Chapter 983 Will It Scare You?

Upon hearing Yael's words, Beata couldn't help but swallow her saliva.

Sometimes, Beata really felt that Yael was too straightforward. Just like now, he expressed all his thoughts in a straightforward manner.

Twenty years old seemed to be the most reasonable time for Beata to enjoy a romantic relationship without thinking too much. However, for Beata, such a time limit may be too rigid.

She was not such a conservative person and always believed that if two people's feelings had reached that level, why not be more straightforward? Why set limits?

But since Yael said so now, Beata didn't say anything else. Anyway, it was uncertain whether he will really wait until she was twenty years old or not. The future should be left to the future.

In Yael's arms with a comfortable posture, Beata said, "Let's watch a movie. Is this movie good?"

"I haven't watched it," Yael said.

Beata looked at him in confusion and asked, "Then how did you get the DVD?"

"When I passed by before, I saw it and bought it," Yael replied.

Beata didn't ask any further questions because everyone had their own preferences. Maybe collecting DVDs was just one of Yael's hobbies.

Although she was now his girlfriend, of course there were some things that did not need to be dug up from the roots.

The movie began playing; it was an obscure film with some depressing plot lines.

Yael didn't know what kind of content the film had beforehand but after watching for awhile, he asked if they should continue watching or stop.

It was obvious that this movie made Beate uncomfortable on her birthday but she still nodded and said, "I still want to watch it. Don't you think it's pretty good?"

Although very depressing, the plotline was actually quite good.

Yael wasn't even paying attention to the film; he had been focused on observing Beata all along but he didn't disturb her either – if she wanted to watch, then let her focus on watching.

As soon as Beata lifted her head, she met Yael's gaze which had been focused on herself. She paused the movie directly, and turned around facing Yael directly while sitting down opposite him.

She asked, "Why are you looking at me like this? Am I better looking than the movie?"

Yael curved his lips and said, "Yes, even better than the movie."

Beata chuckled to herself, realizing that she really enjoyed Yael's serious demeanor when speaking about these things.

Reaching out to embrace Yael's waist, Beata said, "Then why don't you kiss me?"

In such a good atmosphere, not kissing would be a waste.

Beata had never been to the cinema with her boyfriend yet, but she had written a lot about couples in the cinema who were not really focused on watching the movie. In fact, their attention was entirely on each other.

Yael said, "You're looking too seriously."

He didn't want to ruin Beata's mood.

Beata directly straddled Yael's lap, hooked Yael's neck with a pair of small hands, and said, "But I'm your girlfriend. Don't you just kiss me if you want?"

With a serious expression on her face, Yael also pondered the question for a moment.

Therefore, Yael originally placed his hands on Beata's back to protect her, but instead moved them to the back of her head. Gently massaging the back of Beata's head with fingers, Yael said, "If I say I'm rude, will it scare you?"

Beata giggled happily and then leaned in to Yael, biting his lips playfully.

In an instant, Yael's eyes darkened and there was a hint of depth in his gaze as he looked at Beata.

Yael took the initiative and passionately kissed Beata, turning the tables on her.
