Chapter 901 The Consequences of Defiance

“Are you even an Arcadian?” Winnie said exasperatedly, feeling sick to her stomach by Jem’s behavior.

Kaze said coldly, “You’re a traitor to our country.”

“How dare you!”

Jem was about to blow up.

“No need to get worked up over these brutes, Jem,” Danny said.

Danny soon furrowed his brows. “I’m not pleased with the staff here. My child was injured, but no one came to resolve the matter. Are the employees here condoning the attacker?”

An employee of Century Fun, who was hiding in the crowd to observe the situation, turned pale.

He turned on his walkie-talkie. m search the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

“Manager...”

Soon, a group of Century Fun’s staff members rushed over.

A member approached Danny and apologized. “Hello, Mr. Tulip. I am Scott Young, the general manager of Century Fun. I apologize for arriving late. I was caught up in an emergency.

“What can be more important than the assault of Mr. Tulip’s child?”

Jem scoffed disgruntledly, pointed at Kaze’s group, and said, “Mr. Tulip wanted the perpetrator to apologize and compensate 1 million prys for the hospital bill, but they refused. to comply.

“The incident happened here. Shouldn’t you show us where you stand?”

Scott learned who Danny and his group were from his employee. Besides, Danny and his party were not locals either. Scott simply nodded in agreement.

“That’s true. We will strive to meet your expectations, Mr. Tulip.”

Scott bowed and scraped to Danny before turning to Kaze and Winnie with a different attitude.

“You are aware of Mr. Tulip’s request. Hurry up and apologize. It’s only right you compensate him,” Scott said with a straight face.

Winnie did not expect the general manager of Century Fun to demand an apology from them indiscriminately.

She snapped back. “Mr. Young, have you listened to all sides of the story yet? Have checked the surveillance footage?

you

“Why do you ask us to apologize right away? Is it because they are foreigners?”

With a grimace, Scott pointed at Danny Jr.’s scraped arm and said, “Regardless of who is at fault, Mr. Tulip’s son is injured and bleeding. The least you should do is compensate him.

“I’m only looking out for you. Mr. Tulip is an honorable guest with diplomatic privileges. It might lead to bigger problems if he’s not pleased with the resolve today.

“Have you thought about the consequences if that happens, especially when your child is the cause of all this?” Scott said gravely.

Scott put pressure on Winnie in hopes she would give in and make amends to Danny’s satisfaction.

Kaze said with a relaxed smile, “I’m interested to see the consequences if the fix isn’t to the alien’s satisfaction.”

The group of foreigners was upset, and Danny’s wife yelled, “How dare you call us aliens, you lowlife!”

Danny shot an angry look at Kaze and sneered. “You can try me. I’ll show you the consequences of defying me.”

He then turned to Scott and ordered, “Tell your security to retrain them and kick them out now, Mr. Young.”

The political figures of Arcadia had been courteous and compliant to Danny’s requests since his arrival in the country.

The extravagant hospitality fueled Danny’s arrogance, and he commanded Scott like the latter was his servant.

Chapter 902 Live with Integrity

“See? You have pissed Mr. Tulip off.”

Scott glared at Kaze before sucking up to Danny. “Mr. Tulip, security guards can’t make arrests or use force like the police can.”

“Enough with the nonsense. Mr. Tulip is giving you authority now.”

Jem, who stood beside Danny, reprimanded. “Just do as Mr. Tulip says. He has you covered. What are you afraid of? The police can’t do anything to you.

“Besides, Mr. Tulip just wants to kick them out and embarrass them.

“We’ll be filing a case with the police later to make them pay.”

Good at reading Danny’s mind, Jem guessed what he was thinking. Search The website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

“You’re right, Jem. While members of my family are cultured, we will not tolerate insults from riffraff.”

Danny glanced at Kaze and smirked ruthlessly. “Now I’ll show you the consequences of upsetting me.

His vile remarks drained Winnie’s face of color.

She looked at Kaze and said reluctantly, “Maybe I should just apologize and pay up.”

The local's behavior toward Danny was disheartening.

Judging by the confidence in Danny's tone, the police, when called, would likely take Danny's side too.

Winnie wanted to put an end to the matter instead of giving Kaze more problems.

"Mommy, why should we apologize? They teamed up to bully me. I didn't mean to make him bleed," Brenda mumbled with pouty lips.

She could not understand the situation.

"You're right, Brenda. You have done nothing wrong. You shouldn't apologize."

Kaze shuffled Brenda's hair before telling Winnie, "Hear that? It's not a matter of solving the issue. We aren't at fault, but if we, as parents, apologize today, what would Brenda think of the situation?"

"I hope my goddaughter will grow up and live with integrity. I want her to treat everybody. with respect and equally regardless of status, class, or nationality.

"I do not want her to suck up to authorities or the upper class."

The onlooking crowd applauded Kaze's resounding statement.

There had been a trend among foreigners in Arcadia to call the locals lowlifes.

The two locals on the scene even helped the foreigners to pick on their fellow countrymen.

It was infuriating.

Jem and Scott pulled long faces.

Kaze was criticizing them.

Scott narrowed his eyes at Kaze dangerously and beckoned his employee in the back. He said curtly, "Call security."

The group of foreigners stared at Kaze in ridicule.

It did not take much for foreigners to pit the locals against each other.

The foreigners loved to watch the drama they had created.

“You’re a lowlife. Let’s see if you still have your backbone intact once security gets here.” Danny’s wife sneered while glaring at Kaze.

“Haha! I’ve met locals who were more stubborn than him

Chapter 903

Chapter 903 A Strange Request

The group of foreigners taunted like no one else’s business.

The onlooking locals were enraged by their remarks.

“What? Did we say something wrong? We only spoke of the truth. You are all lowlifes. Haha!”

The foreigners only took things up a notch and mocked the offended crowd.

Backed by her peers, Danny’s wife said cockily, “Hear that? A lowlife like you should apologize on your knees. I might just consider forgiving you.

She pointed at Kaze menacingly, her finger with a huge rock up his nose.

Kaze side-eyed the woman and said indifferently, “One more word from you, and I’ll hit you.”

The foreigners burst out laughing in amusement.

“Oh, Arcadians love to make meaningless threats. It’s all talk and no action with them.”

“Yeah, slavery is in their veins.”

Danny's wife crossed her arms and looked at Kaze in disdain. "Hey, lowlife! I might respect you a little if you have the guts to hit me."

With a chilling glint in his eyes, Kaze slapped her right away.

Smack!

The assault left a handprint on the woman's freckled face.

The bustle in the hall quieted down as the group of foreigner's jaws dropped in shock. They did not expect Kaze to actually hit Danny's wife

He did not even hesitate to attack her.

The onlooking crowd felt the assault was justified.

"Ow!"

Danny's wife snapped out of the shock.

She let out a scream, her face wincing in rage.

"Argh! How dare you! How dare you hit me! Lowlife!

"Ahhhh!"

The hall echoed with the woman's harrowing shriek.

Kaze flicked his arm indifferently and said in a flat tone, "You asked me to hit you. I have never come across such a strange request."

His nonchalance drove the woman over the edge..

"Ah, bastard! I'm going to kill you!"

The woman put her hand over her cheek and backed away.

"Don't just stand there, Danny! Are you going to sit and watch as your wife is hit? "Kill him! Kill the bastard!"

She had lost it. The hall was filled with her raging bellows.

Danny made a sour look and pulled his wife to the back before uttering grimacingly, "Damn you! This is an act of aggression!"

The tension crackled in the air.

The crowd could read Danny's anger from his chilling tone.

Kaze had angered a member of the Tulip family.

As reality sunk in, the onlooking crowd realized the matter had blown out of proportion.

"You were reckless there, sir. Now you're in for it," an individual commented, foreseeing the consequences Kaze would face.

The foreigners, backed by power, faced no opposition from the civilians.

"Sigh, it's sad that we can't even stop foreigners from acting cocky in our land," an individual lamented while shaking their head.

The crowd believed that Kaze would suffer for challenging the foreigners.

Chapter 904 Break Limbs

"I don't care who you are and where you are from, Arcadian. I'm going to make you pay," Danny said menacingly to Kaze.

He cocked his head back and commanded Scott, "I change my mind. Order your security guards to break the guy's limbs and throw him out. He can beg for his life on his knees."

Danny ordered to cripple Kaze in public.

His arrogance was overwhelming.

"Um..."

Scott glanced at the onlooking customers hesitantly.

As the general manager of Century Fun, Scott had invoked public resentment by favoring Danny over Kaze.

If Scott were to break Kaze's limbs at Danny's instruction, Century Fun might lose business and face a public boycott.

"What are you afraid of? Mr. Tulip has you covered," Jem said.

Later, he changed the subject and said arrogantly, "Don't forget. It's a chance for you to get in Mr. Tulip's good graces. This opportunity comes once in a lifetime."

It struck Scott that Danny was a special guest from the royal family.

Truth be told, even if Century Fun went bust, Scott could still make it in the world should the foreigners be on his side.

On the contrary, Scott would face their wrath if he upset them.

Scott made his decision.

"What can I do for you, Mr. Young?"

Scott pointed at Kaze and shouted, "He wouldn't listen to reason and committed an assault here. For the safety of the public, please escort him out now."

Despite Scott's high-sounding speech, everybody knew he chose to heed Danny's order and kick Kaze out.

"Mr. Young, don't act like you're in the right. When these foreigners insulted us, you didn't do anything to stop them," Winnie said angrily, unable to take it anymore.

Scott glanced at her and told the head of security with a smirk, "Mind your approach. Don't be so rough as to break his limbs. Century Fun's reputation would be on the line if the public took videos of the incident."

Taken aback by Scott's outrageousness, Winnie said to Kaze anxiously, "Run, Kaze. I'll call the cops."

"Don't worry. They are just a few security guards. They are no match for me."

Kaze shook his head and said indifferently, "Call Snow and give her a brief account of the situation. She'll know what to do."

His flat tone bore a hint of rage.

The foreigner's arrogance and abuse had gotten on his last nerves.

Winnie pulled out her phone to call Snow.

The head of security was Scott's confidante. Getting the hint, he patted his chest and said, "Relax, Mr. Young. We expect some resistance while escorting him out, but we'll do our best to handle it."

He then gave Kaze the stink eye and waved at the other security officers in the back.

"Come on. Surround the attacker. Don't let him hurt the customers."

The head of security faced Kaze head-on.

The security guards behind him quickly encircled Kaze.

The head of security looked askance at Kaze and uttered, "Please cooperate with us, sir. We have a job to do. Come with us outside to sort out this issue."

Chapter 905

Chapter 905 Whose Limbs Broken

Kaze was expected to show understanding to the security officers even though they were the ones acting maliciously toward him.

The logic did not make sense.

Kaze furrowed his brows repulsively and said indifferently, "I can't move. We can sort any issues here."

The head of security grimaced and glanced at the onlooking customer before waving at his

The security officers hemmed in on Kaze, blocking the customers from taking videos and photos of them.

The head of security grinned at Kaze, revealing his tobacco–stained teeth. “Since you can’t move, I’ll help you move then.”

Following a chilling glint in his eyes, the head of security reached for Kaze’s throat.

He came on Kaze with incredible speed.

“You jump straight to violence. Are you an outlaw or a security officer?”

Kaze turned sideways to evade the attack while keeping an eye on him the whole time.

The head of security raised his eyebrow in surprise as Kaze was able to dodge his attack in a split second.

“What’s the holdup, David? Hurry up.” Not too far away, Scott reprimanded.

David uttered with a smile, “Don’t blame me for doing my job, sir. Mr. Young wants your limbs broken.”

Without holding back, David raised his hand ferociously.

“Come on and break some limbs.”

Kaze chuckled callously. He grabbed David’s extended arm and twisted it.

David’s earlier sneering face was replaced with a grimace.

“Urgh!”

A heart–wrenching scream escaped his throat as he bent over in pain..

In the end, he lost strength behind his knees and fell before Kaze.

David groaned in a cold sweat and pleaded at Kaze with his eyes. “L–Let me go!”

The agonizing ache turned his voice to a high pitch.

“Didn’t the lowlife have a spine a minute ago? He’s begging now.”

The human wall formed by the security guards obstructed the prying eyes.

Hearing a man's shrieks, Danny and his group laughed amusedly.

Jem said with a smile, "The guy might act tough, but no one is as powerful as you, Mr. Tulip. You don't have to take matters into your own hands. Just instruct anybody to beat him up."

"Haha! Jem, you know the right words."

Danny and his group guffawed.

"Ah!"

A figure flew outside the circle of the human wall.

The

person crashed and tumbled near their feet.

"Uh..."

Startled, Danny stepped back and looked at the person on the ground.

The person wore a security uniform, so he was clearly not Kaze.

"Huh? What's going on? Why is it him?"

The smiles on the foreigners' faces froze as the head of security sprawled across the floor in an unnatural contortion.

The crowd exclaimed as if they had seen a ghost.

No one knew what was going on.

They thought the worst had happened to Kaze. His limbs would have been broken.

It never occurred to them that the head of security suffered multiple fractures to his limbs.

The other security guards dispersed from their formation.

Kaze emerged unscathed.

Winnie patted her chest in relief.

The foreigners turned ashen once more.

Danny gritted his teeth and cocked his head to yell at Scott in hushed tones, "Loser! What are your people doing? They look strong, but they can't even handle a scrawny guy."

"Um, Mr. Tulip. The guy just got off lucky," Scott nodded his head and responded ingratiatingly.

He had no idea what was going on either.

"Bastard! I don't care if he got off lucky. I want his limbs broken and him thrown out." Danny shouted, "Now!"

"Of course. I'll make sure that happens right away!"

Scott turned around and screamed at the remaining security officers, "You can't even do job, bastards! Hurry up and get him!"

"Mr. Young, h—he's strong."

The dozen security officers froze.

Scott did not see what happened, but they had front-row seats to everything earlier. The young man overpowered the head of security in a single blow.

your

"Fools! He's just one person while you're a whole team." Scott lashed out. "Take him down before I send you packing!"

The security guards stood still.

They were hired to do a job, not risk their lives. There was no need to put themselves in danger of losing their limbs over a tiny wage.

“Bastards! Losers!”

Despite his outrage, there was nothing Scott could do about it.

He said to Danny with his head down, “Mr. Tulip, I think we should just call the cops. The guy has caused intentional harm by fracturing my employee’s hands and legs. That should give him a few years behind bars.

Danny nodded emotionlessly.

He was not left with much of a choice. The only way forward was to get Kaze arrested.

Danny would not get a say in what would happen to Kaze.

Scott was about to pull out his phone to call the cops when he caught an approaching group from the corner of his eye.

The group was led by the CEO of Century Fun’s parent company.

Leland Williams was Scott’s boss.

“What brings you here, Mr. Williams?”

Scott made a face, not understanding what Leland was trying to get at. Ignoring Scott, Leland asked with respect, “Is there a Mr. Kaze Lee here?”

“That’s me,” Kaze responded, knowing Snow must have called Leland.

“Hello, sir. I’m really sorry-”

Cutting Leland off, Scott drew close and said resentfully with his finger up Kaze’s nose, “Mr. Williams, Kaze Lee assaulted and broke our employee’s limbs. I was about to call the cops to arrest him-”

“shut up!”

Leland scoffed.

He took quick paces toward Kaze and said with his head down, “I’m sorry, Mr. Lee. I apologize for what happened here.”

“M—Mr. Williams, why are you apologizing to him?”

Scott was dumbfounded and could not make sense of anything.

“Shit! What’s with this guy? Why is he apologizing to the lowlife instead of us?”

Danny and the other foreigners were not having it.

They were the victims. Yet, the boss of the entertainment venture brushed them off and entertained Kaze instead.

The lowlife did not deserve better treatment than them, who were VIP guests.

Horrified to read Danny’s and his group’s expression, Scott went up to Leland and said, “You’re apologizing to the wrong person.”

“The apology should go to Mr. Tulip and the others.”

“I’m only acting in your best interest, Mr. Williams.”

Not realizing that Leland had it up in there with him, Scott went on. “It’s beneath you to apologize to him any-”

A slap across his face abruptly ended Scott’s tirade.

Smack!

Leland lost it and knocked Scott to the ground with full force.

“Bastard! Who are you to look down on Mr. Lee?”

Leland yelled at Scott, “Do you know who the biggest shareholder of Century Fun, my company included, is?”

“I—I do. It’s Sky Ocean Corporation.”

Scott looked at Leland with his hand over his face.

Leland scoffed. “Do you know that Mr. Lee’s wife is the chairman of Sky Ocean Corporation?” “Um...”

Scott looked at Kaze in shock.

Leland chided, “Don’t you know that Mr. Lee is also the CEO of Hudson Investment Firm? He controls billions of dollars in funds. The kind of money is more than you can ever imagine.” “Woah...”

Gasps filled the room.

No one expected the young man who hit Danny’s wife to be the chairman of a multibillion- dollar investment firm.

Kaze was a wealthy man.

Yet, Scott belittled him and considered him a civilian, forcing him to apologize to the foreigners.

Jem, standing behind Danny, stared at Kaze in shock.

He worked as a sales director at Hudson Investment Firm.

+15 BONUS

It never occurred to Jem that he would run into his soon-to-be boss. Jem took a couple of steps back and hid in the crowd.

Scott was dumbstruck. He had no more tears left to cry.

Kaze, whether as the husband of Sky Ocean Corporation's chairwoman or the CEO of Hudson Investment Firm, could crush him easily.

"Bastard, who are you to disrespect Mr. Lee?"

Infuriated, Leland kicked Scott. Scott groaned in pain.

Fighting through the pain, Scott crawled toward Kaze, fell to his knees, clung to Kaze's leg, and begged, "Mr. Lee, I was blind. I didn't know you were Ms. Quint's husband. I didn't mean to disrespect you."

"Get lost!"

Kaze shook Scott off his leg and turned to Leland.

"It doesn't matter who I am, Mr. William. You should apologize to me.

"These foreign children bullied my goddaughter, and she reacted in self-defense. Their parents demanded an apology and compensation without reason.

"As the manager of Century Fun, Scott didn't check the surveillance footage because they were foreigners. He even took their orders and attacked his own people."

Chapter 908

Chapter 908 Did I Say You Can Go

"I leave the matter in your hands, Mr. Williams."

Kaze did not spare a glance at Scott.

The trash was not worth Kaze's time.

Leland immediately had the footage from the trampoline area broadcast on a public screen.

Sure enough, the video showed the foreign children picking on Brenda.

The five-year-old girl was heart-wrenchingly pushed around on the trampoline.

Later, Brenda grabbed Danny Jr. in tears when being shoved to the ground. It was a natural reaction to hold onto something when falling.

“These foreign children bullied the girl, but as parents, you have the nerve to make false accusations.”

“To think you make a girl and her parents apologize and pay compensation. That’s arrogance of you especially when you are guests on our land. You should be the ones to apologize!”

“Shameless!”

Exasperated, the onlooking customers lashed out at Danny and the others.

With surveillance footage as proof, the grim-looking foreigners could not defend themselves. Leland stared coldly at Scott. “Is it hard to get to the bottom of the matter? It doesn’t take long to check the surveillance footage and deal with the matter fairly. You’re fired!”

“That’s the way to do it!”

“The traitor should be fired!”

The surrounding customers cheered on.

“Don’t, Mr. Williams.”

Ashen-faced, Scott did not want to lose his job and looked at Danny’s party with pleading eyes.

Only these foreigners could help him now.

Danny and the others were utterly upset.

They could care less about what happened to Scott. Scott was a disposal pawn to Danny even though the former took his side.

However, Leland, the owner of Century Fun, dismissed Scott in the foreigners’ presence.

They felt disrespected.

It dawned on Danny.

There was no way to file charges against Kaze if he was mentally sick.

Most importantly, Kaze was not a nobody. His wife was the chairwoman of Sky Ocean Corporation while he was a CEO of a multibillion-dollar investment firm.

Kaze would be considered upper crust in Paladia.

In fact, that was the reason why Danny wanted to just put an end to the matter.

Danny's wife made a fuss. "Then he should go back to the mental hospital and suffer a torturous death there!"

"Enough!"

Danny yelled before turning to Kaze. "It was just a petty feud between kids. There was no need. to make a big deal out of the whole thing.

“Now that the air is cleared, we don’t intend to seek damages or press charges anymore.”

He then turned to leave.

“You better watch out, bastard!”

Danny’s wife reamed out. “We have been nice enough not to press charges, lowlife. What more do you want, you dirt-”

Kaze’s chilling gaze fell on the woman’s face.

She froze, her words left hanging in the air. Still, she stared Kaze down.

Ignoring her, Kaze led Brenda to the front and pointed at the foreign children. “Before we go, your children should apologize to my goddaughter.”

The foreigners paused at first before rage overwhelmed them.

“Shit! The bastard wants our children to apologize to the girl. Did I hear that right?”

“Goddamnit! There’s no way our children will apologize to lowlifes.”

“The guy must be dreaming.”

The group of foreigners sneered at Kaze.

The foreign children demonstrated resistance too.

“Daddy, you used to tell Mommy Arcadians are lowlives. You won’t let us play with them. Why should we apologize?”

“Mommy, we just didn’t want to play with her, but she wouldn’t leave us alone, so we pushed her away,” the children said.

“I hate that demon girl. I

Will never apologize to her,” flushed, Danny Jr. screamed.

“Don’t worry, Junior. I won’t let you apologize to the lowlife.”

Danny patted his child on the shoulder before narrowing his eyes dangerously at Kaze.

“You’re asking for a lot, Arcadian. It’s an absurd demand.

Danny said sternly, “You’re challenging the authority of the Tulip family.”

Jem, standing behind Danny, and Scott, playing dead on the ground, smirked in delight. They hop

Kaze would piss Danny off enough to start a bigger row.

Scott, especially, resented Kaze because Leland fired him on Kaze’s instructions.

Danny said with a smirk, “I don’t care who started it, but I can tell you now that the apology isn’t happening.”

“Bravo! You’re so cool, Daddy!”

Danny Jr. clapped his hands with thrill.

Like Danny Jr., the other foreign kids did not think they were wrong.

They made a huge fuss, standing their ground on not apologizing to Brenda.

“Judging by the way you parent your children, it’d be impossible to get an apology out of them.”

Anyone who had crossed paths with Kaze would know that Darcy was where he drew the line.

Chapter 911 Apology

The onlooking customers gasped at Kaze's remark.

Even the Paladian royal family meant nothing to Kaze.

That was bold of him to make that statement.

The group of foreigners went ballistic.

However, they sprawled across the floor, groaning in pain to refute him.

Fighting back the pain, Danny swallowed a mouthful of blood and asked weakly, "W— What do you want?"

He had no energy left to fight Kaze. Not now, at least.

Kaze lit a cigarette unhurriedly.

He blew a puff on Danny's face before speaking to all the foreigners, "I want you to apologize to my goddaughter on behalf of your children.

"I'll let you go once you apologize."

The foreigners were reluctant to follow through with Kaze's request.

They had made it clear to their children that they did not owe the girl an apology.

Agreeing to Kaze's request would be a contradiction of everything they had said. They would be too humiliated to face their children if that were to happen.

"If your apology is done right the first time, I'll forget about your instructions to break my limbs and make me apologize on my knees. Otherwise... All I can say is that I'm the seek an eye for an eye," Kaze said.

The foreigners shuddered.

Now that they thought about it, the apology to the little girl was no biggie.

The foreigners turned to Danny as he was their backbone.

Danny closed his eyes and gritted his teeth.

"Fine. We'll apologize."

Scott, who was playing dead not too far away, was in despair.

With the foreigners fallen, Scott would never see Kaze get the stick.

Danny and the others lined up and apologized to Brenda in their children's presence.

"Attaboy!"

"Nice work! These foreigners should think twice before insulting us on our turf."

The onlooking crowd cheered while Danny and his group grabbed their children and scrambled out of Century Fun

Danny was livid.

Since his arrival in Arcadia, Danny had been met with the best hospitality and fawning from political figures and business moguls.

That was also the reason why Danny looked down on Arcadians.

Yet, an Arcadian crushed him today and made him apologize to a five-year-old.

So long as Kaze was alive, Danny would never get over the incident.

Jem comforted Danny and said, "No need for that, Mr. Tulip. I know everything there is to know about Kaze. In fact, everybody in the city knows about him too.

"He used to be an heir of the Sunrise Lees, but he is a loser now that his family disowned him

Jem was from Chrysan. He only followed Hudson to Lilyrose when the latter established an investment firm in the city.

Upon learning that Kaze would be the CEO of the company, Jem looked him up and held him in disdain.

After Danny's and his group's clash with Kaze today, Kaze was bound to recognize Jem at work tomorrow. Kaze might go after Jem.

Jem decided to make the first move.

"Danny, I love Jem's idea. I can't wait to see the moment Kaze becomes homeless."

Danny's wife was the first to support the idea.

"Mr. Tulip, Kaze's wife holds a lot of sway in Lilyrose, which is the reason why Mr. Vinland had a hard time gaining a foothold here. You must support me, Mr. Tulip."

Jem made another request.

Danny patted his shoulder. "You have my full support, Jem. You will earn yourself a solid friendship with the Tulip family if you get the job done.

"You have my number if your children want to get a visa or permanent residency for Paladia."

Danny made an empty promise.

"Thank you, Mr. Tulip. I'm happy to be of service."

Jem was overjoyed.

He knew that he could not remain in the country once he succeeded in getting the money. Miru would hold him accountable for the multi-billion-dollar loss.

Jem would have to cut contact with the Vinlands after returning to Chrysant. Hudson had fallen from power and could not protect him anymore.

After saying goodbye to Danny's party, Jem returned to the investment firm.

Upon arrival at the office, Jem heard Sophie, the newly hired assistant to the CEO, was there.

“Mr. Tart, Kaze poached Sophie from Shangrila Group. She was the chairman’s assistant there. I heard she’s rather capable at her job.”

Soon, the secretary placed a file on Sophie on Jem’s desk.

Looking at the young and beautiful woman in the photograph, Jem sneered. “What can a girl do? She might be capable, but she can’t beat me in experience.”

Jem quickly figured out a plan against Kaze.

In the CEO’s office, Sophie reviewed the investment firm’s human resource files to bring Kaze up to speed on office affairs when his appointment was to take place tomorrow.

Jem’s secretary entered the office.

“Ms. Song, Mr. Tart organized a welcome party for you since you’re new to the job. We hope you can attend the party.”

Hudson Investment Firm only had dozens of employees.

The get-together was not a huge affair.

Since it was a great opportunity to learn more about the people of the company, Sophie nodded her head and said, “Please thank Mr. Tart for me. I’ll be there tonight.”

“You’re too kind, Ms. Song. I’ll get out of your hair now,” the secretary said with respect.

Once out of the office, the secretary let out a smirk.

“I bet she slept her way to the chairman’s assistant position. Such hypocrisy.”

The woman left her jealousy outside Jem’s office and reported to him that Sophie had agreed to attend the party tonight.

Jem waved his arm with a sneer. “Call Lennon and Theo over.”

Soon, it was 8:00 PM.

Sophie showed up at a hotel near the office, the venue for Hudson Investment Firm employee's get-together.

"There you are, Ms. Song."

Jem stood outside the hotel, waiting for Sophie with a friendly smile.

Sophie said, "You're too kind, Mr. Tart. You're a senior employee. You shouldn't have waited for me here."

Jem waved his arm. "It's the least I can do. Mr. Lee's first day of work is tomorrow, and you're his assistant. We will be working closely together. I should help ease you into the job."

Sophie felt relieved.

She had some concerns about going to the party.

Most senior executives of Hudson Investment Firm were from Chrysan. Only the general staff were locals.

The executive might not accept Kaze as their CEO and would try to make things hard for him because the latter was practically given the job. Sophie braced herself for intimidation today.

Sophie expressed her gratitude.

A man and a woman approached.

“Ms. Song, we are the representatives of the administration department. We got a welcome gift for you.”

The female colleague handed a bag to Sophie.

Sophie saw the logo on the bag and recognized the brand as a luxury cosmetics line.

It was not very expensive. Sophie could comfortably afford the products with her income from Shangrila Group.

She did not tend to accept gifts back when she worked at Shangrila Group.

“I’m sorry, but I didn’t bring you any gifts. I can’t accept this from you.”

Sophie refused.

The male colleague of the administration department said, “It’s just a little something from us, Ms. Song.”

“Yeah, Ms. Song. The gift doesn’t cost much,” the female colleague uttered.

Sophie’s firm refusal of the gift created an awkward and tense atmosphere. “Just take it, Ms. Song,” Jem stood up and said.

Jem added, “We’d feel uneasy if you didn’t accept the gift.”

That was the true reflection of many employees’ thoughts.

Jem had previously put ideas in the employees' heads. Now all departments decided to present Sophie with a gift.

At that point, Sophie could not refuse the gifts.

Representatives from other departments offered gifts that were not too expensive, so Sophie accepted them without reservations.

A female employee teased, "Lennon, Easter is over. Are you giving away the chocolate eggs stashed in the office? I supposed the leftover eggs came to good use."

"Haha..."

The crowd burst out in laughter.

It was insincere to give away chocolate eggs when Easter was over.

Lennon and Theo stood there, flushed with embarrassment.

Not wanting to put them in the spot, Sophie said, "I'll take the chocolate eggs. I was too busy during Easter to enjoy any eggs.

After the get-together, Sophie returned to the office to sort out some documents.

She asked two colleagues to help with moving the gifts to the office before diving into work.

The next day quickly arrived.

It was the day Kaze would report to work at Hudson Investment Firm.

Like a concerned parent, Darcy woke Kaze up early in the morning, picked out his clothes, and groomed him.

“Kaze, it never hurts to watch and learn. Remember to give your everything...” Before Kaze left the house, she nagged him.

“Don’t worry, babe. Your advice is ingrained in my head,” Kaze said helplessly.

He insisted on dropping Darcy off at her office at Quartet Group before making his way to the investment firm.

“Welcome, Mr. Chairman.”

Sophie led several employees to greet Kaze.

To her surprise, the people there to meet Kaze were not as many as the ones who threw her a welcome party.

Jem and a few senior executives were nowhere to be found.

“How is everything going, Sophie?”

Kaze did not mind at all as he did not care for the formalities. He walked into the elevator. “Things seem to be going well.”

Sophie gave a brief account of the corporate operation. They were approaching the CEO’s office when they came across Jem standing there with a group of executives and employees.

“Hello all. This is Kaze Lee, the newly appointed CEO.”

“Hello there, Mr. Lee.”

Amid the scatter of greetings, Kaze recognized Jem from Century Fun yesterday.

Thud! Thud!

His beautiful secretary carried two boxes into the office and threw them on Kaze's desk.

As Kaze's assistant, Sophie stood by him.

She reprimanded the secretary for her rudeness. "Please show Mr. Chairman some respect, Leslie."

Leslie, Jem's secretary, smiled offhandedly without a care.

"It's okay, Sophie."

Kaze waved his arm, not taking Leslie's crude behavior to heart.

Jem sucked up to foreigners instead of sticking up for his own kind, so Kaze did not expect much out of his subordinates.

Taken aback by Kaze's composure, Jem raised his brow at Kaze's contrasting attitude from yesterday and asked with a smile, "Do you know what these are?"

"I do. Chocolate eggs.

Kaze nodded. "Are you giving me Easter eggs even though Easter is over?"

"What's the meaning of this, Mr. Tart?"

Sophie looked at Jem in confusion.

"They are just chocolate eggs. What's the problem?" Sophie asked coldly.

Kaze frowned, knowing things would not be as simple as they seemed.

Leslie scoffed, tossing the chocolate egg aside and pulling out the underlayer from the box.

Now, that was an Easter egg surprise for sure.

"Woah!"

The employees in the room gasped, their eyes widened.

Thud.

Leslie hurled the box at Sophie, sending wads of cash spraying across the floor.

“W–What’s this?”

Sophie was stunned by the hidden cash inside the box. It was the last thing she expected to find in there.

“Don’t give us that.”

Leslie uttered with a smirk, “Everybody saw you accept these boxes from Lennon and Theo at the company dinner yesterday. Isn’t that right?”

Sophie nodded. “That’s true, but I only accepted them because they said these were inexpensive gifts from the back office. I didn’t think there would be cash inside. It could be Lennon’s and Theo’s plan to frame me.”

She looked around but could not find Lennon and Theo.

“Ha, Ms. Song. Your words, not mine.”

Leslie sneered. “But even if the instruction didn’t come from you, you are definitely involved. Otherwise, they wouldn’t have fled right after they bribed you.

“Besides, why were they eager to give money to you when they were ready to skip town? Surely, you’re involved in some way.”

Leslie glanced at the other employees and said with a smile, “Don’t you think so, guys? Why didn’t they give you or me money? Why did the money go to Ms. Song?”

The employees responded to the question with silence.

Kaze frowned. Sophie was too green, caught up in Leslie’s wordplay. Leslie and Jem led Sophie by the nose.

Sophie’s hastiness in explaining herself did little to clear her name.

In fact, it worked against her favor.

Since Kaze brought Sophie from Shangrila Group, he would not stand by and do nothing about the accusations against her.

He said indifferently, “That’s enough of this, Mr. Tart. If you can’t handle your subordinate, I can do that for you.

Leslie’s behavior was disgusting. Kaze did not want to get into it with a secretary. Otherwise, he would have slapped her a long time ago.

“That’s enough, Leslie.”

Sitting down with his legs crossed, Jem knocked on the desk. “You should’ve known better. Given Ms. Song’s position as Mr. Lee’s assistant, it’s important to treat her with the same respect you would show him.”

The other colleagues scowled.

They had to watch what they said since Sophie worked directly with Kaze.

While Jem appeared to criticize his secretary, he was challenging Kaze’s authority.

“I was wrong, Mr. Tart,” Leslie replied coyly and glanced at Kaze in disdain, not taking the problem seriously.

He paused and observed Kaze’s reaction.

Kaze kept a blank face, knowing Jem was not finished.

He paused and took his time to say, “The scandal won’t reflect well on you and the company.”

“Your point?” Kaze asked indifferently, having no patience for Jem’s minced words.

“My opinion doesn’t matter since I’m just a sales director.”

Jem rose from the chair unhurriedly. “So you should decide whether to call the cops or handle the problem discreetly, Mr. Lee.”

Kaze said, “I only asked you to take a job with the investment firm yesterday. Even an idiot would know you wouldn’t take any money.

“I doubt you could be involved with embezzlement in the millions on your first day at the job.”

Sophie’s mind wandered back to her colleagues’ expressions. They were skeptical of her.

She was confused.

“These people aren’t idiots. They are playing along with Jem. I’m just the new general manager, so they don’t see me as an influential figure.”

Kaze added with a smirk, “Don’t read too much into it, Sophie. You were set up, but you’re not the target. I am.”

“You? Are they trying to put you behind bars?”

Freaking out, Sophie said tearfully, “The trouble started with me, Mr. Chairman. I’ll take the prison sentence, but can you please take care of my mother for me?”

Sophie searched for the human resource file on Lennon and Theo, trying Lennon’s number

Sophie said, "Where are you now, Lennon? We need to talk face-to-face."

Lennon laughed lewdly. "Hehe. How do you want to go about it? I don't mind having it in bed..."

Struck by a thought, he uttered furiously, "Fuck! Are you trying to get information out of me?"

"I'll be honest. We are staying put in the city."

"We'll only meet on one condition. Check into the hotel room and get yourself ready for us."

Lennon hung up.

Turning pale in rage, Sophie put down the phone in resignation. "I'm sorry, Mr. Chairman. I can't even handle this tiny issue."

"Don't blame yourself. It's enough knowing they are still in Lilyrose."

Kaze took out his phone and called Snow. "Contact Dan and Gold Tooth to dispatch their people to hunt down two individuals. Focus the search on the entertainment districts."

"Alright, Mr. Chairman."

Snow immediately contacted Dan and Gold Tooth.

Dan and Gold Tooth were still in the hospital after a near escape from Chrysant Twin Ghost.

They still held significant influence in the Lilyrose underworld. Siding with Kaze had only boosted their power further, especially after ousting Hudson.

Upon receipt of Kaze's order, Dan and Gold Tooth got right down to business.

Even if they had to turn the city upside down, they would sniff out Lennon and Theo.

Meanwhile, Leslie entered Jem's office and reported, "Lennon texted that Sophie called and tried to get an address out of them, Mr. Tart."

"Hmph! I guess Mr. Lee won't give up."

Jem scoffed in disdain, not surprised that Kaze would pull that stunt. Jem was not flustered at all.

Leslie asked, "Should I tell them to leave Lilyrose and get into hiding, Mr. Tart?"

Jem frowned.

As Lilyrose was Kaze's territory, Jem trusted Kaze would fold eventually. However, complications could arise.

Amid his hesitation, Danny's call came in.

"Hello, Mr. Tulip."

Jem accepted the call right away, his demeanor respectful.

Danny asked offhandedly, "Jem, how's your plan going?"

"Don't worry, Mr. Tulip. All is going well. Kaze is running around like a headless chicken, looking for my men," Jem said confidently.

Jem agreed with Danny's suggestion, but he still had one concern. "Kaze is very strong, Mr. Tulip.

"I found out yesterday that he defeated Dwight Tensor, the principal of Tensor Martial Arts School, and hurled him out of Shangrila Group's building. It would take more than an average Joe to fight him."

Danny had firsthand knowledge of Kaze's strength.

"You talked about a martial arts school's principal. Not to say anything bad about your country's martial arts, but it's worth less than trash."

Danny belittled the local martial arts before uttering confidently, "I have a friend named Jason Statham. He was the combat instructor of the Royal Air Force. After his discharge, he settled down in Arcadia and works as an instructor at a fight club here. I think he can face Kaze with no problem."

Jem knew the Royal Air Force was Paladia's special forces unit with a remarkable record of defeating over 200 armed militants with only two dozen men. The Royal Air Force was ranked one of the top special forces in the world.

Jason, a former combat instructor with the Royal Air Force, was the right man for the job.

Feeling assured, Jem said respectfully, "Your plan will get Kaze to submit to us for sure. I'm just waiting for you to sign the contract and get 10 billion dollars."

Jem drafted the investment contract.

Danny would be happy to sign the contract once Kaze yielded to him.

Jem would get a cut when the funds were wired to Danny. It would be his cue to leave then. 1

Danny's eyes grew fervent as he was closer to getting 10 billion dollars. He laughed and said, "Good job, Jem. Here's to a spectacle of someone's pathetic begging!"

He was smug.

After the call with Jem, Danny dialed another number.

A fighting gym stood near the street of consular offices in Sunrise City.

It was rare to find Arcadians there. Most of the gym members were diplomatic staff from various countries.

Baring his toned chest, Jason wrestled with several assistant instructors.

Though outnumbered, Jason still ripped through his opponents' offense.

Wham! Thud! Bang!

The assistant instructors crashed to the ground in agony.

Danny's call came in.

Jason took the call and quickly made an unhappy face.

"I can't believe you want me to attack an Arcadian, Danny."

He added in disdain, "I'm not interested in fighting the weak and scrawny Arcadians. Even my one-month-old member can beat them

Besides, Jason would have to travel from Sunrise to Lilyrose.

Jason, the egotistical man that he was, believed it was a waste of his time.

Knowing Jason, Danny said, "I thought you've been meaning to spar with skilled fighters in Arcadia, Jason?"

“Lilyrose houses many martial arts schools. Most are trained in traditional methods. You can challenge these skilled fighters and sort out the Arcadian in between. He’s useful to me.”

Danny added, “Once you arrive in Lilyrose, head straight to these two Arcadians...”

Meanwhile, Lennon received an order from Jem.

“Theo, Mr. Tart told us to get in touch with Sophie and get Kaze to meet with us. A Jason Statham will be coming over too,” Lennon told Theo.

There was no harm in enjoying some entertainment while getting the job done for Jem.

Outside the general manager’s office, Sophie was torn about meeting Lennon and Theo on her own.

She was not dumb. She knew these two men might get handsy with her.

Lennon said on the phone that they wanted to see her alone in case Kaze would set them up. Their location should remain unknown to Kaze.

Before Kaze could meet them, Lennon and Theo needed to meet with her and make sure it was safe.

“Mr. Chairman trusts me, but I screwed but I screwed up. I need to do something to make up for it.”

Gritting her teeth, Sophie decided to go with their request. 1

After making up her mind, Sophie contacted Lennon and Theo.

“Raylight Hotel, suite No. 918. Remember, come alone.”

Lennon sounded stern on the phone. Search the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Sophie took a cab and went to Raylight Hotel.

When she was at suite No. 918, she called Lennon again.

A while later, Lennon and Theo came down the stairs.

Lennon smiled and said, “Ms. Song, pretty wise for coming alone.”

The two of them were cautious as they did not want to be caught. They observed Sophie from the stairs to see if she brought anyone else.

If they spotted any uninvited guests, they would leave immediately.

“Come on in, Ms. Song. We wouldn’t want to talk outside here.”

Theo opened the door with the key card.

Sophie clenched her teeth as she walked in.

She stood in front of the door and said, “Let’s talk with the door opened. This level is quiet. I don’t think anyone will be listening to our conversation.”

Bang!

Lennon slammed the door shut, which frightened Sophie..

She bellowed, "What is the meaning of this?! I'm here to talk business! Don't you dare do anything fishy!"

"Ms. Song, you are here already. Why keep wearing the mask on your face?"

Theo scoffed. "We'll satisfy all your needs tonight!"

Sophie was in her work attire, which highlighted her slender physique. Her beautiful face flushed due to anger and her eyes were burning with the flames of irritation.

Her angry look aroused the two of them even more.

"Don't even think about it!" she shouted.

She took a pepper spray out of her purse. She was not that naïve to come unprepared.

However, she underestimated how fierce the two of them were.

While Sophie was caught up with Theo, Lennon jumped on her from the back.

Slap!

Sophie was slapped.

Lennon seized the pepper spray from her hand and broke it with a stomp.

"What nonsense is this? You think we are afraid of some pepper spray?" Lennon grabbed Sophie by the wrist and dragged her over to the bed.

"Ms. Song, we prepared this suite for you. How do you like it? Just pleasure us, you will have fun as well."

Lennon scoffed as he unbuttoned his shirt.

As Sophie plunged into despair, the door was knocked on.

Lennon and Theo froze.

Theo grumbled, "Who is it?"

“It’s me.

A man spoke with a heavy Paladian accent.

“Mr. Statham?”

Lennon looked at Sophie on the bed. After a quick thought, he said loudly, “Mr. Statham, we are in the middle of something right now. Why don’t you wait for us next door, in room 917?” Lennon and Theo booked another room next to this one for safety’s sake.

Bang!

The door was kicked open.

A Paladian man came in with a fierce look. He pointed at Lennon and Theo, shouting, “You monkeys! Who do you think you are? You dare ask me to wait?!”

Then, he spotted Sophie who was trying to get up from the bed.

“You pieces of shit! You want me to wait for you two while you fuck this girl here? Unforgivable!”

Chapter 922 Jump Into Danger Again

Upon hearing Mr. Statham’s shout, his followers from the capital barged in as well.

They were coaches and students of the Mixed Martial Arts Club who were close with Mr. Statham.

They came here to watch Mr. Statham challenge the martial arts experts of Lilyrose.

Sophie breathed a sigh of relief. She disregarded her miserable state and asked for help.

“Help me! They are trying to rape me!”

“Beautiful girl, these two monkeys are not worthy of you,” Mr. Statham said.

Just when Sophie thought she was saved, Mr. Statham said something that pushed her into the abyss of despair.

“These monkeys of Arcadia aren’t good enough for you. Us Paladians are better lovers in bed. Am I right, guys?”

His followers laughed and started to scrutinize Sophie with a perverted gaze.

Sophie escaped the wolves but jumped right into the tiger’s den.

Her face turned pale when she felt the perverted gazes on her.

“Enough! This is no time for this!” Mr. Statham frowned and bellowed. SEARCH the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

He pointed at Lennon and Theo and commanded, “You two, bring me to Tensor Martial Arts School right now. I want to challenge them!”

He was not here to save or ravage Sophie. She was never his objective.

Lennon and Theo were sulky that Mr. Statham foiled their plans but they dared not lash out at him.

“Mr. Statham, are you going after Kaze Lee? I can call him here right now,” Lennon said attentively.

“Monkeys! Do whatever Mr. Statham tells you!” said one of Mr. Statham’s followers as he slapped Lennon in the face.

He looked down at Lennon and bellowed, “Mr. Statham is here to challenge the experts of Lilyrose. Taking care of Kaze Lee is just out of convenience. He can do it whenever he wants!” Lennon almost broke down in tears due to the slap. He covered his face and said humbly, “Yes, yes! I’ll bring you to Tensor Martial Arts School right away!”

“Bring this woman as well. After Mr. Statham defeats the experts here, she will be the entertainment to celebrate the victory.”

The man pointed at Sophie.

Sophie was no match for a bunch of rugged men who practiced martial arts.

Devastated, she was dragged to the parking lot and shoved into the car.

The motorcade then headed to Tensor Martial Arts School.

Meanwhile, at the office, Kaze realized Sophie was gone and could not contact her.

He realized Sophie might have gone to meet Lennon and Theo out of guilt. While he called her an idiot, he told Snow to find out where she was.

“Mr. Chairman, we got news of Sophie from Dan Niners.

“Lennon and Theo booked a room at Raylight Hotel using fake IDs, and Sophie is there as well. However, they were seized by a group of Paladians and had left for Tensor Martial Arts School.”

Tensor Martial Arts School?

Kaze frowned.

It was then he received a text on his phone.

[Sophie Song is with us now. If you want her back, come to Tensor Martial Arts School.]

The text was from an anonymous number but Kaze knew it must either be Lennon or Theo. Kaze’s gaze turned cold as he got up and left the office.

Tensor Martial Arts School was one of the most famous martial arts schools in Lilyrose.

The front gate was designed like a palace and there was a massive square in front of the main building.

The square was a venue for the school to host martial arts competitions for the students.

Several cars drove into the square, ignoring the signs of “no entry”, and stopped right in front of the entrance.

Mr. Statham came down from the car and looked at the entrance.

Beside the entrance was a sign stone, spellin

“Tensor Martial Arts School.”

Then, he went over to the sign stone, raised his fist, and punched it.

Bang!

The stone sign was destroyed like it was glass. It broke into smithereens upon impact.

The chunks of stone fell on the ground and alarmed the people inside.

“Who are you? What are you doing?!”

The guards rushed out with angry and surprised looks.

Unlike normal security guards, they were tasked to maintain order in the martial arts school and subdue students and intruders when needed, so they were much stronger than common guards.

Each one of them could be the captain of security for the rich families out there.

Mr. Statham scrutinized them before lifting his leg.

Bang!

One of the guards was kicked away before he could react. He was sent crashing onto the door of the building.

The other guards were shocked and cautiously stepped back.

Mr. Statham then waved at Lennon emotionlessly.

Lennon nodded and then went up to the guards, shouting, “Tell your principal to come out. Mr. Statham is here to challenge him!”

“A challenge?!”

The guards were shocked.

Tensor Martial Arts School was famous.

Be it for fame or other ulterior motives, challengers would visit the school frequently to challenge the students or even the coaches.

However, those challengers were simply there to ask for a spar, and no one would be seriously hurt..

Mr. Statham hurt a guard without saying a word and told Lennon to issue the challenge to the principal.

The guards had never seen such an arrogant challenger before.

Mr. Statham was here to destroy the school's reputation!

If the guards did not know how strong Mr. Statham was, they might have jumped on him, broken his limbs, and thrown him out.

Yet they knew they were no match for him after seeing one of their colleagues being defeated with just one kick.

"Go inform the principal!"

One of the guards ran away to inform the principal.

Soon, Dwight Tensor and his coaches arrived at the scene.

The students of the school also gathered after knowing that someone was here to challenge their principal.

"Where is your principal? Tell him to come out and fight me! Don't be a coward!"

"I heard the principal is a famous martial artist, but now I think he is just a coward. Arcadia's martial arts schools are trash!"

Mr. Statham's followers continued to provoke the students and the coaches.

Dwight knew conflict was inevitable. Ever since he lost to Kaze, he had been much more cautious.

He did not attack recklessly. Instead, he ordered one of the coaches and said, "Niel, you're up." Niel Holland was Dwight's strongest disciple and he too, was famous in the martial arts circle of Lilyrose.

He was arrogant and proud. When he strutted up to Mr. Statham, he peered down on the man. "Who do you think you are for challenging my master?"

Niel said fiercely, "We'll see if you are worthy if you can take three hits from me."

Mr. Statham looked at him and nodded. "Sure."

As his voice subsided, he leaned forward and swung a kick at Niel's face.

"Good one!"

Niel laughed. He countered with his own kick instead of dodging-

"I'll teach you a lesson... Aaargh!"

Before he could finish, he cried in pain.

He was then sent flying with blood gushing from his mouth.

He crashed on the ground with several broken bones, causing him to groan in pain.

"What the..."

The students and the coaches of the school were all silenced.

Niel was one of the strongest martial artists in the school, second only to the principal and a few of his peers, yet he was defeated with just one kick.

Mr. Statham did not even move! All he did was kick!

The devastating outcome silenced everyone.

Mr. Statham's followers laughed and continued to tease the students and coaches.

Dwight's expression shifted. He calmed himself down and said, "Sir, it is a rule in our circle that no one should be hurt during a spar, at least not intentionally..."

Before he could finish, Mr. Statham said, "I know your rules. No, I won't kill you."

Dwight's expression turned grim upon being provoked. The rest of the school reacted grimly as well.

Dwight tried his best to calm his anger down but Mr. Statham interrupted him again, saying, I am here for you and I am not leaving if you don’t fight me.”

Other than being tossed out from Shangrila Group by Kaze and forced onto his knees in front of the public, Dwight had never been challenged openly before.

If it was someone else, Dwight might have used his underworld connection to get rid of them without causing any commotion.

However, Mr. Statham was from another country, Paladia. If he was this strong, he must have a strong background as well.

Once anything went wrong, things would snowball out of control.

In the end, he bit the bullet and said, “Fine, I accept your challenge.

Dwight was forced to accept. He was afraid that he might lose and embarrass himself and the school, so he suggested changing the venue of the spar to the inner training ground.

Mr. Statham agreed and led his men into the school.

“Master, teach them a lesson!”

“Principal, don’t lose to the Paladians! You must make us proud!”

Soon, the training ground was filled with people, cheering for Dwight.

However, they were all silenced after a while because Dwight was defeated in just a few moves. The principal of Tensor Martial Arts School and a famous martial artist in the circle, Dwight Tensor, was slammed to the ground with blood smeared all over his face.

Mr. Statham’s foot was on his face, making him look miserable.

“Haha! That’s your principal?”

“He’s weak as hell!”

“Arcadia’s martial artists are all trash!”

As the Paladians continued to provoke and humiliate the students and coaches, Mr. Statham stepped on Dwight's chest and said, "You disappoint me. Now that you have lost, I want you to say that Arcadia's martial artists are all trash."

Chapter 925 He Could Not Represent Arcadia's Martial Arts

Mr. Statham's provocative words angered the students and coaches. "Principal, no!"

"You cannot agree to this!"

They were afraid that Dwight might agree to Mr. Statham's request.

"Hahaha, your principal is under Mr. Statham's foot now. There's no space for negotiation anymore!"

"Stop struggling and just give up!"

Mr. Statham's men continued to provoke and tease them.

The students and coaches were furious but since the principal was under the enemy's foot and his life was at risk, they dared not act recklessly.

Dwight felt intense pressure on his chest. His flushed face started to turn purple due to the

and pressure.

He clenched his teeth and mustered enough strength and courage to say, "No can do!"

"Stubborn old man!"

Mr. Statham curled his lips into a grin and increased the strength of his step, breaking two ribs on Dwight's chest.

"Ugh..."

Dwight groaned painfully.

Mr. Statham savored the painful look on Dwight's face before he said with a smile, "Look at you suffering beneath my foot. Why don't you just admit it and be free of this pain and humiliation?"

He then signaled one of his men. "Penacony, remember to record it when this fool admits he is weak. This is proof that Paladia's martial arts is better than Arcadia's! We will make it our trophy!"

"Of course!"

The most talkative follower pulled his phone out and started recording.

"Fucking Paladians! You can just kill the principal instead of humiliating him!"

Some of the students voiced their grievances.

If not for the coaches, they would have jumped on the Paladians and fought them.

Mr. Statham increased his strength on his foot as the students scolded him.

Dwight broke another rib and continued to groan.

Mr. Statham scrutinized Kaze and grinned. "You are here just in time. Danny wanted me to challenge all the martial arts institutes in Lilyrose and then take care of you."

He nodded and then looked at Mr. Statham and his men. "Fine. Come, come at me all together. I'll deal with you and then go look for the other two."

Mr. Statham's expression turned grim.

He was already arrogant enough but someone beat him!

Kaze wanted all of them to attack him together!

Penacony and the others were similarly shocked.

“Stupid monkey! Watch your mouth!”

“Mr. Statham, leave this monkey to me! You don’t need to waste your energy to deal with this one!”

Penacony clenched his fists and walked over to Kaze with a ferocious look.

“You stupid monkey. You pissed me off! If you don’t want to die, you better get on your knees now!”

Kaze did not respond.

He bellowed and charged toward Kaze. He jumped and swung a kick at Kaze’s face.

Kaze did not move or dodge. He simply lifted his leg for a kick.

Bang!

There was no special technique or anything fancy, just pure strength clashing in the air through their legs.

Penacony was sent flying.

His body slid across the ground before tumbling away into the corner.

When he finally fell, his body was covered with abrasions and cuts.

“Ugh...”

Penacony curled up on the ground, twisting and twirling in pain.

“Yeah!”

The students and coaches cheered when Kaze defeated Penacony with just one kick.

Mr. Statham and his men reacted grimly.

“Mr. Statham, get this stupid Arcadia monkey!”

Mr. Statham raised his brow and finally decided to take Kaze seriously.

Infuriated by Kaze’s contempt, Mr. Statham took off his jacket and revealed his muscles underneath, held together by a thin singlet. His muscles made him look tough and fierce. “Mr. Statham! Teach this monkey a lesson!”

“Make him kneel before you and admit Arcadia’s martial arts are trash!”

His followers continued to provoke Kaze.

“Is he strong enough to deal with the Paladians?”

They could not accept what they saw.

The students and the coaches of the martial arts school cheered loudly.

Even the students who were hostile against Kaze were impressed and viewed him as a hero.

Cough!

Mr. Statham struggled to get up on his feet.

Bang!

A powerful stomp landed on his chest, pinning him to the ground.

Kaze stepped on Mr. Statham’s chest and peered down at him. “It’s not so difficult to defeat you. You disappoint me. Now that you have lost, I think it’s time for you to acknowledge that you are a piece of trash.”

Kaze said the same thing to Mr. Statham.

“No way!”

Mr. Statham glared at Kaze viciously. He had never been humiliated like this before.

Kaze smiled and then broke a few ribs with his foot.

He did not have time to waste with Mr. Statham.

“Ugh!”

Mr. Statham was a retired officer who served in the special forces under the royal family. Yet, he too, was groaning in pain like Dwight after a few of his ribs were broken.

When the groaning stopped, Kaze said, “How about now? I’m in a rush.”

Mr. Statham saw the frosty look on Kaze and it gave him chills.

He reluctantly nodded.

Right before he opened his mouth, Kaze said, "Wait."

He then pulled his phone out and pointed at one of Mr. Statham's followers. "You, record it." "Me?"

He tried to resist but his lips froze. He took the phone and started recording.

Kaze swung a kick at the man's crotch, disabling him.

"Keep an eye out for them. Don't let them go anywhere," Kaze said to the students and coaches before he went to the door.

Without showing any expression, Kaze strode up to Lennon and grabbed the man by the arm.

Crack!

Following a loud crack, Lennon cried like a dying pig and was immobilized instantly.

Kaze then tossed him on the ground and turned his attention to Theo.

“I’ll fuck you up!”

Theo drew his dagger and jumped on Kaze ferociously.

Slap!

Kaze slapped Theo, disabling him and sending him flying before he could even get close. “D—Don’t kill me!”

Looking at Kaze coming closer to him, Theo nervously dragged himself back. He no longer tried to attack Kaze.

“Kill you? That’s too easy. Embezzlement, abduction, extortion, and attempts on people’s lives, all those crimes are more than enough to put you behind bars for ten years at least.” Kaze grabbed Lennon and tossed him next to Theo.

He also picked up the dagger that Theo dropped and threw it at them.

Thump!

The dagger punctured both Lennon and Theo’s hands, pinning them on the ground together.

He disregarded their excruciating cry and went back to Sophie.

The two had stopped screaming. They dared not move a muscle. Their faces were pale as paper, perhaps from the loss of blood from their hands or fear.

“M—Mr. Lee, it’s not our fault! It’s Mr. Tart who ordered us to embezzle the money and put it into the box for Sophie. He was the one who got the money for us!”

“Yeah, we have no beef with you and Sophie, we never thought of hurting you two. It’s Jem Tart, that bastard...”

Before Kaze even made them talk, they blurted everything and explained how Jem forced them to work for him.

Kaze felt annoyed for not being able to interrogate them.

He asked, “Then what about attempted rape? Did Jem Tart ask you to do that?” “Uh...”

The two of them were silenced.

Kaze’s expression turned cold. He kicked the two of them relentlessly.

A brief cry later, both of them were knocked out on the ground.

Soon enough, Don and his men arrived at the scene.

They arrested Lennon and Theo but since they were hurt and unconscious, they were sent to the hospital first.

“Sophie, you should go with them to give your statement.”

Kaze tapped on Sophie’s shoulder and sent her away with one of the officers.

He then called Don over to tell him about the situation.

“I understand, Mr. Lee.”

As they walked out, they saw Mr. Statham and his men, who were apprehended by the students and coaches of the martial arts school.

Kaze said, “Don, I think you should talk to our foreign friends here. I don’t want them coming after me.

He was not scared of them at all, he just did not want the trouble.

Dwight insisted on apologizing to Kaze even when the ambulance was already waiting for him.

Kaze looked at him and nodded. "Since you still have a sense of dignity, we can just forget what happened in the past."

Dwight sided with the top three families and committed many atrocities in the past yet he refused to admit that Arcadia's martial arts were trash.

Kaze had a second look at him.

Kaze then left in the car the school prepared for him.

Back in Hudson Investment Firm, Danny entered the building in his professional attire while surrounded by business elites.

"Mr. Tulip, welcome!"

Jem and Leslie, plus the employees, were in the lobby, welcoming Danny and his team.

The employees were confused.

Danny and his team were here to seek investments and Hudson Investment Firm was their biggest prospect, yet Jem acted like he was the one trying to win Danny's favor.

The employees of the investment firm had always looked down on companies who came to them for investment, yet the situation felt like the tables had turned.

Jem led Danny and his team to the main meeting room.

"Everyone, Mr. Danny Tulip and his team represent Tulip Corporation of Paladia and are here to sign a contract with us.

"We have started working with the tech company under Tulip Corporation and have agreed on a billion worth of investment. Mr. Danny Tulip and his team came all the way here to witness our success. Let us welcome them!"

Jem then clapped his hands, followed by a round of applause from the others.

When the applause stopped, Jem signaled Leslie. "Get the drafted contract for everyone."

The contracts were given to Danny and his men and they started going through the content.

It felt like the deal was in the bag, which made many employees feel strange.

"Mr. Tart, hold on. Does Mr. Lee know about this?" asked an employee from the investment department.

He intended to make Kaze take the blame, so of course, he would never leave out Kaze.

"When will Mr. Lee be here?"

The employee remained worried. He was a local Lilyrosean and was not afraid of Jem. Even though Kaze was targeted by Jem on his first day, it was still too soon to jump to conclusions.

Jem looked at Danny and grinned meaningfully. "Don't worry, Mr. Lee will be back soon. If I'm not mistaken, Mr. Lee is meeting with Mr. Tulip's friend, Mr. Jason Statham."

Lennon and Theo had texted him and it should be almost time.

Danny smiled. "Of course, everything should be fine. I told Jason to hold back. Let's hope Mr. Lee can still hold a pen to sign the contract when he comes back."

"Hahaha!"

The two of them laughed, leaving others confused.

Only the two of them knew that Kaze might even be alive when he came back.

"Mr. Lee is back!" an employee cried in surprise.

The laughter ceased abruptly.

Danny and Jem looked toward the entrance and saw Kaze, unscathed, coming into the meeting room casually.

Kaze should not be fine.

Did Kaze not meet with Jason at all?

Kaze smiled. "I met him. I even have a friendly spar with Mr. Jason Statham."

"A friendly spar?"

Danny and Jem were annoyed.

Danny then grunted and said, "Liars! You Arcadians are liars! You really think I will believe you? If you really meet with Jason, how are you fine?"

"Kaze, stop lying! I think you sold off Sophie and did not go at all!"

Jem scoffed. "Is this how Mr. Lee treats our employees? You didn't even try to save Sophie from the wolf's den?"

The employees in the meeting room were baffled.

However, everyone knew that both Danny and Jem did not take Kaze seriously.

"I see you learned about Sophie being in danger, Jem. I supposed you know a little too much?"

Kaze shot a meaningful gaze at Jem and grinned, causing the man to shiver.

For some reason, Jem had a bad feeling rising from his heart.

Jem scoffed and chose to stay quiet.

Since he had decided to confront Kaze, he was not afraid of Kaze finding out about the truth.

"If you don't believe what I said, then I guess you guys would have to see it for yourself."

Kaze shook his head and then handed his phone to Leslie. "Leslie, can you cast my phone to the screen?"

Leslie frowned and said arrogantly, "Why should I take orders from you? You can't even take care of your own assistant. Don't you know she's being someone else's sex toy?"

Slap!

Kaze slapped the woman and said, "You should be grateful that Sophie is safe or else I will make you take her place."

He sounded calm and casual but it struck fear in Leslie.

She glared at Kaze as she covered her face. Reluctantly, she took Kaze's phone and cast it on the big screen of the meeting room.

"Let's see what tricks you have under your sleeves." Jem scoffed.

Danny shared the same contempt for Kaze as well. SEARCH THE website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

"Mr. Lee, I am a piece of trash..."

Jason Statham was on the screen, covered in blood and being stepped on as he spoke those humiliating words.

"What the..."

Jem was stunned.

Danny's jaw dropped.

Jem asked, "Mr. Tulip, is that Jason Statham?"

"chit! How did it turn out like this? This is

Danny ignored Jem and threw a tantrum on the spot. He called Jason and his men but they were being questioned by the cops at the station.

He made several calls and finally reached someone in Jason's team.

"Danny, Jason was defeated. He was stepped on and his ribs were broken. Penacony was also hurt and we don't even know who the hell was that! We are currently in the police station. Please come and save us..."

Danny was speechless and furious when he learned about the situation.

He asked Jason to take care of Kaze along the way yet Jason and his team ended up in the police station, waiting for him to save them.

He put his phone down with a bitter look. He then looked at Kaze and said coldly, "There's no way you are the one who defeated Jason. It must be the martial artists from Tensor Martial Arts School. You are just lucky!"

He stubbornly assumed that Jason, an ex-special force that served the royal family, would never lose to Kaze.

Jem breathed a sigh of relief upon hearing Danny.

Whether Kaze defeated Jason or not, it did not affect his plan.

He got up, laughed, and said, "Mr. Lee, let's cut to the chase. Our firm has reached an agreement with the tech company under Tulip Corporation of Paladia and the investment value is as high as a billion. We need your signature on this."

Kaze sat down and crossed his legs as well. He said to Jem, the decisive person. Why don't you tell me what I should do?"

Jem scoffed. "It depends on whether you sign the contract or not. If you sign it, we can work things out; if you don't sign it, we'll bring in the authorities and take legal measures.

"But do remember that the company's chairwoman, Ms. Scarlet, is your wife's bestie and she is the one who made you CEO. If this reaches her and she finds out that you lost tens of millions on your first day, what would she think of you?"

Jem sounded confident and casual as if he had Kaze under control.

He was certain that Kaze would not want this to escalate to Darcy or Miru's ears, and he would do anything to cover it.

"I like to see how it turns out."

Kaze nodded. He then said to the employees without turning back, "Someone please call the cops."

Jem raised his brows. Kaze's response caught him off guard.

Jem believed Kaze was simply bluffing by acting nonchalantly.

Kaze realized no employees wanted to be involved in his conflict with Jem, so he pulled his phone out and made the call himself.

Jem was baffled by Kaze's actions.

It took him a while to recover his composure. He bellowed, "You useless trash! You really let go of your own assistant?"

He thought Kaze called the cops because he wanted to shift all the blame to Sophie.

He was irritated because Kaze would rather call in the cops than compromise, meaning his plans of embezzling the money had been ruined, at least for now.

Jem assumed that Kaze would rather send his assistant to prison than compromise on his decision.

All the employees were there to witness it.

No one would side with a superior who would abandon his subordinate at a critical moment.

Therefore, no matter what decision Kaze made, Jem assumed that Kaze had lost.

Jem would soon abdicate Kaze's position and Kaze would eventually kowtow to him.

'I was just being impatient and worrisome,' Jem thought to himself.

He then got up and shook Danny's hand. "Mr. Tulip, let's go have steak. I know a restaurant that is famous for its sirloin."

"I like steak," Danny answered with a bold laugh.

The two of them ignored Kaze and walked toward the exit together.

Kaze was still on his chair. Unfazed, he said, "Did I say you guys can leave?"

"Mr. Lee, you want to join us too?" Jem scoffed.

Kaze said with a grin, "I am just giving you a friendly reminder, Mr. Tart. If you are lucky, you might have that steak in less than ten years."

"What do you mean, Kaze Lee? I know you are a retard but stop trying to act, stupid in front of me!"

Jem's expression turned grim.

Then, a series of hurried footsteps came from the corridor.

Bang!

The meeting room's door was barged open and a group of uniformed officers came in.

"Who is Jem Tart?" the leader asked.

"No!"

Jem's expression turned bitter. He clenched his fists tightly as he squeezed the word out of his mouth.

"No?"

The leader grunted and then said coldly, "These two men said you are the one who embezzled ten million from Hudson Investment Firm and instigated them to run with the money. You also instructed them to frame Sophie Song, am I right?"

Then, Sophie was brought in by another officer.

Jem was stunned. His mind went blank when he saw Sophie.

He forced an ugly smile on his face and coaxed himself to calm down. "No, I did nothing. They are accusing me!"

"That's up to us to find out. Please come with us and assist us with our investigation," the leader said.

Jem stiffly turned around to look at Kaze, who was calm and casual.

A sudden realization struck and he shouted, "It's you! You called them to arrest me!"

"Me? I have no idea what you are talking about," Kaze said with a smile.

How could he not know?

He was the one who teased Jem that it might take him around ten years to have that steak. Thump!

Jem knelt before Kaze.

"Mr. my words seriously! I regret what I did. I was wrong.

Lee, please forgive me! Don't take I am so sorry!"

His arrogance faded instantly. He knelt and held onto Kaze's leg, crying and begging for mercy.

The shift of character stunned the employees of the company.

They were all forced to look at Kaze differently from now on.

They revered Kaze, a feeling that they never had for Jem.

Kaze kicked Jem away and said to the officer, “Other than the obvious ones, try to investigate if he is involved in other criminal activities. Hudson Investment Firm will fully cooperate with your investigation. We will not tolerate anyone who harms the company.”

Jem turned upon hearing Kaze. He collapsed on the floor like a deflated balloon, his eyes. looked void of life.

He knew his career and life were over. He hated himself for being overconfident.

He did not need to be personally involved. He thought he had the situation under control, so. he did not prepare any backup plan for himself.

Now that Kaze had taken care of Lennon and Theo, he called the cops and they exposed Jem of his involvement.

It was too late for him to regret now. Jem was cuffed and taken away.”

The employees of Hudson Investment Firm sighed as Jem was taken away, and they were all impressed by Kaze’s handling of the situation.

“Now that Jem Tart has been arrested, Sophie will take over his position. She did well and held on to her position regardless of circumstances.”

Right after Jem was taken away, Kaze appointed Sophie to take over the vacant position.

He sounded commanding and there was no more space for negotiation.

The executives, who were eligible for the position, were disappointed.

Everyone knew that Sophie was toyed with by Jem and his schemes, yet Kaze made her take over Jem’s position instead of filling it with other more capable candidates.

They deserved it because when Jem tried to give Kaze a hard time, no one stood up for him.

No one dared to defy him either.

Through this incident with Jem, Kaze took full control of the company. No one dared to challenge his power anymore, let alone abdicate him.

“M–Mr. Chairman, I am not capable enough...”

Sophie was overwhelmed.

She screwed up twice and contributed nothing to the company. She felt guilty that she received the promotion.

Kaze said in front of everyone, “People can improve. There are many capable ones here already. Since I brought you here, I am willing to give you a chance to improve.”

“~~I~~ will do my best!” Sophie said with utter determination.

The other employees understood the hidden meaning behind Kaze’s words.

He wanted loyal employees, not capable ones since there was already an abundance of them.

To be promoted, one must pledge his loyalty to Kaze.

Danny and his team were in the meeting room, witnessing the arrest of Jem.

“Why are they still here? Get them out,” Kaze said with furrowed brows.

An executive then contacted security to get Danny and his men out.

Danny’s expression turned bitter. He went over to Kaze and said, “Mr. Lee, your company invited us here to sign the contract and we still haven’t done any signing. We can’t leave just yet.”

“You mean this?”

Kaze pointed at the contracts on the table.

Danny nodded. With overflowing confidence and superiority, he said, “Yes. We have great plans for this project. Many companies tried to invest in us but we didn’t accept their investment. You should be honored. Now sign the contract...”

Before he could finish, Kaze swept all the contracts off the table and shoved them into the trash can.

“What is the meaning of this?”

Danny was furious. Kaze’s action was a humiliation to him.

Kaze said, “I don’t know how you can beautify begging so beautifully. Is everyone in Paladia’s royal family so shameless?”

Danny shouted at Kaze like a spoiled child.

He was loud but not aggressive at all.

“No matter what you say, you can’t change the fact that you are beggars.”

Kaze’s casual words infuriated Danny even more.

Before Danny could continue, Kaze shut him up with a fierce look and said coldly, “I’ll say this one more time: leave before I lose my patience!”

Danny was shaking due to anger. He had never been humiliated like this in his life.

Kaze insulted and humiliated him, not once, but twice in a row.

Danny shouted, “You stupid monkey! Jem and I have reached an agreement and he represented your company. Now that you are going back on your word, aren't you afraid of ruining your company's reputation..."

Slap!

He got a slap on his face.

He cried in pain and then glared at Kaze in shock. "You bastard! You hit me?!"

"It's not the first time."

Kaze shook his hand and continued, "Do you really think I care about my company's reputation?"

Money spoke louder than words.

He had a billion worth of funds and people would be lining up at his door if he wanted to invest.

Jem was kneeling before beggars and if he kept doing it, not only would the company lose its reputation, but he would lose his dignity as well.

The security guards finally arrived.

Kaze said, "Get them out of the building. If they resist, use violence."

The security guards seized them immediately.

"What the fuck are you monkeys doing?"

"We have diplomatic immunity! You cannot do this to us!"

"I'm going to sue you!"

No matter how loud Danny and his team shouted, the security guards got rid of them.

Half an hour later at Lee Investment's CEO's office.

"Danny? What happened to you? Who beat you up?"

Samson’s expression turned gloomy. “You mean the deal is off?”

His plan was to use Danny as a foreign diplomat to approach Jem and get the investment from Hudson Investment Firm. The money would ultimately end up with him.

He was the mastermind behind all this.

Danny, who was acting arrogantly before Kaze and the others earlier, was silenced after being scolded by Samson.

He dared not defy Samson.

Danny was a member of the royal family in Paladia but he was not a core member.

Before he arrived at Arcadia, he was excommunicated by the royal family and could no longer make ends meet at Paladia.

The royal status barely granted him any privileges.

He was able to connect with the consulate and have Jason and his men serve him because he had Samson's support.

As the middleman of the Sunrise Lee, Samson had a prestigious status in the upper circle; both Arcadians and Paladians would line up to earn his favor.

"Samson, it was Kaze who disregarded the Tulip Corporation. I will make him pay, I just need more time!"

Danny knew that without Samson, no one would take him seriously, so he had to provide assurance.

"We'll talk about that later."

Samson sent Danny off with a grim look.

Since the deal was foiled, scolding Danny would do no good anymore.

He sat on the leather couch and rubbed his swelling temples.

The Lee family wanted him to make Kaze deliver Cosmo back within three days.

He originally planned to embezzle the funds from Hudson Investment Firm within the given time and it would be done under the Lee family's knowledge.

He planned to use Danny to get the funds abroad and he could get it back in his foreign bank account without anyone finding out.

He could also use the chance to make Kaze deliver Cosmo back to the Lee family.

However, his plans could not catch up to the unexpected changes.

Taz later came in and saw his father troubled, so he volunteered himself to ease his father's burden.

"Dad, why don't I pressure Kaze?"

"You?" Samson frowned. "What do you have in mind?"

He knew his son's capabilities, which was nothing great.

Taz was annoyed that his father doubted his abilities. "Dad, I've been doing quite well in Lilyrose recently. I made some new friends with wider connections.

"I plan to go after Kaze Lee's family, more specifically, Rose. We will use her to lure him out and when we squash him, he will do whatever we say!"

Taz looked determined and ferocious.

Back in Mountain Dew Estate, not only did he fail to get Rose, but he got slapped by Kaze together with Lil Dee.

He thought Lil Dee was influential enough to destroy Kaze but then Sky Ocean Corporation had Professor Whiteman to save their reputation.

Lil Dee was then abandoned by his agency and he even asked Taz for help.

Taz could not swallow the grievance.

He swore to squash Kaze and get Rose!

Samson looked at his son. "I'm warning you. Get your priorities straight before you fuck around."

He knew Taz got into conflict with Kaze because of Rose a while back and he knew exactly what the kid had in mind.

Samson did not stop Taz from executing his plans, as long as the family would be clear of all consequences and troubles.

He gave tacit permission to Taz by nodding.

“His agency abandoned him because of the pressure from Sky Ocean Corporation. Can you do me a favor and take him in?”

Samson was deep in his thoughts and nodded without paying much attention to Taz.

“I recently invested in an entertainment agency and they are in need of personalities. I’ll tell them to sign him...”

After sending Jem to prison, Kaze strengthened his position in the investment firm.

“Sophie, work with the others to select some suitable investment projects,” Kaze said in his office.

The investment firm had a lot of money and Kaze did not want them to be idle..

Kaze planned to invest in some decent projects and achieve some desirable results so that he would not let Darcy down.

Some of the executives went to him with reports of their work.

Kaze mainly cared about how the company operated. His concerns were about the employees “attitude and not what they did.

“Now that you all are working for me, I want you to remember two things.

“One, I will not interfere with your work or process; I just want results. And two, don’t be like Jem Tart. He’s full of himself.”

After giving the executives a little warning, Kaze sent them back to work.

However, Kaze was not interested in her sexually.

Since Kaze took care of Taz and the bullies for Rose and her friends, the girl grew closer to him.

It was obvious, especially in her adorable voice.

The girl used her most adorable voice to melt Kaze’s stone–cold heart.

There was no way he could reject her now.

He liked the girl as well and he wanted her to be safe.

Kaze nodded. "Fine. I'll skip work for you."

"Yay! You are the best!"

Rose cheered and even shot him a kiss through the phone.

Kaze shook his head and then left the office.

He told Sophie that he was leaving to handle some personal matters.

Right after he left, Miru arrived.

As soon as she set foot in the office, she bellowed, "Where is your CEO, tell him to get out here right now! He didn't inform me of what happened! Who does he think I am?"

Chapter 938

Chapter 938 Landon's Master

Miru had discovered Jem instigating the employees to embezzle money from the company.

What angered her the most was that she found out about it through the employees of Lefteria Group, not from Kaze or anyone from Hudson Investment Firm.

If someone else was the CEO, she did not mind because it would be a great chance to test the person's strength.

If the person could not handle the situation, he or she might not be fit to be CEO.

However, the CEO of Hudson Investment Firm was Kaze, the one person that Miru looked down upon.

She strongly believed Kaze was not capable of handling the situation yet he did not inform her about the matter.

She was infuriated.

"Ms. Scarlet, Mr. Lee just left," Sophie said.

“Is he dealing with work–related matters?”

Sophie was surprised that Miru looked angry but she remained humble and said, “Mr. Lee left to deal with some personal matters and he put me in charge of daily operations.”

Miru was furious upon hearing Sophie’s report.

“That useless piece of shit! Shit hits the fan on his first day and he leaves without even telling me what happened?!”

Kaze had no idea what happened at the office after he left.

He went straight home to meet with Rose.

“Kaze, you’re back already!?”

Rose was waiting for him at the door and she ran out to him when he came out of the car.

She looked energetic and adorable when she ran.

Kaze asked, “Where are you bringing me?”

“I don’t know. Landon said he’s bringing me to some place.”

“Dad and Mom are worried about him mingling in the wrong circle, and since Landon’s master said he wanted to meet me, they sent me to watch after that boy.”

Nelson and Agatha were the strangest parents.

They were worried that Landon might be with the wrong crowd, so they sent their barely legal daughter to watch over him.

Maybe because they thought no one would dare to touch Rose since Nelson was with the military.

“Kaze, I’m scared something bad might happen, like the other day with Taz, so I called you.”

Rose held Kaze’s arm as she explained.

She was deeply impressed by Kaze when he beat up Taz and Lil Dee.

She felt safe around him.

“Alright. I’ll go with you to see what’s going on.”

Kaze realized Rose was being extremely intimate.

The girl might not be the age to realize it was inappropriate to be so intimate with another man but Kaze was an adult.

He subtly pulled his hand away and patted her head. “Where’s Landon?”

Rose felt like Kaze was treating her like a child and she pouted.

She gestured at the door with her chin.

Landon came out looking like a drunkard.

Kaze knew at first sight that the boy had ill thoughts.

Landon grinned and arrogantly said, "Do you know who my master is? He is not some thug on the street. He's almost invincible in Lilyrose! I am certain that he will kick your ass if you go!"

He emphasized the question to scare Kaze off.

Kaze smiled and said, "If it's true, then I would really want to meet this master of yours."

"Fine, I'll bring you to my master!"

Landon grunted and grumbled, "My master will teach you a lesson that you won't forget!"

Kaze reported Landon's father to the disciplinary department of the military multiple times and even made him a driver two days ago.

Landon hated Kaze for disrespecting his father and he had always wanted to teach Kaze a lesson.

Rose knew her brother had malice in him. She widened her eyes and warned him, "Landon, I'm warning you. If you are up to something bad, I'll beat you up!"

She was not overly concerned about Landon's so-called master.

Firstly, she believed in Kaze's strength.

Secondly, she believed Landon was bluffing.

The boy had no chance of knowing any powerful masters in Lilyrose.

“I’m just giving him a friendly reminder and he insists on coming. I’m just trying to avenge

Dad.”

Landon grunted and added, “When I get stronger, I will beat Sky up and make him kneel!”

Landon gestured and then walked out of the house. He was eager to see his master beat up

Kaze.

The three of them got a ride via Uber to the address Landon provided.

Half an hour later, they arrived at a bustling street.

The street was filled with neon signs and the most eye-catching of all was the Bay Club’s.

Landon brought Kaze and Rose inside.

“Isn’t this Gold Tooth’s turf?”

Kaze was here before.

A few days ago, Gold Tooth and Dan were destroyed by the Twin Ghosts and this was the place.

Lilyrose was not exactly small but since only Gold Tooth and Dan were left in charge of the underworld, they were more or less affiliated with all the clubs and bars.

Even if these properties were independently owned, Gold Tooth and Dan’s men were hired as bouncers.

As for Lefteria Group, they were never interested in the club business.

Bay Club was loud and noisy and many men and women were dancing.

There were a lot of sexy girls in the club but Rose was still able to turn heads upon entry.

Her innocence was unconcealable, especially in a place like this.

Kaze never liked noisy places. He frowned as Landon brought them up to the second floor, where it was much quieter and provided an overview of the dance floor.

Of course, such an environment came with a heavy price.

“Landon, here you are! Have a seat!”

A group of young men and women were playing games.

Landon had to greet all of them before they reacted to his arrival. It seemed like Landon was not exactly a part of the group.

“Who is this beautiful girl?”

“Landon, introduce us!”

Several young men noticed Rose and got curiously eager.

Landon proudly said, “This is my sister, Rose.”

“Rose, let me introduce you to my seniors... This is Gavin, this is Yaryn...”

Landon was like an attentive waiter in front of the men and women as he introduced Rose to them.

However, they did not take Landon seriously and disregarded his attentiveness. After finding out Rose's identity, their attitudes shifted as well.

Yaryn, the young lady with the red jacket and tank top, scrutinized Rose coldly, and so did the other girls.

"Landon, your sister is quite pretty. I believe after today, Master Billy will train you as one of his core disciples," Yaryn said with a smirk.

Rose frowned as Yaryn's words made her uncomfortable.

Her looks and her brother being trained as the core disciple had no relation at all.

Women had natural sharp instincts.

Yaryn might not make it obvious but the subtle hostility she revealed was detected by Rose.

Rose knew Yaryn did not mean well.

Kaze noticed the hostility in the air as well. He glanced at Yaryn but did not say anything.

The other three guys who were eager to know Rose were deterred when they knew her identity. Even though they still showed interest in Rose, they were less eager now.

Master Billy, or Billy Tensor, was their master.

Based on their conversation, one could tell how rotten the man's personality was.

Little did Landon know, his seniors were not just disciples to his master.

His master actually had affairs with the girls, including Yaryn.

The girls knew at first sight that Billy would be into Rose, so they dared not give her a difficult time.

“Yaryn, where’s Master Billy?” Landon asked as he shot a glance at Kaze.

He did not even bother introducing Kaze.

“Master Billy is talking with some fellow upstairs. He’ll be with us soon.

Yaryn crossed her arms and scrutinized Kaze. She was curious.

She asked, “Landon, who is this handsome guy? Why didn’t you introduce him?”

“Yeah, Landon. Where are your manners?”

The other two girls scrutinized Kaze as well.

Darcy ordered a set of suits for Kaze when he was made CEO of Hudson Investment Firm.

He even wore the expensive watch that Miru gave him a while ago.

Yaryn and the girls were socialites and based on a man’s attire and temperament, they knew how rich and powerful the man was.

They believed Kaze was a young and successful business elite, which piqued their interest. Search the FindNOvel.net website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Landon simply introduced Kaze.

Since he did not like Kaze at all, he seized the chance to humiliate him.

“All he does is stay at home, do chores and stuff. He’s arrogant, proud, and disrespectful. Since we are hanging out here, I thought of bringing him here to see the world.”

Yaryn and the girls did not believe Landon at first.

“Landon, are you kidding me? His suit is not cheap at all and it’s purely handmade.”

“That watch on his hand cost six figures. It doesn’t look fake either.”

“If he’s just some guy who took his wife’s last name, how can he get all these?”

“Besides, Kaze looked decent, unlike those useless garbage.”

Yaryn and the girls were extremely curious about Kaze.

To them, a man who married into the wife’s family had no dignity and could never enjoy such privileges.

The girls would not be interested in such a man.

Kaze found it amusing that the girls did not believe Landon, even when the boy was telling the truth.

He smiled and explained, “Landon is right. I took my wife’s family name. And not all sons–in– law were denied privileges. My wife ordered the suit for me and my wife’s best friend gave me the watch.”

He believed he must correct the girls.

The young men and women laughed.

It would be amusing when Billy beat up Kaze.

Kaze frowned and was considering giving them each a slap.

Rose lost her patience and bellowed, "You guys are just trying to act cool by looking down on Kaze! Kaze doesn't even want to be with you!"

She then kicked Landon's butt and said, "We are leaving! Look at them! If Mom and Dad find out about this, they will skin you alive!"

Gavin and the others were annoyed by Rose's words.

Before they could speak, Landon said determinedly, "I'm not leaving! Master Billy isn't here yet!"

He saw no problem that his seniors looked down on Kaze because he shared the sentiment.

"No..."

Rose tugged Landon and tried to persuade him to leave.

"Hey, cutie. Why don't you come and drink with us?"

Suddenly, several gangsters wobbled over with beer bottles in their hands.

Their eyes were glued to Rose's body and they looked like they could eat her alive.

They came over because Rose caught their attention.

In fact, Rose had caught too much attention the moment she stepped into the club.

Due to the intervention, Rose could no longer lecture her brother.

She was afraid of the gangsters and felt helpless against them.

“N–No thanks. I don’t drink..”

Before she could finish, she was interrupted.

“Come on, cutie. Why the cold shoulder? Do we look like bad guys? We just want to have some. fun.”

The leader of the gangsters tried to reach out to Rose.

Kaze knew he could no longer sit back and do nothing.

He came to protect Rose, so there was no way he would let some gangsters lay hands on her.

Right before he could pull Rose away, someone beat him to it.

Gavin slapped the gangster’s hand away and bellowed, “She’s my master’s girl, not your plaything.”

His firm words angered the gangsters and they started to scrutinize him cautiously.

Landon was just an ignorant boy.

Gavin stepped up for Rose because of Billy.

He knew Billy was into Rose so there was no way he could let other gangsters take her away.

“Punk, loud words you have there. You have no idea who I am.”

The gangster glared at Gavin, trying to scare him off.

The leader, Leath, covered his face and laughed out loud.

"Punk, Bay Club is owned by my boss' boss! You are fucked!"

"Your boss' boss?"

Gavin frowned before his expression turned bitter.

Everyone knew that Bay Club was Gold Tooth's turf and the place was practically his old den.

Leath must be a subordinate to one of Gold Tooth's men!

Gavin just realized what he had done with the slap.

His arrogance was now gone and his body started shaking. His lips were shuddering as he stuttered, "I—I am terribly sorry, Brother Leath! I didn't know you were Gold Tooth's man..."

Bang!

Before he could finish, Leath smashed the bottle of beer on Gavin's head.

Gavin collapsed on the ground instantly. His face was covered with blood and beer. He covered his face as he groaned in pain.

Leath kicked Gavin in the stomach and shouted, "You fuck! I'll cut your hand off!"

Gavin was horrified. He endured the pain and got up on his knees.

He pointed at them. "All of you, on your knees and let me slap you ten times!"

"Our master is Billy Tensor! You can't do this to us!"

"Brother Leath, this isn't our fault!"

Yaryn and the others were horrified. They tried to beg but it was useless.

Leath and the gangsters were furious.

They forced Yaryn and the others on their knees and started slapping them.

Cries and sobs filled the air instantly.

“Don’t have the nerves to make him drink? Who does he think he is? Such arrogance.”

“Cut the crap. Just beat him up and he’ll learn.”

The gangsters behind Leath clamored and threatened to beat up Kaze.

They had never seen someone so arrogant before.

Leath laughed. He glared at Kaze and said, “I’d like to see who you are, acting like a fucking prink on my boss’ turf!”

Gavin and the others were afraid. They knew Leath was pissed off with Kaze and were glad that Kaze had drawn Leath’s attention away from themselves. While gloating over his misfortune, they were also afraid that Leath would come back at them with more ferocity.

The calmest of them all was Kaze.

He leaned back on the couch and chuckled. “Then why don’t you come closer to have a better look?”

“Fine. I’ll see what your stupid face looks like!”

Leath grinned, showing his ugly teeth.

Landon was terrified. He stomped anxiously and shouted at Kaze, “Enough, Kaze! Stop messing with Brother Leath!”

Even Gavin and the others were afraid of Leath, so he assumed Kaze would not be able to handle the situation.

Kaze was simply courting death.

“Get the hell out of my way!”

Leath pushed Landon away and stepped forward to have a better look at Kaze.

Leath turned around and glared at Gavin angrily.

No one dared to stop him at all.

Kaze noticed the beating had gone on for a while, so he stopped Leath. "That's enough. You are going to kill him."

Leath immediately stopped and stood still with a slight bow, waiting for Kaze's next instruction.

"The one who you are trying to tease is Rose, my wife's niece."

Kaze pointed at Rose and said coldly, "Shouldn't you apologize to her as well?"

He did not plan to hurt Leath or give him a difficult time since Rose was not hurt at all.

Besides, Leath was Gold Tooth's man and he taught Gavin a lesson, so he planned to make Leath apologize and that would be all.

Leath was horrified when he found out that he just tried to tease Rose, who was close to Kaze. "Y-Yes, sir!"

Leath nodded.

Billy was a man known for his fearlessness and defiance. Gavin realized that Taz must be someone important since Billy addressed him formally. "That's him."

Taz narrowed his eyes dangerously at Kaze and nodded with a pretentious smile. He said, "No. rush. You can sort this out before getting to him." He then sat down in a nearby booth to watch the drama..

Gavin, Yaryn, and the others were thrilled.

After the beating they received, Gavin and his group got a kick out of humiliating their attackers.

"They attacked us!" Gavin pointed at the gangsters and said excitedly.

Billy nodded and glanced at the gangsters. "Don't just stand there. Didn't you hear what I said?"

The gangsters were not the type to take orders from just anybody. They would not get down on their knees to be assaulted.

However, the insulting situation was more than they could take.

Landon could not stand Kaze.

Kaze never took his remarks to heart though.

Leath and his gang held back from fighting Billy because Kaze said nothing, simply sitting back and watching.

Otherwise, the gangsters would not let Billy walk all over them.

Leath and his men were familiar with the world of crime. They were capable of doing anything when backed into a corner.

Although Billy could fight, Leath and his gang had weapons that could do a fair bit of damage to Billy.

Billy was too young and arrogant to see that.

He had no idea of the narrow escape from death he had experienced.

"Haha! Landon is right!"

Gavin, Yaryn, and the others looked over with a smirk.

"The loser even tried to get Leath to apologize."

"He only went up against Leath because Billy was near."

The group taunted Kaze.

Gavin and his gang pinned the group down and slapped their faces, while Kaze, Landon, and Rose were unharmed. They were humiliated just now.

However, Landon was one of them and Billy took a fancy to Rose, so the group could not openly criticize them.

Hence, they took their anger out on Kaze to ease the bruise on their egos.

Kaze's eyes were chilling. However, he paid no heed to the group. They were not worth his time anyway.

Billy had asked if Taz had any feud with Kaze, but Taz dodged the question and insisted Billy deal with Kaze.

Though it was amusing to Billy, he knew whose side he was on.

They were in awe of Taz's privileged upbringing.

After the fall of the three major families, Lee Investment asserted itself in the local market and acquired many businesses.

Lee Investment became quite the talk of the town.

They did not want to be caught in Billy's bad graces, so they flung abuse at Kaze to please Taz. "Mr. Hobbs is a wealthy, powerful, and poised gentleman. A certain moocher has nothing on him." "That's right. I don't know where the loser finds the courage to get on Mr. Hobbs' case."

The women let Kaze have it once more.

Despite his gleeful emotions, Taz had to keep it together and said without a care, "Haha. Don't look down on Kaze."

"You might now know this, but he was once the heir of the prestigious Lee family in Sunrise."

group widened their eyes at Kaze, with jaws dropping.

The heir of the Sunrise Lees outranked Taz.

Lee Investment was only one of the Lees' many businesses. Taz and his father were only working for the wealthy Lees.

Taz changed the topic. "But the Lees disowned Kaze years ago."

"He is just a stray who doesn't have a home to go back to."
