

HARVEY YORK'S RISE TO POWER

Chapter 3601

Elanor let out a sigh.

Then, she said quietly, "Young Master Bauer "

"Enough.Let's not talk about this."

Jeff waved his hand to cut her off.

"How are your injuries?"

"Were you scared?"

"That b*stard was one of mine, but he still tried to kill you! He deserves death!"

Jeff clapped his hands.

Right after that, someone handed a firearm to him.He pulled the trigger without even bothering to look at the man with the buzzcut.

Blood splattered all over the place.

Jeff hugged Elanor tightly, a tender look on his face.

"Don't worry.Even if he's my trusted subordinate, I'd kill him for going against you like that!"

"I'll even kill him a thousand times over if I have to!"

"I promise, nobody will be able to hurt you ever again!"

Despite seeing Jeff's attitude and decisiveness to stand up for her, Elanor didn't feel a hint of warmth at all; a cold shiver went down her spine at that instant. She knew she was just like that man; she was only alive because she was still beautiful and had a use for Jeff.

If all that were to be replaced, she would be cast away just like that man.

Elanor could feel goosebumps all over her body.

She pushed Jeff away softly before saying quietly, "I'm fine, Young Master Bauer. I was just a little shocked. This is no problem at all."

"I'll be fine after a shower and taking a few days off."

"Of course. Sir York is a skillful man, anyway. It's only natural you got out of the situation unscathed with him around."

"I should thank him for protecting my woman."

Jeff looked like he was being grateful, but a cold light could be seen in his eyes.

Clearly, he was just putting up a front.

If there was a chance, he wouldn't mind killing Harvey once and for all.

"Sir York really didn't mean to cripple one of your men, Young Master Bauer."

"It's not that he doesn't respect you!"

"He was just tense after he was assaulted by the Indians!"

"Sir York couldn't hold himself back after hearing that man being so arrogant."

"In reality, he respects you a lot. If not, this man wouldn't have come back alive!"

Elanor desperately tried to defend Harvey.

"He felt bad after the incident. He wanted to apologize..."

"But he thought that it was pointless!"

"Thus, he decided to deal with Joseph as soon as he can before asking for your forgiveness at the banquet."

"Is that so?"

Jeff revealed a faint smile.

"No need to panic. I'm not blaming him for anything. This man's just a subordinate, anyway."

"Tell Sir York not to feel pressured about this.

Let's just put this behind us; we'll focus our efforts on dealing with Joseph!"

"I'll make sure to bring him a hefty gift at the banquet!"

Elanor sighed.

"Thank you for your generosity, Young Master Bauer. I'm sure Sir York will do his best..."

Elanor left the sickroom half an hour later.

Jeff chuckled coldly as he stared at her back.

"Looks like I'll have a spot for another woman soon enough..."

While Jeff was planning to make a spot for another woman...

On the next day, inside the Martial Hall's courtyard...

Harvey swayed on his rocking chair comfortably for a while before opening his eyes to a morning glow.

"Did you get anything from George yet, Rachel?"

"He sent everything this morning."

Rachel poured a cup of fragrant black tea beside Harvey with a warm smile.

"Just as we know, Jeff has half of Longmen's support along with the Inner and Outer Halls."

"Other than that, some of the elders within Longmen sided with him as well."

"On the surface, Jeff sure looks like the strongest young master out of the entire Bauer family. He has immense authority too..."

"The government of Flutwell, the military force, and the underworld are all filled with his men."

"That said, the all- powerful young master has a deadly weakness as well."

"He seems pretty young, but he's just great at taking care of himself."

"In reality, he's already nearing his forties. Not only is he ten years older than the seventh young master of the family, Harold, he's also a lot older than Joseph."

"Others could still wait for their turn to take the position of the master of the family..."

"But not Young Master Bauer."

"After all, he would be too old when that happens."

"According to the rules of the family, he would have no right to be a successor of the family once he reaches a certain age."

"That's why, out of the three young masters, he's the hastiest — it's also why he wants the master of the Longmen dead the most."

"Now that there are rumors of Samuel dying, Jeff finally can't hold back any longer?"

Harvey asked curiously.

"More or less. According to the information we have, Samuel might be on his last breath. He could pass away in any minute," Rachel replied after letting out a sigh.

A surprised look appeared on Harvey's face.

Samuel was a sly old fox; he should be the one outliving every single person in the entire planet...

So why were there rumors of his passing spreading?

"Is this accurate? Is there proof about this?"

Harvey asked after pondering the situation.

"No. Everything up until this point is speculation."

Rachel sighed again.

"This is normal, I suppose. If Samuel is actually dying, the Bauer family would stop at nothing to hide it."

"That said, we can already tell from the three young master's intense battle."

"Jeff wants to suppress the other two young masters as soon as possible.

From a certain standpoint, this is already ample proof."

"He's willing to swallow his pride at Charity Garden just to finish off his opponents. Safe to say, that this young master is quite something!"

Rachel revealed a harsh expression.

"Sir York. No matter how we look at this, Young Master Bauer is no ordinary man."

"It's fine to be allied with him, but we should never trust him as a friend!"

Harvey smiled.

"An ally? He's only using me as his tool to cut down whoever he wants, isn't he?"

Chapter 3603

‘Judging from the current situation, though, we still need his influence in Flutwell to deal with Joseph.’

"It's not time for us to go against Jeff yet."

Harvey stood up.

"We should still deal with Joseph as soon as possible..."

Rachel's eyes grew cold.

"Sir York, we're probably going to take Joseph down sooner or later."

"However, will the other forces take advantage of this when we do?"

"Probably. Probably not," Harvey replied.

"Flutwell's waters aren't that deep. We'll make the waters murkier after we deal with Joseph. That way, we'll be able to take advantage of everything."

"Come. We're running a street stall."

Half an hour later, Harvey showed up in front of the Bauer family's courtyard entrance.

This was Joseph's place of stay; Harvey came to the front and told Rachel to set up a stall here, with the Martial Hall sign hung up.

Because of the Martial Hall, more than half the students who trained in the chain Budokans were woken up.

Their bodies were all mostly recovered soon after.

Harvey was making heaps of money because of the incident. His name had spread throughout the entire city as well.

After hearing that Harvey had set up a stall outside the Bauer family's courtyard, the remaining students who were still unconscious were carried there by their families.

Harvey wasted no time instructing Layne and the others to treat the students. He had a profound look while staring at the courtyard not far away from him.

Harvey wanted to make it easier for the students' families to ask Joseph for compensation by setting up a stall here.

After all, he was taking fourteen thousand dollars to save the students' lives.

He didn't even give a single penny worth of discount.

Because of this, the families who didn't have enough money all rushed toward the entrance and screamed for their money back.

Some were even cursing Joseph, saying that he had no conscience.

In just half an hour, the gates in front of the courtyard were almost torn apart by the angry mob.

There were countless people demanding Joseph to come out and calling him a b*stard as well.

The Bauer family called the cops as soon as they could, but the police weren't able to do anything after getting there anyway.

On the one hand, Joseph was in the wrong...

On the other hand, the people present were mostly elites of Flutwell.

Even with Ansel's orders, the inspectors wouldn't dare use violence against the mob.

At this point, the fences of the courtyard were already toppling.

Rotten eggs and vegetables were thrown all over the gates as well.

In just a few days, the well-renowned Joseph was treated the same as a street rat.

Ruby had a horrible expression when she reported to Joseph about the situation.

"Young Master Bauer, the entrances and exits are all ruined.

We have no way to get in or out of this place!"

"The fences are all coming down as well."

"If it weren't for the police, the mob would've busted in through the gates by now!"

"That b*stard Harvey is shameless!"

"He dug us a big hole yesterday, and now he does this?"

"Did we do anything to his family?"

"How could he do this to us?!"

"He's completely insane!"

Harvey York's Rise To Power Chapter 3604

Chapter 3604

“Is that it?”

Joseph sat at the long table while drinking his milk calmly.

“Is that all he can do?”

“Has he already run out of tricks?”

“How boring.”

Ruby frowned.

“It’s not just that, Young Master Bauer.”

“The stocks of Flutwell’s business alliance has been plummeting since this morning because of what happened the past two days.”

“One tenth of our stocks were gone in just a matter of minutes!”

“The elders of the business alliance have very big opinions about us right now.”

“They called here asking you to deal with that b*stard Harvey as soon as possible.”

“If not, they want you to compensate for the losses in the stock market.”

“They signed a capital guarantee agreement, after all...”

After a few battles against Harvey, Joseph’s strength was a lot better compared to before.

After hearing Ruby’s words, however, he was on the verge of coughing up blood.

“These old b*stards!”

Joseph revealed a deathly cold gaze.

. “They were the ones crying to join Flutwell’s business alliance! They’re the ones who rushed to buy the original stocks of the alliance!”

“They didn’t even come to thank me when we’re making so much money...”

“But now, they’re asking for compensation when we’re only losing just a small amount?”

Joseph lit up a long and thin cigar, and took a huff.

“Call those b*stards. Tell them it’s time to get through this together,” he exclaimed coldly.

“We can all enjoy our glory and riches if we do that.”

“If they screw with me and ruin my plans...

“I wouldn’t mind everyone dying together!”

“But if they’re willing to stand by my side, I promise I’ll give three times the dividends this year if we make it through!”

Joseph was gritting his teeth all of a sudden.

Judging from his attitude, there was no way that he would go soft on the elders after making such threats.

He felt extremely resentful:

The business he crafted after so many years was going to crumble because of one man.

He had no choice but to endure the shame.

After all, the battle between the three young masters of the Bauer family was at a crucial period. If Joseph could get through this incident, he'd have a chance to rise to power.

"I understand."

Ruby nodded. In her eyes was admiration toward Joseph.

She couldn't help but be impressed by the man in front of her; even under such a dire situation, he still remained extremely calm.

"What should we do against Harvey, Young Master Bauer?"

"Should we really let him stay at the entrance?"

"If this goes on, our stocks will keep dropping..."

Joseph took a deep breath, expressionless and poker-faced.

"Let him do whatever he wants!"

"Contact Clyde and Elliot for me. Tell them it's time to return the favor."

"I want them to go bottom-fishing with as much money as they can offer!"

"If we win this wave, I'll pay them back twofold!"

Ruby's eyes lit up upon hearing Joseph's master plan.

If he took the opportunity to try bottom-fishing at such a crucial moment, he would probably have a chance to turn the tables...

'As expected from the best economic mind out of the three young masters!'

Chapter 3605

“Young Master Bauer!”

Right as Ruby was about to leave, a steward of the family rushed over with a mystified expression.

Joseph didn’t even raise his head.

“What is it?”

“Harvey said he wants to see you,” the steward replied.

Joseph froze.

“What for?” he asked, a curious look on his face.

“Is that man trying to test me?”

“Or is he just here to laugh at me?”

The steward became hesitant.

“He said he wanted to buy something, he wanted to make peace with you.”

Joseph was planning to ignore Harvey, but his heart throbbed after he heard the steward’s words.

“Let him in,” he said after a long while.

If Harvey was willing to talk, Joseph wouldn’t mind it.

After all, there would be a lot of casualties from both sides if they kept fighting.

Soon after, Harvey showed up at the Bauer family’s courtyard with his arms crossed.

Harvey smiled when he saw Joseph still having his breakfast

“You seem pretty calm. I didn’t think you’d still be in the mood to have breakfast. I have to admit, your determination and courage are quite extraordinary.”

“No wonder you’re able to rise to power as someone’s subordinate after so long and become one of the most prominent young masters of the family.”

“If I were you, I probably wouldn’t be this calm.”

Joseph swallowed a block of cheese while Harvey was still talking.

“If you have something to say, then say it,” he spat.

Harvey sighed.

“Oh, Young Master Bauer. It’s not like we have a grudge against each other or anything.”

“It’s a shame. Not only do you keep making advances to my wife, but you also wouldn’t just accept your loss. You keep joining forces with Clyde, Frankie, and the others to go against me...”

“I had to use a few tricks to protect myself.”

“You suffered quite a bit at this point. Why don’t you beg me for mercy instead?”

“If you do, maybe I’ll let you off the hook and bury the hatchet...”

Harvey revealed a playful look.

“Jeff’s a prideful man, but he still came to me for help after I trampled all over him.”

“Why don’t you follow your brother’s example?”

“You were his subordinate after all!”

Joseph’s eyes twitched frantically.

“Enough talk about this nonsense, Harvey!”

“Jeff is shameless enough to use you as a tool, but not me.”

“Besides, you’ve only been using underhanded tactics the entire time!”

“Do you really think you can sway the foundation of Flutwell’s business alliance?”

“Don’t you think you’re a little too cocky?”

“Whom God wishes to destroy, he first makes mad!”

“Mad?”

Harvey shrugged.

“I think I’m calm enough to negotiate with you right now.”

“How could you call me mad?”

Joseph narrowed his eyes as he stared at Harvey for a long time..

“Let’s not talk that far back. If I guess correctly, Kayden’s men were behind the incident yesterday.”

“It was a pretty good move, making your men confess after being interrogated.”

“But times have changed, Harvey...”

“In this day and age, we have lie detectors and truth serums at our disposal.”

“If I want to, I can make them tell the truth and ruin your reputation entirely!”

“Do you really think I’m out of ideas?”

Chapter 3606

Harvey smiled after hearing Joseph’s threats.

“We’re all smart people, Young Master Bauer.”

“There’s no need to beat around the bush like that.”

“If this alone can ruin my reputation, you would’ve done it by now with your authority.”

“Why would you threaten me with this right now?”

“You didn’t do this because you knew there’s no point in these people confessing.”

Ruby was filled with unbridled rage upon seeing Harvey’s arrogance and disrespect.

“Don’t you have any self-awareness at all?!” she exclaimed, slamming the table.

“What do you mean, there’s no point?”

“Those people are yours! Everyone will know that you acted out the entire thing if they confess!”

“You’re finished!”

“The people who admire you will turn their weapons against you!”

“We’ll let you know how it feels to fall from power soon enough!”

Clap, clap, clap!

Harvey clapped his hands with a playful expression.

“Your subordinate here has a sharp tongue...”

Harvey pointed at his own head.

“Doesn’t she understand that the truth doesn’t matter anymore?”

“Will those students believe it?”

“Will their families?”

“They’ll think you and Flutwell’s business alliance got people to frame me just to take me down...”

“When that happens, you’ll be in bigger trouble!”

Ruby felt extremely resentful after hearing Harvey insult her for being stupid.

“You’re the slow one!”

“Don’t you get it?! Public opinion means everything!”

“Everyone will definitely believe it when so many people testify against you!”

“When that happens, we’ll host a press conference! You’ll die a horrible death soon enough!”

Naturally, Ruby thought Harvey would surely be finished if she did this.

She believed Harvey would have no choice but to give in; there was no other way.

Harvey sighed and shot a pitiful look at Ruby.

“I suggest you think before you start talking, Ms. Murray.”

“Those students and their families are completely lifeless, but they’re not stupid.”

“As long as they know I’m the only person in Flutwell who can save them...”

“There is absolutely nothing you can do.”

“After all, who’s going to save them if I’m finished?”

“Besides, if anything happens to me, they’ll blame it on Flutwell’s business alliance.”

“This is why your young master didn’t bother sending anyone to do anything.”

“This is also why nobody tried to gun me down either.”

“It’s not that he wouldn’t dare. He just can’t...”

Ruby was completely shocked after hearing Harvey’s words; so much that she froze.

Even with her simple mind, she realized that Harvey was right.

The truth was nothing when faced with the people's benefit.

"What an exemplary citizen you are! You should get an award for that!"

"How could you do something like that?!"

Ruby gritted her teeth; she had no choice but to tie Harvey down with morals.

"Yes, I am an exemplary citizen."

Harvey sighed.

"If not, I wouldn't be sitting here talking to you people nicely."

"I can make the people outside burn the entire place down if I want to."

"After all, even the law can't take all those people down..." 1

Harvey casually poured himself a cup of black tea before taking a sip.

Joseph was a man who knew how to enjoy himself; the tea itself must've cost a few thousand dollars per pound.

"People outside have been saying that you only got this far because of the women you cling to."

"But I have to admit, you're quite the capable man."

Joseph put his utensils down, glancing at Harvey with admiration.

"Not only are you skillful at fighting, but you're extremely scheming as well."

“You already knew I’d have no way out when you did this, didn’t you?”

“Other people would think you’re just using my brother against me...”

“But I can’t help but be impressed by your tricks!”

It wasn’t Joseph’s first time suffering in Harvey’s hands, but he could clearly tell just how much of a nuisance Harvey was after this battle.

That was why he stopped his meaningless efforts to fight back.

He would only cause himself to be more passive, and eventually suffer from it.

Harvey replied with a faint smile.

“Thank you for your compliment. Courtesy goes both ways, yes?”

“I wouldn’t have done something like this had you given up.”

Joseph narrowed his eyes.

“Right. You’re the one who wanted to talk. What did you want to talk about?” he asked coldly.

“Simple: if you promise me one thing, I’ll bury the hatchet between us right now.”

Harvey gulped down his tea and smiled.

“I’ve calculated everything this morning. You must have around nine thousand properties that you haven’t sold in Flutwell’s new district, right?”

“And judging from your fixed price of 1.5 million per property, this must cost about one billion three hundred and fifty million total.”

“I’m a nice person. I love solving troubles for other people.”

“If you’re willing to sell the properties to me, I’ll give you a number you can’t decline: one hundred and fifty million dollars.”

“That way, not only will you not have the need to worry about Flutwell’s new district anymore...”

“But you’ll also have that money and a good friend supporting you: me.”

“What do you say?”

Joseph’s face twitched. Then, he laughed coldly.

“You’re trying to buy the entire new district with just ten percent of the price?”

“I worked so hard for so many years-I put all of my blood, sweat, and tears into this, and you expect me to just hand it over?!”

“Do you think I’m stupid?!”

“No deal!”

“No?”

Harvey smiled again.

“Flutwell’s business alliance’s stock is already down by ten points. Judging from today’s trends, it might just drop by twenty...”

“You’d need at least hundreds of millions of dollars to try bottom-fishing, right?”

“Do you have any other sources to raise that much money? Do you really not want my money?”

“If that’s the case, I can only throw that money in just to lower the stock prices even more.”

“For the sake of the stock market and our friendship, I suggest you sell everything to me.”

“I can even get you a room there if you want. You can visit anytime to look at the scenery when you’re in a bad mood. How does that sound?”

“B*stard!”

Joseph slammed the table, furious.

“Dream on, Harvey!”

“Even if Flutwell’s new district rots... Even if I die, I’ll never sell it to you!”

“Fine. I won’t buy it.”

“So, are you selling the chain Budokans?”

Harvey gave another friendly suggestion, not at all angry at Joseph's outburst.

"Your chain Budokans are getting smashed up every single day, anyway. There's no way you'll be able to do business using them. Your reputation's dead in the water as well."

"I'll give you a hundred and fifty million if you give all the chain Budokans to me. I'll take your instructors and all the other workers with me too!"

"See? I'm doing all this just for you! That's one less burden for you. You'll have money to do some of your other businesses, too!"

"I really am a good friend, right?"

"You b*stard!"

Joseph changed expressions.

"My chain Budokans got into this mess because of your shameless tricks! Yet you're here trying to buy them?!"

Ruby and the others were in an uproar as well; they were fiercely glaring at Harvey, as if they were planning to kill him.

They thought that Harvey was clearly crossing the line, taking advantage of the situation!

"I'd rather use the Budokans as storage space than sell them to you!"

"Stop dreaming already!"

Joseph wanted to beat Harvey to death, but he had no choice but to hold his feelings back since he wouldn't dare.

Harvey looked at Joseph bitterly.

"Since you wouldn't sell that too, what about the office buildings and the shopping malls you own?"

"Flutwell's business alliance is crumbling, anyway. Sooner or later, the office buildings won't be of much use."

"If you sell all of those, it'll probably be worth seven hundred and fifty million dollars at most."

"As your good friend, I'll even double the price for you-I'll buy the buildings for 1.5 billion dollars."

"You should be able to feel my sincerity at this point, right?"

“You...”

Joseph’s calm was long gone when he saw Harvey’s small smile.

“Forget the surface structures, the land alone is worth more than that!”

“Those buildings are all mine!”

“I won’t sell those to you, no matter what! I’ll leave them to rot if I have to!”

“Please leave this instant!”

Joseph took a deep breath, forcing himself to calm down.

He only wanted to be involved in the Jean family’s ninth branch through Mandy...

He wanted to raise his strength with the branch before expanding his authority and influence to the other branches afterwards.

But before he could complete his plan, all this happened...

Had he known Mandy’s husband was this hard to deal with, he would’ve never touched her in the first place!

A shame there was no medicine for regret.

At this point, there was no way for both sides to bury the hatchet anymore.

Ruby and the others took a step forward, glaring coldly at Harvey.

“Please, Sir York.”

Chapter 3609

Harvey stood up with a smile. He walked toward Joseph and tapped the latter gently on the face.

“Why be this unapproachable, Young Master Bauer?”

“You know full well how long you can last.”

“Even if you hold onto your properties, who do you think is going to help you?”

“Who do you think is going to lend you the money?”

“Clyde? Or is it Elliot?”

“Do you really think they’re good enough friends to get you out of trouble?”

“Don’t be naive...”

“You’ll sell everything sooner or later. It’s only a question of who you sell them to.”

“It’s fine if you don’t sell them to me.”

“I’ll just find a lot of people to buy it from you.”

“Sooner or later, the properties will be in my hands.”

“The longer you stall, the cheaper you’d have to sell.”

“I wouldn’t mind waiting; we’ll see if you give up first or not.”

“Anyway... I wish you all the best.”

Harvey casually grabbed a pork bun on the table and took a bite before walking out, waving his hand nonchalantly as he did so.

Joseph’s eyes twitched as he stared at Harvey’s back.

He had a feeling that the mob wouldn’t be the ones destroying him; Harvey had never intended to let him off the hook, after all.

As one of Flutwell’s local powerhouses, Joseph managed to rebuild Flutwell’s commercial order in just six years. Even so, he had no choice but to feel extremely resentful about the situation then.

After gritting his teeth, he exclaimed icily, “Go with Plan B, Ruby. I’d like to see if Harvey can be more ruthless than me!”

Harvey walked out of the courtyard with steady steps. After looking after a few students, he then went inside his van to rest.

Rachel, who had been maintaining order of the place, let someone else handle the situation. Inside the van, she handed Harvey a bottle of water.

“How was it? Is Joseph selling his properties?”

Harvey grinned.

"Of course not. That said, he still has a bit of strength left since he didn't get his men to gun me down yet. Rachel chuckled.

"Flutwell's new district, shopping malls, office buildings, and the chain Budokans are his hard-earned properties."

"All these will be his source of strength if he manages to rise to power within his family."

"Without all these, he'd be an abandoned young master just like he was before."

"There's no way he'd sell them to you."

Harvey's smile widened.

"I know that."

"I went to see him exactly because of this. He thinks I'm only after his properties!"

"That's why he wouldn't sell them no matter the cost."

"If that's the case, he won't have enough capital to save his stocks."

"Simply put, Flutwell's business alliance's stocks are done for," Harvey said in a decisive tone. He then dialed a number on his phone.

"We're ready here, Sir York."

Yvonne's familiar voice echoed from the other side of the phone. 610

Harvey revealed a faint smile.

"Let Ray and Sky Corporation take action first. Get Kaizen Group ready as well."

"Another thing: tell Edwin to prepare himself, too."

"We'll play this by the script." [1

Chapter 3610

Half an hour later, the stocks of Flutwell's business alliance dropped by a dozen points.

Right as the stocks were rising, a huge amount of capital flooded into the market.

The capital went straight for the alliance, buying short stocks in an instant.

The investors were completely shocked when they saw hundreds of thousands of pending orders. They all sold their stocks almost at the same time, afraid that they'll turn into worthless numbers.

In just a few minutes, Flutwell's business alliance's stocks plummeted from forty-four dollars to only twenty-eight dollars.

One-third of the alliance's billion-dollar market value was immediately gone.

Aside from the people in Flutwell, who were following the situation, investors from abroad were completely in the dark.

The simplest way to stop a situation like this is always to prevent it from happening.

Under these circumstances, the stock prices of Flutwell's business alliance would be completely slaughtered if people kept selling their stocks.

An hour later, the alliance was being ripped apart relentlessly.

Joseph had no choice but to take out funds from his personal treasury and the alliance's working capital to put into the stock market.

The stock price of the alliance doubled immediately after that...

Unfortunately, there was no capital left for Joseph to do anything any longer.

When he called Clyde and Elliot, Kaizen Group got involved under Yvonne's lead as well.

THE

Yvonne was a lot more ruthless than Ray; she targeted the lowest point of the alliance's stock during the noon and forced it down by sixty percent.

The stock price turned to forty percent of its original price in just a single noon; Joseph was on the verge of coughing out blood when he begged for money on the phone.

Yet, who in the right mind would lend him money at this point?

Clyde and Elliot wouldn't do such a thing, even if they were actually idiots.

Joseph had some time to catch his breath during the afternoon, but his eyes became bloodshot after his calls were all sent to voicemail.

After taking off two of his buttons and letting out a mouthful of hot air, he gestured to Ruby to step forward.

"How are the preparations going?"

Ruby nodded.

"Everything's going as planned."

"I'll leave through the underground tunnel and proceed with the mission as soon as you give the order."

Joseph nodded before he painstakingly handed Ruby a stock contract. The contract was none other than one point of Flutwell's business alliance's original stocks.

Judging from the peak of the alliance, the contract would be worth hundred and fifty million dollars.

"You're going to meet an extremely greedy woman who has no bottom line..."

"People like that would usually work for the money."

"Tell her if she can make Harvey lose everything. If she can do as she's told..."

"Aside from the contract, I'll turn her every wish into a reality!"

"She wants to be the mother-in-law of a top-rated family, right?" 1

"I can give her exactly what she wants! She'll have absolute authority in the upper social circle soon enough!"

"That said, she can decide how to carry out her task, and to what extent."

"I'm excited to see what happens next..."
