all the way here to visit her new home. proud for once.

Samus scoffed and said, “You really think you own this place? Why must we tell you if we are coming over?” “Samus, watch your tone when you talk to my mother!” Darcy bellowed angrily. “What? Was | wrong?” Samus rolled his eyes at Darcy. “Poor bastards, you people can’t even afford furniture and you're trying to lecture me? Look at your neighbor, that’s Chief Commander, Draco Lang. The owners of the other units are also rich and influential figures.

“Yet you three and that idiot moved into this luxurious place money. If you bump into your neighbors in the future, woul feel ashamed? This is out of your league, don’t even bother!”

Agnes, who was delighted a moment ago, lowered her head awkwardly. The happiness in her faded instantly. Darcy was furious. She glared at Deborah but she could not come with appropriate words to retort. no

Kaze was coming back from the washroom and overheard the conversation. He laughed and said, “Samus, what if | can afford the expensive furniture?”

“Hahaha!” Samus laughed hysterically. He did not bother concealing his contempt for Kaze.

“You piece of shit! Don’t tell me you are moving scraps in here as your

said. | could spare you some money and get some second-hand furniture. It's better than having scraps.”

Deborah echoed, “The Horizon Mirror is worth fifty million, so a set of fitting furniture must be at least ten million, or else it’s just plain embarrassing using old furniture.”

“Hahaha!”

Everyone laughed.

Kaze chuckled. “Ten million? That’s what you call class? That's just the study desk | bought to place in Hector’s home office.” “You're still talking big, aren’t you?”

Samus’ expression turned grim. He then grinned strangely and said, Kaze, why don’t we have a bet? | bet you can’t afford tens of millions of furniture.”

“Sure. What are you betting?” Kaze nodded. “If you win, | will jump into the lake and swim back!” Samus continued with a wicked look, “If you lose, this place belongs to us!”

Chapter 29 Thirty Million Furniture

Samus was trying to get the Horizon Mirror Mansion without spending a dime. Kaze smiled and nodded. “Of course, let’s bet.”

Before he could speak any further, Agnes stopped him.

“What are you talking about?” Agnes stared at him. “We are not taking the bet! The Horizon Mirror is our home! Don’t even think about taking it away, Samus!”

Samus pouted. “You really think I’m an idiot? I’m just playing with your retarded son-in-law. You people are poor, if you don’t have the balls to bet, then don’t brag like you have them!”

Agnes was silenced. She turned pale, and like her daughter, she did not have any valid points to counter. She turned away, aggrieved.

Kaze then said coldly, “Samus, watch your mouth. So, is the be on?”

Samus was slightly surprised. He did not expect Kaze to accept bet.

He laughed hysterically as if Kaze were a dead man. He said wickedly, “If you want to bet, then let's bet.”

“Kaze, don’t do anything stupid!” Darcy pulled Kaze back.

Even if her family could not afford to live in Horizon Mirror, they could sell it instead of surrendering it to Samus.

“Darcy, believe me. The furniture is on the way.”

Kaze calmed Darcy down and then said to Samus, “Great. | hope your are a man of your word and jump into the lake later.” “| could say the same to you.”

Samus did not even care about Kaze's threats. He scoffed and continued, "You better get out of this house now. Don't kneel before me and beg me to let you stay. Hahaha..."

The others laughed together.

Darcy and her family affording furniture worth tens of millions of dollars?

What a joke!

Master Quint grinned as if the Horizon Mirror was already his.

He looked around, seemingly satisfied with the house. "This house is so big. It's going to be lonely for me to stay here alone."

Samus smiled and flattered the man, "Grandfather, we can move in together. Then we can have a stroll in the garden whenever we are free!"

"Yeah, Grandfather. We will take care of you!" Deborah went up to curl her hands around Master Quint's arm.

The old man was thrilled to have his favorite grandchildren by his side. He tapped his leg happily and said, "Great! You guys can m in together!"

Rudy nodded repeatedly upon hearing his father whereas Darcy and her parents turned pale.

Agnes pinched Kaze's arm. "Kaze, you bastard! Who permitted you to bet with Samus? You can just shut up and stay quiet!" "Is Mr. Lee here?"

Before her voice subsided, several members of the Heavensward Group's management escorted a man into the mansion.

When Master Quint saw the man, his eyes widened energetically, and said in shock, “Mr. Bruno Bandino of Heavensward Group?!”

The general manager of Heavensward Group, Bruno Bandino. “Mr. Bandino! Welcome!” Master Quint welcomed Bruno warmly. The other family members were delighted by his arrival as well.

“Mhm...”

Bruno simply nodded and then walked over to Kaze, leaving Master Quint and the others stunned. He then said respectfully, “Mr. Lee, the furniture you bought from Brock is here.”

He then signaled his men to unload the furniture into the house.

“Be careful! The rosewood table alone is worth ten million! Don’t scratch it!”

Bruno ordered his men around and even helped to move some of the lighter pieces.

“That set of study alone is ten million, and there are so many more.

The Quint family was stunned upon seeing Bruno helping move the furniture. Their expressions froze as they watched the furniture being unloaded. Master Quint gulped and said courteously, “Mr. Bandino, may I know how much all these cost?”

Bruno looked at Kaze for permission. Kaze did not deny him, so he said, "More than thirty million in total."

Chapter 30 Out You Go Gasp! Everyone choked in shock, including Darcy and her parents.

Master Quint and the others reacted bitterly. They had been teasing and sneering at Kaze for not being able to afford ten million dollars worth of furniture, yet the rosewood study table set alone was worth exactly that much.

Kaze went up to Master Quint and smiled, "Grandfather, is this house big enough?" "It's huge! Not just the house, even the lake outside is massive! Haha!"

Master Quint was much more courteous when he talked to Kaze now.

Kaze smiled. "Is it classy enough?"

"Of course! This house is worth fifty million! Many people even dream about living here!" Kaze remained smiling. "Then I believe staying here must be right?"

"Of course! There are less than a handful of families in Lilyrose could afford this place!" not

Master Quint nodded. He thought Kaze asking all these questions was because he wanted to invite him to move in together. Kaze then put his smile away and said, "But what does it have to do with you?"

What?

Kaze's words silenced the entire house.

"Kaze, what is the meaning of this?" Master Quint glared at him.

He finally understood that Kaze played him.

"I am stating the obvious. The Horizon Mirror is our house, and it has nothing to do with you or your extended family. Now that you've seen enough, it's time for you to leave."

Master Quint fumed in anger. He glared at Kaze fiercely.

Samus bellowed, "Kaze, cut the crap! Your wife is also a Quint, and you are the Quint family's son-in-law. Your house is also ours!"

"That's right! We fed you and now you're turning your back on us? Ungrateful bastard!" Deborah and the others criticized Kaze.

Kaze scoffed and looked at them. "Now that Darcy and I are rich, you call us family? When you lot left Darcy to clean up the mess and asked her to turn herself in to the police, why didn't you call us your family then?"

Everyone was silenced. Be it Hector, Agnes, or Darcy, the three of them teared up when they heard Kaze defending them.

Deborah scoffed and argued, "Darcy, tell us the truth. How did you get thirty million worth of furniture? Did you sleep with someone? I was wondering why the mayor would hit his nephew. Did you.."

Before she could finish, a powerful slap landed on her face.

Slap!

"One more nonsense from your mouth and I'll cut your tongue out," Kaze warned her coldly.

Darcy was also agitated by Deborah's accusation. She bellowed, "Kaze, tell them where you got the money for the furniture."

Hector and Agnes finally realized the problem. They were so carried away by the thrills and forgot to ask how Kaze could afford the furniture. WwWhere did he get the money? DDeborah glared at Kaze. "Tell us the truth! | don't believe you have ththat much money!"

"ins spending my own money, it's none of your business!"

Everyone was shocked. Massier Quint could barely stand still while Deborah was so upset that her expression turned vicious. Buncolooiiots."

Kaze ecuckleed and said to Bruno, "Mr. Bandino, these people are disturisining me and my family. Please tell your men to throw them out."

"Kaze, are youueelling us to leave?!"

Everyone was sutinous, especially Master Quint.

He was the eldessinin the family and it had always been him telli Kaze to leave the housse not the other way around.

Now, the once ussless secard was telling him to leave!

How insulting!!