

Her Billionaire 670

Chapter 670 He's Finally Back

Since Matthew was mute, he couldn't say anything. He could still sign words with his hands even though they were tied, but he was just thrashing around and shaking his head frantically at this point. Tiffany felt at peace just to see how desperate and helpless he looked. She spread her lips into a smile as she saw him wailing in pain. Her laugh made her sound almost like a mad woman.

Veronica narrowed her eyes before turning to look at Thomas, who was standing beside her. They exchanged glances and communicated only with their eyes. The very next second, Veronica lifted her hand up and pointed a gun directly at Tiffany before firing.

Bang! Her attack was swift and accurate, and it hit Tiffany directly in her chest. "Ah!" Tiffany let out a loud cry. The bodyguards immediately tried to shoot Thomas and Veronica when they saw what happened. However, Thomas and Veronica had already done a backflip to land behind the bodyguards by then.

The bodyguards had fired their guns only to realize that they had shot their colleagues who were standing on their opposite end. "Ah..."

"F*ck. I hit the wrong person..." a bodyguard muttered.

are you guys doing?!"

"Help me..." someone called.

are supposed to kill Veronica and Thomas!"

...

at Matthew,

her. "Don't worry. I'm not going to die from this. We can split up and run," she cried. Then, both she and Thomas ran in opposite directions while shooting anyone who chased after them. About 20 minutes later, Veronica managed to get rid of the last person who was chasing after her. It wasn't hard she was too tired to continue running, so she simply sat in silence while waiting for Thomas to deal with the rest of the people. All of a sudden, she heard a soft rustling from beside her. Vigilance surfaced in her eyes, and she lowered her body from where she was froze for a few seconds and blinked before spreading her lips into a smile. "I was about to find a stepfather chest when she first heard his voice. The pain seemed