

HACKER 2191

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2191-“She’s the fresh face in our company. We had to add her performance into the list today at the last minute for the rehearsal at the company. That’s why I didn’t have time to pick Lulu up to see the show,” Spencer explained frankly.

“So that’s why,” Nicole responded, her eyes fixed on Lulu.

And as if Nicole had read her mind, Lulu felt an inexplicable sense of embarrassment.

“Alright then, you two can go ahead. I won’t disturb your date,” Nicole waved her hand, signaling both to leave.

“Okay,” Spencer said.

He was also aware that Jared’s car was just parked ahead and did not want to hold the couple up longer than he needed to.

“Spencer, just bring Lulu home if you have nothing to do. Don’t always go out on dates,” Nicole teased and turned around to search for Jared.

“Spencer?” A sweet female voice blared out, causing Nicole to abruptly pause and whirl around.

The few people in the scene turned their attention to the girl coming toward them in unison. It was the same girl who had made an appearance on TV today together with Spencer; she must be the new girl Spencer had mentioned.

“Hi, what are you here?” Spencer asked in confusion.

The girl then looked at Nicole and Lulu, before replying, “I was passing by and saw you. So I got out of the car to take a look.”

The junior saw Spencer with these two women and wondered about his relationship with them. She asked curiously, “Are these your friends?”

“Let me introduce them to you,” Spencer said and looked at Nicole. “This is my junior whom I just told you about. Her name is Icyln.”

Nicole nodded toward Icyln. “I’m Nicole, Spencer’s sister.”

Upon hearing that Nicole was Spencer’s sister, a smile crossed Icyln’s face. “Hi.”

“Lulu, Nicole’s secretary,” Lulu followed and introduced herself.

Nicole raised her brows slightly, wondering why Lulu had introduced herself as her secretary.

“Lulu’s my girlfriend,” Spencer was discontented with Lulu’s introduction and pulled her to his side. He thought, ‘Why did she say she was Nicole’s secretary? Was it so difficult to say that she was my girlfriend?’

This surprised Lulu, who then stared at Spencer. She had never expected him to introduce her to someone so seriously.

“Girlfriend?!” Icyln was taken aback, unable to help herself from stealing a glance at Lulu.

“Yes,” Spencer nodded in affirmation.

In response, Icyln’s expression stiffened. ‘Spencer actually has a girlfriend? But this girlfriend of his seems so mediocre.

Biting her lips discreetly, Icyln nodded at Lulu before ignoring her on purpose, after which she looked at Spencer and said, “Hey, I’m new to San Joto, so I’m not familiar with this place. Can you show me around?”

“Yea, alright,” Spencer agreed.

After all, he had already promised his teacher that he would look after Icyln.

Icyln reached out and took Spencer’s arm happily. “What are we waiting for? Let’s go then.”

Spencer unknowingly withdrew from her grasp. “Not now. Maybe tomorrow. If there’s nothing going on in the company tomorrow, I will show you around.”

Spencer would keep his promise to his teacher, as expected. However, this was his only time alone, and he already had plans with Lulu long ago. He did not want to cancel his date just because of a newcomer. As for Icyln’s desire to explore San Joto, he believed it could be done tomorrow during work hours.

In a tone hinting at her being aggrieved, Icyln said, “Spencer, I just came here. It’s so lonely being on my own. Can’t you stay with me?” i

“I don’t think your choice to come to San Joto is a good one, since you are still so dependent on the company of others. Isn’t it better to stay in your own familiar environment?” Nicole looked at Icyln with eyes brimming with curiosity, her voice filled with concern.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2192-Icy In’s expression froze, and her face blanched in frustration. However, Nicole was Spencer’s sister, so Icyln could only grit her teeth and put on a fake smile. “Exactly, I’m not satisfied with the way I am, so I wanted to get out of my comfort zone and train myself.”

“Oh, I see,” Nicole nodded in understanding.

She proceeded to encourage Icyln, “In that case, I think you should adapt to being alone as soon as possible. Otherwise, your trip here wouldn’t be meaningful, or even enjoyable.”

Nicole then looked at Spencer, saying, “Isn’t that right, Spencer?”

“Exactly,” Spencer replied, backing his sister up.

He too felt that if Icyln was not prepared, she should not have left home and come to San Joto on her own.

Icyln’s smile froze, unable to hold it together at this point, and in a troubled tone, she could only agree, “Alright then. So you will come to the company tomorrow, right?”

“Of course,” Spencer blandly responded, for it was a certainty that he would go to the company if he did not have any performances arranged.

"In that case, I'll wait for you at the company tomorrow," Icyln agreed, her voice feeble as if giving the impression of helplessness.

Nicole's pupils contracted, and she turned to look at Lulu. She noticed Lulu's face had blanched as well, and that was where she realized she was not the only one with this odd feeling. She noticed that something was off from the very beginning. Even though Spencer had clearly introduced Lulu as his girlfriend, Icyln had ignored the fact nonetheless.

Icyln had even grabbed Spencer's arm and acted cute with him, an act which Nicole had found to be rather irksome.

Naturally, Lulu was on guard as Icyln's actions had made her uncomfortable.

Noting Lulu's pale complexion, Spencer asked in concern, "Are you alright?"

"I'm fine," Lulu shook her head.

"Are you tired of standing? We'll get going first," Spencer replied, worried that Lulu was tired.

He looked at Nicole thereafter, and said, "We'll go first."

"Alright," Nicole agreed without hesitation.

Spencer then turned to Icyln. "See you tomorrow at the company."

With that, Spencer got in the car with Lulu and left.

Watching as the vehicle barreled away, Nicole smirked, "Icyln? Until we meet again."

Nicole believed they would meet each other quite often in the future. If Icyln was smart enough, she would know how to behave.

"Goodbye," Icyln politely bade her farewell, whereupon Nicole nodded in response and walked away.

Just like that, the lively scene died down, leaving Icyln alone. The smile on her face gradually faded, and her eyes reeked with resignation as she looked in the direction where Spencer's car had driven away.

On the other hand, Spencer saw Lulu leaning against the seat, looking rather deflated.

His eyes were full of concern as he asked, "If you're really too tired, we can cancel the plan. I'll send you home first, or you can come to mine. We'll eat at my place, so that you wouldn't have to go home with an empty stomach."

"I'll go home first," Lulu bit her lip and answered. She understood Spencer had considered everything carefully. However, she was not in the mood to go to his house.

Besides, she was in a terrible state of mind. As such, she did not want to affect other people as well by going to his house.

"Alright then," Spencer agreed, slowly pulling the car over into a parking space.

In surprise, Lulu asked, "Why did you stop the car?"

'This isn't my house. Didn't Spencer say he was going to take me home?' Lulu wondered.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2193-Lulu really needed some time to figure things out herself, having been overwhelmed by the incidents she had experienced today. She needed her own space to calm down.

Spencer pushed the car door open and got out. "Come on. There's a supermarket in front. Let's go grocery shopping first."

Worried that Lulu would not eat properly when she headed home, Spencer decided to buy some ingredients so that they could whip up a meal at her house later.

"G-Grocery shopping?" Lulu asked in surprise. "What for?"

At that moment, Lulu had no appetite to eat as she just wanted to go home.

"We're eating at your house tonight, so we need to buy some ingredients. Otherwise, we'll have to settle with eating pot noodles later," Spencer teased Lulu.

He then came over to open the car door on the passenger side, pulling Lulu out.

Lulu reacted accordingly, knowing that Spencer wanted to go home and share a meal with her. He had probably known that she was not going to eat, and that it would lead up to the situation where she could not stand the hunger and settle for pot noodles.

Amid the cocktail of emotions, Lulu was touched by his actions. Concurrently, however, she was heartbroken.

"Let's go," Spencer held Lulu's hand and led her toward the supermarket.

Lulu was half a step behind Spencer, looking up at his tall and elegant figure. He was so outstanding, and she had always thought that as long as she worked hard, she would be qualified to stand by his side. But today's incident made her question herself. Today had made her wonder if she could really do it, or work things out with him. She was lost in her thoughts as she suddenly lost all the confidence she had been building all this while.

Noticing Lulu's silence and preoccupied look, Spencer asked. "What are you thinking about?"

Lulu bit her lips and pretended as if nothing was going on, saying, "It's nothing. I was just a little curious about that junior of yours. I've never heard you mention her before."

In regard to Icyln, Lulu could not deny the fact that she did not mind her. After all, Icyln was such a stunning girl, making her impossible to ignore.

"Icyln is from Siathern. She used to study under my teacher, so he had asked me to keep an eye out for her when she came to San Joto," Spencer explained.

"And she's now in your company. Will she stay here?" Lulu asked, gritting her teeth a little.

"I'm not sure about that. That's a company matter. Besides, we don't work under the same agent, so I'm not certain of her future developments," Spencer answered truthfully.

What's more, Spencer did not care much about Icyln's affairs. He had only promised his teacher to look after her. As for Icyln's career or developments in life, it was beyond his considerations.

Lulu wanted to remind Spencer that Icyln seemed to like San Joto and might even stay here. She chewed her lips and hesitated because she feared Spencer might not understand what she actually meant.

Just as they reached the entrance of the supermarket, Lulu brushed her thoughts aside and followed Spencer to shop for ingredients. Since he was staying for dinner, Lulu had to prepare dishes he liked to eat. The couple shopped for ingredients together, discussing what they wanted for dinner. The sweet and loving atmosphere resembling that of a real married couple began to show, and Lulu's mood gradually improved.

Night fell soon after, and Nicole noticed Samuel being a little crestfallen and depressed in the dining room.

She raised her eyebrows with a smirk and asked, "What's with that expression? Did you just get dumped or something?"

"It's not far from that," Samuel helplessly heaved a sigh.

Looking at his lifeless demeanor, Nicole could not help but laugh. "Well work hard then, or else you might lose to Spencer."

"Ugh," Samuel heaved another sigh and buried his face in his plate, directing his grief onto the food.

Having registered her son's current state of mind, Gloria asked, "What happened? Why don't you share it with us? We can help you out."

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2194-"There's no need for that," Samuel shook his head, as having others around to assist him in solving problems of this sort was embarrassing to say the least.

"Mom, forget it. Just wait for the good news," Nicole smiled and advised.

After all, no one could help another with relationship matters.

"That's right. Let the kids handle their own affairs," Daniel said while serving his wife some food.

"I'm finished. You guys take your time," Samuel said while putting his empty bowl down. He then got up and went upstairs, each step heavy and loud.

"Why would he..." Gloria shook her head helplessly.

Nicole looked at Samuel's figure, and a hint of amusement crossed her eyes. She was certain June and Samuel did not have a fight. If anything, June would never have the heart to fight with him, while Samuel would definitely not pick on June either. It was probably because June had been too anxious about Samuel's pursuit and might have spewed some harsh words as a result.

Still, it did not really matter, as the two of them obviously cared for each other. Therefore, Nicole had no doubt that their relationship would not be in trouble.

After dinner, Jared and Nicole went upstairs and entered Nolan's room.

"Daddy, Mommy," Lana shouted joyfully when she saw her parents.

“Hi Lana, you’re in your brother’s room as well,” Nicole smiled, not expecting Lana to be here. “What are you doing?”

“I’m building blocks, and Nolan seems to be taking up a task,” Lana glanced in Nolan’s direction, where he was busy at his computer desk.

Lana got bored in her room alone, so she had come to play with Nolan. However, Nolan seemed busy, so she had to play with herself. Still, her being forced to play alone in her brother’s company was better than doing so in a room all on her own.

Jared lowered his gaze to look at Lana’s blocks and asked, “What are you building, Lana?”

“A castle,” Lana smiled sweetly and tugged at the seams of Jared’s jacket. “Daddy, will you come to play with me?”

“Why, of course,” Jared sat down and played with Lana.

Looking at Jared’s big figure sitting on the mat, playing with blocks, Nicole’s eyes flashed with a hint of amusement. This scene did not feel out of place; instead, it felt heartwarming. This felt like an act of compensation for the five years he had missed with the children.

With joy in her eyes, Nicole looked at Nolan, who seemed to be totally engrossed in his task.

Raising her eyebrows, she curiously approached him from behind. ‘Why is he so serious today? It is as if he is dealing with an enemy. Well, this is a first. I have never seen him being so serious before. Could it be that he has taken on a difficult task?’

After getting a clear look at the screen, Nicole’s pupils contracted in shock, and she asked, “Nolan, what are you tracking?”

“Oh, it’s the mission you’ve posted before about the five major crests. I saw someone had accepted it but backed out rather quickly. So, I wanted to find out who it was. I wanted to know who had taken the mission and backed out,” Nolan answered without stopping what he was doing even for a second.

“Stop what you’re doing right away,” Nicole’s tone became stern.

“Oh, alright,” Nolan immediately stopped, halting the tracking process.

Although he did not understand why, he habitually listened to Nicole whenever the act of hacking was concerned.

After the system had returned to its default settings, Nolan asked Nicole in curiosity, “Mom, why can’t I continue tracking?”

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2195-“That person took the mission and backed out later on.

There are only two possibilities. First, he found out that he could not complete the mission. Either that, or he was testing us to get an idea of what our identities are,” Nicole explained to Nolan.

Nolan blinked his big eyes twice, seemingly having understood what she was saying. “So, that means he might not have a clue about any of the crests, but he wanted to find out who was interested in searching for them?”

Nicole stroked Nolan's hair in relief. "Let's not rule out this possibility,"

If anything, Nicole felt this was the most likely reason as to why that individual had backed out.

"That was close," Nolan sighed as he almost got Nicole in trouble,

"In the future, don't do anything risky at random. All you need to care about now is your ranking. As you hone your abilities, your ranking will naturally get higher," Nicole said with a hint of gentleness in her eyes.

At the end of the day, Nicole wanted to protect Nolan, and improve his skills in a proper way.

"Alright, I get it. If I encounter any problems again, I will inform you first," Nolan promised, his gaze filled with the determination of an adult.

"Good," Nicole agreed with a delighted smile.

"This is Daddy's study. This is Mommy's and Nolan's..."

Looking at Lana's chubby fingers pointing at every part of the castle with a beaming smile, Nicole felt a surge of warmth in her heart.

The sky became darker thereafter, and the couple returned to their room once they had checked on their kids.

"You can go ahead and take a shower first. I still have things to take care of," Nicole said while taking her laptop out, her expression solemn and unsmiling.

Knowing what Nicole was going to do, Jared's pupils contracted. Instead of entering the bathroom, he sat down and stayed beside her.

Nicole operated the computer and quickly accessed an interface, tracing a certain cyber trail with utmost caution. After a while, she logged out from the interface.

"It was indeed a trap," Nicole said with a sigh. Just as Nicole had suspected, the other person was trying to uncover her identity. If she had not stopped Nolan, Nolan's IP address would have been discovered by the other party. This would expose his identity, along with hers.

"Who was it?" Jared asked, a cold glint flashing in his eyes.

"I'm not sure. The other person had an anonymous account, so nothing can be found," Nicole explained.

Knowing what her enemy was doing, Nicole did not dare to perform a thorough check. She did not want to alert the other party, as that would make it difficult for her to detect them in the future.

After logging out of the system, Nicole shut her computer down. All she had to do was sit tight and lead her adversary into believing that she had not found anything about them. That way, she might still have a chance when they gradually let their guard down.

In any case, Nicole was more than curious about who the person was. She believed that they would not just disappear into the night. She was also convinced that she would be able to find them. To do so, she would have to start out by discovering some clues.

“Add a firewall to your and Nolan’s computer,” Jared said as his eyes darkened.

Although they were both very careful and skilled at what they were doing, it was better to be safe than sorry.

Nicole bit her lips and agreed, “Deal, I will.”

Nolan’s actions today were indeed reckless. There were no adverse consequences this time, but there was no guarantee that he would be as fortunate next time.

Therefore, they had to plan ahead.

Upon hearing Nicole’s promise, Jared felt more at ease. “It’s getting late. Let’s go to sleep.”

“Yeah, let’s get some,” Nicole got up to put the laptop away before heading off to the bathroom.

When she came back, they both laid down and fell asleep on the bed.

In the blink of an eye, the next day arrived.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2196-The new day seemed to be full of hope. After breakfast, everyone was ready to start their busy day.

“Go on. Be good, alright?” Nicole reminded them.

Then, Nolan and Lana waved their hands at Nicole. “Bye-bye, Mommy.”

“Nicole, well leave first,” Tia walked away with the twins in tow. Just as she turned around, she almost bumped into someone’s arm, and in shock, she abruptly stopped in her tracks.

Recognizing the person, Tia whispered, “Mr. Stanley. Is there something up?”

“I was just about to leave. Let’s go together,” Stanley said, turned around, and walked away.

Tia stared at his figure skeptically. She was puzzled as Stanley seemed to be busy nowadays. He was always the one who left earliest and came back the latest, which was unlike his usual routine.

“Let’s go, Aunt Tia,” Nolan went over to Stanley’s car with a shrewd look on his face.

Tia froze for a moment, “Huh?”

After that, Lana pulled Tia to the car, saying, “Aunt Tia, let’s hurry up. Otherwise, well be late.”

“Oh, okay,” Tia instantly picked up her pace as she heard Lana mentioning about being late.

After they had all gotten in, the car drove off. Nicole's eyes narrowed into a meaningful smile as she watched the entire situation. Stanley indeed had special feelings for Tia, after all.

"Let's leave too," Jared's voice emanated from next to Nicole, causing her to snap back to reality and follow him to the car.

Soon, Jared sent Nicole to Riddle Corporation. Just as she had gotten down from the car, she heard someone calling out to her when she was ready to enter the building.

Nicole turned around to discover that it was Lawrence, prompting her to be surprised. "Leo? Why are you here?"

"I was passing by, so I figured I might as well pay you a visit. So, how are you doing lately?" Lawrence said with a beaming smile.

"Just the same old. Let's go up," Nicole smiled and took Lawrence up to the office building.

At the office, the secretary quickly brought coffee for them before exiting not long after.

"Have a seat," Nicole said.

After they had both sauntered to the couch and taken their seats, Lawrence asked in a seemingly casual manner, "You seem busy lately."

"It's alright. It's all work stuff, they're manageable," Nicole smiled, feeling that it was better for her to be occupied.

In an apparent tone of concern, Lawrence advised, "You've still not recovered entirely. Remember not to overwork yourself. Your health should be your top priority."

Nicole laughed in response. "I understand, though I really don't find it exhausting."

Lawrence nodded a little, and with a reassuring look, he casually added, "Nolan has not been taking up any mission, hasn't he? I've not noticed any activity from him lately."

Nicole was taken aback for a moment, but before long, she collected herself and explained, "Well, he does play around occasionally."

Lawrence nodded with understanding. "No wonder I've rarely seen him being active. Though, he does often leave me messages."

"Nolan left you messages again?" Nicole asked in defeat.

Nolan was indeed quite attached to Lawrence.

"Yep," Lawrence smiled. "He mentioned a few days ago that he wants to go to the amusement park when he has free time. I promised I would take him when I'm free."

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2197-"This kid," Nicole shook her head helplessly. "Don't bother with him. I'll take him and Lana out when I have the time,"

"Hey, it's fine. I like bringing them out," Lawrence said with a beam.

Nicole changed the topic, not wanting to trouble Lawrence too much. Times were different from when they were on Crescent Island. In addition, Lawrence had just come to San Joto too, and thus, he must be busy with other issues.

“Seeing that you’ve come all the way to meet me personally, is there something else?” Nicole asked softly.

Lawrence sighed without another mention about bringing the kids out on the weekend. “Nothing important. I just wanted to know if there is any progress with the electronic badge you’ve once helped me decipher?”

Nicole shook her head, feeling somewhat shameful. “I’m sorry. Not yet.”

“No, it’s alright. I was just asking anyways,” Lawrence comforted Nicole as he noticed her downcast eyes.

“I’m still trying. I will let you know when there is progress,” Nicole said, her gaze glinting with a touch of determination.

Nicole knew the value of the electronic badge to Lawrence. Lawrence had aided her so much in the past, so she had always reminded herself that she had to help Lawrence decipher this electronic badge. However, up until now, there had been zero progress. This made her determined to work harder.

“It really doesn’t matter. Don’t put too much pressure on yourself,” Lawrence comforted.

Although he wanted results, he did not mean to rush her. If she could not crack it now, all he could do was wait.

“Alright,” Nicole nodded gently, deciding to decipher and obtain the badge for him as soon as possible.

“Nicole, you...” Lulu entered Nicole’s office and paused midsentence when she saw Lawrence.

Lawrence shot a glance at Lulu, stood up, and said, “It seems that you have work to do. Well, I’ll get going first.”

“Alright,” Nicole replied, aware that Lulu had come in to report something.

After sending Lawrence away, Lulu asked Nicole, “When did Mr. Royce come in? I didn’t even notice. Did he want to talk to you about something?”

“He was just passing by,” Nicole answered, avoiding the details of the conversation. “What were you going to report about?”

“Oh,” Lulu instantly regained her composure. “June just called me. She told me that Samuel got hurt in a match and is being rushed to the hospital.”

“What?!” Nicole’s eyes widened, and her face blanched.

“I wanted to head to the hospital, so I came over to tell you,” Lulu stated, wanting to accompany June as she knew that the latter was panicking right now.

Nicole bit her lip, after which she said, “We’ll go together.”

“Alright,” Lulu agreed.

Then, Nicole hurriedly explained the situation to Sean and Steve through a phone call and left the company building with Lulu.

Soon, they arrived at the hospital. June was already there, standing outside the emergency room, anxiously looking inside. Although she could not see anything, doing so calmed her a little.

“June,” Lulu called out.

Turning her eyes to see Nicole and Lulu present, June’s calm facade, which she had been maintaining for a while, crumbled.

“You’re here,” she wept.

“How’s the situation inside?” Nicole asked with a furrowed brow.

In response, June shook her head. “It’s still unknown. All we know is that he injured his leg.”

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2198-June was one of those among the audience watching Samuel’s game. The accident had apparently happened in a flash, prompting the doctor on duty to instantly carry Samuel off the playing field. June had not met or spoken to Samuel after they had all turned up.

“It seems like all we could do is wait,” Nicole bit her lips.

By the looks of it, Samuel seemed to have sustained a serious injury, or else they would have treated it on the spot, instead of sending him to the hospital.

“I wonder how long it would take. I just want to know how... how badly injured he is.” June stammered, looking as though she would rush into the emergency room to check on him in a heartbeat.

Lulu held June back and gently comforted her. “Calm down. Maybe he’ll be out in a second.”

“Let’s go over and sit down,” Nicole took them to the row of seats.

If Samuel’s injury was indeed serious, she feared there would be a long wait. Still, all they could do was wait patiently.

“Yes, let’s go over there and take a seat. Later on, when Samuel comes out, he’ll need someone strong enough to take care of him,” Lulu advised.

With that, June compromised and sat down, though her eyes were still fixed on the emergency room’s door.

Time passed by, and just as everyone was growing sick of waiting, the emergency door opened, and a doctor walked out.

June was the first to react to his appearance. With large, heavy steps, she walked up to the doctor.

“Doctor, how is the patient?” she anxiously asked.

“He sprained his ankle, and there’s a fracture in the lower leg. He needs at least three months of rest. As for the recovery, it will depend on the progress of his rehabilitation.”

And after advising them on a few precautions they should implement, the doctor left.

Soon, Samuel came out in a wheelchair, and upon noticing that Nicole and Lulu were present too, Samuel was taken aback. "Woah, you're here too!"

Samuel knew June would be here, as she was at the scene and must have been the first to know the news.

"The doctor said you needed to rest. Let's head to the ward first," June welled up looking at Samuel's leg in a cast.

Nicole comforted June affectionately, "He's going to be fine. It's just a minor injury. He will heal soon."

"It's not as simple as you think. The doctor said he needs to rest for three months. Might I add, it has to be total and complete rest," June's tone became stern and serious, reminding Samuel to be cautious and not to take this matter lightly.

"Three months? It's not that serious!" A grimace crossed his face at once.

As it turned out, he would have to spend the next three months without exercising. He could already imagine how dreadful and miserable the following three months would be.

"You should follow the doctor's orders. If your recovery does not go well, you won't even have to think about touching your ball again. You might as well just retire," Nicole rained on his parade upon noticing how sullen he looked.

Hearing that, Samuel could only accept his fate. "I get it."

Although the next three months were going to be difficult, he felt that it was a more bearable alternative to the possibility of never being able to play basketball ever again.

Soon, the nurses placed Samuel in a ward.

Right after they had all settled in, Spencer's voice blared out from outside the ward. "He's here?"

"Yes, just go in," Stanley's voice replied.

Then, the door pushed open, and both Spencer and Stanley entered.

"Spencer! Stanley! You guys came to see me," Samuel acted hurt when he saw his two brothers.

Spencer could not help but roll his eyes in disdain. "Why are you so careless? Well, you deserve to be properly bedridden for the next few months."

"I didn't want it to happen either," Samuel rolled his eyes.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2199-"What's up with you really?" Stanley asked.

"I had a collision during the game. The injury was accidental," Samuel explained, giving them a general description of everything that had occurred during the game.

Hearing that, everyone comforted him. "Rest well."

“What other choice do I have?” Samuel grimaced, for he could not move even if he wanted to now.

“Mom and Dad have no idea yet. Since you’re not seriously hurt, we’ll go back and inform them about your injury,” Stanley stated.

The siblings knew about Samuel’s situation, but since the medical examination results were not out yet, they had all decided to hide his injury from Gloria and Daniel.

But now that they had discovered that it was not as big a deal, they had to inform their parents. Samuel was after all going to be hospitalized for a while, and the family had the right to know about it.

“Oh, yeah. Tell Mom and Dad not to worry about me. I just need some rest,” Samuel replied, knowing it was impossible to hide the news from them.

“Sean and Steve are going back at night. They will inform and reassure Mom and Dad,” Steve added.

“Good enough,” Samuel uttered, not wanting his parents to worry about him.

“You’re going to need someone to take care of you for the night. I’ll hire a caregiver for you,” Stanley said while looking at Samuel.

By the looks of it, Samuel would not be able to manage on his own and needed someone to take care of him.

“It’s fine. I can do it. I even have a wheelchair,” Samuel felt that the situation was not dire enough to the point where he was unable to take care of himself. If anything, it would be rather inconvenient and excessive to have a caregiver here to take care of him.

“Oh, we still have June. June could take care of him,” Lulu pushed June forward.

June would not be at ease if someone else were to take care of Samuel. Hearing that the Riddle family wanted to find a caregiver for Samuel, June became too embarrassed to volunteer herself.

June shot Lulu a grateful look, as she did not have the heart to leave Samuel alone. With utmost sincerity, she wanted to stay back and look after him.

“Why, sister-in-law. That’s not what I meant. I know you’re worried and feel heartbroken for Samuel. That’s the main reason why we wanted to hire a caregiver for him,” Stanley explained, not meaning to exclude June in the process.

The word ‘Sister-in-law’ made June’s cheeks red and rosy, forcing her to wear a poker face and say, “I don’t mind.”

Samuel’s injury was one that necessitated tending to, so June was rather willing to take on the job. She did not find the notion of being there for him exhausting at all.

“Are you sure?” Samuel became a little worried.

His concern was that if June stayed back for the night to take care of him just to depart for work during the day, she would not be able to take it.

June shook her head. "I'm really okay with it. I've already taken a long leave of absence from my company."

June had indeed taken a three-month leave to take care of Samuel until he recovered. She just could not leave him to face this on his own.

Samuel's eyes widened in surprise, for he was shocked by June's decision. She had actually taken a long leave for the entire duration of his recovery period.

Touched by June's gesture, Samuel looked at June. "Thank you."

Samuel knew how serious June was when it came to her job, but in a strange twist, she was willing to take a leave from her company just to take care of him. Deep down, he was really touched.

"Don't worry about it?" June's cheeks turned maroon with embarrassment.

"Well then, we should go," Lulu patted June's hand. "If you need anything, just hit us up."

"Okay, I will," June replied in relief.

After a few more words of advice to Samuel and June, the rest of the family finally left the ward.

Then, Nicole looked at Spencer and Stanley, asking, "Are you going home?"

"I'll be going in a bit," Spencer said while looking at Lulu.

His intentions were clear as he wanted to send Lulu home before going home himself.

Nicole and Stanley instantly understood what he was trying to do, so Stanley smiled at Nicole and said, "Seems like you're going back with me."

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 2200-"Spencer, Stanley and I will head back first." Nicole readily agreed.

After all, Spencer still had to be the man for his woman, and Nicole was in no position to ruin their fun at all.

"I'll be going home soon too," Spencer responded calmly.

After all, a misfortune had befallen Samuel today. Both Sean and Steve had returned home as well, so he had to go home after seeing Lulu off.

"I can actually go home on my own," Lulu contested.

Understanding the current situation, Lulu felt that there was no need to trouble Spencer with keeping her company. She could go home by herself.

However, by then, Spencer had already taken her hand and said, "C'mon, I'll take you home first."

He could simply not allow her to go home on her own.

Besides, the situation was stable now, so there was no need to rush.

Hearing that, Lulu bit her lip and followed Spencer with no further issue, and after they had left the hospital, the two cars went in separate directions.

Soon, Nicole and Stanley returned to the Riddle family.

Sean and Steve had already arrived, and it was obvious that

Daniel and Gloria had already gotten to know about the incident today.

Seeing the return of her two children, Gloria anxiously asked, "How is Samuel?"

"Mom, he injured his leg, and he needs to rest. We've arranged for him to stay in the hospital, and June is taking care of him." Stanley briefly explained.

Gloria felt relieved when she knew that Samuel was not in any form of severe danger. "That's good to know."

"How did this happen?" Daniel furrowed his brows a little, expressing his concern.

"Samuel said it was an accident, and that his injury is not really serious. He just needs some good rest for a while." Stanley explained again, hoping that their parents would not worry too much.

Then, Nicole also stepped in to comfort them. "We just came back from the hospital, and Samuel seemed to be in good condition. Furthermore, June is looking after him, so you don't have to worry too much."

"I trust June to take care of him, but can she handle it?" Gloria asked, feeling a little sorry for June.

After all, this was not a minor injury that would recover in a day or two.

"June said she has taken a long leave of absence from the company. As for whether she can handle it..." Nicole hesitated.

Indeed, it would definitely be hard work, but she believed that June would not feel burdened no matter how difficult it was.

"Mom, Dad, you don't have to worry about Samuel. We will also arrange for others to help." Sean said calmly.

Although June was taking care of him, they could not allow them to bear too much of the burden. They felt that June's company alone was enough to help Samuel and put him at ease.

"Yeah, we'll visit them when we're free." Daniel nodded in agreement.

They had a big family, so the going would not be tough, as everyone in the family would scramble to help each other.

"We'll also go to the hospital to visit Uncle Samuel." Nolan and Lana raised their little heads as they declared firmly.

"Of course, Nolan and Lana will definitely be there to visit Uncle Samuel." Gloria smiled lovingly and caressed their heads.

All of a sudden, noises emanated from the entrance, and everyone turned around to see Jared coming back.

“Daddy!” Lana happily waved and ran toward Jared.

Jared picked Lana up and looked at her chubby little face before saying, “Did you miss Daddy?”

“Yes, I missed you!” Lana nodded vigorously, trying her best to prove her love for her father.

In return, Jared smiled affectionately, and carried Lana to the couch.

“Samuel is fine, yeah?” Jared asked.

He was aware of Samuel’s incident, having also read the room when he saw the whole family gathered together.
