

Her Billionaire 733

Chapter 733 The Truth

Skyler looked down slightly. He bet that Veronica did not want anyone to know about her owning Vincere Games, which explained why she did not bring this up to anyone.

In fact, now was a critical time since Matthew and Veronica were not in the country. If the vengeful Conrad found out about it, he would not spare a small e-sports company even though he found the company too weak to be his opponent.

"No, I don't know her," Skyler said. "Call Shirley over. I want to see her."

Jayden and Shawn wore confused yet agitated expressions as they glanced toward the secretary at the side. "Bring Shirley over." "Yes." The secretary nodded, turned around, and went to the conference room.

Shirley reluctantly entered the reception room and saw Skyler sitting on the sofa with his legs crossed. He wore a yellow suit with a short punk hairstyle and a pair of simple black studs. He looked charismatic, with a certain wildness to his charm.

"Chicks dig bad boys." Even his snobbish image could be evocative. She had to admit that she felt her

Why did you upset Mr. Robins?" "Do you know who Mr. Robins is?

and Shawn ordered indignantly as they glared

baffled and speechless hand, Skyler, the party concerned, sat on the sofa leisurely and looked at the three of them quietly with the aura of a big boss. A hint of gloominess flashed in his eyes, and his cold expression frightened Jayden and

That's your own business! You shouldn't involve the company in by him, Veronica, and Shawn, and they had spent a tremendous amount of effort to accomplish what they say something when Skyler interrupted her deeply, "What's her casting a fierce glare at Shirley. It was as if he wished his eyes could emit a laser beam so that all that

He moved his hand, which rested on the sofa, to his knee,