"Your insignificant little shop has no right to compare against us!"

"Not only do we belong to the Gibson family 33 "But we're from Heaven's Gate as well!"

"That place is a sacred martial arts training ground!"

"Do you know what that title means?"

"You crippled my daughter and injured so many of my disciples! Even if I decide to let you go, the Gibson family will chase you till the ends of the earth!"

"You should be thinking of a way to resolve this, young man!"

Darwin's eyes were filled with murderous intent. If it weren't for the fact that he couldn't stand...

He was sure he would've taken out Harvey.

Harvey smiled calmly. He crossed his arms, and stepped forward.

"Actually, you've been in the wrong since the very beginning," he said.

'What?!'

Everyone exchanged glances after hearing those words; they didn't think that Harvey would talk to Darwin in such a way.

Shay and the others were filled with rage. It was their first time seeing someone show off this hard. They truly believed that Harvey was one-of-a-kind.

Darwin's expression grew uglier. Infuriated, he glared at Harvey. "What do you mean by that?"

"You were hit by the Twisted Palm. Aside from the Corpse Walkers, there are less than three people who can fix that for you,"

Harvey said.

“Coincidentally, I’m one of those people.”

Harvey smiled mockingly at him.

“If you just lined up like everyone else, you would be standing by now. You could be celebrating with your daughter at this point.”

“At most, you wouldn’t be able to drink alcohol for three months.”

“Keep bluffing!” Darwin snarled.

He didn’t believe Harvey at all.

“Do you know how many so-called well-known doctors I’ve consulted?!”

“Do you know that my father is the best martial artist there is in the city?”

“He even asked an elder of Heaven’s Gate to help!”

“Everyone said the same thing: other than the Augustea, nothing can cure my injuries!”

“The head of Heaven’s Gate might be able to treat me, but I’d have to pay a huge price...”

“Despite all that, how dare you show off in front of me?!”

“You’re pretty impressive, but you might just kill yourself if you bite off more than you can chew!”

“Don’t even try to distract me!”

“You’ve crippled my daughter! You hurt so many of my disciples!”

“I’ll settle scores with you sooner or later!”

Darwin kept glaring at Harvey with a righteous expression, as if he couldn’t be wrong.

“You’ll pay us back!” he demanded.

“If not, we’ll give you exactly that!”

“I’ll teach you a lesson you’ll never forget!”

Shay and the others were glaring disdainfully at Harvey, thinking that he finally understood that he went up against someone he shouldn’t have.

They were sure Harvey saying that he could’ve treated Darwin was just an excuse.

He even said that he was the only one of three people who could deal with the problem, other than the Corpse Walkers.

‘He’s just bluffing!’

‘Who does he think he is?’

‘A God of War?’ [Fast update on daotranslate.com]

‘Maybe even a peak God of War?’

‘Even if he trained in his mother’s womb, he would never reach such a level!’

“I’ll show you.”

Harvey calmly took a step forward, then raised his finger.

Before Shay and the others could come to their senses, he poked a few parts of Darwin’s body.

Shay screamed in anger. “Don’t you dare hurt my father!”

Darwin wanted to fight back, but he was basically half-paralyzed. Even in his prime, his speed was completely inferior to Harvey’s. There was no way he could’ve gone against Harvey.

Harvey bit his finger, and put a drop of blood on Darwin's forehead.

Darwin wanted to fight back. His entire body was as pale as paper; he shivered, as if he was in shock.

"You b*stard!" Shay kept screaming.

She gritted her teeth in anger; she swore to take her revenge on Harvey, no matter what.

However, she couldn't even move a single inch, let alone fight back.

She was just a powerless woman.

The customers were shocked to see Darwin shivering non-stop.

They weren't martial artists; they didn't know that Darwin was already suffering as soon as Harvey poked him a few times.

"Guh!"

Under the crowd's shocked gaze, a mouthful of blood gushed out of Darwin's mouth. He was pissed.

"How dare you hurt me, you little b*stard?!"

he exclaimed, standing up furiously.

"I want you dead!"

Darwin threw an angry punch at Harvey.

What a domineering sight!

Slap!

Harvey didn't bother giving him a response, and slapped him in the face.

Pfft!

Another mouthful of blood came out of Darwin; the blood was a little warmer than before. He seemed slightly more relaxed. He could start to feel the blood circulating in his body, and his temperature rising.

He wanted to step up again, but then he froze, looking puzzled.

“I...I’m standing?”

“Did I recover?”

Shay and the others froze, and then came to their senses. They were in utter disbelief.

They didn’t think that Darwin would actually be standing. It was as if everything changed after he coughed up all that blood.

He slowly moved his limbs, and channeled his energy. He quickly realized he was mostly recovered. He didn’t think this was even possible.

Castiel and Cliff were completely shocked.

They didn’t realize Harvey could do something so ungodly. The customers were looking at him in admiration as well.

‘Harvey managed to do something that even the medical experts couldn’t?’

‘This is insane...’

“I’m fine! I’m fine now!” Darwin yelled happily. “I recovered! A few more months, and I’ll be an expert martial artist again!”

He burst out laughing, thinking that he could kill a bull with a single punch.

“Don’t you think that’s a little easy?”

Harvey asked. [Fast update on daotranslate.com]

He crossed his arms, grinning meaningfully.

"I only relieved you from your condition temporarily."

"I didn't cure your injuries, nor did I remove the curse from your body."

"You have twenty-four hours to do whatever you want."

"When your time's up, you'll go back to moving around in your wheelchair."

"I'm doing this to prove to you that I'm telling the truth."

"Besides, I usually only ask for ten dollars for my services."

"Geomancy treasures aren't needed at all here."

"I could've dealt with your problem in just ten minutes, but you just had to act all high and mighty."

"Your daughter's crippled. Your disciples are injured. You only have a day to arrange everything before your inevitable end..."

Harvey smiled faintly.

"Cherish the time you have left." [Fast update on daotranslate.com]

"You'll regret the decision for the rest of your life soon enough."

Harvey appeared calm, as if he was chasing out a couple of rabid dogs.

That wasn't enough, though; Darwin and his daughter would probably continue taking advantage of the common folk.

It was why Harvey wanted to give Darwin some hope before snuffing it out immediately after.

This was torture.

As expected, Darwin's face went abnormally pale as soon as he heard Harvey's words. The smile on his face froze instantly.

Shay and the others looked utterly horrible.

They were all on the verge of coughing up blood.

Shay wanted to slap herself so badly. If she was just a little discreet before-had she lined up politely...

Her father would've been back to normal again.

Darwin's body shook, swaying from side to side.

After a long while, he snarled through gritted teeth, "How can you do something like this? Do you have no shame...?"

"Shame?" Harvey asked.

"Do you think you have the right to tell me that?"

"Are you planning to talk me down, even though you're the one without morals?"

Harvey remained calm.

"Your daughter recklessly took advantage of the people around her. You could've stopped her from doing all that, but you didn't," he went on.

"No matter how much you pamper her, no matter how much you're used to it... You still watched and did nothing as you let her run wild."

"If I was an ordinary geomancy expert, you would've already taken the Augustea. My limbs would've been broken, and my shop would've been torn down."

"It's clear that you arrogant people have no regard for the law!"

"In that case, you should take responsibility for the consequences!"

"What goes around, comes around."

"Leave!"

"Enjoy the final moments of your life."

"Eat whatever you want. Play whatever you want. Take advantage of whoever you want {} "You won't get another chance to stand up tomorrow."

Harvey narrowed his eyes as he looked at the mess on the ground.

“But before you do, remember to pay for the damages here.”

“I don’t like haggling. A hundred and fifty thousand dollars should be enough.”

Darwin’s breathing grew heavier and heavier; his eyes were filled with rage. He wanted to send Harvey flying with a slap, but...

He knew he was no match against Harvey.

If he took action, he’d most likely get beaten up to the point he wouldn’t even have a day to live.

After thinking for a long while, he decided to swallow the pain. He planned to get someone else to threaten Harvey, so Harvey would treat him.

Not wanting to suffer any more losses, he pulled out his checkbook and painstakingly wrote a hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Then, he left with Shay and the others.

Shay was filled with hatred and regret. She hated Harvey to the bone.

When the people were long gone, Cliff approached Harvey.

“Sir York, Darwin is one of Quill’s right- hand men. He has high status in both the Gibson family and the Golden Sands’ branch of Heaven’s Gate.”

“It wouldn’t be exaggerating to say that he’s served by thousands of other people.”

“You’ll be in deep trouble for doing this.”

Castiel nodded, looking horrible.

“The Gibson family is filled with arrogant people.”

“With Heaven’s Gate backing them, they can do whatever they please in the city.”

“They wouldn’t allow other forces to enter the city to lessen the chaos.”

“That said, they’re the source of all chaos within the city.”

“Aside from the Patel family, the John family, and the Hermit Families...”

“They have been collecting protection fees from every single major business and wealthy family in the city.”

“They’re completely lawless!”

“You’ll be in a lot of trouble if you go against them, Master.”

“It’s fine. Darwin wouldn’t dare go against me, anyway,” Harvey replied.

Cliff was curious. “Why’s that?”

Harvey chuckled.

“Everyone has something that they fear.”

“For example, Darwin’s pissed right now. He thinks he has suffered too much against me.

But after a while, his rage will dissipate. He’ll start enjoying his freedom...”

“After that, he’ll fear for his life...”

“After all, it wouldn’t be easy to let go of his newfound freedom.”

“After tasting such bliss, there’s no way he can sit in his wheelchair for the rest of his life.”

“He simply can’t stand that.”

“It doesn’t matter that I crippled his daughter, injured his disciples, and humiliated him...”

“Even if I kill his entire family, he’d kneel – no matter what.”

Cliff and Castiel looked at each other, their faces filled with admiration.

Not only was Harvey extremely skillful, but his grasp on the human psyche was simply extraordinary.

“I’m glad I didn’t decide to turn against you, Sir York. I would’ve been six feet under,”

Cliff said, relieved. [Fast update on daotranslate.com]

Later, Castiel gathered a few workers and pointed at the open space at the front door.

“There! Get some more glass shards and rocks there! Make sure there’s only room for one person to walk on,” he ordered.

“Remember, I want more!”

“I’ll let them know just how bad they’ll have it for going against me!”

Harvey couldn’t help but chuckle as he watched Castiel hop around, gritting his teeth.

Safe to say, he was too inexperienced to handle such a little thing.

‘I’ll have to teach him well, or he’ll have a hard time succeeding,’ Harvey thought.

Of course, Harvey didn't stop him. After all, it'd be refreshing for Castiel to see Darwin and the others suffer a little more.

Harvey threw the check to Cliff, so the latter could take care of the renovation materials and furniture. Just then, his phone started to chime.

He had received a text.

"The plane just started to take off, Harvey.

Remember to fetch me tonight!"

Harvey was speechless; he knew Xynthia hid herself at the airport because he wasn't there to fetch her. She made herself a lame excuse, at that.

He could tell there was no change in the time of her flight just by checking it on his phone.

Even so, he was quite close to his sister-in-law. Xynthia was also working for the company under his name, so he couldn't ignore her just because of what happened between him and the Zimmers.

Harvey sent her a reply. Then, he went to the airport's waiting lounge. After ten minutes or so, a huge crowd swarmed out of the exit.

There were two especially eye-catching women standing in the crowd.

A beautiful woman dressed in a bat-wing blouse was standing on the left. In her high heels, she was about five-foot-seven. Her height made her stand out from the crowd.

On the right was a woman with a bright and plump face. She wasn't wearing any makeup, but she still looked alluring. She was only wearing an ordinary T-shirt and jeans, but she was no less compared to the woman beside her—maybe even better.

She was none other than Xynthia.

The two women had completely different auras, but they were still undeniably attractive.

Every single man who walked out at the same time couldn't help but take a few sneaky glances at them. Even some princes and young masters started to gauge themselves, to see whether they had the right to approach the two.

"Do we look okay, Ensley?" Xynthia said to the woman next to her, as she looked around.

Ensley was dragging her exclusive Geneva suitcase, scanning her surroundings calmly.

As someone from Wolsing, she looked down on everyone. If she had no business in the Golden Sands, she wouldn't have come here in the first place. [Fast update on daotranslate.com]

When she saw the surrounding buildings, disdain filled her gaze.

"It's a pretty big city. An ancient city built by an entire province would naturally have its strong suits."

Ensley looked calm, but her words were filled with nothing but disgust.

"It's a shame it was cast away by time..."

"It's no better than a first-rate city like Wolsing, but it's not that bad either."

Xynthia, however, didn't mind the place at all.
