

Healing 731

Chapter 731 You Can Wait For Me

Matilda understood what Miles meant, but, to her, there was not much difference between the two plays, and most of them were just the difference in roles.

She had read the script. Although the fighting scenes were intense, they were actually not many. For her, it was extremely easy.

Matilda said, "Actually, I'm really not that vulnerable. This kind of fighting scene is not dangerous to me."

Miles carried her over, put her on his lap, put his hand on her waist, and stroked her gently.

He said, "I know you, Aimee and Kelvin are very good. Maybe these are nothing to you, but I will still worry or feel bad. These are two things. Understand?"

Matilda raised the corners of her mouth and said, "Then I have nothing to say."

She hugged Miles' neck, leaned over delicately, and kissed Miles on the cheek.

Miles would naturally not be satisfied with such a kiss.

He turned his head and kissed her.

Things started to go wrong and Matilda felt Miles' hand move.

She twisted her body and said, "Don't. The fried chicken will be delivered here soon."

If Miles was allowed to go on like this, it was uncertain whether she can eat fried chicken today. Even if the fried chicken was delivered, this guy may not necessarily answer the door.

Miles was almost annoyed by Matilda.

At this time, what she was thinking about was actually the fried chicken.

Miles felt a lot of displeasure. He lowered his head and bit Matilda's lips hard before moving away from her body.

In fact, Matilda rarely saw Miles like this, and she couldn't help but laughed out loud.

However, her laughter stimulated Miles even more.

Miles directly hooked her over and said fiercely in her ear, "Just mess with me. If you do it again, wait for a while and I'll be 'nice' to you."

Matilda couldn't help laughing even more.

She raised her hand to cup Miles' cheek and said, "Be good. When I finish eating the fried chicken, you can do whatever you want."

As soon as she said so, Matilda could clearly feel the change in Miles' eyes.

He looked at Matilda meaningfully.

Matilda wanted to slap herself for a split second and all of a sudden.

Did she feel that her life was too easy, so she dared say such things to Miles now?

It was just terrible.

Matilda took a deep breath and then said, "Well, I'm just joking. You should be able to understand it, right?"

Miles raised his hand, squeezed Matilda's ear softly, and said, "I'm serious."

Matilda didn't know what to say.

She no longer provoked Miles, but sat on the sofa obediently, pretending to read the script. Being serious, she didn't seem to want to talk to Miles at all.

Miles also stopped teasing her and started to do his own thing.

The two of them lived in peace until the fried chicken was delivered.

Matilda immediately became excited, put down the script, didn't even ask Miles to open the door, but ran to open the door by herself.

Bringing the fried chicken over, Matilda couldn't wait to open it.

This fried chicken restaurant was considered to be the best in Innisrial. Not only was the chicken delicious, but what Matilda liked the most was that when the fried chicken was delivered, the outer skin was still very crispy, which made Matilda absolutely irresistible.

Putting on the gloves, she didn't care that it was still a little hot, but picked up a chicken leg and took a bite.

After one bite, Matilda's expression was extremely satisfied.

After taking this bite, Matilda looked at Miles and said with a smile, "Come and eat it too."

Miles laughed, but he was not interested in food like fried chicken.

However, seeing Matilda eating such delicious food made him a little curious. Was this food really that tasty?

Miles picked up a drumstick and took a bite.

Sure enough, it was still a taste he didn't like.

So, Miles just ate a drumstick and nothing else.

Seeing this, Matilda felt distressed instantly.

"Why don't I get you something else to eat?" said Matilda.

As she spoke, she took off her gloves, picked up her phone, and started ordering another takeaway.

Miles said, "No, I'm not very hungry."

"Eat even if you're not hungry. Your thinking is wrong," Matilda said.

Miles wanted to say that he'll have a big meal later anyway.

However, when he heard Matilda say this, Miles changed the subject and said directly, "You are right. Otherwise, it will be bad if I can't keep up with your physical strength for a while."

Matilda was choosing the takeaway. When she heard what Miles said, her hands stopped.

She turned her head to look at Miles, frowned, and said, "I think, if you're not hungry, you'd better stop eating. Or it's a waste."

She had already estimated that he was going to bang her hard, and now she wanted to give him some takeaway as supplies? How could she be so stupid?

Seeing this, Miles smiled and said, "You are so cruel. Do you want to starve me?"

Matilda picked up the gloves again, put them on and said, "I'm not cruel to you, but to myself, so I'd better be cruel to you."

Miles touched his chin, but he didn't feel any emotion because of Matilda's words, but his eyes fell on her neck.

Matilda tied a bun today, showing her straight and beautiful neck.

Miles' eyes gradually narrowed, and his fingers had already landed on her dazzling skin.

Matilda was biting a chicken wing, felt Miles' movement, and her whole body was shaken.

She immediately swallowed the meat in her mouth, turned her head to look at Miles, and said, "Let me finish eating first. Don't mess with me now."

He just ate a chicken drumstick, but she hadn't enjoyed enough yet.

If she was interrupted by Miles now, she will get a little emotional.

Miles said, "Okay, I'll wait for you."

Matilda's hairs stood on end, and she suddenly regretted why she had been distracted by Miles.

However, she couldn't take back the words that were spoken.

Matilda could only turn her head away silently and continue eating the fried chicken in front of her. However, Matilda's eating speed obviously slowed down a lot. She chewed about twenty or thirty times for each bite. Although this was a reasonable eating speed in line with healthy standards, Matilda usually did not chew so many times. Now, with this eating rate, the answer was self-evident why she did so. Miles just watched Matilda eating the fried chicken slowly, dumbfounded. He was not in a hurry, anyway. A good meal was never late, and he could wait a long time for Matilda to finish eating. However, Matilda naively thought that if she ate slowly, she could procrastinate infinitely. But she forgot that fried chicken tasted better when it was hot, but when it was cold, the taste was not as good as before. Especially since she ate so slowly, she was already full in the end. Matilda even felt that the fried chicken she bit into was not chicken, but fried chicken-flavored oil. She lost her appetite all of a sudden. Then she took off her gloves with a flat mouth, picked up the beer beside her, and took a sip. Miles narrowed his eyes, and when Matilda wanted to take a second sip, he took the beer from her hand. "As we agreed just now, you can only have one sip." Miles said. Matilda brought the beer to Miles at first, because she could only drink Coke. However, Miles only ate a drumstick, so naturally he didn't drink much. Matilda was already very interested in this beer, so she discussed with Miles and let her have a sip. Who would have thought that Miles would be so harsh on her. When he said she could only have one sip, he would really stick to it. Matilda flattened her mouth, picked up her Coke, and gulped it down. After finally suppressing the feeling of oil, Matilda said, "It's a little sad. Why is it so unpalatable afterward?" Miles patted her head and said, "Don't think about it. I'll sort it out, and you can wait for me." Matilda was speechless.

Chapter 732 Will You be Surprised?

Matilda went back to her room in a huff and rushed into the bathroom. She really wanted to ask was Miles still a human being? She was already so unhappy, but he still only thought about sex. He truly didn't give her a chance to miss it. Matilda slipped into the bathroom, ready for another round of acting shamelessly. If she continued to delay the bath time infinitely, she didn't believe that Miles was really willing to sleep her until dawn. After Miles returned to the room, he heard the sound of water coming from the bathroom. As soon as his eyes turned, he immediately thought of a possibility. Miles walked towards the bathroom as he unbuttoned his shirt. His woman was really cute and a little silly sometimes. Unscrewing the door of the bathroom, Miles pushed the door and went in, and saw that Matilda was in a very good mood, even humming.

Clearly, she was taking pleasure in her wit.

Miles didn't walk over immediately, but looked at Matilda for a long time.

Until, Matilda finally noticed something and turned around to look at him.

Matilda was at a loss for words.

Only then did Miles lift his foot and walked towards Matilda.

Matilda stepped back instinctively, and raised her hands to block in front of her.

Miles licked inside his cheek lightly, and took a few steps closer to Matilda.

"Hide from what?" Miles asked.

Matilda said, "How did you come in?"

"What do you think?" Miles laughed that this woman was pretending to be stupid.

"But, I want to take a good bath. I just ate fried chicken and I feel greasy." Matilda said.

Miles had already held Matilda's waist and pulled her into his arms, "Really? Then I will help you."

What else could Matilda say now?

She could only accept her fate and let Miles start to "bully" her.

Her own plan was broken, which made Matilda very upset.

However, Matilda soon forgot about this terrible feeling.

Today's Miles was extraordinarily attractive, almost setting her whole body on fire.

Matilda was so tantalized that she finally couldn't hold back and kicked Miles' leg, "Stop flirting. Just do it."

Seeing that she lost her temper like this, Miles chuckled and carried her up.

The next second, Matilda regretted it.

What was self-inflicted? Matilda had understood.

She was just asking for it herself.

One second she was worn out by Miles, and the next second she was brought into a stormy sea.

And what made Matilda even more helpless was Miles really didn't stop banging her until dawn.

Matilda didn't even know how she fell asleep, but she just vaguely felt Miles kiss her eyes.

This time, Matilda slept until afternoon.

After she sat up from the bed, she felt like her body was about to fall apart.

For a moment, Matilda really wanted to swear that in the future, it would be absolutely impossible to give Miles the opportunity to do her like this again.

However, this kind of thing, in the final analysis, was not what Matilda can decide at all.

She went to take a shower and changed her clothes. Matilda thought about it and decided to go to Hayden's Mansion.

She hadn't seen Aimee for a while, so she just wanted to tell her that she was going to join the crew again, and if there was anything to do in the future, she didn't need to ask her to do it for the time being.

The last time she came back with Miles, she knew that Patrick was stitching those toys at home.

She originally thought that Patrick would just do it for a day or two, and then put it there, and let his subordinates do it for him.

As a result, as soon as she entered the door, she saw Patrick seriously stitching these toys together, and Matilda was stunned for a moment.

Going to Aimee's study, Matilda couldn't help saying, "You are good training your husband. He is so obedient."

Hearing this, Aimee looked at Matilda and said with a smile, "Your husband is also under your control."

With Miles' temperament, in front of Matilda, he was as gentle as a cat.

As soon as Miles was mentioned, Matilda became speechless.

She was "tortured" so badly by him, so now she was full of complaints.

Seeing this, Aimee asked, "What's wrong with you? With your expression?"

Matilda said, "You don't know what a beast Miles is."

Aimee was at a loss for words.

It was really not convenient for her to know.

Matilda also realized that what she said was very weird, coughed lightly, and said, "Now, I hope to be able to join the crew as soon as possible, so that I can rest."

Aimee was almost amused by her words.

She said, "You haven't thought about having a baby. At least, in the early stages of pregnancy, you can rest as much as you want."

Hearing this, Matilda stared at Aimee in astonishment, and after a while, she said, "Aimee, you really have changed now. You would never say such things before."

Aimee said, "I'm just giving you a good advice. The goal of this advice is to let you rest, not let you have a baby."

Seriously thinking about Aimee's words, Matilda finally shook her head and said, "I think, rather than being responsible for the child's life, I still hope that I can go with the flow and welcome a child."

She didn't want it, and it was not appropriate for her to have a child for this purpose.

Aimee said, "Then you have to work hard."

Matilda looked at Aimee, suddenly laughed, and said, "But, Aimee, are you sure, after you got pregnant, did you rest?"

Aimee was quite speechless that it was redundant to discuss this topic with Matilda.

She could answer confidently before, of course.

But since the ban was lifted, even though she wasn't as presumptuous as she was before she got pregnant, she was still reckless.

Aimee said, "You can only understand it by insight."

Matilda laughed unceremoniously.

Matilda sighed softly and said, "Men are satyrs in essence."

Aimee laughed. She agreed with this point of view, but she didn't agree with it at the same time.

After all, there were times when she was the one who coveted Patrick.

Therefore, between the two of them, it was really not certain who was the satyr.

"By the way, Aimee, I should be joining the crew soon, and I'm still working with Francis." Matilda said.

There was nothing unexpected about it for Aimee. They cooperated very happily last time, so there was no surprise about the second cooperation.

Aimee said, "That's fine. I'll arrange for Averi to do tasks, so you can act with peace of mind."

"You understand me the best." Matilda moved closer to Aimee and said, "That's what I mean too."

Aimee was helpless, looked at Matilda, and said, "However, even if I want to arrange some tasks for you now, it's not easy to do so. I'm afraid that your husband will kill me."

Matilda thought about it seriously and said, "That's not true. At most he will kill your husband."

What can Aimee do? Her husband and she had to call Matilda sister-in-law.

"However, it's been a long time since I saw Averi," Matilda said.

"She's been Duplaira for a while, and I'll have her back recently," Aimee said.

Matilda nodded, "Have gathering then. She doesn't even know about your pregnancy yet."

Aimee thought about it and found that she really didn't tell Averi about it. She didn't know if she will be shocked when she saw her big belly when she came back. Thinking of Averi's frightened appearance, Aimee couldn't wait.

Chapter 733 Became contemptuous

Averi came back three days later.

Aimee and Matilda asked her to have dinner immediately.

The location was set at a private restaurant, which was chosen by Averi, because she hadn't eaten domestic food for a long time, and during this time, she was about to be overwhelmed by foreign food. Matilda went with Aimee.

Averi was still on the way here, so she let them order the dishes first, and it was best to eat directly when she arrived.

Both of them knew Averi's preference very well, so they ordered it casually.

Averi will be there in about ten minutes.

As soon as she entered the room, Averi was startled by Aimee's stomach.

"You, when did it happen?" Averi asked.

"It's not long since you came back from Veggia. Did it scare you?" Aimee laughed.

Averi shook her head and said, "No, I just think it's amazing. It is really fast."

Matilda chuckled and said, "What's wrong? Are you envious? Then you should also find a man to fall in love with."

Averi was struck dumb.

She looked at Matilda speechlessly and said, "I'm not surprised that Aimee got married and had a baby, but you, who got the certificate quietly, are the one who really scares me."

Matilda laughed again and said, "Actually, to tell you the truth, I always thought that among the three of us, the first one to get married should be you."

"Now, I'm the one left." Averi raised her eyebrows, feeling a little unbelievable.

However, neither Aimee nor Matilda urged Averi to get married and have children.

Even though they had entered a new stage of their lives, they still firmly believed that everyone should make their own decisions about their own important issues.

Others can give suggestions and discuss together, but there was no need to do more than that.

However, Averi looked at the two, but still said, "I really have a little bit of envy."

This mission was the longest she had been away from Innisrial.

In the past, this kind of thing was done by Matilda.

As it turned out, Matilda was now with a man, so she had to be sent out.

Going to that place in the middle of nowhere, it didn't matter if she can't eat well or sleep well. The key point was that she didn't even have conditions to do skincare.

From the very beginning, she didn't bring any skin care products, which was for the mission.

It was just that Averi didn't expect that it would take so long this time. After returning, she felt that her skin almost peeled off.

Naturally, Averi did not miss this opportunity to act like a baby to Aimee.

She pointed to her face and said, "Aimee, look at my face. It's already like this."

Her skin had never been so rough.

Hearing this, Aimee immediately said, "Tomorrow, tomorrow I will arrange a full set of skin care for you, and I promise to restore you to the way you were before."

Averi immediately said, "No, it has to be better than before."

Aimee laughed, but agreed with what she wanted.

Matilda leaned in front of Aimee and said, "Aimee, I'm joining the crew soon, so arrange one for me too."

After finishing speaking, she blinked at Aimee and acted cute.

Both Aimee and Averi were speechless.

Averi picked up a fork, put a shrimp ball into her mouth, chewed and swallowed it, and then said, "Matilda, you're a beauty. Don't use your face to make such expressions in the future. It's strange."

Resisting the urge to roll her eyes, Matilda said, "Is it too much to say that? Anyway, I am an actress. Is it really appropriate for you to question my expressions like this?"

Averi thought about it, and it really made sense.

So, Averi changed to a more tactful way and said, "Then I hope, in the future, you don't need to act cute."

It will be uncomfortable if Averi didn't tease Matilda once.

Aimee had long been used to the confrontation between the two when they met.

She ate on her own, and her appetite was particularly good today.

Averi looked at Aimee and said, "Aimee, you have a good appetite."

Matilda said, "Eat one portion for three. Of course she has a good appetite."

Averi's eyes enlarged unconsciously, and after the surprise, they were full of wonder.

"Aimee, twins?" Averi exclaimed.

She couldn't help being excited.

Aimee nodded and said, "It's confirmed, and I'm also very surprised."

"It would be even better if they are pigeon pair," Averi said.

Aimee was dumbfounded and said, "This can't be forced."

Neither she nor Patrick had any particular ideas about the gender of the children.

As long as they were born healthy and grew up healthy, that was enough.

As for the rest, everything depended on the fate.

However, Aimee was not completely devoid of any ideas. People in this country thought pigeon pair was better. No matter how free and easy she had been in the past, she was still a little bit traditional.

Naturally, she also hoped that.

Averi said, "You don't even test it. If you don't know in advance, what a waste."

Aimee said, "I've discussed it with Patrick not to know the gender in advance, but wait until the day of the birth, so as to leave a surprise."

When she mentioned this, she will inevitably think of the previous trick that they kept Patrick from knowing she was having the twins.

Unconsciously, Aimee smiled.

Although it was quickly discovered, Aimee still thought it was quite interesting.

As soon as Matilda saw her unable to hide her smile, she could guess what she was thinking.

"Aimee, you don't want to lie to your husband about the genders of the children, do you?" Matilda said.

Aimee paused, then smiled, and said, "Sure, there's nothing wrong with it, right?"

"I advise you not to take risks. With your husband's shrewd and vengeful nature, if you do this, think about what will happen to you after you give birth." Matilda said.

Although she was not affected by the last time she lied to Patrick, he was tricked badly.

And Aimee, as Patrick's wife, was pregnant now, so naturally there was no danger. However, based on the experience gained from Miles, Matilda believed that there will not be much difference between their brothers.

Aimee understood the meaning of Matilda's words, and instantly felt that the food in her mouth was not tasty.

In her opinion, this was indeed something Patrick can do.

Thinking of what she would face when the confinement was over, Aimee no longer had the slightest idea of teasing Patrick.

She wanted to give birth to the babies obediently, without doing anything at all.

However, Aimee seemed to have forgotten that, in sex, Patrick was not the one who will be gentler to her just because she was well-behaved.

In fact, a man who had been restricted for a long time was unreasonable at all.

Of course, this was all for later.

The three of them ate and chatted, and they went back to their respective homes in the evening.

Although Averil had already made an appointment with Aimee to save her skin, she still decided that she needed to save it in advance.

She went straight into the nearest shopping mall, preparing to buy a few more boxes of facial masks.

Averil had a few brands that she liked.

What she mainly wanted to buy today was the maintenance type.

Averil went straight to the counter, ready to grab a few boxes and leave.

However, when Averil got to the counter, she felt a little helpless.

A young woman at the counter was looking at the clerk angrily, pointing to her cheek, and said, "I became like this because of your products. How can you not admit it?"

"Miss, we also made it very clear that there is no problem with our products. If your own skin is not suitable, you can't just blame our products. Are you being unreasonable?" the clerk said.

Averil stood not far away, listening to their words. Her brows furrowed unconsciously.

This clerk was really rude in her speech.

The young woman was so angry that her eyes were red. She bit her lips, looked at the clerk, and couldn't say anything harsh.

When the clerk saw her like this, her eyes became contemptuous.

Chapter 734 Dream on?

This young woman had a baby face, and she didn't look old. She was wearing ordinary T-shirt and shorts without brands, and she looked like a student.

The clerk thought she was vain to buy such high-end products from here.

She was afraid that the money was obtained by doing something dirty.

The clerk had already concluded that this young woman either borrowed money from many people to buy their brand, or she was a gold-digger.

Otherwise, why did she come here so anxiously to ask for an explanation?

The clerk didn't think there was anything wrong with the products. She sold the top products and if there were any problems with them, she was afraid she won't be able to find anything better than theirs in Innisrial.

"Don't stay here anymore. Who knows what dirty products you used to make yourself like this. Little girl, let me tell you, we are a top luxury store. If you want to fake it and act shamelessly, I advise you to stop and don't embarrass yourself," said the clerk.

The young woman took a deep breath, looked at the clerk and said, "You don't acknowledge it, do you?" The clerk saw that she wanted to be harsh, so she was even more contemptuous, "Little girl, you should read more books when you are young, and don't think about doing crooked things every day."

Seeing that the clerk still had such an attitude, the young woman was not as angry as before.

She put away her things, looked at the clerk indifferently, turned around and left the counter.

The clerk saw her attitude and snorted coldly, "What the hell."

Averi glanced at the clerk, then turned to look for the young woman.

She found her by the fountain outside the mall.

The young woman was so angry that she was kicking the stone slab by the fountain to vent her anger.

Averi was amused by her.

She walked over and said, "You're wearing sandals. Don't your toes hurt?"

The young woman was startled by the sudden sound.

She turned her head suspiciously, and saw a beautiful woman standing in front of her.

Averi smiled at her and said, "I'm sorry I just heard what you and the clerk said. Is your face allergic?"

The young woman raised her hand and touched her cheek, saying, "I went to the hospital for an examination, and I am not allergic. There is no problem with the food I usually eat and the stuff I use, but this is the only problem. However, I have always used their products. There is no reason there will be problems all of a sudden."

Averi thought for a while and said, "Can you wait for me here? I'll be right back."

The young woman looked at Averi suspiciously, but still nodded and said, "Okay."

Averi thought that she was so cute that she raised her hand to stroke the young woman's hair impulsively.

She turned around, walked into the mall again, and bought the same product as the ones in the young woman's hand.

When the woman saw that she actually bought these, she immediately became anxious, "Miss, you bought so many of them. It's a waste of money."

She had already been made like this. And if she was allergic too, it will be a big loss.

Averi said, "Don't worry. I'm not using them."

As soon as she said this, the woman felt it even more strange.

Not for use?

What was that for?

Averi said, "Do you mind if I take all of yours for a test?"

Only then did the young woman understand what this beautiful lady in front of her was going to do.

She nodded immediately, and handed all the things in her hands to Averi.

Averi said, "Can we exchange contact information? I will contact you when the result comes out. If there's a problem with the product, I will definitely seek justice for you."

The woman was silent for a moment before she said, "Miss, so, in fact, you don't trust me that much, do you?"

Averi could hear the disappointment in her tone, bent her lips, and said, "Actually, I'm a loyal user of this brand. From my emotional point of view, I really don't want this product to have any problems."

The woman's face didn't look good.

She suddenly didn't know what to say.

She was very lost and very sad.

Averi smiled helplessly that this woman was not very patient.

She continued, "However, that clerk is too annoying to bully such a cute girl like you, so I am going to make them pay the due price after I have enough evidence."

The woman raised her head, looked at Averi, and saw her wink at her, extremely beautiful.

She was dazed for a moment, as if she was dreaming.

She said, "Miss, you still believe in me, don't you?"

Averi laughed, "Of course, you are such a cute girl. How could you lie?"

The woman was obviously coaxed by Averi's words.

Her eyes lit up in an instant, like a soft little animal's.

Averi thought she was so cute again, but she still didn't have the nerve to rub her head directly.

Averi said, "I don't know your name yet. My name is Averi Knight. You can call me Averi."

The woman's eyes lit up again, and she looked at Averi in surprise, "Really? Averi, is your surname really Knight?"

Averi raised her eyebrows and said, "It looks like you do too."

The woman nodded and said, "My name is Beata."

Averi felt that she was going to be melt by this woman's cuteness today.

"Beata, what a cute name, as cute as you," Averi said.

Beata smiled and said, "Averi, let me treat you to dessert."

Averi could feel Beata's liking for her, but today was not the time for them to have dessert, because she had to test these products.

Averi said, "Not today, I will send these to the laboratory and get the results as soon as possible."

Beata felt a little disappointed, but she could only nod obediently and said, "Then Averi, I'll wait for you to contact me."

Averi nodded, smiled, and said, "Soon, by this time tomorrow, the results will be out."

Beata didn't understand these things, but when she heard Averi say that, she was very happy and looked forward to it.

The two said goodbye, and Averi hailed a car and went directly to the laboratory.

Beata watched Averi's taxi drive away before walking towards a black car on the side of the road.

When she walked over, a man in a black suit got out of the car, and said respectfully to Beata, "Miss, please get in the car."

Beata nodded and got into the car.

She was in a very bad mood today, but she didn't expect that meeting Averi made her feel great all of a sudden.

On the way home, Beata was not idle but had been chatting with Averi on phone.

After the car drove into Knight's Mansion, Beata got out of the car, and as soon as she entered the door, she saw her brother sitting on the sofa. Although he was working on a tablet computer, he seemed to be waiting for her specially.

Beata happily ran over and hugged River's neck, "River, do you miss me?"

River put down the tablet in his hand and said, "You look very happy."

"Hey, it's okay." Beata let go of River's neck, and sat down obediently.

River looked at her and said, "Is it because you met that woman?"

Although Beata had expected to hear River say this, she still wrinkled her nose and pretended to be unhappy and said, "River, why do you keep an eye on me again? Are you afraid that I will be bullied?"

River said helplessly, "You are so naive because you are less bullied."

"Then you let me out to be bullied. Maybe it's not me who will be bullied." Beata said.

He just didn't want her to interact with other people.
Want to bully her?
Just perish that thought.

Chapter 735 Better than that

Beata approached River with a smile and said, "River, did you check out Averi's information?"
"Want to see?" River looked at her with a smile.

Beata immediately shook her head and said, "River, this time, I want to make friends with her myself."
It had always been like this. When she liked a new person and wanted to make friends with him or her, her brother will bring over the other party's information and let her have a look.

Beata herself knew that this was a kind of protection from her brother, but she really didn't like this way of doing it.

She was very clear that since she was a daughter of Knight family, if other people knew about it, it was impossible for them to be friends with her without purpose.

In this regard, Beata was really unhappy.

She really liked Averi, and this time, she hoped that she and Averi will get close. Even if she was mistaken or hurt, she will admit it and will not blame anyone.

River was aware of his younger sister's temper. She looked soft and easy to control, but in fact, she was very stern.

Once she decided on something, she never changed her mind at all.

In this regard, River had nothing to do.

However, since Beata was so persistent this time, as her brother, he naturally wouldn't make his sister unhappy.

Anyway, if that woman dared to hurt Beata, he would definitely destroy her.

River said, "Okay, I'll listen to you this time."

Beata froze for a moment when she heard the words, and looked at River suspiciously, trying hard to see some clues from River's eyes.

River was left speechless by her reaction.

He raised his hand, pressed it on Beata's forehead, and said, "Why? What do you want to say?"

Beata raised her hand and knocked River's hand away, saying, "River, you're so weird today. You're doing something you don't do usually. What's wrong with you? Are you possessed by something?"

River didn't know what to say.

Beata thought and finally, she thought of a reason that she thought was very reasonable.

She widened her eyes, leaned back, and looked at her brother in disbelief, "Rive, do you like her?"

River was speechless.

Sometimes, he really didn't understand why her thoughts were so strange.

Wasn't it too strange to have feelings for her after reading her profile?

However, his sister was a writer of novels, so it was understandable that she thought differently from normal people.

Beata felt more and more that her idea was extremely correct.

Especially, her brother just smiled and didn't refute.

Beata's eyes suddenly enlarged, and they were as bright as hell.

She looked at her brother, as if saying: I'm shipping it!

Beata looked at her brother with a smile, approached him, and said, "River, if you need anything, I can help you.”

River was very speechless now, and felt that he should think carefully about whether he should spoil his sister or not.

This girl was outrageous.

After Beata expressed her thoughts, she ran upstairs without thinking too much.

She had a new inspiration, so she can write about it first.

The other side.

Averi went to the laboratory and handed over two skin care products to the laboratory technician for testing.

“Averi, is there something wrong with this brand? Why do you want to test this all of a sudden?” The analyst asked strangely.

Averi said, “It’s just a conjecture of mine, and I’m not sure yet. You guys test it out for me first and then talk about it. As for what’s going on, we’ll see when the time comes.”

Her intuition told her that the girl would not lie.

Then, there was only one possibility the products were really problematic.

Based on the conversation between the young woman and the clerk, the products had only been bought for three days, so that meant, if there was a problem, the products that were currently sold were also problematic. They were the same batch.

Otherwise, it would be too outrageous if it was simply something wrong with the things that the young woman was using.

Then she probably should really buy a lottery ticket and win such a big prize.

Instead of waiting at the lab, Averi went straight home.

After taking a shower, Averi started the skin saving plan.

When choosing a mask from her inventory, Averi moved her eyes from the brand of mask, but in the end, she still didn’t take one.

Now, she was rather contradictory.

After all, it was a brand that she had really liked for so many years. If there was any problem, it will really make her very sad.

However, Averi didn’t want it from the bottom of his heart that it was the young woman’s own problem.

Averi was a little speechless by her own thought.

She herself couldn’t explain why she had a good impression of that woman.

However, it may be because that she was really too cute.

Averi really felt a little regretful that she didn’t rub her head.

After completing a set of skin care routines, Averi fell asleep.

Finally sleeping back on her own bed, Averi felt relieved.

This was rare she slept peacefully for such a long time.

The next day.

Averi was woken up by the phone ringing.

She didn’t look at the caller ID, but answered the call directly.

Matilda’s speechless voice came from the other end of the phone, “Miss, did you forget you have made an appointment today? Where are you?”

Averi hadn’t completely woken up yet, and hadn’t reacted for a while. Her voice was still buzzing, and she asked in a daze, “Isn’t it the afternoon of the appointment?”

Matilda said, “It’s already two o’clock.”

After her brain worked, Averi was really speechless. She looked at the time on her phone, and was instantly stunned. It was really already two o'clock in the afternoon. Averi sat up abruptly in bed and said, "I overslept." Her bed was so comfortable that she didn't pay attention to the time at all. "I knew it!" Matilda said. "Are you coming?" Averi immediately said, "Yes, I must come." How could she miss such an important chance to save her skin? She immediately rolled over and got off the bed, and said to Matilda, "Wait for me. Don't leave me behind." After hanging up the phone, Averi quickly tidied herself up and went out. Fortunately, she lived nearby, and there was no traffic jam at this time. In just over ten minutes, Averi arrived. Matilda and Aimee were sitting on a sofa chatting. Seeing her come in, Matilda said, "Your problem of not being able to wake up is getting serious again?" Averi said, "My bed is so comfortable. I don't know how I slept for so long." She was the opposite of Aimee who can only sleep for two or three hours to be full of energy. She was like never waking up. Even if she was given seventeen or eighteen hours of sleep, she could still sleep like this. Normally, she set an alarm clock to wake herself up. Last night, she completely forgot about this. It was because she was thinking she would wake up anyway at two o'clock in the afternoon. Who would have thought that after not coming back for a long time, she would sleep until afternoon. Matilda said, "You and Aimee, if you two neutralize, it's just right." Averi said, "Won't pregnancy cause lethargy? Aimee, you still don't sleep much now?" Aimee said, "I was able to sleep well in the early days, but now I'm back. It doesn't have any effect anyway, so just let it go." Averi nodded and said, "Let's start to save my skin. I'm going to hate it to death." Aimee laughed and already knew that Averi cared about her skin. So, without any delay, she started to do skin care for Averi directly. Matilda watched from the side and said, "It's really a bit miserable for you to go out this time." She had known Averi for so long, and this was the first time she had seen Averi's dry skin like this. Averi said in a low voice, "Don't mention it again. Even going to the desert is better than going there."

Chapter 736 See what she wants to do

Matilda burst out laughing and quickly said, "Stop talking nonsense. Next time Aimee will throw you directly into the desert and see if you will cry." She had experienced it before so she should not curse herself so lightly. Averi thought of Matilda's experience and immediately laughed. She said, "I remember learning lessons drawn from your mistake." Matilda suddenly thought of something and laughed. She said, "However, I think I can give you a good solution to this." "What?" Averi asked. Matilda said, "You find someone to fall in love with and marry, so Aimee will change her choice."

Averi was speechless.

She felt that Matilda was deceiving her.

Aimee kept moving her hands, raised her eyes to look at Matilda, and said, "Now I suddenly feel, do you have such a good life now that you forget what I was like before?"

Matilda immediately froze, silenced her voice, and smiled at Aimee.

However, Aimee was right.

Her current life was indeed so good that she will forget what she had experienced before.

Thinking of this, Matilda suddenly felt a little emotional.

"In the past, it was really hard to imagine that our current life would be like this." Matilda said.

However, these changes, in fact, can be said to be entirely due to the fact that Aimee had desire for nothing now.

Aimee now was like a different person from before.

Although she used to pretend to be useless in the Read family, she did have a lot of tricks in the dark.

Fortunately, Aimee won't bother with non-essential things.

Matilda even wondered if Aimee was ever ready to retire.

Hearing what she said, Aimee laughed suddenly and said, "Do you want to go back and live the old days?"

Matilda thought about it, and it was quite contradictory.

Although the previous life was hard, it was indeed very exciting.

It was very different from the current life.

However, the current life was indeed comfortable and made them not want to make any changes.

Matilda said, "It's good now, and it was good before. Each has its own advantages."

Averi's basic care had been done, and Matilda will replace.

Averi sat aside, looked at her saved skin in front of a mirror, and said, "I just hope that my skin won't suffer in the future. Nothing matters."

Matilda chuckled and said, "You have to ask Aimee for this, but you can also think carefully about my suggestion."

Averi had no choice but to put down the mirror, looked at Matilda, and said, "How do I feel you fully believe 'love is all' now?"

It was really hard for her to accept that Matilda was the one who advised her to fall in love.

However, this also showed that Matilda was very happy.

Averi was also happy for her.

After they finished the skin care, it was already dark.

The report from the research institute had come out, and Averi was going to pick it up.

The three of them didn't make an appointment to have dinner together, but went back to their respective homes.

After Averi arrived at the institute, the researcher brought her the report.

"Averi, there is really a problem. The ingredients we detected are very different from what is written in the ingredient list." The analyst said.

Averi read the report, and her eyes gradually became colder.

Although she had already guessed it, this brand really dared do this, which really annoyed her.

The analyst looked at Averi's expression, and asked with concern, "Averi, what are you going to do about this?"

This brand can be said to be the most luxurious. If this report was really exposed, the problem will become bigger.

At that time, there will definitely be a chaos.

Averi smiled and said, "Of course we need to find out what's going on first, and then decide what to do." She was not so reckless and it still needed to be discussed in the long run.

However, now that the report was out, she can give that young girl an explanation.

Averi came out of the laboratory and sent a message to Beata. "Kid, the results are out. Do you want to come and have a look?"

Beata quickly responded to the message and agreed on a meeting place.

Coincidentally, Averi was nearby, so she went there directly.

It was a dessert shop that Beata liked because the millefeuille in this shop was very delicious.

Beata came over half an hour later, while Averi had already drank a cup of coffee and studied the report again.

Seeing this, Beata asked, "Averi, aren't you afraid you won't be able to sleep at night because you drink coffee so late?"

Averi laughed, "No, I just can't wake up."

Beata blinked her eyes, envious immediately.

"It's so good. I want to have this kind of sleep too." Beata said.

Averi couldn't help being amused by her words. "What's wrong? Do you have insomnia at such a young age?"

Beata nodded and said, "Isn't it so pitiful? My brother said that I didn't like to sleep when I was a child. I was like an owl every day. I would never sleep before twelve o'clock. Now I'll not sleep before three o'clock in the morning."

Averi said with a smile, "As long as you're healthy, there is no need to feel anxious about sleeping more and sleeping less."

Beata nodded and said with a smile, "I think so. Otherwise, I won't do anything every day."

In particular, she was a novel writer. When other writers felt extremely anxious because they wanted to finish their manuscripts and didn't get enough sleep, she looked extra relaxed.

What was more, she was writing novels to pass the time because she couldn't sleep and had nothing to do.

She couldn't sleep, but it gave her an abundant harvest.

The two chatted for a while before Averi handed the report to Beata and said, "Look at this and you decide how to do it."

Beata opened the report, but was instantly dumbfounded.

She couldn't read it at all.

Averi explained to her, saying, "The result of the test is that there are many different ingredients from what it wrote. And among these different ingredients, two are strictly prohibited from being used in skin care products. If it is used for a long time, it will cause harm to the human body."

When Beata heard this, she immediately panicked.

She looked at Averi and asked pitifully, "Averi, is my face ruined?"

Averi said, "It's not that serious. You just use it once. If you don't use it long-term, you won't have such a bad result."

"But," Beata said pitifully, "I only used it once, and it became like that. Doesn't that mean that my face is too fragile?"

Averi said, "Or, you can think that your skin is too delicate, which is very good. How many people will be envious.”

Beata seemed to be really comforted by Averi’s words. Then she tilted her head and thought about it, stopping worrying so much.

“Averi, can I take this report to ask for an explanation now?” Beata asked.

Averi said, “This can be big or small. As such a big brand, their countermeasures must be very perfect. If you just want to target the clerk, let her apologize to you, and make compensation, you can go directly to ask for an explanation. But if you want to trace the root cause and avoid more victims, then this cannot be handled so simply.”

Beata frowned and thought about it carefully.

In the final analysis, this depended on her choice and how she wanted to do it.

To be honest, Beata didn’t think it through.

However, Averi’s words actually reminded her.

Although she didn’t really want to be an angel of justice, she really didn’t want to see more victims.

Therefore, Beata decided that she wanted to make a big deal out of this. If it was the brand’s own problem, she would let them make a reasonable explanation, and if there were other reasons, she would give them a chance to make up for it.

Chapter 737 Cute?

Beata made a decision, and told Averi about her thoughts.

After hearing this, Averi said, “Okay, since this is your idea, then I will arrange it.”

Beata looked at Averi. Although she was very happy that Averi would want to help her deal with this, she still said, “Averi, thanks. I can solve it myself.”

Averi helped her test the product, and Beata was very grateful, so she would handle the next.

Hearing this, Averi didn’t say much, but smiled and said, “Okay, if you need help, just let me know.”

Beata nodded and said, “Averi, thank you very much.”

Averi smiled, and looked into Beata’s gaze, but felt something meaningful.

She could feel that Beata’s identity must not be simple.

The clerk couldn’t tell, but Averi could tell that although the clothes on Beata didn’t have any brand logos, they were expensive.

Obviously, this was a custom-made dress.

Now, Beata was so determined to solve this by herself, which further confirmed Averi’s guess.

However, Averi didn’t have any idea of exploring.

Although this young girl looked very innocent, she was not stupid and did not look like she will be bullied.

So, since Beata insisted so much, Averi didn’t say anything more.

After the two finished their business, Beata began to recommend the white peach cake of this store to Averi.

She said with a smile, “Averi, please try it. This cake is just like me. It’s sweet and delicious.”

Averi was so teased by Beata that she finally couldn’t hold back, and raised her hand to stroke Beata’s head.

It felt so good that Averi couldn’t hold back. After stroking it, she wanted to do it again.

Beata had never been stroked on the head by anyone other than her brother.

She blinked and looked at Averi in shock.

It was not because Averi stroked her head, which made Beata feel uncomfortable.

It was just because Beata really felt that when Averi was stroking her head, for some reason, it made her feel like she was stroking a small animal.

She just didn't know whether Averi regarded her as a cat or a dog.

Beata herself preferred cats, but she hadn't raised a cat yet, because her mean brother hated all animals with fur.

Every time Beata thought of this, she was very unhappy.

She really wanted to move out by herself and live by herself.

In this way, she can raise whatever pets she wanted.

Although, in fact, she already had several properties, she had not been allowed to live by herself.

This made Beata very sad, and she only hoped that time would pass faster and she could move out when she reached the age of twenty.

Averi fidgeted and still wanted to stroke her head.

However, if she continued, Beata will probably think of her as a pervert.

Averi knew she should quit while she was ahead.

Beata said, "Averi, do you like cats?"

Averi was a little stunned, looking at Beata suspiciously. She did not understand why she suddenly asked such a question.

However, she nodded and said, "I like them. I have cats."

When Beata heard this, her eyes lit up instantly. She looked at Averi with joy and anticipation and asked, "Averi, what kind of cats do you have?"

"I have raised five. They're ragdoll, British shorthair, silver shaded, domestic short-haired, and hairless."

Averi said.

Beata's eyes lit up even more, because they were all she wanted to raise. She was so envious that she wanted to cry.

Averi watched her expression change, and said with a puff, "Do you like cats?"

"Yes," Beata nodded vigorously and then said pitifully, "But, my brother doesn't like cats, so I can only raise cats online first."

"If you want to pet cats, you can come to my house." Averi said.

Beata immediately cupped her cheeks, with a look of shyness and admiration. "Averi, you're so kind."

Averi thought that she was so cute that she finally couldn't hold back, and raised her hand to stroke Beata's head again.

Beata can now be sure that Averi just thought of her as a cat.

However, if she was a cat, she would be a cute little kitten.

It was getting late, and when the two came out of the dessert shop, Averi asked, "Where do you live? I'll take you back."

"No, thanks, Averi. Someone will pick me up from my home." Beata said.

She didn't deliberately hide anything, but just said it out.

Averi nodded when she heard the words, but there was no surprise.

Originally, she thought she was not from an ordinary family, but when Averi saw the license plate number of the car that came to pick up Beata, she was still shocked.

It started with 9 and end with K.

The owner of the license plate number of this combination was the Knight family.

This young girl belonged to the Knight family of Innisrial.

Now Averi can understand why she was so sure that she can solve this problem.

Before Beata got into the car, she turned her head and waved at Averi, saying, "Averi, I'm going home now. After I finish this, I'll go to your house to pet the cats."

Averi nodded and said with a smile, "Waiting for you."

After parting from Beata, Averi went to the parking lot and got into her car.

Until returning home, Averi still felt that the world was really too small.

In such a large Innisrial, casually, she met the person from the Knight family.

Averi thought about this, and decided to talk to Aimee.

After all, the position of the Knight family was obvious, and it was difficult to judge whether the family was an enemy or a friend.

Aimee didn't have much reaction to this, but just asked Averi what she thought of Beata.

Averi said truthfully, "A very cute little girl. She is pure and innocent, with all her emotions showed on her face, without any scheming feeling."

Aimee said, "Then go with your heart. Don't worry so much."

As for making friends, if she really took her family background into consideration, it would be too restrained.

Averi said, "I don't think too much about it. Matilda and River have crossed paths before, so it's inevitable that I'm still a little worried."

"Don't worry. It's been a long time. You and Beata are friends, so it's a matter between the two of you. River and Matilda's matter is between the two of them. He won't transfer it to you," said Aimee.

Averi thought about it, and it seemed that this was indeed the case.

However, these words came out of Aimee's mouth, but Averi was a little shocked.

Averi said, "Aimee, I found that you have really changed a lot."

Aimee laughed, but she didn't delve into how much she had changed.

She was just quite satisfied with these changes in herself.

After chatting casually for a few more words, the two hung up the phone.

Averi went to take a shower and do skin care, and then nestled in the sofa to pet the cats.

Thinking of Beata's bright eyes when she mentioned cats, Averi took some pictures of her cats and sent them over.

Beata just finished washing up and was about to talk to River when her phone rang.

Holding the file bag in her arms, she turned on her phone and walked towards River's room.

River went out to socialize tonight and just came back now, making her wait all the time.

As soon as she walked to the door of River's room, Beata just turned on her phone and saw cats' "attack" from Averi.

She screamed in an instant. Her eyes were about to be melt by cats' cuteness, shining brightly. She wished she could fly over immediately and hug all these cute kittens into her arms.

River heard Beata's voice, opened the door, and looked at Beata bouncing around the door speechlessly.

"It's late at night. What are you doing?" River's tone towards Beata was very gentle even though his brain hurt from the noise.

Beata immediately smiled and handed over the phone.

"River, River, look, look, look, Averi's cats are so cute. I really want to stroke them." Beata's heart was pounding and she couldn't wait to rush to Averi's house.

River was speechless, but his eyes still fell on Beata's phone screen.

The screen was full of cats, fat and stupid, and he really didn't understand how cute they were.

Chapter 738 I am innocent

As soon as Beata looked up, she saw River's disgusted gaze.

She immediately frowned, and looked at River with dissatisfaction, "River, what is your expression? Are you dissatisfied with the cute fur kids?"

River became even more speechless, and he really didn't understand where the girl came to this conclusion.

He said, "Fur kids? Isn't this hairless?"

He disliked the hairy one, but he disliked the hairless one even more.

Beata heard the disgust in her brother's tone, and instantly became unhappy.

She stared at River and said, "River, you are going too far. Do you know that this kind of hairless cat is very miserable? It is already very pitiful without hair, but you still despise it? It's too excessive."

River didn't know what to say.

Beata's face was like a puffer fish's when she was pissed off.

Sure enough, she was thinking too much. She thought the cats' photos sent by Averi were so cute, and maybe they can make her brother who was cold change his attitude towards pets. In this way, before she can move out and start her own business, she would have a kitten in advance.

But, sure enough, she couldn't expect her brother to make any progress.

River didn't want to talk to Beata about whether cats were cute or not.

Otherwise, when he can't continue the discussion with her, he was afraid she would just cry in front of him.

This was not something that had never happened before, so River was not willing to see Beata being so unhappy.

However, it was impossible for him to give in and agree with Beata to keep a cat.

So, River changed the subject and said, "What else do you want me to do?"

Beata finally remembered the important reason why she went to find River.

She put away her mobile phone, handed the document to River, and said, "Averi did a test for me, and it proved that it was the product's problem that caused my face to have allergy symptoms. Now, I will announce it and want to make it a blockbuster. River, you have to help me."

River had already opened the file bag, took out the laboratory report from it, and read through it.

After he heard Beata's words, a cold light flashed in River's eyes.

He looked up at Beata and said, "Averi gave you the idea?"

"No." Beata sensed the chill in River's tone, and immediately shook her head and said, "River, don't get me wrong. I decided to do this on my own. Averi just said let me figure it out myself how to deal with it."

"Since you decided to do it, what did she say?" River asked.

Beata replied honestly, "Averi said, if I need anything, I can talk to her."

River didn't make a sound, but his expression was not good.

Beata knew her brother very well.

He didn't speak now, which meant that he was not in a good mood.

Moreover, this also meant that River misunderstood Averi deeply.

Beata immediately leaned in front of River and said, "River, don't misunderstand Averi. She doesn't even know my identity, so she can't have plots against me."

Growing up, Beata was not a fool, so she naturally knew that there were many people who were close to her because of her identity.

They dared not offend her, and will have various ways to curry favor with her.

Beata was able to tell what people thought about her.

However, after getting along with Averi, Beata didn't feel that, but was very comfortable. She may feel that Averi did like her very much, but it was purely because of her, not her identity. Of course, in Beata's view, this may be because Averi didn't know her identity. However, Beata did not intend to hide her identity from Averi. So, when she was about to go home today, Beata directly let the car that came to pick her up pull over in front of Averi without any precautions. However, these words of hers did not convince River. Since River was able to check Averi's information clearly, he naturally understood Averi's abilities. He didn't believe that Averi didn't check Beata clearly. As for what Beata said that Averi had no plans for her and didn't know her identity, River needed to observe it before making a judgment. He didn't agree with Beata's words. However, it was not necessary to tell Beata what he thought clearly. As long as she can make herself happy and carefree, as for the things that would make her unhappy, River would definitely help her keep them out. If Averi would really hurt Beata, he would definitely make her pay the due price. Seeing that River didn't speak, Beata felt a little sad. She looked at River, and her brows frowned, somewhat displeased. "River, can you promise me, no matter what happens this time, don't do anything to hurt Averi?" In the past, anyone who appeared by her side and plotted against her would be dealt with by River himself. Beata had experienced all kinds of sad things, and felt quite disappointed. However, after experiencing a lot, she calmed down. She didn't have such a big reaction to this kind of thing anymore. However, she didn't know why Averi liked her so much. If Averi really came to approach her with evil intentions, she would be very sad. However, she will choose to forgive if that was the case. But, Beata really hoped that her dearest brother would not hurt her favorite friend. River looked at Beata, and was somewhat surprised that she came to talk to him about this so seriously. It was hard for him to understand what kind of method Averi used to his sister, so she talked to him like this. This made River unconsciously want to meet Averi and to find out what was going on with her. Beata didn't wait for her brother to agree to her and immediately became anxious. She looked at River with tears in her eyes, and said, "River, if you hurt Averi, I will really be unhappy, and besides, I will run away from home and never talk to you again." River almost laughed at her childish words. He raised his hand and stroked Beata's head, saying, "What are you talking about? Threatening your brother for an outsider?" River frowned suddenly, always feeling that this was too strange. He said, "Beata, do you like girls?" She stared at River in shock, and couldn't believe that she heard such outrageous words from her brother's mouth. She widened her eyes and opened her mouth, trying to calm herself down. However, she really can't do it.

Beata took a deep breath and said, "River, have you seen anything strange recently?"

Could it be that he read the novel she wrote?

But, that was not possible. She only wrote about two boys in love, but she didn't write about girls in love. How could her brother have such an outrageous idea?

River said, "I think that those who break up with their family members because of outsiders are all fools who think love is all."

Beata was so speechless.

Smiling at River, Beata said seriously, "River, what you think is rather excessive. You are not only discriminating against special love, but also unfair to people who think love is all. Why are they fool when they put love first? What's wrong with it?"

River laughed lowly and said, "Kid, tell me, why do you like that Averi so much?"

Beata couldn't answer this question.

She tilted her head and said, "Anyway, I'm innocent."

Chapter 739 How could I have such a strange dream

River was amused by Beata's words, chuckled lowly, and said, "Okay, I know you are innocent, but you should pay attention to it yourself. If you find anything wrong, stop in time. Understand?"

Beata nodded obediently and said, "I know, Rive. I'm not an idiot."

"It's fine if you aren't. Go back to sleep and I keep this first." River said.

He took the report and didn't give it back to Beata.

Beata asked, "River, what are you going to do?"

"My sister suffered the grievance, so it is natural to seek justice." River said.

Beata wrinkled her face and said, "But I told Averi I will settle this myself."

When River heard this, he looked at Beata, feeling it a little funny, and said, "Why? If you don't solve it yourself, Averi will be unhappy?"

Beata thought about it that Averi probably wouldn't think that way, but she had already talked wildly, so naturally she wanted to be proud in front of Averi.

She didn't want Averi to feel that she was a kid who can only talk big.

Knowing what Beata was thinking, River said helplessly, "Little girl, you are still underage, and you still have to rely on your family. Do you think there is something wrong?"

"But, won't it make me look useless?" Beata flattened her mouth, with a very tangled expression on her face.

River said, "Do what you can do at your age. And you should always give me a chance, so that I don't see you growing up so quickly."

Beata burst into tears when River said this.

Her eyes blinked, and tears began to swirl in them.

River was helpless, raised his hand and stroked Beata's head, saying, "Don't do this. It makes me feel like I'm embarrassing you."

Beata flattened her mouth and said pitifully, "You are."

River laughed helplessly and could do nothing about it.

"Okay, you, go to sleep." River said.

Beata nodded, turned and went back to her room.

River went back to the room, took out the report again, and read it carefully.

He was still full of doubts about Averi. Why did she appear by Beata's side by such a coincidence, and give her such an inspection report?

Even though Beata told him not to target Averi, he still decided to observe this woman for a while before talking to her.

Averi didn't know that she was being targeted. She chatted with Beata about cats in the middle of the night, and finally couldn't stand it any longer, and fell asleep directly.

This time Averi didn't sleep very well.

She had a very bad dream, being chased by a beast all night.

When she woke up, Averi felt as if her legs were broken.

Sitting up from the bed, Averi found herself with a stiff neck.

Her neck twisted, and Averi gasped in pain.

What the hell?! How could she have such a strange dream?

Averi got off the bed, touched her neck with one hand, and went to the bathroom to wash up.

However, she was very speechless and found that she even struggled to brush her teeth.

After washing with a stiff neck, Averi didn't want to make breakfast for herself, so she changed her clothes and left the house.

Chapter 740 Stare at the silver shaded cat

Beata was so focused on chatting about cats with Averi last night that she completely forgot about her business.

After waking up, Beata rubbed her eyes, and decided that this should be resolved by herself.

Although River told her not to stop relying on him so quickly, Beata still wanted to let herself try independently.

So, Beata didn't even go downstairs to have breakfast, but just sat in front of the computer and started writing a small article.

Her twitter account was quite influential. After all, she was a well-known author now. With her fans, what she posted would have a certain popularity.

Beata tapped on the keyboard, ready to fight that brand to the end.

She didn't exaggerate, but just explained the matter with the most objective attitude and the most rigorous words.

Of course, all of this still needed to be supported by evidence.

It was only then that Beata remembered that her brother had taken the test report.

She stood up from her chair, ready to go to River to get the report back.

River had already gone out in the morning, so he wasn't at home at all.

Beata went into River's study and looked for it, but she couldn't find where the report was at all.

"It's weird. Why is the report gone?" Beata mumbled, went back to her room, got her cell phone, and called River.

However, she didn't know what River was busy with and he didn't answer.

This left Beata with no choice but to temporarily put the article on hold.

When she went to the dining room, the servant saw her coming and brought up the prepared breakfast.

While eating breakfast, Beata checked Twitter for a while, and went to YouTube for a while, then opened Averi's chat history, and looked at the cats' photos that Averi sent her yesterday.

They were so cute.

Beata felt like her heart was going to melt by the cats.

She really wanted to pet the cats, and wanted to do it right away.

It was just that Beata was a little embarrassed to directly text Averi. After all, she was on vacation, but Averi might be busy. She couldn't bother her just because she was alone.

Biting the fork, Beata struggled between sending a message to Averi and not, trying to come up with a result.

Just when Beata was hesitating, she found that Averi was texting her ...

Beata's eyes lit up instantly, and she was extremely excited.

She didn't eat enough, put down the fork, and rushed upstairs with her mobile phone.

The servant looked at Beata's back strangely, and didn't understand what was wrong with their lady at all.

Just when Beata rushed into the room, Averi's message had already been sent.

"I'm free this afternoon. Do you want to come over and pet the cats?" Averi asked.

Beata jumped straight onto her bed, screaming and jumping around for several rounds.

When she finally calmed down, she sat down on the bed, holding her phone, and texted Averi back, "Yes!!! I really want to."

It seemed that this kind of expression was not enough to show how much she really wanted to do so.

Beata sent several emoticons, each of which was very funny and cute, expressing her strong desire.

Averi quickly sent her home address, told Beata when she would be home, and let her go there by herself.

Beata immediately calculated the time. Not wanting to delay even a second, she rushed into the cloakroom to change clothes.

As a result of her excitement, Beata arrived at Averi's home earlier than Averi.

When Averi came back and saw her sitting at the door of her building, she was dumbfounded.

Averi said helplessly, "You really like cats."

Beata said with a smile, "However, I like you more."

"So sweet." Averi raised her hand and stroked Beata's head, and once again felt that she was so cute.

Beata was used to be stroked by Averi in her head like a cat.

She picked up a bag next to her and said, "I bought these for the little ones. There are snacks and toys, but I don't know if they will like it."

Averi was shocked by the big bag in Beata's hand.

That was too exaggerated.

"Go upstairs first. It's too hot for you to come so early," Averi said.

Beata was indeed already sweating from the heat, but she didn't care about it since she would pet the cats soon.

She just wanted to see the cute little cats as soon as possible.

Averi knew what she was thinking and opened the door without delay, letting Beata in first.

Beata actually started to get a little nervous.

She looked at Averi and asked nervously, "Averi, will they like me?"

Averi looked down at Beata and asked, "Why do you say that?"

Beata said, "Animals don't seem to like me very much. When I went to a friend's house to pet a cat before, I was scratched by that cat."

Averi said, "It has something to do with the cat's personality. If the cat itself is not very clingy, it will indeed not like people touching them."

Beata looked sad and said pitifully, "But, my friend's cat is very clingy."

Averi didn't know what to say.

However, her cats had not had this kind of situation so far, so they should not hurt Beata.

Averi also became very nervous by Beata.

She suddenly remembered the dream from last night. Could it be that it was reminding her of something?

Beata didn't know what Averi was thinking. Although she was a little apprehensive and worried, she couldn't restrain her excitement at all.

Who cared? At most it was just a matter of getting a vaccine. Can it make her stop petting the cats? Impossible!

When they arrived, Averi opened the door, and a silver shaded cat on the shoe rack meowed.

Every day when Averi came back, the silver shaded cat was the most enthusiastic one.

She reached over and took it into her arms, sideways to let Beata in.

Beata was instantly attracted by the cat, and she threw the bag she was holding to the ground, staring at the cat with excitement.