

Healing 741

Chapter 741 May be difficult to handle

"It's so beautiful! So beautiful! How can you be so beautiful!" Beata couldn't hide her excitement, and jumped up excitedly.

Cats were so cute. How could they be so cute?

Averi didn't immediately give the cat in her arms to Beata to hold, but let it get used to Beata's smell first.

This cat was very courageous, not afraid of strangers at all, and even meowed at Beata very friendly, which almost melted Beata's heart.

Beata cautiously raised her hand and touched its body.

The satin-like silky touch made Beata want to scream like a groundhog.

However, Beata didn't cry out.

She just stroked the back of the cat gently, carefully, as if she was stroking a treasure.

This silver shaded cat saved her face and seemed to feel very refreshing to be stroked by Beata. Then its little head even rubbed against Beata's palm.

Beata became more excited in an instant, and Averi handed the cat to her to hold.

Averi walked to the refrigerator and took out a drink from it. "Don't be so careful. It's not so delicate."

Seeing Beata hugging the cat, Averi was a little dumbfounded.

It was like holding a baby.

Beata raised her face to look at Averi, and said, "I'm afraid of hurting it."

"It's okay. It's not so delicate. It's very sturdy." Averi said.

Passing the drink to Beata, Averi said, "I'll go see what the other ones are doing."

Every time she came back, only this silvery one was the most enthusiastic, and the others would not come to greet her.

Averi was very frustrated about this, but who made her a cat lover? Even if they were not friendly and kind to her at all, she will still treat them as the dearest babies.

Beata hurriedly got up with the silver shaded cat, followed behind Averi, and said, "Can I go together?"

"Of course." Averi nodded and led Beata into a room.

She specially made a room for these cats, so that they can play freely in it.

However, they were often sleeping and not really playing.

Averi opened the door and went in. Sure enough, she saw them basking in the sunshine, asleep, looking too cute.

Beata didn't even dare breathe too heavily, for fear of waking up these little cats.

The silver shaded cat jumped out of Beata's arms, walked around the Ragdoll, then raised its little paw, and woke the Ragdoll up without any hesitation.

Beata was struck dumb.

She thought it was gentle, but how could it be so cruel to its kind?

Averi said, "They have been at loggerheads, and I don't know why. Probably because they don't think each other is as pretty as they are."

Beata was in great shock.

At this moment, she really didn't dare go forward and hugged the silver shaded cat.

Suddenly thinking of the things she bought, Beata ran out, brought a bag of snack, and asked Averi,

"Averi, can I feed them?"

“Of course,” Averi laughed, “but this one has a picky mouth, so it doesn’t necessarily eat.”

Averi pointed to the hairless cat.

Beata nodded, but actually didn’t dare feed it.

Her first target was the domestic short-haired cat, because she thought that it was not that picky.

Sure enough, when Beata opened the snack bag, it jumped over and stared at Beata with great interest.

Beata took the opportunity to touch its head. The cat was so greedy.

And she was feeling good.

She really wanted to have a cat again.

But her brother didn’t allow her to raise a cat at all.

However, fortunately, she can come to Averi’s place to play with cats now, but she didn’t know if Averi will agree when she wanted to come here every day.

It was noon, and Averi asked Beata what she wanted to eat.

Beata was busy petting the cats, completely oblivious to the time.

She didn’t have any special requirements for food, except that she was allergic to chili.

Beata said, “I can eat anything but chili.”

Averi thought for a while and said, “Then shall we eat sukiyaki?”

“Okay.” Beata nodded obediently, finally put down the kittens temporarily, and came to Averi.

“By the way, Averi, I wrote a short article in the morning.” Beata said.

Averi had already ordered takeaway. Upon hearing this, she looked at Beata and asked, “About what?”

“Just to condemn that brand. I won’t let them bully me like this. I want to expose it.” Beata said.

Averi was not surprised by this, so she just nodded and said, “If you need help, just let me know.”

“You can retweet it when the time comes, okay?” Beata took out her phone and looked at Averi eagerly.

Naturally, Averi would not refuse, but seeing Beata, she understood what she meant.

She opened her tweet, saying, “Come on, let’s follow each other.”

Beata liked Averi who was smart, and immediately told her name to Averi.

“A big bagel who wants a cat.”

This name was changed when she had breakfast this morning.

It used to be” a big bagel”.

However, since seeing these cats in Averi’s place, she had become more anxious to adopt a cat.

Averi was amused by Beata’s twitter name, and after following her, she said, “It seems that you can’t raise a cat for the time being. If you want to pet cats, you can come to my place as you please.”

Beata immediately said with a smile, “Averi, is it okay for me to live with you?”

Averi didn’t care, but, thinking of Beata’s identity, she could only think about it.

Averi said, “As long as your family agrees, you are welcome at any time.”

Beata became even happier. Hugging her mobile phone, she began to think about how she could get her brother to agree so that she could pack her things and live here.

However, as far as her brother was a bad guy, it may be difficult to deal with.

Chapter 742 Helpless and Pampered

The takeaway arrived soon. Averi put it on the table, and called Beata to come over.

At this moment, Beata’s cell phone rang.

She took it out and saw that it was her brother who calling her.

Beata didn’t think too much, but just answered the call.

River’s voice came coldly from the other end of the phone. “Where are you?”

Beata replied obediently, "At Averí's home."

River didn't seem happy about her coming to Averí's place. Being silent for a while, he said, "Go home early."

Beata could hear River's displeasure, and pursed her mouth, becoming displeased.

Why was he so fierce?

Averi was making juice, and as soon as she returned to the dining room, she saw that Beata was depressed.

She asked suspiciously, "What's wrong? Who made you unhappy?"

Beata looked at Averí pitifully and said, "Averi, I'm going back after lunch."

"Okay, you can come here whenever you want," Averí said.

A smile appeared on Beata's face again.

She was sweet, "Averi, why are you so nice? I like you so much."

Averi was amused by her, put a slice of beef into Beata's bowl, and said, "Okay, let's eat first. The food is very good. See if you like it."

"I like it." Beata said.

Averi laughed that she was trying to make her happy, because she said she liked it without even taking a bite.

The two finished their lunch happily, and after Beata accompanied Averí to tidy up, she reluctantly left.

After Beata left, Averí took a book and sat on the swing on the balcony, ready to read for a while.

However, thinking of Beata's unhappy appearance after answering the phone, Averí felt a little helpless.

Naturally, she was able to guess something, but it was dumbfounding that she was already blacklisted by River while she was not doing anything.

In this regard, Averí had nothing to say, but can only accept it.

Aside from the unpleasantness, Averí didn't think about it any more, but focused on reading her book.

Beata came out of Averí's house, and as soon as she walked out of the gate of the neighborhood, she saw her brother's car.

She flattened her mouth in dissatisfaction, opened the car door and sat in, "River, you are really annoying. I haven't had enough fun yet, but you just come here and ask me to go home. It's really annoying."

Beata complained angrily, and didn't even sit on the co-pilot.

River knew that she was losing her temper, but he didn't care, and started the car directly.

Beata was still upset, and after complaining, she stopped paying attention to River.

She took out her mobile phone and started to look at the photo album, all of which were photos she took with those cats.

Every photo softened Beata's heart.

She painstakingly selected eighteen photos and posted them on Twitter.

A big bagel who wants a cat: A big bagel who is extremely happy[girn] [girn] [girn] @fivecatsAveri

Soon some fans of Beata posted comments, congratulating for her who finally had cats to stroke.

Then, everyone followed Beata's mention to enter fivecatsAveri's Twitter, and came back in unison, screaming like groundhogs.

"Oh, oh, big bagel's friend is so beautiful, so you must be beautiful too."

"Big bagel, can you pose your selfie?"

"Beg big bagel to teach me how to have such a beautiful friend who has five cats."

Beata scrolled through her twitter comments. For some reason, she was very happy to see everyone praising Averı than stroking cats today.

From the rearview mirror, River saw Beata laughing while holding the phone, and knew without asking that it must be related to Averı.

He couldn't figure it out how could Beata like Averı so much?

What kind of charm did Averı have, which can make his sister like her so much?

When they arrived, Beata ignored River, opened the door and jumped out of the car.

River watched her rush in, feeling helpless and spoiled.

Chapter 743 Tap on Averı's Twitter

Averı spent the whole afternoon reading on the balcony, and didn't notice any ringing of her mobile phone.

It wasn't until the evening that she was a little hungry, so she got up and went back to the room to get her mobile phone.

Only then did Averı see that many people followed her on Twitter.

Suspiciously tapping a comment, Averı quickly figured out what was going on.

It turned out that Beata mentioned her on her tweet. These followers should all be Beata fans. They saw the cats, so they came to her Twitter.

Averı didn't care, just looked at it casually, and was about to quit Twitter.

However, at this time, Averı discovered that among her new followers, there was a very special name.

There was a string of letters and numbers that looked like garbled characters, but it was not the name given by the system when newcomers registered.

Averı had an intuition that this person, maybe...

At the moment at Knight's Mansion.

Beata rushed into River's room, glared at River angrily, had her hands on her hips, and said, "River, why do you follow Averı's Twitter?"

Hearing this, River looked up at Beata and said, "What's wrong? I can't do it?"

"You can't! What do you want? Why do you follow Averı?" Beata climbed directly onto the sofa, looked down at River, and strongly expressed her dissatisfaction.

River laughed and wasn't afraid of her falling. Anyway, there was a thick carpet on the floor, so there was no need to worry about Beata being in any danger at all.

Beata was about to die of anger. She locked her phone in the afternoon and went to write an update.

Why didn't she pay attention to her brother who had this kind of behavior?

He can do it before when she didn't know what hostility her brother had towards Averı.

But now, knowing this, Beata can't let River follow Averı like this.

She had to protect Averı.

River chuckled and said, "I won't do anything. Why are you so nervous? But it makes me feel that you are guilty. Beata, tell me, why can't I follow her?"

Beata thought about it, and there were really some things she couldn't explain clearly.

After all, Twitter was a public place, and it was normal for anyone to follow anyone and do something, and there was really no need for her to make such a fuss.

However, even if it felt weird, Beata couldn't tell. In short, she just felt it very wrong.

This kind of feeling naturally came from her brother.

Beata took a deep breath, but still didn't say anything reasonable.

She just looked at River like this for a long time before saying, "Anyway, if you dare do something that hurts Averí, I will definitely deal with you."

River was almost left speechless by his sister.

He really didn't understand why his sister liked Averí so much.

River said, "I won't take the initiative to do anything, but the premise of my promise to you depends entirely on that she will not do anything to hurt you. If she does such a thing, then, do you think I will let her go?"

There was an indescribable feeling in Beata's heart.

She knew that her brother loved her very much, and most of the time, he would really do some excessive things because he wanted to protect her.

Beata was very clear about it and understood.

So, from childhood to adulthood, even though Beata would be really hurt sometimes, she still wouldn't say much.

However, this time, Beata herself couldn't explain why she did this.

Beata grumbled and then said, "River, Averí won't hurt me."

She was very sure about it.

River didn't say anything more. This kind of incident completely confirmed the saying: Time sees people's hearts.

It didn't make any sense to say more now.

In short, time will give the answer.

Seeing Beata's temper finally subsided, River smiled and said, "So, do you want me to unfollow her?"

His twitter was originally created for Beata, and the only person he followed was Beata.

Now, after following Averí, he himself suddenly felt it a little strange.

Beata sniffed and thought about it. Anyway, there were so many people who followed Averí today, and there were many people she was familiar with, all of whom were her die-hard fans. It didn't matter if her brother followed her too.

So, Beata said, "No need. It's a cover-up. It's so strange that you unfollow her after following her."

Things that would not have attracted attention at first. Maybe because of River's superfluous approach, it had instead attracted Averí's attention.

Beata didn't want to upset Averí.

River heard Beata's words, but frowned slightly.

He looked at Beata and asked, "Why? Did you tell her your family background?"

Beata shook her head and said, "No, and it's not hidden."

The license plate number of the Knight family was very distinctive, and all the people who knew their family in Innisrial should know it.

Thinking of this, Beata got a little tangled up.

The reputation of the Knight family in Innisrial was not very good.

If Averí found out that she was from the Knight family, would she want to distance herself from her?

Confusion was written all over Beata's face.

She was really tangled up.

River also thought about this, but he thought more than Beata.

Averí's identity was not simple. If she was really planning to get close to his sister, she should be about to do something about it.

Beata didn't know what River was thinking, so she went back to her room in distress.

After River's room finally quieted down, he suddenly took his phone over, tapped on Averi's Twitter, and began to browse through it.

Chapter 744 Why do you become so strange today?

River felt that he might really be possessed. Otherwise, how could he stay up all night and watch Averi's Twitter all the time?

He used to think that Beata was just talkative, and he didn't know why she could say so much on Twitter.

Every time he saw a group of girls screaming under Beata's twitter comments, he can't understand how can they talk so much.

However, when it came to his younger sister, River was partial after all.

He originally only followed her alone, and set a special attention.

Every time Beata tweeted, he will be the first to like it.

Of course, it was limited to likes.

Fortunately, although his sister was talkative, she didn't tweet very often. Otherwise, he wouldn't be so supportive of Beata.

And tonight, River originally wanted to research what was going on with this woman, Averi, and was going to read through her twitter to find some clues.

Who would have thought that he would be fascinated by Averi's tweets.

Averi didn't set a time limit, and the first tweet after her Twitter account was registered still could be seen.

She didn't post anything that only followers could see, but all the content was public.

Her account was registered nine years ago, and had posted more than 30, 000 tweets so far.

River directly positioned the timeline to the first tweet, and looked up backwards.

He soon discovered that Averi, according to the current saying, was already an influencers with a lot of followers, but in this situation where anyone with a little influence will accept some advertisements and promotions, Averi's Twitter was clean, and she only shared her own life.

Nor did she like any tweets about ads.

This surprised River very much.

However, soon, River understood.

After all, Averi herself was not a simple person, and she did not need to do these things to increase her income.

She had no shortage of anything at all.

However, from Averi's first tweet, it was not difficult for River to find out that Averi had a very unique style since nine years ago.

What she shared was very serious and avant-garde. The photos she took and the words she wrote, even in the present, weren't out of date. On the contrary, in this era, they were still very applicable.

As for her own photos, it can be clearly seen that in the past nine years, she had taken good care of herself. Except for a little more charm in her eyes, nothing else seemed to have changed.

For River, this was very difficult to do so.

Even when big stars' photos of ten years ago were discovered, it was inevitable that people will think they were rustic.

But Averi didn't.

River turned to the latest tweet along the timeline. Even though his eyes were already sore, he didn't feel tired at all.

He even felt he didn't have enough.

At this moment, the sky had brightened up again.

River put down his phone, got up and walked to the balcony.

The morning breeze blew slowly on his body, bringing a little bit of coolness on this supposedly hot summer day.

River lit a cigarette, recalled what he had done at night, and let out a quick laugh.

What was he doing?

How can he do such a strange thing?

River even wondered if he was possessed by something.

Otherwise, how could it be possible for him to do such an outrageous thing?

However, compared to this, what made River even more incomprehensible to himself was that he actually had the idea that Averi was pretty good.

Once this idea popped up, River felt that it was outrageous.

And what River didn't expect at all was the even more outrageous thing he would do happened in the next second.

River finished smoking a cigarette, and knocked on Beata's door for no reason.

Although Beata wasn't an angry sleeper, being woken up early in the morning by such a knock on the door, she was a little emotional.

She rubbed her eyes, opened the door pitifully, and saw her brother standing outside the door, asking aggrievedly, "River, what are you doing?"

"Don't sleep. I'll take you out for breakfast," River said.

Beata became even more puzzled when she heard this.

River actually wanted to take her out for breakfast?

What kind of outrageous thing was this?

Beata really wanted to wonder if she had heard it wrong.

She raised her hand and rubbed her eyes, then looked at River seriously, trying to see something on his face.

Beata said, "River, what's wrong with you? Why are you so weird today?"

Chapter 745 Beata finally notices something's wrong

River actually thought he was weird too.

However, he still said, "Hurry up and wash up. I'll wait for you downstairs."

After finishing speaking, regardless of Beata's willingness, he turned and went back to his room.

Beata poked out her head, staring at River's back seriously.

Weird, he was really weird.

She had never encountered such a strange thing in her life.

Soon, though, Beata had no other ideas.

She didn't know how long she hadn't gone out for breakfast. Now that she had such an opportunity, Beata naturally wouldn't miss it.

Beata cheered up immediately, and happily ran into the bathroom to tidy herself up.

Although River really doted on Beata very much and will spare no effort to give Beata whatever she wanted, in one thing, he never condoned Beata.

That was in terms of eating.

Beata was allergic to chili peppers and nearly died from eating it when she was young. In this regard, River had always been concerned about it. So, up to now, River cared about Beata's diet. He rarely let Beata eat out. Even if he took her out to eat, it was only in a few specific restaurants. Yesterday, Beata had lunch at Averí's place, which actually made River nervous. Fortunately, Beata didn't have any symptoms after returning, which made River feel relieved. After Beata got into the car, she didn't ask River where he was taking her. Beata just thought that they must be going to the ones they often went to again. As a result, when River stopped the car, Beata looked out the window and was dumbfounded. She asked uncertainly, "River, are you sure we're here for breakfast?" "What? You don't want to eat here?" River asked. Beata shook her head and said, "I just think it's weird, River. You don't like me coming to this kind of place to eat." And, why did she feel that this place looked a little familiar? She seemed to have seen it somewhere. River and Beata got out of the car and walked into the breakfast shop together. Beata was still remembering where she saw this. Anyway, she didn't see it in reality. However, Beata really couldn't figure out where she had seen it. Anyway, she was very happy that she finally didn't have to have breakfast at home. Although the chef at home was very skilled and Beata will not feel tired of eating the food at home, it was joyful to try something new. Beata followed River and walked in together. Before she sat down, Beata noticed a seat with sharp eyes, where her favorite person was sitting there. Beata's eyes lit up in an instant, and she didn't care about River, but rushed directly to Averí. "Averí, why are you here?" Beata sat down directly opposite Averí, holding her chin and looking at her with bright eyes. Averí was also taken aback for a moment, never expecting to see Beata here. She looked at Beata and asked, "Why are you here?" Beata said, "My brother brought me over for breakfast. How about you?" Averí laughed and said, "My home is nearby. Have you forgotten?" Beata was taken aback because she really didn't notice this. When she was in the car just now, she was busy watching her mobile phone. After getting out of the car, she just thought the neighborhood looked familiar, but didn't recognize it at all it was near Averí's home. Of course, Beata can't be blamed for this. She didn't know the way very much and usually didn't need to remember the way when she went out. In addition, it was the first time for her to go to Averí's place yesterday, so she didn't know anything about the surrounding area. However, after listening to Averí's words at this moment, Beata finally noticed something was wrong. She finally turned her head to look at her brother who was ordering food, and said to Averí, "Averí, wait for me." After finishing speaking, Beata stood up, ran to River's side, stared at River and asked strangely, "River, why did you bring me here for breakfast?"

Chapter 746 Express their love to each other with their eyes

River had already ordered breakfast. Hearing this, he turned his head to look at Beata and asked, "Don't you want to eat here?"

Beata said angrily, "You know what I mean. Don't change the subject."

River chuckled and said, "Tell me what do you mean?"

Beata said, "River, do you have something to hide from me?"

If River didn't do this on purpose, wasn't it too much of a coincidence?

How could it be such a coincidence that he took her out for breakfast, which was near Averi's house?

Moreover, it was such a coincidence to meet Averi.

Beata always felt that something was wrong.

River raised his hand and flicked Beata's head, saying, "What are you thinking about? Find a seat and sit down."

Seeing that River refused to say anything, Beata was not in a hurry to find out now.

She gave River a look. After they went back home, she would slowly question River.

Now, the most important thing, of course, was to have breakfast with Averi.

Beata didn't care about River anymore, but went directly to Averi's table to sit down again.

However, this time, Beata sat beside Averi.

Seeing this, Averi pushed the pan-fried buns in front of her to Beata, and said, "Would you like to have a taste first?"

Beata was not restrained at all, picked up a fork, and picked up a fried bun.

When River came over, her mouth was stuffed, and she gave Averi a thumbs up with a smile, saying, "Averi, it's so good."

There was a drop of sauce from the corner of Beata's mouth, but she didn't notice it at all.

Averi pulled out a tissue and gently wiped it off for Beata. "Eat slowly. What do you want to eat? I'll order you some more."

Beata shook her head and said, "My brother has already ordered. Averi, what else do you want to eat? I'll ask my brother to order some more."

When River came over, he heard these words.

He looked at Beata with amusement. Did his sister treat him as a servant?

River sat down opposite Averi, and by chance, Averi looked towards him.

The eyes of the two met in the air, and inexplicably, it seemed that something was crackling and intertwined.

Averi had heard a lot of rumors about River before.

Of course, the most frequent thing was that River was a ruthless person, and he did things very ruthlessly. If he wanted to kill someone today, he will never wait until 0 o'clock in the evening.

Of course, she had also seen a photo of River, but at that time, there was only his side face, which was blurry, and she could not clearly see what he looked like

At this moment, when River was sitting across from her, Averi was surprised.

She had never expected that River would have such a stunning appearance.

He was very beautiful.

Averi didn't look away.

River was staring at her, and she stared at River unceremoniously.

It can be said that every detail of River's feature was based on her type.

Averi never knew that there was actually a person who could follow her preset direction so perfectly.

This discovery made Averi feel strange in her heart.

However, she didn't show it.

When she was looking at River, there was obviously no emotion in the eyes, but inexplicably, she wanted to compete with him.

Averi didn't know what she was fighting for. Why was she just here with this man, which made her feel like she didn't want to lose?

Finally, after eating another pan-fried bun, Beata looked at River, then at Averi, and said shockingly, "You two, are you ogling at each other?"

Both River and Averi were speechless upon hearing this.

The two looked at Beata in unison, and Averi almost laughed out loud.

She raised her hand, stroked Beata's head, and said, "Where did you get such a rustic description?"

Beata blinked and said, "Rustic? I think it's quite accurate."

With the way the two of them looked at each other just now, Beata really felt that they were going to express their love to each other with their eyes.

Chapter 747 Is it more delicious

Beata was taken aback by her thought.

However, soon, Beata felt that it would be great if it was really what she thought.

She may be the most happy person in this world.

However, regarding her brother's bad temper, Beata felt that it was better not to let him be with Averi who was beautiful, gentle and lovely.

But, Beata really felt it very strange. What the hell was her brother doing today?

Not to mention bringing her here for breakfast, he stared at Averi.

Beata always had the feeling that something was wrong with River, and besides, something was up to him.

Beata looked towards River, eyes full of inquiry.

She was so curious what the hell was this guy doing.

However, River acted as if nothing had happened, and was already doing his own thing with his mobile phone at the moment.

It was as if the person who met Averi's eyes just now was not him at all.

Beata pursed her mouth, extremely puzzled by her brother's behavior.

However, even if there was any doubt, Beata was not ready to ask now.

She was quite happy now.

Beata looked at Averi and said, "Averi, do you come here for breakfast every day?"

"Most of the time," Averi said.

Whenever she can get up early, she basically came here for breakfast.

Forget it if she can't get up.

Beata said, "Then the food here must be delicious to make you like it so much."

Averi nodded in agreement.

She said, "It is no exaggeration to say that this is the best of all the pan-fried buns I have ever eaten, and it is unmatched in Innisrial."

Beata looked at Averi in surprise, and said in shock, "Averi, have you been at so many restaurants?"

"Maybe I prefer pan-fried buns," Averi said.

What she didn't tell Beata was that even the house she lived in now was bought because she liked the pan-fried buns here.

However, Averi tweeted about this matter.

So, as soon as Averi finished speaking, River, who was sitting opposite her, raised his eyes from the phone screen and looked at Averi.

When he was scrolling through Averi's twitter last night, he saw her mentioning her reason for buying the house.

At the time, it just felt outrageous.

And, very childish.

However, River didn't know whether he should think that Averi was lucky. At least, the real estate where her home was, among the high-end real estate in Innisrial, was rather good.

Averi noticed River's gaze looking towards her, and looked at him suspiciously.

Inexplicably, Averi felt that River seemed to be laughing at her.

She always had a premonition, as if some secret of hers had been known by him.

However, Averi found it unlikely.

How can that be possible?

How can there be such a coincidence?

However, River's eyes were really too strange.

Just when Averi was hesitating whether she should ask clearly, and if not, this feeling would really make her fairly uncomfortable.

The female boss came over with River's breakfast and put them on the table one by one.

In addition to pan-fried buns, River ordered wontons, fried rice noodles, soy milk and deep-fried dough sticks.

Basically, River ordered all the categories in this shop.

Beata had already got half of Averi's pan-fried buns, and when River's pan-fried buns were served, she pushed them directly in front of Averi and said, "Averi, eat this. They're just made."

Averi took one, put it in her mouth and took a bite.

When she came here today, the one she ordered was the remnant of the last portion, not freshly made, so, in fact, the taste was a little bit bad.

And now that this one had just been made, there was naturally no need to be picky about the taste.

Beata watched Averi eat one with a smile, blinked and asked, "How is it? Is it more delicious?"

Averi laughed, nodded, and said, "Yes."

Chapter 748 Have guess again

Originally, there was nothing wrong with Averi's words.

Pan-fried buns were the most delicious when they were just out of the pan.

However, what Beata said next made Averi feel that what she said just now was very problematic.

Beata said, "My brother still has a little use."

Both River and Averi were at a loss for words.

This was so strange no matter how people heard it.

Averi coughed lightly, scooped a small wonton into her mouth, and chewed intently, completely ignoring Beata's words.

And River glanced at Beata and thought what was going on inside his sister head? No need to ask, it was already too obvious.

However, Averi's reaction made River find it very interesting.

She seemed to be shy?

There was an imperceptible smile in the bottom of his eyes. River pretended to pick up a fried bun with great interest, put it in his mouth and took a bite.

He was very curious about how delicious a fried bun could be.

The crispy and sweet taste in the mouth really surprised River.

He hadn't tasted much fried buns from other restaurants, so naturally he couldn't compare whether the taste was better than those from other places.

However, based on the taste of this alone, it was indeed very good.

Beata looked at her brother's expression and could tell right away that he was also very satisfied with the pan-fried buns in this place.

Beata said with a smile, "River, isn't it delicious?"

She had never eaten such delicious fried buns before.

River took a look at Beata, but didn't understand why she was so proud.

Out of the corner of the eye, he saw Averí's expression that she was also full of joy, and River finally responded, "It's not bad."

Beata chuckled, then ignored River, and turned her head to look at Averí, saying with her eyes sparkling with anticipation, "Averí, are you busy today? Can I go to your house?"

Averí was a little surprised. Beata must know that her brother didn't like her getting close to her, so why would she ask her such a question in front of her brother?

However, it was impossible for Averí to refuse Beata.

She smiled and said, "Yes, you can go if you want. You are welcome anytime."

Beata immediately became happy, and then looked at her brother, saying with a smile, "River, can you go home by yourself after eating? I'll go to Averí's place and have a fun."

River was speechless.

His sister's all the tricks were used on him.

River looked away, landed on Averí's face, and said, "Thank you, Miss Knight."

Averí could hear the emotion in his tone, but she didn't take it to heart. Instead, she smiled at him and said, "It's okay. Beata and I are very close."

Beata became even happier when she heard Averí say that.

She hugged Averí's arm and said, "Averí, I really like you."

Averí raised her brows lightly at Beata, and her appearance was quite seductive.

River just watched the two girls flirting there, and they completely ignored him.

He suddenly had a feeling that he didn't know how to describe his mood.

If he hadn't already discussed that issue with Beata before, he really had to study carefully whether his sister was a lesbian.

However, just because his sister didn't have that possibility, it didn't mean that Averí didn't.

River's eyes fell on Averí's face, and he had a guess again.

Shouldn't...

Chapter 749 A gift for her

Averí could feel what kind of emotion River had in his eyes.

But she didn't pay much attention to it.

Of course, this was because Averí herself didn't think in a strange direction at all. If she knew what River was thinking, she would probably be speechless.

This man's way of thinking was undoubtedly too peculiar.

After breakfast, Beata held Averi's hand, as if telling River that no matter what, it was impossible to give him a chance to take her away from Averi.

River was very speechless about this.

He didn't understand why he had such a strange image in his sister's heart.

After the three of them came out of the breakfast shop, River looked at Beata and asked, "You really don't want to go home?"

"No, no, I'm going to be with Averi today." Beata said.

Suddenly, Beata seemed to remember something, looked at River innocently and cutely, and said, "Rive, can I stay at Averi's home today?"

River was struck dumb.

Did she know what "enough is enough" was?

How can she be insatiable?

Did she really think that he will indulge her to this extent?

But in fact, he really will.

River really had no way to make his sister unhappy, so he could only look at Averi and said, "Miss Knight, is it convenient?"

Averi naturally understood what River meant.

He didn't want to make Beata unhappy while wanted Beata to go home with him, so he wanted to start from her side.

Averi gave a low laugh. Usually, her brother had already shown it so clearly. Then, as an outsider, it was impossible for her to go against her brother.

However, today, without any reason, a rebellious impulse rose in Averi's heart.

She didn't really want to make River's wish come true.

So, Averi smiled and said, "No inconvenience. I only live with my five cats. Beata is home with me and I am very happy."

River could feel Averi's deliberation.

He lightly licked inside his cheek, but he didn't say much after all. He just nodded and said, "Okay, I'll ask someone to bring her things over later."

"Okay." Averi smiled, very friendly.

However, the smile of hers, in River's eyes, seemed extraordinarily glaring.

At this moment, River had an urge to take Beata back directly.

His sister really bothered him too much.

However, Averi was the one who bothered him the most.

Taking a deep look at Averi, River left without saying anything, not even telling Beata anything.

After River got in the car and left, Beata immediately jumped up, screaming and cheering.

She hugged Averi's arm and jumped up and down.

"Averi, I'm so happy I can finally live outside." Beata was so excited.

Averi raised her hand and touched her head, saying, "Let's go back first."

"Okay, okay." Beata nodded hurriedly, extremely happy.

This was the first time she would spend the night outside as she grew up.

Alone, without anyone following her.

Beata was now so excited that she can't wait to run a marathon.

However, Beata could still see clearly the secret confrontation between Averi and River.

After she was over excited, she approached Averi with a smile and said, "Averi, you are so amazing, so that my brother can trust me to you.”

Averi said, “Maybe, I’m more friendly? So, your brother is assured about it?”

Beata was so amused by Averi’s words, and felt that if her brother heard this, he might be embarrassed. However, Beata was still very happy.

But, she still felt that something was very wrong.

Of course, it was completely caused by her brother.

Her brother’s behavior today was really weird.

Averi didn’t understand what was going on, so naturally she didn’t think about it that much.

She took Beata home, and bought ice cream for Beata on the way.

Averi said helplessly, “Is it really okay to eat ice cream early in the morning?”

Her stomach was quite fragile, so Averi would not do things that would hurt her stomach.

Beata said with a smile, “Averi, you don’t know. My brother is too strict with me. I never had the opportunity to let myself go like this. I finally got the opportunity, so let me have fun no matter what.”

She had never eaten ice cream in the morning, so naturally she didn’t know if it was okay to do so.

But now she was free, of course she can do whatever she wanted.

Anyway, even if there was any problem, she would deal with it until she went home.

Since, anyway, when she went home, she will be scolded by her brother, so why not be happier now?

Beata felt that she was so clever.

Averi had no choice but to let Beata do so.

When the two returned home, Beata still asked worriedly, “Averi, do you really not have to go to work? Will I really not bother you?”

Averi smiled and said, “It’s okay. My job is very free, and I’m here to accompany you today.”

Beata immediately felt relieved and even happier.

Today was her lucky day when she can be so happy.

Averi was worried that Beata would be bored at home, and asked her if she wanted to go out with her.

However, Beata actually just wanted to pet the cats and didn’t want to go anywhere. As long as she stayed with these cats, she was happy enough.

Averi didn’t propose any more, but let Beata have fun by herself.

At noon, Beata’s cell phone rang, and it was naturally from River.

Beata reluctantly answered the phone and thought if River wanted to take her home, what would she do.

Fortunately, River just asked for the address of Averi’s home, and he really just came to deliver something to her.

Chapter 750 Can’t I share a room with you?

Beata originally thought that River wanted the servants at home to deliver things, but she didn’t expect that when the door was opened, the person standing at the door was actually River himself.

The door was opened by Beata and Averi together, and with the silver shaded cat held in Beata’s arms. Averi also froze the moment she opened the door.

With a small travel bag in his hand, River just stood at the door.

In this way, inexplicably, Averi had the illusion that River didn’t come to deliver things, but came to live in her home.

Averi didn’t even know how she had such an outrageous idea.

However, the thought was only fleeting.

Because, when River saw the cat in Beata's arms, he took a step back, with an unbearable dislike on his face.

Averi was speechless about that.

It turned out that he hated cats, so can she think that River didn't like Beata's contact with her too much because she had cats?

Averi really didn't want to think that River disliked her.

Beata was happy at first, but when she opened the door and saw her brother, she was frightened. Not to mention seeing how he disliked the cat in her arms, Beata's mood suddenly turned bad.

Why did her brother dislike cats so much?

Beata handed the cat in her arms to Averi, then reached out and said, "Rive, give me the bag."

River looked at Beata's hand, which had cat fur on it.

He disliked it even more, but it was never easy to dislike her cat in front of Averi.

Passing the travel bag in his hand to Beata, River said, "Call me if you have something to do, and go home when you have enough fun."

Beata nodded and said, "Okay, River. Goodbye, River."

River was speechless.

His sister really thought that he won't settle accounts with her, right?

River looked at Averi and said, "Miss Knight, sorry to trouble you."

Averi smiled and said, "Mr. Knight, you're welcome."

Beata looked at her brother, and finally said, "River, go away. There are many cats in Averi's house, so I won't invite you to come in and sit. You have been at the door like this, and Averi and I have to stay here with you. Very embarrassing."

River was really going to laugh angrily at his sister.

Okay, she disliked him so much.

River said, "Okay, I'm leaving."

"Bye bye, River." Beata said.

After speaking, Beata pulled Averi back a step, and closed the door directly.

River outside the door was dumbfounded.

And it was like he had a headache.

This feeling was really too bad.

Averi looked at Beata dumbfounded, and said, "Don't you worry about your brother being sad when you embarrass him like this?"

Beata said, "He is not sad, but I am sad. I think he must be looking for an opportunity to take me back. I will not give him this opportunity."

Averi said, "Probably not, your brother looks like he doesn't seem like someone who doesn't keep his word."

Now that he had agreed to let Beata stay here, Averi didn't think that River will go back on his word.

Beata looked at Averi with her head tilted, her brows furrowed unconsciously, and she looked at Averi with a serious face, saying, "Averi, are you talking for my brother?"

Averi suddenly didn't know what to say.

The answer to this question was assuredly not easy to answer.

Beata said, "Averi, you don't know my brother. When he embarrasses me, he will forget I am his sister at all."

Although River doted on her very much, she was embarrassed by River often.

She didn't understand why River did this to her.

After he made her upset, it seemed like a fun thing to coax her later.

Beata didn't quite understand what River was thinking.

Averi said, "I really don't know much about it, but I can feel that he loves you very much and cares about you very much, so, I think, no matter what he does, he focuses on your happiness."

Beata thought about it seriously, and it seemed that this was really the case.

Suddenly, she felt that what she had done to her brother just now seemed to be a little too much.

Beata thought for a while and said, "I know. When I get home, I will go and make him happy."

Averi stroked Beata's head and said, "You're a good girl."

Beata hugged Averi's arm and said with a smile, "Averi, you just looked like my sister-in-law."

Coughing lightly, Averi said, "Go and see your room. If there is anything you need, we'll go out and buy it later."

Beata frowned and said delicately to Averi, "Averi, can't I sleep in the same room with you?"
