

Strongest Necromancer Of Heaven's Gate

- Chapter 1205.1: The End Of The World [Part 1] |

Chapter 1205.1: The End Of The World [Part 1]

"Open Fire!" Great General Garret ordered.

The Magical Cannons on the floating island of Edea roared to life and unleashed a deadly barrage at the incoming Abyssal Army.

Eiko and her Boom Boom Pirate Crew also unleashed their bombardment, which decimated the vanguard of the Abyssal Army which was composed of Low-Ranking Abyssal monsters.

Glee had a devilish smile on her face as she sat on the special cannon that the Dwarves had made specially for her.

"You're all bad Monsters, but I'm a bad girl," Glee said as one of the Baby Slimes loaded a Nuclear-Level Blast Bomb inside of her cannon. "So, I guess that it's okay for me to blow all of you up, right?"

With a devilish smile on her face, Glee pulled the trigger on the cannon and the Blast Bomb flew at the speed of sound.

She had aimed it at the very back of the Abyssal Formation, where the Demigods were located, making sure that her allies wouldn't be hit by the aftermath of the explosion

The Abyssal Lords already knew that the "harmless looking" Blast Bomb could destroy an entire city, so they made sure that they evaded it like their lives depended on it.

While the Abyssal Lords were able to evade it, the other Monsters couldn't and the explosion that followed afterward annihilated the majority of them.

Daniel clicked his tongue as he glanced at the little girl, who was about to load another Blast Bomb into her cannon.

He understood that although he had a bigger army than the members of the Alliance, the Blast Bombs posed a serious threat to his Army.

Because of this, he ordered the Abyssal Lords to all advance and target the little girl, who was laughing like a maniac as she fired another Blast Bomb at the rear of the Abyssal Army.

This time, Daniel raised a barrier to defend against the Blast Bomb, but to his surprise, the Blast Bomb changed its direction before hitting the barrier.

"Not all Blast Bombs are the same!" Glee shouted. "This is my special Abyssal Lord seeking Blast Bomb!"

Just as she declared, the Blast Bomb targeted the nearest Abyssal Lord, making the latter cry out in shock.

A second later, a powerful explosion erupted leaving its target with a grievous injury.

The barrier that was protecting the Abyssal Monsters disappeared, prompting them to meet their enemies head-on.

The clash resulted in countless casualties on both sides as they poured out their hatred for each other.

Lux knew that Daniel would not bat an eye, and let the two sides clash because he was confident that he would be able to win in the end because his army both had quality and quantity. Also, with the silhouette of the Outer God hovering above them, the morale of the Abyssal Army was at an all time high.

Even so, Daniel realized that, even though his army was bigger and more powerful than the Alliance, he had forgotten what kind of enemies he was dealing with.

"Rise!" Asmodeus ordered, and all the people and Monsters who died in battle rejoined the fight as Undead Monsters.

Diablo led the charge as he sat on his Hell Stallion, leaving trails of flames in his wake.

During the time that Lux was sealed in the block of crystal, the Death Sovereign had gone to countless ancient battlefields, and raised their strongest knights in battle.

All of these knights were now fighting alongside him on the front lines, giving the members of the Alliance some breathing space.

Orion, who had also created his own Golem Legion, was like a Juggernaut that bulldozed through the Abyssal Army like a Madlad.

Fighting alongside him was Sion, who was known as the Juggernaut of Agartha. With two Juggernauts, and over a hundred thousand Golems serving as the Vanguard of the Alliance, their morale rose drastically.

Ishtar, who had gathered countless Undead Archers, was raining arrows at the back of the enemy's rank, making them have a hard time.

"Give them hell!" Bedivered roared and all of the Dragon Knights that he had trained descended on the battlefield and unleashed a column of Dragon Breath at their foes, making them cry out in pain.

All of Lux's Named Creatures and members of his Covenant, with the exception of Avernus, and the Undead Dragons that served as the Alliance's swords and shield engaged the brunt of the Abyssal Army's front line fighters.

While this was happening, Lux, Hereswith, King Azza, and Keoza made their move.

Four of the most powerful warriors of the Alliance all flew in Daniel's direction at the same time.

They knew that unless they defeated Daniel, this battle would be impossible to win.

Since that was the case, they would target their most troublesome enemy, hitting him with everything they had, and pray to the Gods that the gamble they were taking would lead them to victory.

Chapter 1206.2: The End Of The World [Part 2]

Cethus had wondered what the end of the world looked like in the past.

He thought that the end of the world would start with an earthquake that would shake the entire world, destroying all the Kingdoms and Empires that were on land.

Since Karshvar Draconis was a floating kingdom, he thought that he would be able to see the Lowlanders suffer as the land split apart, engulfing everything and anything on it.

He also thought that volcanoes would explode, covering the entire world with ash, and blocking off the light of the sun.

He even envisioned fountains of magma erupting from deep within the earth, and coming out from the fissures on the ground, extending up to dozens of meters in the sky.

A hellish scene that was never before seen in the world would appear right before his eyes, and he would marvel at them before the sky turned dark, and countless lightning bolts would descend above his head, destroying all of creation along with it.

That was Cethus' version of the end of the world.

But, now, he knew better.

Giants of all shapes and sizes rampaged across the Void Battlefield, killing everything in their path.

Countless Dragons, Wyverns, Griffons, and other flying creatures, fell from the sky en masse, as their blood rained down on the people below them.

It was complete pandemonium, and he was right smack in the center of it.

"Don't go too deep, Colette!" Matty shouted as he controlled his Gyrocopter near the person he liked, who was riding her own Gyrocopter, accompanied by Helen and the two Baby Slimes that were perched on top of their heads.

"I know!" Colette replied as she pulled the trigger which unleashed several Blast Missiles at the flying Abyssal Monsters in front of her. Matty originally didn't plan on fighting on the front lines, but when Colette decided to fight alongside her older sister, Aina, he gritted his teeth and hopped into one of the Gyrocopters that was readily available on the floating island of Edea.

Since the person he liked was going to fight, he would not allow her to fight alone.

Aina, who was currently in her Battle Angel form, didn't stray too far from her little sister, ready to come to her rescue at a moment's notice.

Cethus and Gerhart were there as well, assisting the Gyrocopter Legion of Heaven's Gate, which were mostly operated by Dwarves and Kobolds, who decided to fight as well.

The Dwarves were composed of the Riders of Norria, who had all joined Heaven's Gate in this battle for survival.

While the heavy-weights of their Army were dealing with the heavy-weights of the opposing Army, the low-ranking combatants tore at each other's throats with an intensity that wouldn't lose to the powerhouses of both sides.

The Dragon Born raised his spear, and used his Gravity Domain, to make all the Baby Slimes, as well as the Elders of Leaf Town, fly out of the War Machines before they exploded after getting hit by the Breath Attack of an Empyrean-Ranked Abyssal Dragon.

Grandma Annie and Randolph were among the Dwarves that Cethus had saved from the explosion.

"Can't you weak Low Landers just stay put?!" Cethus roared in anger as he went to another location to save some Dwarves, whose Gyrocopters were falling from the sky. "You Baby Slimes should just go suck the milk in the nursery and stay out of this battle!"

The Dragon Born was truly enraged because although he acted arrogant all the time, the people that were dying around him were members of his Guild, whom he had also interacted with in the past. However, no matter how hard he tried, Cethus wasn't able to save everyone, making his eyes turn bloodshot.

"All of you just stay in the flying Fortress and behave!" Cethus said as he flew towards the Floating Island to dump the Baby Slimes, Dwarves and Kobolds that he had saved. "Please, just stay and don't come out! We can handle everything ourselves!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

Countless Baby Slimes nodded, making the Dragon Born sigh in relief. Although these little punks were annoying, he had grown fond of them because they would often offer him some berries whenever they found him lazing around in the Guild Headquarters..

"Hurry and go!" Cethus ordered. "This place is dangerous!"

After depositing the Baby Slimes, the Dwarves, and Kobolds on the surface of the Floating Island, the Dragon Born was about to leave when a Calamity-Ranked Abyssal Demon hovered in the skies above them.

"Die!" The Abyssal Demon unleashed countless purple fireballs that were the size of a bus towards Cethus, who was just about to return to the battlefield.

Cethus' first thought was to dodge the attack. But, after remembering that the Baby Slimes, Dwarves, and Kobolds were right behind him, and would be instantly annihilated by the Purple Fireballs if he were to dodge, the Dragon Born knew that he had to make a hard choice.

"Damn you!" Cethus roared in anger as he gathered all the strength he could muster to activate his Gravity Domain a second time. He then wrapped those he wanted to protect in black domes of light before sending them towards the Guild Headquarters in the distance.

A moment later, a loud explosion erupted as the Purple Fireballs descended upon the Floating Island, which could have destroyed a fifth of it.

But, these attacks didn't hit the floating island. Instead, a lone Dragon Born tanked it all, using all the life saving items that Lady Faustina and Lady Augustina had given him.

"Damn... it," Cethus muttered as his body collapsed on the ground.

Half of his body was destroyed from the explosion, and he could already feel his life fading away.

'Lux,,, if we don't win this one... I'll haunt you in the afterlife,' Cethus thought as he thought of the Half-Elf, who was currently fighting against Daniel at the very rear of the Abyssal Formation.

Tears streamed down the side of his face, as the light in his eyes disappeared.

Even so, his eyes remained open, hoping to see a future in the afterlife, where no one, not even the Baby Slimes who were all part of their Guild, needed to fight ever again.

Chapter 1207.3: The End Of The World [Part 3]

Gerhart's roar filled with anger reverberated in the battlefield as he unleashed countless Wind Blades at the Calamity-Ranked Demon who had killed one of his closest friends.

Cethus was fighting side-by-side with him several minutes ago, but the Dragon Born broke rank in order to save their Guildmates from dying.

Gerhart covered for him, and attacked those that were trying to aim at the Dragon Born, who was retreating towards their Guild Base to take their people to safety.

However, there were simply too many enemies who were hell-bent to reach the Floating Island with the intention of destroying it.

The green-haired Half-Elf did everything in his power to stop their advance. But, while dealing with several Dreadnaught-Ranked Gargoyles, a Calamity-Ranked Monster took this opportunity to get past him.

Gerhart was unable to do anything because he knew that if he turned his back on the Gargoyles who were attacking him, it would be his doom.

Fortunately, Aina and Keane appeared to help save the green-haired Half-Elf before it got too dangerous.

"Hurry!" Gerhart shouted as soon as the last of the Gargoyles had been dealt with. "We need to save Cethus!"

Unfortunately, when they arrived at the scene, it was already too late.

Gripped by anger and guilt, Gerhart unleashed his strongest attack with the intention of killing his target.

However, he was dealing with a Calamity-Ranked Monster.

This was a creature that was only a level below the Demigod Rank, and the Half-Elf was only an A-Ranker.

Although he was considered a High-Ranker, only Saints could effectively threaten a Calamity-Ranked Monster in battle, but he didn't care.

Keane, who also saw what happened to Cethus, unsheathed his sword fully from his scabbard for the first time.

Similar to Gerhart, he was seething with anger, but it didn't show on his face.

Aina, who knew what the Dragon Born was truly like, also decided to go all out to kill the Calamity-Ranked Monster.

In their eyes, Cethus was a very annoying comrade, but he was their comrade, who had sacrificed his life to not only save his Guild Members, but to also protect their Headquarters from being destroyed.

Aina's tendril-like wings turned blood red as her eyes glowed crimson. This was one of the Forms of her Battle Angel, which disregarded any kind of defense, in order to unleash her strongest offensive potential.

Simply put, this was her Glass Cannon Form.

Another shallow cut appeared on the Demon's chest because Keane made sure that his attack would reach him no matter what.

Enraged that a mere Ranker was able to wound him twice, the eyes of the Demon turned bloodshot.

But, just as he was about to unleash another barrage of Fireballs in Keane's direction, something red flashed at the corner of his eye.

The Demon subconsciously moved to the side, evading Aina's Heavenly Blade.

However, the Monster wasn't able to dodge it completely as one of its arms was cut off from its body.

A pained cry escaped the Demon's lips as he tried to retrieve the arm that was falling to the ground.

Suddenly, something fast flew over his arm and grabbed it, making the Demon roar in anger.

Gerhart, who caught the Demon's arm, created a mini-cyclone, and shredded it to pieces.

Blood splashed on his face due to the violence of the cyclone, but Gerhart ignored it.

The blood slowly streamed down on his face, making the handsome Half-Elf look like a devil who was out for blood.

"You bunch of small fries!" the Demon shouted. "How dare you mock me?!"

This time, the Demon was now truly enraged. He no longer cared and raised his only remaining hand to conjure a giant Purple Fireball, which was at least ten-meters-tall.

But, before he could throw it, a pink-haired Succubus appeared in front of him, making him stop whatever he was doing.

Aurora's eyes glowed with power, as she used Charm to stop the Abyssal Monster from moving.

As if waiting for that moment, Aina and Gerhart descended from the skies together.

The Battle Angel used her sword to sever the Monster's head off its body, while the green-haired Half-Elf pierced the chest of the Abyssal Monster with his dagger, piercing the Monster's heart.

With a twist of his dagger, Gerhart unleashed a concentrated blast of wind, making the Demon's body explode.

Now that the Monster was dead, he glanced at their Guild Headquarters where the Dwarves, Kobolds, and Baby Slimes gathered.

In order to ensure that Cethus' body wouldn't be completely destroyed from the battle, Gerhart used his powers to send it to the entrance of their Guild Headquarters, where the Dragon Born had sent his Guild members in order to save them from the Demon's attack.

The Baby Slimes, who Cethus had yelled at earlier, were all crying as they gently nudged the Dragon Born's head, as if asking him to wake up from his slumber.

Gerhart burned the image of the fallen Dragon Born in his heart before turning around to fight the other Abyssal Monsters, who, at this moment, were still killing his other Guild Members, whom his close friend, Cethus, had fought so hard to protect.

Chapter 1209.4: The End Of The World [Part 4]

From within the chaotic battlefield, two Dwarves would appear from time to time, unleashing sneak attacks that aimed at the vital points of their targets.

Sometimes they succeeded, sometimes they didn't. But whenever one of them failed, the other would come to the other's rescue without hesitation.

They were none other than Sid and Scarlet who had also become High-Rankers. Currently, they were doing their best to eliminate the Emyrean-Ranked Monsters, who were only a rank below the Calamity Rank.

Both of them knew their limitations, so they didn't target the ones who had a higher Rank than theirs.

Besides, the Alliance had Saints and other Calamity-Ranked Monsters who would deal with these powerhouses themselves.

Both Assassins had taken their Dhamphir and Cambion Forms, unleashing their full might on the battlefield.

Fighting alongside them was none other than the Draconian Kobold, Cadmus, who was now an Emyrean-Ranked Monster.

In the past, he was someone whom Lux couldn't even hope to deal with due to the difference in Ranks.

But now, the Half-Elf had far surpassed him, leaving him in the dust.

Cadmus would be lying if he said that this fact didn't make him feel bitter inside. However, after the Kobold Clan had joined Heaven's Gate, they entered a golden age and were able to do whatever they wanted while they dug out an underground nest in the Floating Island of Edea.

With the three of them working side by side, the Vanguard of the Alliance was able to breathe a little easier because the trio always targeted the most troublesome Monsters on the battlefield.

"Cadmus, dodge!" Sid shouted, and the Draconian Kobold obeyed without a second thought.

As soon as Cadmus crouched down, Sid flew past his body and pierced the chest of the Monster that was planning to sneak attack the Draconian Kobold from behind.

After this exchange, the two returned to fighting their opponents.

The swordsman hesitated for a moment before nodding his head.

Sensing its Master's mood, the Wyvern flew back towards their Guild Headquarters, while Cadmus, Sid, and Scarlet took over the place he was protecting.

Sid, whose eyes were very sharp, noticed a group of people near their Guild Headquarters.

Several dead bodies were laid side by side, with some of them not having complete body parts.

He had seen several acquaintances, including Cethus, whom he had met in the past.

Sid wasn't that close with the Dragon Born, but he knew that he and Gerhart were rivals.

He now understood why the green-haired Half-Elf seemed hellbent on killing as many Abyssal Monsters as he could. It was so that they would accompany Cethus to the afterlife.

The Void Battlefield had its own rules, so those who died in this place would not have their souls sent to the Abyss.

But Sid didn't have the time to dwell on this matter because the intensity of the Monster attacks that were heading in their direction was steadily increasing.

Suddenly, several Empyrean-Ranked Winged Serpents that were over a kilometer long unleashed their Breath Attacks at the Floating Island of Edea.

The Magic Cannons mounted on the Floating Island were the most destructive weapons on the battlefield, second only to Poseidon's Main Cannons.

Because of this, the Abyssal Monsters were targeting it fiercely, but there were several Undead Creatures that were getting in their way.

The Nightgaunt, Shax, and the Dragon Knight, Bedivere, blocked two of these Breath Attacks, leaving the other attacks to their companions.

Cadmus dealt with one of the breath attacks with his own, nullifying them completely.

Lazarus unleashed a barrage of spells stopping the other attacks from landing on their Guild Headquarters, making everyone breathe a sigh of relief.

After what had happened to Cethus, a few of Lux's Named Creatures and Covenant Members, prioritized defending their base to help decrease the number of casualties of the main Guild Members.

Chapter 1209.5: The End Of The World [Part 5]

Below the floating island, a Death Sovereign charged fearlessly at a horde of Abyssal Creatures.

Diablo's long cape fluttered in the wind as he swung his sword sideways.

"Hellfire Annihilation!"

A blazing crescent blade flew toward his enemies, cleanly slicing them all in half.

Countless lives were being lost with each passing minute, so Diablo's attacks were getting stronger and stronger.

The golden eyes that were glowing brightly from his visor showed his determination as he held himself back from assisting Lux in his fight against Daniel.

The Half-Elf had asked him to fight on the frontlines and annihilate those who opposed him.

As a Demigod Monster, he was truly a terror on the battlefield, reaping countless lives with a single swing of his sword.

However, just as he was about to continue his one-sided massacre, something unexpected happened.

The gigantic silhouette of the Outer God slowly opened its eyes.

Half a minute later, it unleashed a beam of light directed at the Floating Island of Edea, catching everyone by surprise.

The Earth Turtle, who had merged with the Floating Island, moved its body sideways in order to avoid the beam of light that was directed at it.

Due to how sudden the attack of the Outer God was, none of the defenders were able to react to it right away.

Sid subconsciously held Scarlet's hand and used his body to protect her, but it was useless.

The attack instantly vaporized the two of them as it continued its trajectory toward the target that Daniel had ordered the Silhouette to attack.

From within the Guild Headquarters, a brilliant light collided with the beam attack from the Outer God, making Cai, who was within the Guild Headquarters, burst into tears.

"I'm sorry, Rose," Keane said softly as he drew his blade for the last time, using his life in exchange for a miracle.

"Grand Void."

Keane unleashed the final stance of his Sword Art, which was said to have the power to split the void in half.

The beam attack was split into two, hitting the left and right parts of the floating island, making the Earth Turtle roar in pain.

In a span of a few seconds, half of the floating island was destroyed, but the town and the Guild Headquarters remained intact.

Keane, who had bravely used his life to block the attack, slowly turned into particles of light.

However, before he completely disappeared, he glanced in Lux's direction before closing his eyes.

"I leave the rest to you."

A moment later, he disappeared, and a cry filled with anger and pain reverberated on the battlefield.

"Danieeeeeeeeeeeeeeeel!" Lux roared in anger, while the Pseudo-God laughed.

He knew that Lux cared about his friends and allies, so he specifically targeted the Floating Island of Edea to anger his opponent, who was charging through his Abyssal Army in order to reach his location.

Back in Espoir Frieden, in the residence built near the roots of the World Tree...

The sound of something breaking spread in the living room as the Second High Priestess of the Rowan Tribe dropped the teacup in her hand.

Rose stared blankly in space, while Laura and Livia, who were seated beside her, panicked because the hot tea had spilled into the High Priestess' clothes but the latter seemed lost in thoughts and didn't pay any attention to it.

"Sister Rose, are you alright?" Laura asked as she hurriedly used her handkerchief to wipe the Priestess' dress.

"What's wrong?" Livia asked, as she imitated her sister and helped clean the clothes that had been drenched by the hot tea.

While the two girls were doing this, their two baby slimes, Nora, and Cora, absorbed the pieces of the shattered teacup, preventing anyone from stepping on them by accident.

"Nothing," Rose replied after regaining her composure. "I'm fine. I just felt tired all of a sudden."

Laura and Livia nodded their heads in understanding.

"Sister, you're not getting enough sleep as of late," Laura said. "You should sleep early tonight."

"Are you worried about Brother Keane?" Livia inquired. "Don't worry. Our Brother is with him. Both of them are strong."

"That's right!" Laura nodded. "Big Brother promised that he would return to us safely, and he never breaks his promise. He will beat the bad guys and come back to us like he always does after a mission."

"Yes!" Livia stated. "Before Brother Keane left, he asked us if we wanted to be the flower girls in your wedding. Of course, we accepted, right Laura?"

"Mmm!" Laura nodded.

The Second High Priestess of the Rowan Tribe reached out to hold the two little Dwarves close to her and held them tight.

"Right," Rose said as her eyes moistened, as she did her best to hold back the tears that were about to fall. "They will return to us."

The young lady's body shuddered uncontrollably, failing to hold back her tears.

Laura and Livia hugged Rose tightly and kept on telling her that everything was going to be alright.

Rose didn't reply, and simply hugged the two girls, who weren't aware of what was happening in the Void Battlefield.

As a seer, the High Priestess suddenly received a vision that shook the very core of her being.

She had seen how Sid had tried to protect Scarlet before the two of them died from the Outer God's attack.

But that wasn't the main reason why her heart was currently breaking right now.

"I'm sorry, Rose."

Keans's voice, which was filled with sadness and regret, played over and over again inside her head.

Even in his last moments, he thought of her, making the tears in her eyes fall endlessly.

She had lost someone who was very dear to her, and her heart felt as if a black hole had appeared, sucking out all the happiness and hope that she had for the future.

As she held the two Dwarves, who had also lost their brother in the war, Rose closed her eyes and prayed.

She prayed to any God that could hear her prayers, hoping that the person that she had lost would once again return to her, and keep his promise to spend his lifetime with her, making her happy for the rest of her life.

Chapter 1210.5: The End Of The World [Part 5]

The Floating Island of Edea slowly retreated as the Earth Turtle did its best to save everyone.

Since it was now part of the floating island, it was in pain after a large chunk of it was destroyed.

Unfortunately, the Abyssal Creatures had no plans of letting them escape, so they all swarmed the Floating Island with the intention of finishing it off for good.

Suddenly, countless Shadow Warriors emerged as Draven made his appearance. It had been fighting alongside his comrades on the ground when the Floating Island was attacked. Now that it was facing the united assault of the Abyssal Legion, the Shadow Sovereign of Lux's army stood at the front to defend it.

With the Abyssal Army's massive numbers, it was inevitable that several monsters would get past Draven's defenses.

"Transcendent Fireball!" Grandma Annie shouted, unleashing a Fireball empowered by the Transcendent Flames that was bestowed upon her.

"Annie, go back inside the Guild Headquarters!" Randolph shouted as he swung his hammer at a Demonic Imp, sending it flying. "We'll handle it from here, so go back!"

Transcendent Flames covered Randolph's hammer as he fought side by side with Annie, who was protecting the entrance of their Guild Headquarters.

"I can't back down here, Randolph," Grandma Annie replied. "We're the last line of defense, so we can't allow anyone else to get past us."

High above their heads, two Wyverns descended. Their claws were ready to shred the two Dwarves who were trying to hold their ground against the invading enemies.

But when they were only several meters away from their targets, six puppets blocked their paths and hacked off their wings, resulting in a bloody scene.

Vera, who was one of the Protectors of the Guild Headquarters, was manipulating hundreds of her battle puppets at the same time.

She was a Saint, and a very powerful one at that, but the sheer numbers of enemies that were attacking them were countless, pushing her back.

Even so, she didn't back down and moved her fingers as if she were a conductor in an orchestra.

An orchestra that was playing the song of the end of the world.

All the members of Heaven's Gate desperately held their ground in order to protect their Headquarters from the enemies.

Bentley and Glee fought side by side, hurling spells and Blast Bombs left and right.

The Four-Winged Dragon of their Merchant's Guild roared above their heads and unleashed a breath attack at the enemies that seemed unending.

"Charge!" General Garret ordered as he and his men charged forward. Over ten thousand soldiers under his command, including the soldiers that Lux had turned into crystal statues in the past, all advanced to engage their enemies.

Within the Void Battlefield, the island of Edea was like a floating beacon, where countless spells exploded left and right, illuminating the darkness.

"Annie!" Randolph shouted as an Emyrean Dread Scorpion pierced the older woman's body with its stinger. "You bastard!"

Randolph roared in anger as tears streamed down the side of his face. Although the Monster was stronger than him, he charged at it with the intention of killing it with his own hands.

The Dread Scorpion flung the body of Grandma Annie in Randolph's direction as if mocking him.

The Blacksmith of Leaf Town couldn't possibly ignore this provocation and released the hammer in his hands, in order to catch the woman that he had loved for many years.

They had been together since they were young, but his indecisiveness led to him being unable to tell her his real feelings.

Randolph landed safely on the ground as he held the old lady in his arms. She was no longer breathing.

The Scorpion's stinger had pierced her heart, killing her instantly.

Tears blurred Randolph's vision as he held his beloved tightly.

He knew that doing something like this in the middle of battle was equivalent to giving up on his life. However, he just stood there as he used his hands to close Grandma Annie's eyes, who could no longer see anything.

A shadow fell over the Dwarves' body, making Randolph raise his head to look at the Dread Scorpion, who had moved closer to him.

"Annie, I will be with you soon," Randolph said as he held the woman in her hands tighter. The Scorpion's stinger then descended upon the blacksmith's body, piercing his head.

Randolph collapsed on the ground, still holding Grandma Annie's body tightly.

The Emyrean Monster then screeched as it advanced to kill more of the people who belonged to the Guild Heaven's Gate.

Daniel had given them all a mental command to focus their attention on the Floating Island and make sure that no one inside it survived.

Cedwyn, who was now the Mayor of Leaf Town, fought with tears streaming down his eyes when he saw his two close friends and fellow Dwarves die around him.

They didn't want to fight any wars and only wished to live in peace.

But someone didn't wish for that to happen and only wanted to destroy their world.

Because of this, they were forced to fight, putting their lives on the line for a future where the living would not have to fight anymore.

He heard Lilian's shout of rage not far from him as she shredded all the monsters around her to pieces.

Behind her, countless small Monster Cores, the size of nails and covered with a gooey substance, littered the ground.

These were the remains of the countless baby slimes who refused to seek shelter and fought alongside their Masters in battle.

The Wicked Queen Slime's rage was the same rage that burned in the hearts of all the Guild Members of Heaven's Gate, who fought tooth and nail against the Abyssal Monsters who had killed their family, friends, lovers, comrades, and acquaintances.

Diablo charged toward the enemies with his cape fluttering behind him, with his sword raised high.

"Hellfire Annihilation."

A single swing of his sword annihilated countless lives. With so many dead people and Monsters on the battlefield, even the Demigods would not survive a single sword slash from him.

"Rage Smash!" ALL-MITE roared as he punched forward, creating a giant blazing fist that flew forward, instantly obliterating anything in its way.

Rage that wouldn't subside.

Rage that would not stop until all their enemies were destroyed. Rage that empowered each of their attacks, carrying the weight of the lives of the people who had fallen in battle.

Although Diablo and Asmodeus could have reanimated the bodies of Grandma Annie and Randolph, they didn't do that.

Just like their Master, these two Dwarves were so precious in their hearts that they couldn't bear to turn their bodies into Zombies in order to fight again.

Blackfire was fighting side by side with Lux, so the Black Coffin was unable to gather the bodies of the people who were dying at their Guild Headquarters.

Because of this, Diablo had summoned several Doom Knight Gangbangers to take their bodies back inside the Guild Headquarters.

"Those who want to die, step forward!" Asmodeus shouted as he summoned his own Deus Gigantia who stood beside the floating Island, swatting countless Abyssal Monsters and turning them to meat paste.

A blizzard suddenly engulfed the entirety of the floating Island, lowering the visibility of their enemies to just a few meters in front of them.

Itaqua had joined the battle, covering the entire island with its Domain.

Unlike its enemies, all the members of Heaven's Gate were unaffected by the cold and visual obstruction and were able to move within the blizzard perfectly.

A ten-meter-tall Death Tyrant appeared within the blizzard and opened its eyes.

It unleashed a barrage of petrification and death rays at the Abyssal Creatures, turning them into stone, while killing the rest instantly.

Not only did Ithaqua and Morpheus become Demigods, but the Death Tyrant had also completed its Beholder's Legacy.

These two creatures fought side by side with Asmodeus and killed their enemies mercilessly.

Now that all of Lux's Named Creatures, and Covenant members congregated in the floating islands, the number of their own people dying decreased exponentially, and the Abyssal Monsters were finally being pushed back.

The stench of death filled the air as the Undead Army took control of the battlefield.

Whether the Monsters were in the sky or the land, there was no escaping the verdict of death that Diablo and the rest of his comrades had set on the heads of their enemies.

Now that Daniel was facing the Half-Elf in battle, he could no longer keep his attention on the Floating Island, which had become a complete slaughterhouse to the Abyssal Monsters who dared to touch the reverse scale of Lux's Undead Legion.

Chapter 1211.6: The End Of The World [Part 6]

Lux's eyes had already turned bloodshot. As the Guildmaster, he was receiving death notifications in real-time.

When he saw that Cethus had died, he felt as if someone had stabbed a knife in his heart. However, he knew that if he hesitated for even a fraction of a second, more of his people were going to die.

Daniel also realized this. He chuckled and said something to the silhouette of the Outer God that was hovering above the battlefield. The Half-Elf instinctively knew that the Pseudo-God was up to no good, but before he could do anything, the Outer God had already opened its eyes and prepared to attack.

At the beginning, Lux thought that the Outer God's target was him, Herewith, Keoza, and King Azza. Blackfire had appeared in front of him, acting as a shield, ready to deflect any attacks that were about to hit its Master.

As a Divine Artifact, it had the power to block an attack that was equivalent to the full-powered attack that almost killed its Master back then.

But it could only do so once.

After that, Blackfire would disappear, and Lux wouldn't be able to call it again for an entire month.

The Black Coffin had already prepared for such a scenario, so it had unleashed all of the Creatures under its command to help the Alliance fight.

Even if it were to be destroyed, the Creatures that it had summoned wouldn't disappear.

Of course, if these Creatures died, they would return to Blackfire, but Lux would need to pay a price in order to revive them again.

So the moment that the Outer God unleashed its attack, and it didn't head in their direction, the Half-Elf immediately had a bad premonition.

The beam attack of the Outer God flew towards the Floating Island of Edea, making Lux's face turn pale.

But at that moment, a golden light appeared and cut off the beam attack in half. However, the attack still hit the sides of the floating island, destroying a large portion of it.

When he saw the notification that Keane had died, Lux roared in anger, making the Pseudo-God chuckle.

"Danieeeeeeeeeeeeeeeel!" Lux's killing intent manifested and Deus Gigantia answered his call.

With a slash of its giant sword, all Abyssal Creatures blocking his path were instantly annihilated, creating a clear path that led to the hateful Pseudo-God who had killed two of the people he held dear in his life.

Although Cethus was annoying and arrogant, he was a very loyal person. The Dragon Born wouldn't hesitate to stand on the front lines of a battlefield in order to protect his friends, even though he didn't like the concept of dying.

Keane, on the other hand, had accompanied Lux on his adventures alongside Cai. The swordsman only spoke a few words, but whenever the Half-Elf needed his help, he would be there to stand by his side.

Before they left Elysium, Rose secretly talked to him in private and asked him to keep an eye out for Keane.

"The two of us agreed to get married after this battle is over," Rose had said back then. "So, please, win and keep Keane safe if you can help it."

Lux's eyes were already bloodshot at this point as he flew straight towards the Outer God, who was looking at him with an amused look on his face.

"So they are your weakness huh?" Daniel smirked. "It's nice to have friends and loved ones, right? How about I kill them right before your eyes?"

Daniel then gave an order to all the Abyssal Monsters to target the retreating Floating Island and kill everything on it.

Lux, who had already arrived at Daniel's location, thrust his sword forward, and Deus Gigantia answered his call.

Daniel calmly summoned the Golden Scales of Eternity, and something as big as Deus Gigantia appeared behind him.

The true body of the Outer God, Nyarlathotep, summoned a black sword in its hand and clashed against Deus Gigantia.

The clash between the two was so great, that almost everyone around them was blown away due to their collision.

"Stand aside, Lux!"

Keoza's shout broke the Half-Elf out of his daze, as he made the Draconic Skeleton King move its body to the side, just in time for two breath attacks to collide with the giant Outer's God's body.

At least that was the plan. However, several black tentacles emerged from the ground and blocked the Crystal and Lightning Breath of the two Dragon Kings, keeping Nyarlathotep safe.

But before Daniel could even laugh, a Skeleton Queen emerged from thin air and punched the Outer God's face, sending it skidding.

Daniel then glanced in the direction of the beautiful Elf and smiled.

"I remember you," Daniel said. "When I was still following the words of that Goddess of Solais in the past, I once proposed to you, but you rejected me. But since that happened long ago, how about you we start fresh and you become my woman? I promise that I'll make you my first wife. How about it?"

"Do you know why I rejected you in the past?" Hereswith asked with a mischievous smile on her beautiful face.

"No," Daniel replied. "I've always wondered why you rejected me. I am quite confident with my looks and the people also called me their Hero at that time. So, I don't understand why you rejected my offer."

"The answer is really simple," Hereswith answered. "It's because you're a cunt and your d*ck ain't worth sh*t."

"A pity then," Daniel sneered. "I guess I'll just f*ck you like the b*tch you are after I'm done dealing with these mongrels."

The Pseudo-God then snapped his finger. Countless tentacles wrapped around the Skeleton Queen, holding it in place.

"Just watch on the side," Daniel stated as he glanced at Lux and the two Dragon Kings, who were preparing to launch their next attacks. "And take a good look at what happens to those who oppose me."

But, just as Daniel was about to fight against Lux and the two Dragon Kings, the tentacles that bound the Skeleton Queen all burst with Golden Flames.

"You think too highly of yourself," Hereswith said in contempt. "This is why you'll never be a God. You failed the first time, and you'll fail again this time."

"You talk too much," Daniel said before waving his hand. "Know your place, b*tch."

A giant tentacle that was hundreds of meters long lashed out against the Skeleton Queen and sent it flying.

But before Daniel could even laugh at this scene in front of him, a fist hit the side of his face making him fly in the opposite direction of the punch.

"You talk too much," Lux said before charging in Daniel's direction with his fist raised to strike. Lux's Deus Gigantia made sure that Nyarlathotep wouldn't be able to interfere with its Master's battle with the Pseudo-God.

Since the Outer God was only moving automatically due to the influence of the Golden Scales that had taken control over its body, it couldn't think on its own and simply followed Daniel's orders to deal with the enemies that were in front of it.

"Now you've done it," Daniel teleported in front of Lux and gave the Half-Elf an uppercut, which the latter dodged at the last second.

The two then engaged each other in a brawl, with each of their blows strong enough to instantly kill a Calamity-Ranked Beast. The ones with that rank and below had all evacuated from the battlefield of the two people, who were at each other's throats.

Chapter 1212.1: The Opposite Of Hope [Part 1]

1212 The Opposite Of Hope [Part 1]

"Are you sure you have time to deal with me?" Daniel asked after he distanced himself from Lux's relentless attacks. "Your comrades will die if you don't help them, you know?"

Lux didn't even bother to reply as he unleashed a fireball empowered by his Transcendent Flames.

Daniel sneered as he cut the fireball in half, but just as soon as the Fireball parted, the Half-Elf was already in front of him with his fist blazing with a golden radiance.

Behind him, the silhouette of a Giant Golden Dragon emerged, empowering his attack with golden flames imbued by golden lightning.

"Peerless Dragon Emperor's Strike!" Lux's fist connected with the side of Daniel's face, sending the latter flying. The Half-Elf disappeared from where he was, and reappeared right above Daniel with his fist poised to strike. Above his head, a White Dragon, whose eyes radiated with its majestic presence.

The Half-Elf's passive skill, Dragon Conqueror's Majesty, empowered all of his Draconic Attacks, raising them to the limit. "Peerless White Dragon's Divine Disaster!"

Lux punched out, and a beam of light erupted from his fists, blasting Daniel across the Void Battlefield.

All monsters that were hit by Lux's attacks were instantly vaporized, including a Demigod who was in the path of his attack.

This blow was as powerful as Poseidon's Main Cannon beam attack, which no one was able to survive... until now.

An explosion erupted within the void as Lux's attack detonated, sending fiery flames expanding outwards.

The Floating Island of Edea that was at the frontlines was pushed back by the blast, but aside from that, it didn't suffer any harm.

The Abyssal Monsters had stopped attacking the Floating Island because it was useless.

Protected by dozens of Demigods, Calamity-Ranked Monsters, and Saints that belonged to Blackfire, it boasted the strongest force within the alliance.

Aside from them, Poseidon and Eiko were there to ensure that no one else in their guild would die.

The Fairy Princess was saddened after learning that Cethus, Keane, Grandma Annie, Randolph, and countless baby slimes had died defending their Guild Headquarters.

Because of this, she prioritized protecting their Guild Headquarters.

C2 was also standing in front of the floating island, further deterring the Abyssal Lords, who knew that fighting against it was simply suicide.

A two-meter tall Black Wolf with the wings of a Griffin, and the tail of a snake, ordered his subordinates to stop attacking the Floating Island, and just watch the battle for now.

He was none other than Marchosias, who had once defied Daniel in the past. The Abyssal Lord had no intention of sacrificing all of his men in this conflict.

The Abyssal Lord understood that the outcome of this battle wouldn't be decided by the Abyssal Lords, or the members of the Alliance.

'Whoever wins between Daniel and those four people will decide the outcome of this war,' Marchosias thought.

He didn't really like Daniel, and even wished for the latter to be defeated in battle. As long as he died, the Abyssal Lords would no longer need to continue fighting this war.

Similar to him, there were other Abyssal Lords that had no intention of invading Solais and Elysium.

Not all of them were Warmongers, and there were many who preferred to stay in their territories within the Abyss.

Perhaps, the Abyssal Lords also realized this fact, so they also stopped their attacks.

The two armies suddenly had a ceasefire, distancing themselves from each other. They then watched in the distance as Daniel emerged from the blazing inferno, mostly unharmed, but not unscathed either.

"That stung a bit," Daniel commented. "Like an ant bite."

"Good," Lux replied. "There's more where that came from."

As soon as he finished talking, four beams of light flew past the Half-Elf, and collided with Daniel's body, creating another world-shaking explosion.

Hereswith, Keoza, King Azza, and Poseidon, all unleashed their strongest attack at the Pseudo-God.

Nyarlathotep was currently fighting against the Skeleton King, and the Skeleton Queen, so it wasn't able to go to its Master to defend him.

Truth be told, Daniel could easily dodge those four attacks if he wanted. However, at the last second, he found his body momentarily frozen, unable to evade the attacks that were headed in his direction.

"Did we get him?" King Azza asked as he looked at the raging inferno in front of him.

Lux stared long and hard on the spot where Daniel was hovering a while ago.

Calypso was right beside him, and the two of them had used his taunt skill, Duel [Divine], at the same time, preventing Daniel from escaping.

Since the latter was a Pseudo-God, the most that this taunting technique could do was momentarily hold him in place.

Eiko had also learned this skill, which was the reason why she was able to kill Nyarlathotep's clones during their confrontations.

Suddenly, Daniel's voice which now reeked of killing intent spread in the battlefield.

"Do you know, what the opposite of Hope is?"

The flames that were burning wildly a few seconds ago dispersed, as if they didn't exist in the first place.

The giant silhouette of the Outer God above Daniel had cast a barrier around him at the last second, protecting him from a direct hit from the four powerful Demigods.

Although he was a Pseudo-God, he was still susceptible to getting hurt by peak Demigods, which was only a level lower than him.

Daniel discarded the black robe that was already in tatters, showing his true form to everyone.

Half of his body had transformed into that of a demon, while the latter half remained human.

His long black hair fluttered behind his back as a powerful aura radiated from his body. He looked like someone in his mid twenties, and even with the other side of his face transformed into that of a demon, it was very easy to tell that his looks were above average. The barrier that the Outer God had created shattered, revealing a golden candle hovering in front of Daniel's chest.

"None of you know what the opposite of Hope is?" Daniel chuckled as the golden candle in front of him glowed brightly. "The opposite of Hope is despair, and I will make sure that all of you understand what despair means!"

The Pseudo-God then encased his demonic arm with purple flames, channeling it to the Golden Candle in front of him.

The moment he managed to claim ownership of the Pillar of Hope was the time when his enemies would truly understand the meaning of despair, which he wanted them to feel so badly.

I will post three chapters tomorrow because I can only post one chapter today. I made a mistake with the Privilege Tier of my other Novel, System's POV, and was forced to write many chapters in order to meet the number of chapters required to activate it.

I thought that the effect of the Privilege Tier would take effect next month, but it seems that WN has changed its mechanics. It's already eleven in the evening, and I'm too exhausted to write more for today. I'll make up for the lack of a second chapter tomorrow. Goodnight everyone, and thanks for your understanding.

Elyon

Chapter 1213.2: The Opposite Of Hope [Part 2]

Daniel had acquired the Pillar of Hope not long ago.

But unlike the Golden Scales, representing Justice, which he had already conquered as his own, the Golden Candle was still not under his influence.

The reason for this was simple.

He had just stabilized his control over the Golden Scales after using it to revive Nyarlathotep. Because of this, he didn't have the time to convert the Pillar of Hope to become the Pillar of Despair, which would have further increased his strength.

However, as his purple flames tried to refine the Golden Candle, something unexpected happened.

The candle shone brightly and flew upward.

It hovered over the Void Battlefield and created a barrier upon itself, preventing him or anyone else, from getting near it.

Suddenly, a voice, which no one could determine if it came from a young girl or boy, spread in the surroundings.

"To those who wish to gather the Pillars of Eternity, I am here to give you my judgment," the Candle of Hope spoke. "Only the one who remains standing in the end will gain my power, for that is what it means to represent Hope."

Daniel frowned after hearing the declaration, but in the end, he just snorted.

"No one gets to tell me what to do," Daniel stated. "It is my will that decides everything!"

The eye of the Outer God once again opened as it directed its gaze on the Golden Candle hovering in front of it.

Amidst the Darkness, the light of the candle that seemed as though it could go out at any moment held firm, despite the powerful pressure that the Outer God was emitting.

Suddenly a thin purple beam of light emerged from the eye of the Outer God and flew towards the Pillar of Hope.

"Eyah!"

At that moment, a giant Golden Anchor appeared in front of the Golden Candle and blocked the purple beam of light. Eiko, in her Fairy Princess form, suddenly appeared out of nowhere, surprising Lux and Daniel.

Even the baby slime had no idea why she was able to traverse such distance when she was still on Poseidon's deck and protecting the Floating Island of Edea from the Abyssal Monsters.

She just felt that no matter what happened, she couldn't allow that purple beam of light to hit the Pillar of Hope.

A sound that was similar to nails scratching a blackboard reverberated in the surroundings.

This lasted for a few seconds before everything descended to silence.

The Golden Anchor once again shrank and transformed into an Anchor-like-sword, held by the Fairy Princess, who was hovering beside the golden candle.

Eiko still didn't know why she was able to teleport beside the candle. The only explanation she could think of was that for some reason, the Pillar of Eternity felt as if it was part of her family.

Yes.

The pillar was like a little sister to her, which for some reason unlocked a power within her to teleport right by its side.

Daniel narrowed his eyes as he looked at the Golden Anchor in Eiko's hand.

"So the Anchor is in your possession. Very good," Daniel stated. "I'll take it from you by force."

Eiko was unfazed by Daniel's comment as she returned to her baby slime form. The first thing she did was swallow the Golden Candle before teleporting to the top of Lux's head, holding a small Golden Anchor in her hand.

"Pa!" Eiko said.

"Right," Lux replied. "Let's show him who's boss."

"Un!" Eiko nodded before shifting her gaze to Daniel. "F*cker."

This time, Lux didn't reprimand Eiko for cursing the Pseudo-God out loud. He even praised her in his heart for saying the things that reflected what was inside his heart.

Daniel smiled faintly. In the end, someone was still getting in his way.

"Fine," Daniel said. "I guess this is also interesting in its own way. So the winner takes all, right?"

Nyarlatotep, who had been fighting against the Skeleton King and the Skeleton Queen, vanished without a trace.

It then reappeared behind Daniel and transformed into a black mist, merging with his body.

The silhouette of the Outer God also transformed into a black mist and started to merge with Daniel's body as well.

The Pseudo-God was covered by a black dome as he absorbed the power of the Pillar of Justice and Pillar of Fortitude.

"Attack him!" Lux ordered. "Don't let him finish his transformation!"

Eiko threw dozens of her Nuclear-level Blast Bombs, as well as ordered Poseidon to fire its Main Cannons.

Keoza and King Azza transformed into their Dragon Forms and unleashed their strongest Dragon Breaths at the same time.

Lux and Hereswith also unleashed their most powerful spells at the same time.

"Dark Laser!" Hereswith said as she pointed her finger at the dome of darkness and fired a crimson beam of light, covered with dark lightning bolts.

"Divine Disaster!" Lux roared as he unleashed a beam of light covered with golden lightning bolts.

Their combined attacks were so strong that everyone thought that they were witnessing the end of the world.

A moment later, the loudest explosion that they had heard and witnessed erupted, making everyone cover their ears and close their eyes due to how powerful it was.

Even though the Abyssal Army and the Alliance had already distanced themselves from the battlefield of the six powerhouses, they were still caught up with the blast and blown away by the aftermath.

Lux, Keoza, Hereswith, and King Azza were also pushed back by thousands of meters. Even so, their gazes were locked onto the place where their attacks landed.

"Bastards, can you not wait patiently until my transformation is complete?" Daniel's voice, which was filled with annoyance, reached Lux's ears. Although he tried hard to hide it, the Half-Elf was still able to detect the pain behind the Pseudo-God's words, making him smile faintly.

"Who in their right mind will wait until you finish your transformation?" Lux asked. "Only fools do that."

Within the blazing inferno, something stirred, making everyone's faces turn grim.

"True," Daniel replied as he appeared in front of his enemies. "But I will make sure that you pay for your insolence."

A creature with eight wings on its back emerged from the hellish flames.

It had four arms, which had razor-sharp claws on each end, capable of slicing a Demigod in Half easily.

Standing at ten meters tall, Daniel looked down at the people whom he wished to trample with all of his might. This scene reminded him of the incident a hundred years ago when he tried to ascend into Godhood but was thwarted by his companions and the Goddess who had summoned him to Solais.

It all brought him unpleasant memories, and the thing he hated the most was these very same memories.

"I'll end all of you," Daniel said.

In the next second, he reappeared in front of King Azza.

Before the Dragon King could even react, Daniel's clawed hands pierced through the chest of the giant Golden Dragon and crushed his heart without even a shred of hesitation.

Queen Saphira, who was watching this battle from inside Lux's Guild Headquarters, screamed the moment she saw her husband's body fall from the sky.

King Azza didn't even have the time to react before his heart was crushed, leaving Lux, Keoza, and Hereswith in shock.

"That's one down," Daniel said in a teasing tone. "Now, which one of you wants to die next?"

Chapter 1214.3: The Opposite Of Hope [Part 3]

"That's one down. Now, who wants to die next?"

But before anyone could answer, Daniel reappeared behind Keoza and cut off the Crystal Dragon's head with one clean slash of his clawed hands.

Aurelia, who saw this, lost the strength in her legs and almost collapsed on the ground.

Iris, who was right beside her, supported her body and hugged her close. The Dragon Princess' tears started to pour like a river as she wailed in Iris's arms.

Lux's first fiance held her tight, knowing the pain that she was suffering right now.

Queen Evangeline bit her lip until it drew blood. She had only recently reunited with her husband, and yet, she had to see him die right in front of his eyes.

Lux and Hereswith finally moved and attacked Daniel at the same time.

Hereswith was holding a fairy sword in her hand, while Lux was wielding his Divine Spear, Calypso.

Daniel ignored both of them and teleported away.

This time, Daniel appeared above the Floating Island of Edea.

Lux roared because he already knew what Daniel was about to do. Using his ability, he instantly teleported to his Guild Headquarters, just in time to face one of Daniel's strongest attacks.

"Decimation Flare."

Lux channeled his power to the locket that Aurora had given to him.

The Pillar of Love had the power to create the strongest barriers. However, it came with a price.

If Antero had the intention of ruling the Abyss, everyone would have fallen in line with him. They would have no hesitation because their world was ruled by the strong, and this unspoken rule would remain the same for as long as the Abyss existed.

When the light receded, blood seeped at the corner of Lux's lips. Several strands of his red hair had now turned to silver, which was a sign that he had sacrificed a part of his lifespan in order to protect the people who were important to him.

Unfortunately, he couldn't save the rest of the Alliance.

Daniel chuckled as he looked at the last two Floating Islands, as well as a little over a dozen flying ships that survived his attack.

The rest were instantly obliterated, killing everyone who resided in them in less than a blink.

"You know what I find funny?" Daniel asked in disdain. "It is the fact that you Mongrels thought that you even stood a chance against me. I don't know if all of you are being delusional or you've given up hope and just wanted to get it over with, so you came to find me. "Since that is the case, this will save me time gathering all five of the Pillars. Also, since all of you hot-blooded fools are here, it means that the people who are left in Solais and Elysium will submit to me easily. This is like hitting three birds with one stone."

Daniel then shifted his gaze to Lux and sneered. "I guess it's you whom I have to thank, no? If not for you, all of this wouldn't have happened. So, thank you. You can die in peace knowing that you've played your role in helping me ascend to Godhood."

The Pseudo-God then pointed his finger at Lux with an evil smile plastered on his face.

"Decimation Flare."

Lux and Eiko once again blocked this attack through gritted teeth, making sure that their Guild Headquarters wouldn't fall because the precious people whom they wanted to protect were inside of it.

When the light receded for the second time, only the Floating Island of Edea remained.

Daniel planned to attack again and again because he found the desperation in Lux's face a very wonderful thing to see.

If he really wanted to destroy the Guild Headquarters, he could have easily done it by teleporting past the Half-Elf and destroying the Castle in an instant.

But where was the fun in that?

He wanted to see him despair and use up his life force. When the Half-Elf could no longer even stand, Daniel would then kill the people inside Lux's Guild Headquarters in front of him one by one.

He had every intention to torture him mentally, and emotionally, making him regret the day he defied him in his life.

Chapter 1215.4: The Opposite Of Hope [Part 4]

Lux knew that he couldn't remain passive, so he took the initiative to attack Daniel. But the Pseudo-God was simply too fast, and none of his attacks landed on his body.

Seeing that their enemy was too fast to get hit by their attacks, Lux, Eiko, and Calypso all worked together and used their taunting skill at the same time.

"Duel [Divine]!"

Daniel found himself once again locked in place, and facing countless attacks from every direction.

"Hellfire Annihilation!"

"Dark Laser!"

"Death Sentence!"

"Sun Beam!"

"Venus Striker!"

"Dragon's Breath!"

"Gaia Smash!"

"United Nation's Smash!"

"War God's Descent!"

"Black Lightning!"

"Shadow Blade!"

"Ultima Break!"

"Boom Boom Bakugan!"

The combined attacks of Lux, Eiko, his Named Creatures, Covenant, as well as the attacks of everyone including C2, Avery, and Poseidon, all merged, blasting Daniel away thousands of meters.

The Pseudo-God felt as if he was hit by a truck, making him feel a pain that surprised him.

Because he was suddenly locked in place, he was unable to effectively raise his defenses and was forced to accept the combined attacks of his enemies.

This was the second time he received an attack that actually hurt him, with the first one happening during his transformation into his complete battle form.

But before he could even sigh in relief, he saw a chilling scene in front of him.

Daniel hovered right above Lux's destroyed castle with his right hand aimed at the remaining half of the castle.

"Decimation..."

"Noooo!"

"Flare!"

Time seemed to move in slow motion as the Half-Elf watched as Daniel's attack slowly descended toward the castle where his lovers and family members were hiding.

This lasted for a few seconds before the Half-Elf and all the defenders were blown away by the powerful explosion that made the Earth Turtle roar for the last time before its body shattered into countless pieces.

The Floating Island of Edea and Lux's Guild Headquarters was reduced to a pile of debris that made the Half-Elf feel as if his heart was breaking into countless pieces.

"Maaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaa!" Eiko shouted with tears in her eyes as her beloved mother disappeared right in front of her.

The Baby Slime's tears fell like rain as she cried her heart out, while perched on top of her Papa's head.

Lux wasn't faring well either, as his tears streamed down the side of his face.

Originally, Daniel wanted to kill the people inside the castle one by one but decided that it would be more impactful if he just killed them all at the same time.

This way, he would be able to break Lux's heart completely, making his victory taste sweeter.

Daniel, who was about to attack Lux, smirked as he moved his body to the side.

A moment later, Hereswith, who had tried to sneak attack him from behind, was caught in his grasp.

"I purposely ignored you because I intend to make you my woman," Daniel said as he grabbed hold of Hereswith's neck. "Have you become tired of waiting? Do you want me to screw you that badly? Or, perhaps you want me to humiliate you in front of that Half-Elf? I didn't know you had this kind of fetish."

"F*ck you!" Hereswith tried to move her body, but Daniel's four hands held her in place.

"Yes. I will make sure to do that to you later," Daniel said in a devilish tone. "But for now, you need to behave. So stay put, okay?"

The Pseudo-God's eyes glowed briefly, making Herewith's body stiffen. A few seconds later, her body slowly turned into a purple crystal statue, which Daniel lovingly caressed before glancing in Lux's direction.

"Well then, I enjoyed our little game, but I think it's about time for me to become a God," Daniel stated as he pointed his finger at Lux. "It was fun while it lasted. In your next life, be sure to never offend me again if you want to live."

The tip of Daniel's fingers glowed as the sneer on his face widened.

"Fusion Flare."

Dark and purple flames merged together and flew towards the Half-Elf, who seemed to have lost his will to live.

Chapter 1216.1: The Guardian That Protects The Gates Of Heaven [Part 1]

As the Dark and Purple Flames were about to hit Lux's body, the Black Token that Antero had given him appeared in front of him.

Lux was too heartbroken to notice anything, so he didn't notice when his world descended into complete darkness.

Even Eiko, who was usually headstrong, was crying like the baby she was on top of her Papa's head.

Everyone and everything that they wished to protect had been destroyed by the Pseudo-God, who desired to ascend into Godhood.

Suddenly, a soft sigh reached their ears, pulling their eyes to the person who appeared before them within the darkness that was darker than black.

"Long time no see, Lux. You seem to be in a pinch right now."

The Half-Elf wiped the tears in his eyes because his vision was too blurry for him to see properly. Even so, he recognized the owner of the voice that called out to him.

A voice that he thought he would never hear again.

"Master," Lux said as he reached out towards Gaap, but his hand passed through his body.

Gaap didn't seem to mind and even took a step back, smiling at the Half-Elf whose face was stained by his tears, alongside Eiko's own tears as well.

"The one you are fighting against is someone who almost succeeded in becoming a God," Gaap stated as he closed his eyes. "Even I would not be able to win against him if I tried."

A brief silence passed between them before Gaap finished what he was trying to say. "But you are different, Lux. You have something that I don't."

Gaap then lightly tapped his chest, making the Half-Elf look at his own chest.

Grandma Annie, who was standing beside Randolph, also smiled, making Eiko, who was also very close to her, tear up once more.

"When I first saw you in Leaf Village, I thought I was just imagining things. Not once did we ever have a Foreigner come who wasn't a Dwarf, so I thought that you were a very special existence. "However, you were hardworking, courageous, and funny. This made me wonder why the Gods sent someone like you to our humble little Village. But as days turned into weeks, and weeks turned into months, I realized something..."

"Our village had remained the same for centuries, and everyone seemed to have fallen into a monotonous lifestyle. But after you appeared, it was as if we were given a new lease of life, and things became a little more exciting."

Grandma Annie's smile widened as if she was a teenage girl who found something very new and exciting.

"I can still remember the day I saved you from the Dungeon Outbreak. You were too weak to defend yourself back then. But a few months later, it was you who saved our Village from the Monster Outbreak led by the Thunder Wolf King. For that, I am forever thankful. Thank you, Lux."

One by one, countless Souls appeared around the Half-Elf like golden glowing lights.

So many souls surrounded him that it illuminated the darkness where he was earlier.

"Back then, you were so weak," the Draconian Kobold, Cadmus, said. "So weak that I could have easily killed you if I wished for it. Now, I'm glad I didn't. Because if it weren't for you, I wouldn't be here at World's End. This is something that our clan can brag to the other Kobold Clans for generations to come."

Beside Cadmus, Lux saw his friend, Keane, who had an unwavering look on his face. "You and Cai were my first true friends. If not for the two of you, I wouldn't have met Rose. Back then, I was looking for the true meaning of peace. Even now, I still haven't found it, but I believe that I will get to see it someday."

Beside Keane, a green-haired Half-Elf gaze raised his clenched fist and pointed it in Lux's direction.

"I planned to live this life of mine only for revenge," Gerhart stated. "I thought that after I finished avenging my mother, I could close myself off from the world and live like a hermit. But after meeting you and everyone else, I started to think that perhaps, there was more to life than revenge. "For the first time in my life, I had friends. Real friends whom I could count on during the tough times of my life. I'm glad that I was able to experience something like this at the end of my journey."

Suddenly, a burst of loud laughter reverberated in the surroundings, making Lux bite his lip because the bastard, Cethus, had decided to make his appearance at this time.

"Filthy Low Lander, you were blessed to have someone like me as your companion," Cethus declared. "Without me, you wouldn't have become as strong as you are now, so you should get on your knees and thank me proper!—oi!"

The Drago Born wasn't even able to finish his speech because Gerhart, Keane, and Cadmus tackled him.

As if to make matters worse, Flamma joined in and pressed the pitiful Dragon Born down until he could do nothing, but lie on the ground.

Chapter 1217.2: The Guardian That Protects The Gates Of Heaven [Part 2]

Struggling under the weight of his friends, Cethus tried to stand, but it was impossible. Because of this, he just raised his head and looked Lux in the eye. "L-Listen! I'm still not done with my speech!" Cethus said despite the fact that his bastard friends were pinning him down on the ground. "Lux, there are times when I hated you, envied you, and became jealous of you. "But after I realized that I'm more handsome and more awesome than you, I started to appreciate the finer things in life. I, Cethus, had only looked up to my Grandma Faustina and Grandma Augustina. And yet, I couldn't help but compare you to them.

"It didn't take long for me to realize that true strength isn't just measured by Ranks or power. Because of you, someone as weak as me was able to stand my ground, despite knowing that I was facing a battle that was impossible to win. "The past me would have definitely run away or hid myself until the fight was over. But when I saw these bastards beside me, I couldn't possibly leave them alone, could I? All of these fools are all brawns and no brains. "Someone like me needs to rein them in, or it would make me look bad if people thought that I knew them. What I'm trying to say is, just as much as you helped us become the better version of ourselves, we are also willing to help you to become the better version of yourself. So, Lux, let's go."

"Someone like me needs to rein them in, or it would make me look bad if people thought that I knew them. What I'm trying to say is, just as much as you helped us become the better version of ourselves, we are also willing to help you to become the better version of yourself. So, Lux, let's go."

Cethus forcefully raised his clenched fist like Gerhart had done a while ago and pointed it at Lux.

"For the sake of those who are waiting for us back home," Cethus stated.

"For those who believe that we will return victorious," Cadmus said as he, too, raised his fist towards Lux.

"For the promises that we made to our loved ones," Keane smiled as he too, raised his fist.

"And for the promise of a better future," Gerhart commented as he raised his fist, just like his friends have done. "A future where we can all walk side by side," Randolph chuckled, raising his fist.

"A future where the children can continue smiling," Grandma Annie added. "A future where we will go on a fishing trip together." King Azza suddenly appeared out of nowhere and placed his hand on Lux's right shoulder, holding it in a vice grip.

"A future where I will join that fishing trip as well," Keoza stated as he placed his hand on Lux's left shoulder.

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

Anyone who wished to harm his Master must go through him first.

"Thank you, Diablo." Lux placed his hand on his fateful subordinate's shoulder. "You must have a lot of pent-up frustrations, right?"

"Yes, Master," Diablo replied.

Lux nodded his head in understanding. He also had a lot of pent-up frustrations, and it was time for Round Two.

"It's no use," Daniel said in a teasing tone. "No one alive will be able to stop me."

"Good." Lux sneered. "Because it will not be the living who will beat the crap out of you."

Eiko, who was perched on top of her Papa's head, glowed brightly. The Golden Anchor and Golden Candle merged with her body, creating a blue gem. This gem then descended onto the locket on the Half-Elf's chest, merging with it perfectly.

Countless golden orbs of light, representing the souls of everyone who had died on the battlefield, including the souls of the Abyssal Creatures, appeared behind Lux, making Daniel narrow his eyes.

"In the light of day or the depths of night, no small fry backed by an Outer God shall elude my sight.

"May the Souls of the Dead hear my plight. For, I, the Necromancer of Heaven, will ascend this night!"

All the souls of the dead merged with Lux's body, making him radiate a golden aura of Divinity.

The Corpse God appeared behind his back, and this time, it had a golden color.

But that wasn't all. It now possessed hundreds of arms, holding different kinds of weapons, in each hand.

Without even waiting for Daniel to say or do anything, Lux disappeared from where he stood and reappeared in front of the Pseudo-God, who didn't even have time to blink before the Half-Elf's fist smashed into his face and sent him flying. _____

Chapter 1218.3: The Guardian That Protects The Gates Of Heaven [Part 3]

Daniel thought that his ascension to Godhood was at hand.

All he needed to do was kill the Half-Elf and the Baby Slime perched on top of his head, allowing him to gain the three other Pillars of Eternity. Once all five were in his hands, he would gain the power that he had always wanted.

But just as he was about to kill the young man, Diablo interfered and split his attack in half, making him arch an eyebrow.

He didn't expect that an Undead could possess such strength, making him feel intrigued.

However, after that brief exchange, the Half-Elf seemed to have regained his sanity and challenged him once again.

To Daniel's surprise, the Half-Elf's strength suddenly had a drastic change, catching him by surprise.

He only realized how strong Lux had become when the latter's fist hit the side of his face, and he was sent flying.

Daniel had no idea what happened, but that single punch was enough to give him a wake-up call, making him take the Half-Elf seriously again.

"It seems you got yourself a power-up," Daniel said as soon as he regained his balance. "Is that the power of the three Pillars of Eternity that you absorbed?"

The Pseudo-God could feel the strong power emanating from the locket that was hanging from the Half-Elf's neck, making him narrow his eyes.

"Something like that," Lux replied.

Despite the power he possessed, Daniel lacked the ability to see Souls.

He couldn't see the countless number of souls that had merged with Lux's body, fueling him the power to stand toe to toe with the Pseudo God in front of him.

"Everyone, lend me your strength," Lux said as he summoned his Clones and Undead Legion.

Thousands of Undead then appeared around the Half-Elf making Daniel snort.

"Do you think your Undead Legion can help you?" Daniel sneered.

"Absolutely," Lux replied in a heartbeat.

A moment later, his Undead Army, Poseidon, Avery, and C2 all turned into particles of light, merging with the golden locket that hung on their Master's neck.

Diablo, Lux's other Named Creatures, as well as the members of his Covenant, also merged with the golden locket, further boosting the Half-Elf's strength.

Daniel didn't like what he was seeing, so he drew more power from the Outer God, who was sleeping in the deepest layer of the Abyss.

"No matter how strong you become, I will still be stronger than you," Daniel stated.

"Let's put that to the test then, shall we?" Lux sneered as his Deus Gigantia emerged from behind his back.

The giant Skeleton King then merged with Lux's Corpse God, increasing the number of its hands to a thousand.

The size of the Corpse God also increased, making it nearly forty meters tall.

Daniel then stomped forward and reappeared in front of Lux, ready to strike.

However, the Half-Elf was ready to meet his attack.

Using his Spear of Longinus, he managed to block one of Daniel's clawed hands that was about to slash his face.

The Pseudo-God's three remaining claws descended toward the Half-Elf, with the intention of ripping him apart.

However, Lux only sneered and even taunted Daniel by saying...

"You only have four hands. What makes you think that you can reach me?"

As if waiting for that moment, dozens of Skeleton Fists punched out at the same time, colliding with Daniel's claws.

The Skeleton Fists shattered after the collision, but it gave the Corpse God enough time to launch its deadly barrage.

"Ora! Ora! Ora! Ora!"

"Ora! Ora! Ora! Ora!"

"Ora! Ora! Ora! Ora!"

Countless Skeleton Fists pummeled Daniel's body, holding him in place. The Pseudo-God was hit several times before he counterattacked by destroying all the fists that were attacking him.

However, after he destroyed one skeleton fist, another one would take its place, continuing the cycle.

What was worse was that the destroyed fists regenerated completely in the span of a few seconds, making Daniel feel pressured.

Lux then sneered as he allowed ALL-MITE to momentarily take over his body in order to launch his onslaught at the arrogant Pseudo God, who thought that he had already won earlier.

"Muda! Muda! Muda! Muda!"

"Muda! Muda! Muda! Muda!"

"Muda! Muda! Muda! Muda!"

"SMASH!"

The Void Battlefield shook as Daniel's body was sent flying a second time.

However, before he could even regain his balance mid-air, thousands of Divine Cross Bolts flew in his direction and transformed into golden comets, hitting his body non-stop.

Lux's Corpse God had equipped Crossbows in all of its hands, and they were all firing non-stop as the Half-Elf closed the distance between him and Daniel.

Suddenly, the silhouette of the Outer God, Azathoth, once again appeared above Daniel's head.

This time, the Outer God was no longer transparent and had more luster in its body.

"Die!" Daniel roared as he commanded the Outer God to attack.

Opening its eyes, Azathoth fired a beam of light, which was too fast to dodge.

Lux, who was locked in its gaze, didn't panic and crossed his arms in front of him.

The Golden Locket in his chest glowed brightly, encapsulating the Half-Elf in a golden dome.

Daniel couldn't see what was happening because he was forced to cover his eyes due to how bright the beam was.

When the light receded, and he was able to see again, what appeared in front of his eyes was something he didn't expect.

"Two can play that game," Lux said as his Corpse God equipped a thousand cannons that were as strong as Poseidon's Main Cannon.

Half of his hair had turned silver after his life force was used in order to block the Outer God's deadly attack, but he didn't care.

As he unleashed an attack that was impossible to dodge, the only thing on his mind was to make the Pseudo God feel a world of pain.

"Giga Blaster!"

Over a thousand cannons roared to life and shot beams toward Daniel's direction.

Just like what happened to Lux earlier, Daniel was unable to evade the beams of light and was forced to tank it using his own barrier.

Unfortunately for him, the golden locket was not only capable of creating the strongest of barriers, but it was also capable of nullifying all kinds of barriers in its surroundings!

At that moment, a scream that Daniel never thought would escape his lips, reverberated across the entire Void Battlefield, as Lux's Giga Blaster rained down on him, making him feel a world of pain that he hadn't felt in a long time.

Chapter 1219.4: The Guardian That Protects The Gates Of Heaven [Part 4]

Daniel's body was in pain, not only due to the thousand laser beams that were currently raining down on him from the sky, but also from the pummeling he received earlier from Lux's Corpse God.

Diablo had merged with Lux, carrying with him the boost in physical, and magical damage that he had accumulated during the war.

Not only that, Lux also gained the abilities of all of his Named Creatures, and Covenant Members.

Diablo' Damage.

Ishtar's Accuracy.

Pazuzu's Defense.

Asmodeus' cunning.

Orion's endurance.

ALL-MITE'S strength.

Lazarus' explosiveness.

King Leoric's courage.

Andras' brutality.

And Avernus' strong will.

All of these powers, and abilities combined made Lux capable of making the Pseudo God feel a world of hurt, and more, as he continued to attack relentlessly.

"Y-You!" Daniel roared. "Stop getting in my way! I will become a God! You will not stop me!"

"Hold My Blast Bomb!" Lux threw the Blast Bomb that was nearly fifty-meters tall, which Eiko, Glee, and the Baby Slimes of Leaf Town, and Heaven's Gate, had made in the past.

The Baby Slime didn't dare to use this Blast Bomb casually because it could easily destroy the entirety of the Ford Federation!

But, now, the Baby Slime had given her Papa her strongest weapon.

Daniel might have been unable to dodge Lux's Giga Blaster earlier, but this one, he was confident in dodging.

At least, that was what he thought when he felt his body moving subconsciously towards the Half-Elf in the distance.

Duel [Divine] x 17!

Lux, empowered by his clones, Eiko's clones, Asmodeus's clones, Calypso, Pazuzu, Orion, and ALL-MITE, all used their taunting ability at the same time.

Since they had merged with Lux's body, their Duel Skill was something that even Daniel couldn't ignore.

Lux shouted. "Eat this, you Motherf*cker!"

Eiko, who heard her Papa's shout, also chimed in.

"Boom Boom Bakugan, F*cker!" Eiko shouted.

Another powerful explosion like no other made the entirety of the Void Battlefield tremble.

Since all of Lux's attacks were imbued by his Divine Abyssal Touch, they didn't only bypass Daniel's defenses, they attacked his soul directly.

The soul of a Pseudo-God was very robust, and most attacks cannot even faze it. However, Lux was different.

He both had the power of the Divine, as well as the power of the Abyss, creating the most deadly of combinations.

These two powers combined were further boosted by the Half-Elf's Passive, and Unique Abilities, making it one of the most destructive powers in existence.

When the aftermath of the explosion subsided, Daniel, whose entire body was now covered by wounds, and bleeding appeared in front of Lux.

The once arrogant Pseudo God, who had terrorized the entirety of the alliance was now bleeding, and in pain, after Lux fully embraced the power that he possessed.

But, just as Lux was about to attack Daniel and finish him off, a powerful suppression descended upon him, holding him in place.

"I don't care anymore!" Daniel shouted. "I will kill you, no matter what price I have to pay!"

The body of the Outer God, who was sleeping at the deepest layer of the Abyss started to show signs of awakening.

The angels, who were desperately singing, and dancing to prevent the Outer God from awakening, intensified their performance, putting everything on the line in order to prevent the Outer God from opening its eyes.

But, despite their desperate attempts, the Outer God's eyes slowly opened until it was half open.

From within the depths of its monstrous eyes, a golden lion statue shone brightly.

Suddenly, a golden beam of light shot out from the Outer God's eye, and flew across time and space, reaching Daniel who was in the Void Battlefield,

"Argh!" Daniel gritted his teeth as the Golden Lion, which had absorbed a great amount of Divinity from the Sleeping Outer God merged with his body.

Lux watched as Daniel's aura suddenly rose to the point that he was only a small step away from ascending into Godhood.

However, that small step was still a step away, which means that Daniel was still not a God, but he was the closest being in existence to Godhood.

In the past, he was only a Pseudo-God because his strength had surpassed the Demigod Rank. Now, he was truly an existence that was about to become a God.

He didn't even need to get all the Pillars of Eternity to ascend to Godhood. He just needed one of them, and he would become a God instantly.

"Ha... Ha... Hahahaha!" Daniel laughed crazily.

He no longer had any connection to the Outer God, Azathoth, because he now absorbed the Golden Lion Statue.

He had placed the Golden Statue inside the Outer God's body in order to borrow its power to do whatever he wanted.

But now, things have changed.

He needed the power to defeat Lux, so he went all out and took the Pillar of Fortitude from the Outer God, and merged it with the Pillar of Justice, which was already inside his body.

He now felt a power that far surpassed his expectations, making him laugh out loud.

His soul, which had been damaged earlier, started to heal slowly, making the pain he was feeling become more bearable.

"Let's see if you can beat me now," Daniel growled at the Half-

Elf, who was hovering thousands of meters away from him. "Are you ready to die, Half-Elf?!"

Despite that distance, he, and Lux, could close that gap in a heartbeat if they really wanted.

Lux then raised his hand and placed a finger over his lips.

"Shhh... can you not hear it?" Lux asked with his finger still pressed over his mouth. "Listen closely. If you do, you will hear them too."

Daniel laughed because he thought that the Half-Elf was just buying time for his inevitable demise. However, since he felt that he was now unbeatable, he decided to humor the Half-Elf and actually closed his eyes to listen.

It was then when he heard it.

At first it was faint, but it was starting to grow in volume.

Daniel thought that he was just hearing things, and his ears were ringing due to the silence.

But, the sounds he was hearing weren't the familiar ringing of the ear that people heard from time to time.

No, this was different.

What he was hearing wasn't ringing, but giggling.

Countless giggling sounds, that made the hairs on the back of his neck stand on end.

Then, he saw them.

A golden line appeared at the end of the battlefield that soon rushed towards them like a tide.

But, this tide didn't go to Daniel's direction, and instead, went to Lux.

"We're here, Lux."

"Hahaha! We've come!"

"Did you miss us?"

"We have come bearing gifts!"

"All of them answered your call!"

"Weeeeeee!"

Countless golden balls that had eyes in the center of their bodies gathered around Lux, and giggled.

Their giggles reverberated within the Void Battlefield, making it tremble.

A moment later, these golden balls merged together, forming a giant golden gate that was hundreds of meters tall.

When the gate was formed, countless eyes opened at the same time, making it the creepiest gate that Daniel had seen in his life.

He had no idea what that thing was, but for some reason, countless alarm bells were ringing inside his head.

"I already told you that I am the Necromancer of Heaven," Lux said with a devilish smile on his face. "Tell me, how many souls of the dead do you think there are in this Universe?"

Daniel's face turned grim when he finally realized what Lux was getting at.

"I won't let you!" Daniel roared as he took a step forward intending to kill Lux before he could even draw out the power that was hiding from the creepy-looking-golden gate.

"Too late," Lux said as he jumped back, entering the Gate that was slowly opening.

The Half-Elf's body passed through the gate in an instant.

A second later, a powerful shock wave blasted Daniel away, pushing him back for thousands of meters.

The Pseudo God stared at the Gate that was now half open, and froze at the sight in front of him.

Countless souls of the dead emerged from the Golden Gate, covering the entirety of the Void Battlefield.

These souls then started to sing a song, proclaiming the coming of the strongest Necromancer of Heaven.

The Necromancer who was loved by both the Living and the Dead, and was now also a small step away from attaining Godhood.

Chapter 1220.1: The [Part 1]

Inside the Golden Gate, countless souls gathered around Lux's body.

When he thought about what Thirteen said, along the lines of thinking outside of the box, he decided to give it a try and called out to all the souls of the dead, regardless of where they were.

After meeting the Gods, he knew that there were other worlds within the vast expanse of the universe, so he attempted to use his powers to reach out to them.

He was doing this while fighting against Daniel despite being unsure whether it would succeed.

But then it happened.

Although faint, he felt them answering his call.

It was also at that moment that he heard a voice that he thought he would never hear again.

It was the Outer God, Yog-Sothoth, who had sent Lux's wandering soul to Earth because it thought it would be more interesting that way.

And now, this same mysterious God told him four words and they were...

"Leave it to me."

Hearing those reassuring words, Lux bought time by fighting against Daniel. He understood that his current strength alone wasn't enough to bring down the Pseudo-God, whom he believed hadn't shown his full powers as of yet.

And he was right.

Daniel had still been holding back.

It was only after being repeatedly dominated by Lux that he decided to go all out, taking the Golden Lion from Azathoth to merge it with his body, alongside the Pillar of Justice.

Yog-Sothoth existed anywhere and everywhere.

Because of this, it was able to ferry all the Souls in the entire universe without a problem.

Truth be told, Yog-Sothoth was very annoyed with Daniel. A mere Pseudo-God dared to involve other Outer Gods like it in the affairs of mortals, in addition to his wish to attain Godhood.

This was also the reason why it decided to help Lux and give the Half-Elf a fighting chance.

Since their Guardian had asked for their help, those under his command answered his call.

It was not only the Souls of the Dead who had heard Lux's call.

The Undead that roamed the lands of the other worlds lent their power as well.

From the lowly Skeleton Warriors to the powerful Death Knights, as well as the formidable Liches, Yog-Sothoth gathered them all.

"My Profession is the Necromancer of Heaven."

"As to why I am getting in your way? It's because you've hurt and killed many important people to me. This is something I will not forgive. So, brace yourself. I have reserved a special place in hell just for you."

"F*ck you!" Daniel roared as he raised both of his hands, aiming it at Lux.
"Decimation Flare!"

"Decimation Flare!"

"Decimation Flare!"

"Decimation Flare!"

"DECIMATION FLARE!"

Daniel unleashed several Decimation Flares in rapid succession, intending to wipe out all of his enemies at the same time.

A blinding light erupted in his surroundings, followed by loud explosions. Daniel kept his eyes open and kept on unleashing Decimation Flares one after the other, and only stopped when he could no longer do it.

A few minutes later, the light receded as he panted for breath.

Ever since he became a Pseudo God, this was the first time he felt something akin to fear, and he didn't like it.

Even when he was facing the sleeping Outer God, which was one of the strongest beings in existence, he never felt fear—only a sense of exhilaration and conquest after he managed to obtain its powers.

But now, he felt fear.

He felt that no matter what he did, he couldn't win.

Despite the power he possessed, which could easily destroy an entire world if he wanted to, he still felt that it was not enough.

Countless shattered bones appeared in his vision, making him breathe a sigh of relief.

The Half-Elf, whom he was fighting against, was also no longer in front of him, which made him regain a bit of his confidence.

"He was just bluffing... haha.. haha... hahaha," Daniel forced himself to regain his composure. "He was just bluffing! Hahaha! A bluff!"

Suddenly, he felt a presence behind him, making his body stiffen.

Daniel didn't dare to turn around because he felt that if he did that, his worst nightmare would become a reality.

"Why did you stop laughing?" Lux whispered in Daniel's ears. "Go on. Laugh some more."

A moment later, the countless shattered bones in his surroundings merged together, regenerating the bodies that were destroyed earlier as if nothing had happened. "Ahhhhhhhhhhh!" Daniel screamed as he flew away as fast as he could.

He wanted to escape to a place where the Half-Elf, who was behind him earlier, couldn't find him.

Chapter 1221: The [FIN]

The Pseudo-God flew past countless worlds and galaxies, almost at the speed of light.

Daniel didn't care where he ended up as long as the monster behind him wouldn't catch up to him.

Finally, in the distance, he saw a blue planet. A world that he knew very well.

A place where there was no magic and where only technology reigned supreme.

But when he was only thousands of miles away from Earth, he saw a Half-Elf holding a stop sign as if telling him to stop.

"This place is off-limits," the red-headed Half-Elf said. "Go back to where you came from."

"You can't stop me!" Daniel shouted as he clenched his fist to punch the bastard who dared to get in his way. He knew that he was unable to defeat

Lux, but this Half-Elf in front of him was different from the one whom he was escaping from.

Although they were both handsome and had similar features, there was a distinctive difference between their appearance. The red-headed Half-Elf sighed and scratched his head.

"Oh, well. Don't say I didn't warn you," the Half-Elf then unceremoniously took out a chamber pot from who knows where and raised it like a tennis racket.

"Eat sh*t, Motherfucker," the Half-Elf said as the chamberpot in his hand grew as big as an entire mountain. With a casual slap from his chamberpot, Daniel was sent flying backward at the speed of light.

After what seemed like an eternity of pain, he finally came to a stop and clutched his chest.

It was at this moment that someone placed a hand over his shoulder and whispered something in his ear.

"You couldn't live with your own failure," Lux said as if he was giving someone some life coaching. "Where did that bring you? Back to me."

"Ahhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh!" Daniel shouted as if he was going crazy.

He tried to fly away once again, but this time, all his paths were blocked by countless Undead, who had formed an insurmountable wall in every direction, leaving him no place to go.

"It's useless," Lux said with a devilish smile on his face. "Get him guys!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

""Eyah!""

Countless baby slimes descended upon Daniel and body-slammed him with their squishy bodies.

Their attacks weren't enough to damage him physically, but when it came to emotional and spiritual damage, their simple attacks were like countless critical hits, making the Pseudo God scream in pain.

A moment later, all the Baby Slimes retreated, replaced by the Elysians and Solaians whom Daniel had killed.

All of them punched, kicked, slapped, smashed, and clapped him, forcing Daniel to fight back. He was literally drowning in souls, and no matter how many he sent flying, there would be others who would instantly take their place.

"Enough!" Daniel roared as his body glowed brilliantly, creating a shockwave that pushed the souls that were piling up on his body like zombies.

"What enough?" an annoyed voice asked. "Filthy Lowlander, you think that's enough? Eat My Fist!"

Cethus smacked the side of Daniel's face, making the latter take a few steps back.

Behind him, Flamma gave him a strong kick, sending the Pseudo-God's body forward.

Keane appeared and used the handle of his sword to unleash an uppercut that sent Daniel's body flying, but he was soon brought back down by a stomp by Cadmus who descended above him.

"Don't stop me. I'm going to smack this bastard silly," Cethus declared as he raised his fists and started to pummel Daniel's face while shouting "Ora! Ora! Ora! Ora!" like a madlad.

The others crossed their arms over their chest as they let their friend vent out his anger and frustration.

A baby slime then crawled near Cethus holding a signboard that said "Time's up" making the Dragon Born stop his punches.

Cethus clicked his tongue before picking up the baby slime, and muttered, "You cheeky little thing," before stepping away from the Pseudo-God.

"Stop... please," Daniel begged. "No more!"

"Stop?" Lux asked. "Not happening. Get him, boys!"

Countless Doomknight Bangers, as well as the Satyrs who had joined the war, gangbanged Daniel, making him experience something that he had never experienced before.

Cethus even covered the baby slime's eyes as if he wanted to prevent the little one from seeing such a barbaric thing.

Outside of Blackfire's body, several angels danced above Lux, including his battle angel, Seraphina, whose smile was as radiant as the sun.

"In the boundless expanse of time,

Eternity's song, a sweet rhyme,

No beginning, no final chime,

Endless, infinite, a wondrous climb,

Eternal moments, forever sublime."

Gathering the Five Pillars of Eternity, a golden stairway appeared in front of Lux, and the gates to the temple of the Ten Thousand Gods appeared before him.

The Half-Elf glanced at his wives, and they all nodded their heads in unison.

"Come back soon so that everyone can go home," Iris said softly as she hugged Lux.

"We still have a lot of things to talk about, including your baby that you hid from us," Cai said in a disapproving tone as she too hugged Lux. "You said that you would help me meet my sister, so come back soon, okay?" Aina cupped Lux's face and gave him a kiss on the lips. "That one is for me. This one... is for my sister."

The beautiful Dwarf gave Lux two kisses, making the other girls do the same.

"We'll be here waiting," Aurelia said after she finished kissing Lux. "Of course, our baby will wait for you as well."

The Dragon Princess lightly caressed her abdomen, which made the Half-Elf touch it too.

His free hand, however, was taken by Valerie and pressed on her own abdomen, while looking at Lux with a face filled with injustice.

"Unfair... I should have been the one to give birth to your first baby, but someone beat me to it," Valerie said with a pout. "I demand compensation!"

"What kind of compensation?" Lux asked with an amused look on his face.

"I'll tell you when you get back."

"Okay."

Ari then hugged Lux from behind and whispered seductively in his ears.

"Don't forget your promise, Papa," Ari said. "After Valerie gives birth, it will be my turn."

"Our turn." Ali corrected as she hugged Lux from the side, and kissed his cheek. "I want to have your baby too. Don't make me wait for too long, okay?"

"Okay," Lux replied as he kissed his two beautiful handmaidens, who made their intentions known to him.

The Half-Elf then glanced at Aurora, who was waiting for her turn.

She was once the Goddess of Solais, and now, she was a Transcendent Succubus. Her lives had many ups and downs, but after meeting Lux, she felt that all of those sufferings had finally borne fruit because she found someone who would love her till the end of time.

"Come with me, Aurora," Lux said as he extended his hand toward his lover, making her eyes widen in shock.

"I... I can't," Aurora replied. "I am no longer a Goddess."

"Trust me," Lux said with his hand still reaching out to her, waiting for her to take it. Aurora looked at Lux's outstretched hand before firmly shaking her head.

"I've been a God before, Lux," Aurora said as she held his hand with both of her hands. "That's why I can say this with confidence. I'd rather be in your bed, making love to you, than spend eternity managing the lives of mortals."

Lux's smile widened after hearing Aurora's reply. He then glanced at the top of the staircase and smirked.

"You heard her," Lux said. "My fiance wants to retire. The two of you should handle things from here on out."

Eriol and Max, who were standing at the gates of the Temple of the Ten Thousand Gods, glanced at each other before smiling bitterly.

They planned to make Lux handle everything so that the two of them could take a break!

They had been working hard for so long, and they wanted to take a vacation somewhere, so they could finally work on the anime called No Game No Waifu Season 2!

Lux laughed after seeing the two Gods' bitter faces.

He knew what they were planning to do, so he decided to decline their offer to become a God.

He would rather spend his days making love to his wives and taking care of his babies rather than become a God!

He also had no intention of becoming a God because he didn't want to be away from his lovers and be forced to simply watch over the affairs of mortal men.

Lux raised his staff and prepared to use his powers to make everyone who was waiting in Solais and Elysium happy. The Five Pillars of Eternity that had merged with the golden locket glowed brightly, making Lux shine within the darkness of the Void Battlefield as if he were a newborn star that was about to shine upon the world.

A few moments later, Cethus, Keane, Gerhart, Cadmus, Flamma, Keoza, King Azza, Lady Augustina, Lady Faustina, and the rest of those who had died in battle were all resurrected.

They didn't turn into undead but had undergone true resurrection due to the miraculous powers of the Pillars of Eternity that were capable of ascending someone into a God.

Looking at the faces of everyone who had been resurrected using his power, Lux held Aurora's and Iris' hands and took a step forward.

"Let's go home," Lux said. "To the place where we all belong."

Chapter 1222: After Story: Eiko's New Pet

Somewhere in Solais...

When the Abyssal Army invaded Solais, most of the Kingdoms and Empires fell due to the sheer difference in strength between the two sides.

The Abyssal Lords killed those who resisted and enslaved those who submitted. There were several Abyssal Lords and other Abyssal Monsters that weren't affected by the miasma. Because of this, they were able to move unhindered across the land.

Four of these Abyssal Lords had formed a raiding team alongside their subordinates, and they conquered one territory after the other.

Knowing that no one could stand in their way, they all felt fearless. Since the connection between the Abyss and Solais had been severed, all of them thought that it would be best to make the entirety of Solais their new Domain.

"I can sense a dense amount of life force in that direction," An Abyssal Lord who looked like a Centaur said. "Great!" an Abyssal Lord who looked like a Harpy smirked. "You take all the ladies, and I'll take all the men."

"Both of you are too greedy," an Ogre Abyssal Lord commented. "I'll take the kids. They taste good."

"Tsk! You all should tone down a bit," A Gargoyle Abyssal Lord stated.
""Hahaha!""

A few minutes later, they passed through the dense layer of Miasma and appeared in the lands of the Six Kingdoms.

"Hmm... it seems that all the living people in this territory are gathered in one spot," the Centaur said. "Well, that just makes our job easier," the Harpy stated. "Race you!"

Without a warning the Harpy increased her speed and laughed loudly, leaving behind her comrades.

"Damn hag!" the Ogre cursed. As the slowest in their group, it would definitely be the last person to arrive at the location where the people of the territory were gathered. Even so, it still did its best to run as fast as it could, creating minor tremors as it ran.

The Harpy Queen, who had a head start, arrived first at the city, where Barbatos Academy was located.

She was pleasantly surprised to see that the people in the city looked so happy as if there was some kind of festival.

This made her sadistic nature rise up to the surface as she decided to descend to give everyone a scare.

But just as she was about to descend, she saw a giggling baby Blue Slime sitting on the back of a baby Sea Otter. The two of them seemed to be playing and flying in circles around the city. They didn't even pay attention to the Abyssal Lord who was hovering hundreds of meters away from them. The thing that surprised the Harpy Queen was that the Sea Otter was actually flying, which piqued her interest.

This was the first time she had seen such a thing, and she thought that taking it as a pet was a good idea. 'Well, these Humans are not going anywhere,' the Harpy Queen mused as she flew towards the two Creatures who seemed to be having fun.

Lucky, who was flying without a care in the world, suddenly stopped mid-air when the Harpy Queen suddenly blocked his path.

"Well, hello there, my little pretties," the Harpy Queen said with a smile. "Both of you seem to be having fun. Can this Big Sister join you as well?"

Eiko looked at the Harpy Queen with great interest. This was the first time she was seeing a Harpy, and she thought that making it her pet would be good.

Suddenly, a loud laugh reverberated in the surroundings as the Centaur and the Gargoyle arrived.

Seeing so many beautiful ladies, the Centaur wasn't able to stop himself from laughing, making the Harpy Queen snort.

But just as the Centaur was about to start harassing the ladies, a giant Golden Anchor descended from the sky and crushed his body entirely.

The Gargoyle, who was dozens of meters away from his comrade, hastily backed away after seeing the Golden Anchor crush his comrade.

A few seconds later, the Golden Anchor shrank and flew toward the Baby Slime, who caught it like a boomerang.

The Harpy Queen stared at the harmless-looking Slime in front of her in disbelief. The Centaur was the second strongest Abyssal Lord in their group, second only to the Ogre, who was still a good distance away from the city.

Even now, she couldn't feel the Baby Slime's rank as if it was just an ordinary Slime that could be seen anywhere.

She even thought that the Abyssal Slimes, which could be found everywhere in the Abyss, had more presence than the Baby Slime in front of her, which made her only think of one possibility.

'This Baby Slime is stronger than us!' The Harpy Queen couldn't help but feel that she narrowly dodged death just a minute ago. She believed that if she even released the tiniest bit of killing intent toward the two little Creatures in front of her, she would have died not knowing how she died just like the Centaur!

The Abyssal Army that belonged to the Four Abyssal Lords finally arrived in the city.

However, before they could do anything, a fountain of blood erupted, decimating a quarter of the Abyssal Army in a heartbeat.

The Harpy Queen and the Gargoyle could only look in horror as their gazes landed on the back of a Black Knight, whose cape fluttered in the wind.

Diablo swung his sword a second time, reaping the lives of thousands of Monsters with a single strike.

Eiko, who was also watching this scene, was busy licking a pink lollipop that the Goddess Lily had given her before she returned to the Celestial Realm.

Diablo made short work of the entirety of the Abyssal Army, not allowing even a single one of them to escape.

When the Ogre finally arrived at the City, its sight was welcomed by the bloody scene in front of it, making it stop in its tracks.

However, before it could even ask its comrades what had happened, its vision spun.

A moment later, it saw its headless body still standing, with blood gushing out of its neck like a fountain.

When its body fell to the ground, it finally saw who had killed it.

A Black Knight whose blade was stained by the blood of its victims.

The Ogre's eyes finally dimmed as death finally embraced it.

The Gargoyle suddenly retreated as fast as it could, believing that the Black Knight wouldn't be able to catch it in the sky.

But half a minute later, a beam of light illuminated the Heavens, completely obliterating the Gargoyle, not even leaving a speck of dust behind.

High above Eiko's head, Poseidon hovered silently. It had the ability to turn completely invisible and hide its presence, which was why the Harpy Queen and its comrades were unable to sense it.

Now that all of her comrades were dead, the Harpy Queen felt as if there was an invisible rope tied around her neck, ready to strangle her if she made a wrong move.

"Want to be my pet?" Eiko asked.

"Yes!" the Harpy Queen immediately replied. "Make me your pet!"

Just as Eiko was about to nod her head.

A golden beam of light suddenly shot up toward the sky, creating a golden ripple that extended outward.

This ripple purified the Miasma in the surroundings and slowly encompassed the entirety of Solais.

The Abyssal Lords, who were still lording over the Kingdoms and Empires that they had subjugated, felt a chill run down their spine when the golden ripple passed over them.

A minute later, a voice filled with killing intent washed over them like a tide, making all of their faces turn grim.

"Wash your necks. I'm coming for you."

The Harpy Queen, who also heard the voice, trembled in fear.

"Eiko, I'm done," Lux said as he appeared right beside the Baby Slime. "Who's this?"

The Half-Elf eyed the Harpy Queen, which made the Abyssal Lord's heart shudder.

"My pet!" Eiko said proudly.

"Your pet?"

"Un!"

"I see," Lux gave the Harpy Queen an evil smile, making the latter almost faint. "Take good care of your pet okay?"

"Pa!" Eiko nodded.

"Let's play a game, Eiko," Lux said as he patted the baby slime's head. "I'll take North and East, while you take South and West. The first one to clean up all the Abyssal Monsters gets a prize."

"Okay!" Eiko agreed. "Come, Pipi!"

"P-Pipi?" the Harpy Queen stuttered as the Baby Slime motioned for her to follow. However, after sensing Lux's gaze, she no longer said anything and quietly followed the excited Baby Slime, who seemed to be hell-bent on winning the game that her Papa had proposed.

In just half a day, all the Abyssal Monsters were wiped out from the face of Solais.

Those who didn't treat the people too harshly were spared, but those who had killed countless lives didn't receive any mercy.

A day after that, a gigantic tree grew behind Barbatos Academy.

This was the World Tree created with the power of all the Pillars of Eternity.

With its appearance, the world entered a phase of rebirth, granting old and new wounds the opportunity to heal with time.

Chapter 1223.1: After Story: Reunited At Last [Part 1]

Luna sighed for the umpteenth time, as she stared at the picture frame in her hands. It was a picture of Lux and her posing for a commemorative photo before their ballroom scene was filmed.

There were other picture frames hanging on her wall, and one of them was taken when she and Lux went out on a "date", when the two of them had a day off from work.

Back then, they still hadn't made their feelings known to each other. And yet, their closeness was enough for both of them to understand what the other truly felt.

Glancing at the clock, Luna knew that it was finally time to go.

"I'm off, Lux," Luna said softly before kissing the Half-Elf in the picture. She then placed the picture frame back on the table beside her bed before leaving her room.

Today, she was going to audition for the leading role of a movie adaptation.

This was another big production that many actors, and actresses were aiming to get.

Since she had nothing better to do with her time, she decided to take a chance at it, while waiting for her beloved to return to her.

08:58

Since she had nothing better to do with her time, she decided to take a chance at it, while waiting for her beloved to return to her.

"Are you confident in getting the role?" Hollie asked as she drove the car towards their destination.

"All I can say is that I'll do my best," Luna replied. "If I get it then good. If not... then there's always other projects to join."

"That's right! There are many opportunities out there waiting for you. Just take one step at a time."

"Mmm."

When they arrived at the venue where the Actors and Actresses would be screened, Luna felt someone staring at her.

This wasn't the first time that something like this happened, so she was already used to it. But, this time, she felt very uncomfortable as if the one staring at her was looking at her with malicious intent.

Glancing in the direction where she felt the gaze was coming from, he saw a handsome young man with blonde hair and blue eyes.

She immediately recognized him as one of the Producers of the Movie that she planned to audition for.

"Don't look at that creep, Gustav," Hollie whispered. "He's always chasing the skirts of promising young actresses who don't have a strong backing. Many in the industry have already been ruined by him. "So, if he approaches you, just firmly reject him. It doesn't matter if you don't get this role or not. It's much better than being this guy's plaything."

Luna nodded and no longer paid attention to the Producer, who was looking at her with lustful eyes.

There was one project she had participated in where Gustav had been one of the producers of the show, and he made a move on Luna. Fortunately, Hollie was always with her, so he backed down when Luna's manager threatened to sue him. Even so, he had been eyeing Luna since her idol days, and he was one of her fans. But, he wanted to be more than a fan.

He wanted her, which made him decide to join this big production as one of its producers.

Gustav was one of the people who had the authority to pick the roles for the actors and actresses who would be auditioning today.

He had already prepared the perfect bait for Luna, who had done everything in her power to stay out of his sight.

Her record in the industry was quite clean. But, when Lux appeared in her life, Gustav knew that he needed to make his move before his target was stolen away from him.

Fortunately, the red-headed teenager disappeared, and although Gustav tried to find him, he wasn't even able to find the young man's shadow.

Still, he gathered enough material, and even fabricated a scandal that could destroy Luna's career once he made it public.

Simply put, he planned to blackmail Luna in order to make her his plaything, which was something that he had been planning to do for a long time.

Two hours later, Luna finished her audition and was about to go to where Hollie was waiting for her. That was when she met Gustav in the hallway. Luna had found it weird that no one was in the hallway when she finished her audition. Now that she was seeing the man in front of her, she finally understood the situation.

"What do you want?" Luna asked, not moving from where she stood.

"You," Gustav replied as he walked towards the young actress, whom he had violated so many times in his fantasies. "You're the one I want, Luna."

Luna knew that she couldn't move forward, so she decided to return to where she had come from. But, just as she was about to do that, three men wearing black appeared at the other end of the hallway.

Clearly, they had no intention of letting go.

"You know, if you just say yes, I promise you that you will live a very fulfilling life," Gustav said. "You will get the leading roles of any projects that you wish to have with my help. Most new actresses would jump at the opportunity to be in your shoes, Luna. So, why not become my woman and make your dreams come true?"

"I don't need you to make my dreams come true," Luna replied coldly. "If you don't let me go, I'm going to scream."

"Go ahead." Gustav smiled. "Although I'd like to make you scream in bed, hearing it now is also good."

Luna knew that if she didn't do anything now, it would end up badly for her. At that moment, a scream echoed in the hallway.

However, it wasn't the scream of a lady, but the scream of a man, whose arm was bent in a weird angle.

Luna's eyes widened in shock when she saw a girl, who looked just like her younger self.

After breaking Gustav's right arm, the girl went ahead to break his other arm, making Gustav scream a second time.

The men in black suits, who were behind Luna, immediately moved to rescue their employer.

But, they only managed to take a few steps when they suddenly collapsed on the ground, unconscious.

Luna looked at the young man, whom she hadn't seen for a while, making her cover her lips to hold back a sob.

Lux hugged the lady he loved and planted a kiss on her forehead.

"You and your sister still have a lot of catching up to do, so why don't you leave first?" Lux said before wiping the tears that had now started to fall from Luna's eyes. "Don't worry. I'll just do a bit of cleanup and follow the two of you right away, okay?"

Luna nodded before running towards her beloved sister, whom she hadn't seen in many years.

A moment later, both of them disappeared from the hallway, leaving only a screaming Gustav behind.

Lux's smile disappeared from his face as he walked towards the man, who tried to harm his woman.

Soon, more screams of pain reverberated inside the hallway, as Lux made sure that Gustav would never threaten a woman again in his lifetime.

Chapter 1224.2: After Story: Reunited At Last [Part 2]

When Lux found Luna and Aina, the pair of sisters were hugging each other tightly.

If you looked at them from afar, they would look like an older sister and a little sister showing their familial love to each other.

When they noticed the Half-Elf's arrival, the two ladies looked at him askance.

"Everything's fine," Lux said. "I've dealt with him."

"Did you kill him?" Aina asked.

Although she tried hard to hide it, her killing intent was oozing from her body. She had been very tempted earlier to personally snap Gustav's neck, but Lux asked her to calm down through telepathy.

Because of this, she decided to just break both of his arms to make sure that he would feel a lot of pain.

Lux didn't stop his lover from doing so since even he wanted to do the same. He knew that Luna was very precious to Aina, and those who tried to harm her sister would no doubt be crushed by her own two hands.

"He's halfway there," Lux replied.

"Good." Aina nodded before hugging her sister once again.

Luna's face was already a mess. Her tears had ruined her makeup, and yet, Lux still found her beautiful.

"Let's leave this place for now," Lux proposed. "Let's go somewhere that is not too conspicuous."

With a wave of his hand, the three of them reappeared inside Luna's condo unit in an instant.

"You better give Hollie a call first, so she won't panic when she can't find you in the venue," Lux said with a smile.

Luna had completely forgotten about her manager after seeing her sister whom she hadn't seen for years.

She hastily made a call, telling Hollie that she had left the venue and went shopping on her own.

Although the excuse she made was a bit sketchy, her Manager didn't pry and just told her to be careful and to return home as soon as she could.

After that matter had been dealt with, she sat on the couch with her sister and held her tightly.

"Is this a dream?" Luna asked. "If it is, I no longer want to wake up."

"Silly girl," Lux gently patted her head. "Of course, this isn't a dream. From now on, you will be able to see your sister anytime you want. But aside from Aina, you've also gained a new little sister that goes by the name Colette."

Aina nodded and looked at her sister with gentle eyes.

"She's a very lovable girl," Aina said. "I'm sure you will like her."

"I know I will," Luna replied. "But for now, stay with me, okay?"

"Mmm."

"Thank you."

An hour later, Luna finally regained her composure and asked Lux if the important matter that he had to deal with was finally over.

"Do you want to hear the long story or the short summary?" Lux asked in a teasing tone.

"The short summary, please," Luna replied.

The Half-Elf nodded and told her the summary of what had happened after he returned to Elysium.

While he was busy explaining things to Luna, several little creatures were exploring the city on their own.

"Um, just make sure to not stray too far from me, okay?" Kazogonaga said to the little ones, who were following behind him. If you get lost, it will be a big problem."

"Un!"

"Da Wei~"

"Dim Dim!"

A week after the battle in the Void Battlefield, James surprised Lux by telling him that he had successfully established a connection between Elysium and Earth.

However, since the connection was still not that stable, only a few people could travel from Elysium to Earth using the Bifrost Bridge.

James had other things to do, so the old Bandit asked the rainbow-colored Anteater to guide Lux to Earth.

Lux and Aina went off to find Luna, while the little ones decided to explore this brand-new world together.

Kasogonaga became their guide and nanny. He didn't mind since he believed that the two Baby Slimes, the Sea Otter, and Dim Dim were all good kids.

When Eiko and Fei Fei saw a cake shop, the two Baby Slimes drooled as they looked at the cakes that were on display.

"Do you want to take a look inside?" Kazogonaga asked. "Don't worry. All of you can eat as much as you want. I have a Platinum Card with me. The sky's the limit!"

"Yay!"

"Wei!"

"Dim Dim!"

Kazogonaga entered the shop with confidence and was immediately mobbed by the customers, as well as the staff of the shop.

Since he was a Super Celebrity, they all wanted his autograph and a selfie with him.

Of course, Kazogonaga didn't disappoint his fans and posed with them.

"What's this?! Why are they so cute?!"

"They look so jiggly as well."

"Um, this Dim Sum looks good. I feel hungry now."

The ladies inside the Cake Shop weren't able to resist Eiko's, Fei Fei's, Lucky's, and Dim Dim's cuteness, making them fangirl over them.

If not for the fact that they didn't want to offend Kasogonaga, they would have already picked up the cute Monsters and peppered them with kisses.

Meanwhile, back in Luna's condo...

Lux had finished telling Luna his tale, shocking her completely.

Seeing the dumbfounded look on her face, Lux couldn't help but lightly pinch her cheeks, so she would snap out of her daze.

"Aina, why don't you take a bath with your sister for now," Lux proposed.

The beautiful Dwarf nodded because her sister's face was truly a mess. Although she didn't mind it, she wanted her sister to feel relaxed and comfortable, so she took her to the bathroom to take a bath together.

Lux, on the other hand, glanced in the direction where Eiko and the others were.

The Half-Elf couldn't help but smile after seeing that the four little troublemakers were busy eating all types of cakes.

He continued to watch their little adventure in the city, completely forgetting about the passage of time.

The Half-Elf only broke out of his daze when he felt someone touch the side of his face.

When he turned to look at Aina, his body subconsciously stiffened when he saw that she and her sister, Luna, only had bath towels covering their bodies.

Their hair was also still a bit wet, and both of them smelled really nice.

At that exact moment, he heard a notification from the Guild Chat and saw Cethus' complaint about him going to Earth without bringing them along.

"Come back and take us to Earth as well!" Cethus demanded. "I want to see what the Low Landers of this place called Earth are like!"

Lux casually ignored Cethus' demand and even turned off the notifications of his Guild Chat.

He then allowed himself to be pulled by the two beautiful ladies toward the bedroom, where they would talk about important matters.

'Yes, this is more important than Cethus,' Lux smiled as he lightly tugged on the bath towels covering the bodies of his two lovers, making them fall down beside their feet.

Lux couldn't help but admire the two beauties in front of him, so he firmly put aside Cethus' selfish demands.

Demands that could wait until he, Luna, and Aina had finished sating the cravings of their bodies and hearts, which had been waiting for this moment for a very long time.

Chapter 1225: After Story: Can We Keep Her?

While Lux, Aina, and the cute troublemakers were having fun on Earth, some unexpected guests arrived on the Floating Island of Heaven's Gate.

The original floating island had been completely destroyed by Daniel.

However, since the Floating Island and the Giant Earth Turtle were merged into becoming a single entity, the Half-Elf was able to resurrect it.

For the time being, members of Heaven's Gate used the Royal Palace of the Fynn Kingdom as their temporary lodgings while their Guild Headquarters were being rebuilt.

Everyone's gaze landed on the old man wearing an eye patch and then on the extremely beautiful woman behind him.

Aurora, who saw them, smiled sweetly and immediately approached Queen Rhiannon, who was holding her little sister, Dia, in her arms.

Iris, Cai, Valerie, Aurelia, Ali, and Ari immediately figured out who the woman was and the baby that she was holding.

The ladies didn't move from their spot and only looked at the Succubus Queen warily, which amused Queen Rhiannon.

Aurora knew what her sisters were thinking, so she decided to take the initiative to introduce her mother to them.

"This is Queen Rhiannon. As you already know, she is the Ruler of the 13th Layer of the Abyss," Aurora replied. "And this cute baby in my arms is none other than Dia, Lux's baby. Isn't she adorable?"

Aurora, who was already holding Dia in her arms, walked toward her sisters and allowed them to have a better look at Lux's first child.

Iris fell in love with the baby the moment she saw how chubby Dia's cheeks were.

She lightly poked the baby's chubby cheeks, making her feel something warm spreading inside her chest.

Dia, who had been poked, smiled immediately, making her whole face brighten up. She then made gurgling sounds as if trying to communicate with Iris.

This gesture of hers was too cute, making everyone's heart melt.

"I can't take it," Cai said as she gently touched Dia's small hand with her finger. "Can we keep her?"

"No," Queen Rhiannon replied with a smile. "But you can play with her anytime you want."

As if confirming her mother's words, Dia's hand curled up to hold Cai's finger, making the High Priestess press her hand over her heart due to how moved she was.

"Dia says we can keep her." Ari was quick to comment because she could sense Lux's bloodline flowing inside Dia's body. "Any objections?"

""No Objections!""

As someone who had been intimate with the Half-Elf in various ways, she immediately sensed that the baby was truly her lover's child.

Queen Rhiannon could only shake her head helplessly as she looked at Lux's other lovers.

The beautiful ladies fawned over Lux's baby and took turns holding Dia, kissing her chubby cheeks and making the baby giggle.

Queen Rhiannon watched this scene fondly and allowed the beautiful ladies to do what they wanted.

Although she felt a little guilty about giving birth to Lux's child first before his future wives, she didn't regret it.

She might have decided to give birth to Lux's child on a whim, but during the months that she carried Dia in her womb, the Succubus Queen knew then and there that this was a child that she would love with all of her heart.

Queen Rhiannon knew that she wasn't a good mother because of what happened with Aurora.

However, this time, she wanted to do it right.

A few minutes later, a handsome man, who seemed to be in his early forties, appeared beside Queen Rhiannon.

He held a scholarly aura, but his gaze was deep and profound, making those who looked at him know that he wasn't someone ordinary.

"The Bifrost Bridge is not stable yet, so the rest on the 13th Layer will have to wait for a few more days before they can come to visit this place," the handsome man said.

"Thank you, Lord Antero," Queen Rhiannon replied. "The connection wouldn't have been made so quickly if not for your help."

"It is just a small matter, Little Rhiannon," Antero, who had taken a human form, replied. "I cannot stay here for long because there are matters that I need to attend to in the Abyss. When Lux returns, call for me."

"Understood." Queen Rhiannon nodded.

The handsome man then glanced at Lux's lovers, who were taking turns in holding his granddaughter.

A moment later, he disappeared, returning to the Abyss in order to stabilize the civil wars that were taking place on the Layers that had lost their leaders.

It would take a few years before order returned to the Abyss.

Antero didn't plan on doing anything to stop the fight for power.

He just wanted to make sure that none of the Abyssal Monsters did anything stupid, such as going to the lowest layer to wake up the Outer God, who was still sleeping despite everything that had happened.

Antero understood that this was a normal thing.

For Outer Gods like Azathoth, the mundane affairs of Mortals were just a trivial thing.

They were too tiny and insignificant for someone like it to actually care, so despite someone leeching off him, he couldn't care enough to wake up from his slumber and continued to dream.

An hour later, the atmosphere between the ladies became lively.

Everyone was smitten with Dia, so they no longer thought of the Succubus Queen as their enemy.

Since she was still a baby, Dia got tired easily, and soon, she was peacefully sleeping in Valerie's arms.

'So this is what it feels like to have a baby,' Valerie thought as she lovingly and carefully held the child in her arms as if holding a priceless treasure.

Seeing this, Aurelia couldn't help but touch her abdomen. A few months from now, she would also give birth to Lux's child. She was certain that she would also be very happy once she saw and held her own child for the first time.

"That's it," Cai said softly. "When Lux returns, I'll ask him to get me pregnant as well."

"Me, too." Iris nodded.

In the past, she thought that she would be the one to give birth to Lux's child first. When she discovered that Valerie and Aurelia were already pregnant, she uncontrollably felt sad, feeling like something important had been taken from her.

Even so, this feeling didn't last for long and was replaced with the happiness of knowing that their family was getting bigger.

She knew that a year or two from now, she, too, would be holding her baby in her arms, making her feel complete.

For the time being, she decided to treat Lux's babies as her own.

The funny thing was that she wasn't the only one thinking along those lines.

Cai, Ali, Ari, and Aurora were all thinking the same.

They also wished to hold their own babies in their arms as soon as possible.

But for the time being, they were content with taking turns kissing and holding Dia and looking forward to her growth.

Several years in the future, Dia would step out into the multiverse to find her own destined one—a man who would have to overcome the hurdle named Lux before he could hold hands with the young lady, whom he was going to share forever with.

-----
(E/N: The scarier part for that man is that Lux would learn a lot from fishing trips. He can be sure as heck that he'd be facing a new and improved version.)

Chapter 1226: After Story: Fishing Trip With The In-Laws

Eiko hummed as she, Fei Fei, and Dim Dim, held small fishing poles in their hands.

The three troublemakers were seated on Lux's right side, who also had a fishing pole in his hand.

It had been a month since their exploration on Earth, and the three of them had a great time.

Lux took them to amusement parks, watch movies, play some games, and did anything fun that they could think of.

Luna became their guide, and took them to the places where she had wanted to go in the past. However, she wasn't able to do it because of the heartache that she felt after losing her Grandparents, and sister, whom she loved very much.

Lux returned to Elysium every few days to ensure that no problem had occurred during his absence.

It was also at that time when King Azza found him, and invited him on a fishing trip, which he readily accepted.

Sitting on the Half-Elf's left side was none other than King Azza, and Keoza sat beside the Dragon King.

Sitting beside Keoza was none other than Aina's father, King Victor.

They, too, were holding fishing poles in their hands.

All of them were seated on a cliff, overlooking the sea.

Three hundred meters away from them, the ladies were seated on picnic blankets, and chatting with each other.

None of them were aware that the purpose of this fishing trip was to feed Lux to the fishes, so that he would disappear by accident.

At least, that was the original plan in the past.

This location was swarming with Empyrean-Ranked Sea Monsters, so it was very easy for a Low Ranker to become fish food in a heartbeat.

But, the current Half-Elf, was no longer the weakling of the past.

Empyrean-Ranked Monsters were now food to him, so he thought that this fishing trip was something that his father-in-laws had set up, so that they could form closer bonds with each other.

The two Dragon Kings had unreadable looks on their faces, while the Dwarf King was wondering why he was included on this fishing trip.

Only the three troublemakers seemed to be enjoying their first fishing trip together and were looking forward to catching something.

The Deimos, Argonaut, and Empyrean-Ranked Sea Monsters on the other hand, had all evacuated the area when they sensed the presence of the powerful beings, who had come to catch them.

Only the lower-ranked Monsters, who still couldn't measure the level of someone's strength, remained.

One of those monsters bit the bait of Eiko's fishing pole and gave it a strong tug.

It's intention was to bring the Baby Slime from the cliff and make it an appetizer.

But, to its surprise, the Baby Slime didn't budge.

"Ei!" Eiko, who noticed that something had bitten her bait, immediately turned around and pulled hard on the fishing pole, making the two-meter-long Rank 5 Sea Trout fall on land.

Of course, as a Rank 5 Monster, it wouldn't really die on land that easily. It could casually leap back to the sea if it wanted, returning to its home turf.

But, before it could do that, it found itself getting body slammed by the three kids, who were very eager to play with the fish that Eiko caught.

"Eiko, Fei Fei, Dim Dim, don't play with your food," Lux said as he glanced at the pitiful Sea Trout, who was being pinned down by the three troublemakers.

"Pa!" Eiko said before giving the Sea Trout a slap on its face.

"Wei!" Fei Fei replied before spitting a fireball on the Sea Trout's fins.

"Dim Dim!" Dim Dim shouted happily as it jumped up and down on the Sea Trout's back, breaking its bones.

Ten minutes later, Ali and Ari were grilling the Sea Trout, which they would have for lunch.

Eiko, Fei Fei, and Dim Dim, returned to holding their fishing poles, and were more eager than ever to catch more fishes to share with everyone.

"Father, thank you for inviting me on this fishing trip," Lux said to King Azza, who still had his poker face activated.

"Mmm," King Azza hummed. "Fishing trips are good from time to time."

King Azza knew that if the Half-Elf was weaker than him, things might have ended differently for this fishing trip.

But, after the battle against Daniel, the Half-Elf's strength had reached the realm of a true Pseudo-God.

Lux could ascend to Godhood anytime, but he didn't take that step, and chose to remain with the mortals in Solais and Elysium.

In short, no High-Ranking Sea Monsters in Elysium would dare to target the Half-Elf and treat him as fish food.

Just a single glance from him was enough to sever the connection of their soul from their bodies, turning it into a living vessel without a soul.

Even the current Dragon King, the one hailed as the strongest person in Elysium, wasn't safe from the power of Death that the Half-Elf currently wielded.

If Lux wished to live forever, he could do so because Death was no longer a threat to him.

"Father, Valerie told me that she wanted to have a dozen kids," Lux said. "While I am happy with that, I want you to help me convince her that having that many babies might have an effect on her health. I think four babies are fine, what do you think?"

"Four is good," King Azza nodded. "Don't worry, I'll talk to her later."

"Thank you, Father." Lux nodded.

Keoza, who was listening from the side, decided to ask Lux a question.

"How about Aurelia?" Keoza asked. "Did she tell you how many children she wanted?"

Lux nodded. "Aurelia said that she wanted two children. Since I will have a lot of kids, she thinks that giving birth to more than that is not necessary."

"I see," Keoza replied. "I am also looking forward to seeing my first grandchild soon."

"I am just excited as you are, Father." Lux smiled.

He knew how much courage it took for Aurelia to take that next step in their relationship and give birth to his child.

Truth be told, the Half-Elf didn't know if she only said those things back then due to the effect of the aphrodisiac, or because she felt competitive with Valerie.

But, when he asked her for confirmation, she told him that she was still thinking properly even when she was influenced by the aphrodisiac.

Although the aphrodisiac played its part, Aurelia was the one who decided to take the leap of faith, which caused her to end up pregnant.

Dragons didn't conceive easily.

They could go on for hundreds of years without giving birth, so when she found out that she was pregnant with Lux's child, it made her very happy.

That day, Lux, King Azza, Keoza, and King Victor didn't catch any fish, and only chatted with each other.

It was only Eiko, Fei Fei, and Dim Dim, who actually caught the fish that their group ate during their first fishing trip together.

Although it didn't end up like the Dragon Kings originally planned, they still found this trip worth their while.

Since their daughters were already carrying his children, the two Dragon Kings asked him when the wedding ceremony would be held.

Lux thought that it was also about time that he married his lovers, so he decided to consult the two Dragon Kings when the best day to hold the marriage would be.

Since it was going to be a big event, they decided to hold the wedding day in half a year, which would give them enough time to prepare the venue, as well as send invitations to all the important people in both Solais and Elysium.

Chapter 1227: After Story: Can I Really Do What I Want?

"This is an emergency," Princess Anastasia said with a solemn expression on her face. "Sir Lux is going to get married soon, but we still haven't made any progress with our relationship with him. What should we do?"

"...Why are you asking me?" Henrietta asked.

"Isn't it obvious? Didn't your fiance break up with you because he fell in love with someone else?" Princess Anastasia replied.

"And?" Henrietta blinked in confusion.

"That means you're free and can now pursue Sir Lux too!"

"Hah?"

Henrietta, who had come to visit Lux's Guild Headquarters in order to relax, was suddenly invited over by the Dwarven Princess, who had also come over for a visit.

Since Anastasia was now part of Heaven's Gate, she often talked with Iris to ask for advice on how to get closer to the handsome Half-Elf of her dreams.

During one of their talks, Iris mentioned that she was feeling sad because Henrietta's fiance had one-sidedly broken their marriage agreement in order to pursue the person he loved.

While it was no secret that they didn't love each other and were just engaged because their families thought that the marriage alliance would strengthen both sides, she still felt bad that Henrietta, who had steeled herself to go through with the marriage, was suddenly left alone.

Of course, Iris wanted one of her best friends to also be happy in life, so she believed that this was a blessing in disguise.

Even so, Henrietta seemed to be feeling down after her engagement was canceled. It had been a week since then.

Iris had mentioned that Henrietta might have feelings for Lux but was forced to hide them inside her heart because of her current situation.

After listening to Lux's First Fiance, Princess Anastasia thought that she had finally found an ally.

This was also why she didn't hesitate to invite Henrietta to have some tea with her in the guest room that was provided for her in the Fynn Royal Palace.

"Don't worry, the two of us are not alone," Princess Anastasia held Henrietta's hand. "We still have one more ally that we can count on!"

"... Like I said, why are you dragging me into thi—" Henrietta's words were cut short after they heard a knock on the door.

Millie, who was Princess Anastasia's Protector, walked toward the door and opened it.

"This is what I like about you Anastasia. You don't waste time."

"Big Sister, thank you for coming!"

Henrietta's face became solemn as her gaze landed on the Succubus Queen, whom the Dwarven Princess referred to as a Big Sister.

Although she knew that Queen Rhiannon wouldn't harm her now due to her relationship with Lux, the things that happened in the past were still fresh in her mind.

Actually, after seeing the Succubus Queen, Henrietta suddenly remembered the time when she almost did it with the Half-Elf.

If not for the fact that Lux stopped her from lowering her hips to seal the deal, things might have ended differently for the two of them.

"I can understand that you are wary of me, Henrietta, and I apologize for what has happened in the past," Queen Rhiannon slightly bowed her head to the young lady, whom she had made use of to test how much Lux and Cai loved one another while they were still in the Abyss.

"I have already moved on from it," Henrietta replied. "You don't have to worry about it anymore, Your Majesty."

Queen Rhiannon smiled and nodded her head in understanding.

"Now that we have gathered, why don't we all talk about how to make the two of you become Lux's lovers as well?" Queen Rhiannon pressed her hands together with an amused look on her face.

"Yes!" Princess Anastasia looked at the Succubus Queen with sparkling eyes.

"Um, I still need to do something, so I'll see you girls later." Henrietta had a very bad feeling about this, so she wanted to leave as soon as possible.

When she was only a few meters away from the door, she heard a deep sigh coming from behind her.

"Henrietta, are you sure that you want to leave?" Queen Rhiannon asked. "Do you want to hide your true feelings and carry them to the grave? Didn't you already die once? Did you not have any regrets after you got killed in the Void Battlefield?"

Henrietta, whose hand was about to touch the door handle, momentarily froze.

Just like everyone, she had also participated in the battle in the Void Battlefield.

Actually, after Cethus died, Henrietta and a few members of her Guild died not long after.

They were doing their best to protect their Guild Headquarters from being overrun by riding on Gyrocopters, but the enemy forces simply outnumbered them.

Just as she was about to breathe her last, she felt an ache in her heart because, at the very last moment, she was unable to see the face of the person she liked.

If someone asked Henrietta if she died with regrets, she would answer yes.

She definitely regretted many things, and among them was not being able to say her true feelings.

However, she didn't want to get in the way of Iris' love and supported her from behind.

She focused her attention on managing the affairs of their Guild, Serenity, in order to suppress the feelings, which she believed to only be puppy love.

"Henrietta, life is a gift," Princess Anastasia said. "You've been given a second chance at life. Do you want to die without even trying? Do you want to die without even giving closure to your feelings?"

"I don't want to live that kind of life, so I believe that we should be true to our feelings. Even if we get rejected, we can hold our heads high knowing that we did everything in our power to make it happen.

"If it doesn't really work out then we can cry together! After that, we can look for someone else to love. Won't you at least give your feelings a chance?"

Princess Anastasia's gaze was firm, as she looked at Henrietta's back.

The purple-haired beauty's hand was now touching the door handle, but she didn't make any move to pull or push it open.

She just stood there, digesting everything that the Dwarven Princess had told her.

Queen Rhiannon didn't say anything because she believed that Princess Anastasia had already said what she wanted to say.

If Henrietta still didn't change her mind, then there was nothing she could do about it.

When the Succubus Queen and the Dwarven Princess thought that Henrietta would go ahead and leave the room, she suddenly asked them a question, making the two of them sigh in their hearts.

"Is it really okay?" Henrietta asked without turning her head to look at the two people behind her. "Can I really do what I want?"

"Of course, it's okay," Princess Anastasia replied. "You only live once—errr, twice! Don't worry, we are in this together!"

"As someone who had managed to give birth to Lux's first child, I am confident that I can give the two of you some good advice," Queen Rhiannon stated. "So why don't we all sit down and talk about it?"

Henrietta remained standing for a few more seconds before she turned around to return to the couch.

She still didn't know if staying was the right thing to do, but she also felt that if she missed this chance, she would regret it later.

Little did the four ladies know that just outside their door, Lux was holding a tray of freshly baked cookies from the kitchen.

Because of his heightened senses, it didn't even take him any effort to hear what the three ladies were talking about inside the room.

When he realized that they were talking about him, he thought that leaving them alone was a good idea.

But Princess Anastasia's passionate speech rooted him in place.

If Henrietta had opened the door at that time, she would have seen Lux in front of her, holding a tray of cookies in his hands.

But that scenario didn't happen.

Lux didn't leave immediately. Only after hearing what Henrietta had to say did he walk away from the guest room.

He knew that things would just become awkward if he went in there while the three ladies were talking about him.

The Half-Elf already knew Princess Anastasia's feelings about him, but this was the first time that he knew of Henrietta's thoughts about him.

'I guess I'll go talk to Iris for a bit,' Lux thought as he used his powers to locate his lover inside the Palace.

When Lux finally disappeared from the hallway, a faint smile appeared on the Succubus Queen's lips.

As one of the strongest Demigods in existence and as someone who had given birth to his child, Queen Rhiannon knew that Lux had been standing just outside of the door and had heard everything that had been said inside the room.

'Although he may not marry these two this year or the year after, I'm sure that their feelings have reached him,' Queen Rhiannon thought as she looked at Princess Anastasia, who was busy giving Henrietta some encouragement while holding the young lady's hands.

And just like the Succubus Queen had predicted, Lux did indeed marry Princess Anastasia and Henrietta a year after he wed Iris and the others, giving the two people who loved him very much, a happy ending as well.

Chapter 1228.1: After Story: The Dawn Of A New Era [Part 1]

Seductive moans echoed throughout the room as Lux embraced Aurora.

Unfortunately, it was not only the two of them who were in the room. The Succubus Queen, Rhiannon, was also there to join in the fun.

Dia was currently under the care of Iris and Cai. The two were more than happy to spend time with the cute and adorable baby who sparked their desire to have children of their own as soon as possible.

Their wedding was only a month away. Right after that, Lux would finally ensure that all of them got pregnant, except for Ali and Ari, who said that they would wait until Valerie had safely given birth to her baby.

They wanted to be there during that important moment and share her happiness. The twins viewed the Dragon Princess as their own little sister, whom they wanted to spoil very much.

"Amazing, isn't it?" Queen Rhiannon said as he hugged Lux from behind, pressing her voluptuous chest against his back. "Aurora will definitely surpass my beauty in a few years. You're lucky to have her as your wife."

Lux didn't reply as he continued to kiss Aurora passionately, fully enjoying the feeling of being sandwiched between two beautiful ladies.

One had already given birth to his child, and the other would soon conceive his child as well.

Queen Rhiannon still didn't know that her daughter was the former Goddess of Solais.

The Goddess who had tried to stop Daniel from ascending into Godhood, which cost her a huge price—the loss of her Divinity and bearing the curse of endless bad luck as a mortal.

But she didn't have any regrets.

Aurora had finally wrestled control over the curse in her body.

Instead of being controlled by it, she now controlled it, using it as a weapon if she had to.

Anyone who dared to antagonize her would find themselves experiencing the worst luck in the world, which had been refined by countless years of suffering.

Fortunately, those years of suffering had ended and would be replaced by years of happiness and pleasure with the man she loved.

"What a sinful man you are, Lux," Queen Rhiannon whispered in the Half-Elf's ears the moment he joined with Aurora, moving his hips in a steady rhythm, making the beautiful lady under him sigh in pleasure. "Not only did you eat me, you've eaten my daughter as well. Sinful men like you deserve to be punished."

The Succubus Queen then lightly turned the Half-Elf's head to the side before sealing it with her lips.

'Whoever made the dish Oyakodon needs a five-star review,' Lux thought as he immersed himself in this sinful display of love and affection.

Since the Succubus Queen had already given birth to his child, she was technically now part of his family.

Because of this, he decided to take responsibility and marry Queen Rhiannon as well, alongside her daughter, Aurora.

With Antero making sure that the denizens of the Abyss behaved, there was no immediate need for the Succubus Queen to return to the Thirteenth Layer.

Also, since the Old Bandit, James, had connected the Thirteenth Layer of the Abyss and Lux's Guild Headquarters with the Bifrost Bridge, she could come and go anytime she wanted.

She also understood that she would find no better man than Lux in both Elysium and the Abyss, so she decided that it was finally time for her to settle down.

As for the rest of the Succubi, there were plenty of bachelors in Elysium. With their charm, she was certain that they would find someone who would love and care for them deeply, just like the young man whom she was sharing a passionate kiss with.

Lux lost count of how many times he released his essence under the combined attack of the mother and daughter pair.

The only thing he knew was that he didn't have any regrets as the two of them cleaned Little Lux together after three hours of making love with him.

"I guess being a Pseudo-God has its perks," Queen Rhiannon said in a teasing manner. "You're still so lively. Fortunately, you have many wives. Otherwise, just one or two would not be able to handle you on their own."

The Half-Elf couldn't refute Queen Rhiannon's words because even after making love to two Succubi, he was still raring to go.

However, he knew that both were already tired, so after they finished cleaning Little Lux, he took them to the bathroom and personally washed their bodies.

He didn't make any moves to continue another round and earnestly cleaned them before taking them back to the bed.

Of course, he made sure to change the sheets so that they could sleep comfortably side by side.

His arms were wrapped around their beautiful bodies, while their heads rested on his chest.

"Aurora, how many kids do you want to have?" Queen Rhiannon asked her daughter in a teasing tone.

"At least two," Aurora replied. "We can have more later, but I think having four is enough. After all, Lux will also have children from my other sisters."

"Indeed." Queen Rhiannon smiled. "There is also a possibility that after he marries us, he will marry a new batch of wives later."

Lux, who was being sandwiched by the two beauties, pretended that he was asleep as the two continued their conversation.

Of course, they knew that the Half-Elf was just faking it, so they continued to chat while their hands caressed his chest, abs, and thigh, and also teased Little Lux, who was more than ready to fight another round with their soft hands.

Lux wasn't someone who actively sought to increase the number of his lovers. For him, the current lovers he had were enough.

However, after overhearing the discussion between Queen Rhiannon, Princess Anastasia, and Henrietta, he decided to consult Iris and Cai about it.

Ironically, his Grandmaster, Hereswith, chose that time to visit him, so she also heard their discussion.

She even jokingly said that if Lux was interested, he could marry her as well.

But, the Half-Elf knew that the beautiful Elf was only joking.

He already knew that Hereswith had someone in her heart, and it pained him to know that even with the powers he currently possessed, he was unable to give her the happiness that she deserved.

In the end, Iris and Cai told him that they wouldn't have any problems if Lux were to marry Princess Anastasia and Henrietta.

The Half-Elf then decided to consider this possibility right after his marriage with his current lovers.

Aside from Iris, Cai, Aina, Valerie, Aurelia, Aurora, Ali, Ari, and Queen Rhiannon, the Half-Elf also planned to marry Luna.

Fortunately, the young lady didn't need a lot of convincing, especially since she was already in love with Lux.

The thought of living with him as a family with her sister, Aina, was more than enough reason for her to accept his proposal to marry him.

It would not be an exaggeration to say that Lux was the most powerful individual in both Elysium and Solais, making some other rulers think about marrying their daughters to him to form stronger ties with him.

But, the Half-Elf had asked his Father, Alexander, to reject all of these marriage proposals.

After Princess Anastasia and Henrietta, who truly loved him, he had no interest in increasing the number of his wives.

His Friend, Keane, had married Rose two weeks ago and had gone on a honeymoon on Earth.

The Half-Elf made sure that both of them got the best accommodation possible so that they could enjoy their newly married life.

Chapter 1229.2: After Story: The Dawn Of A New Era [Part 2]

There were also a few others who had formed relationships during and after the war.

Great General Garret's two daughters, Alexa and Emily, were both secretly dating Gerhart.

The Great General only found out about it a week after the war ended, when he found his two daughters inside Gerhart's room...

Lying on top of his bed...

And playing cards with him.

(A/N: Kekeke)

When Garret saw this scene, he immediately asked his daughters to leave and had a private talk with Gerhart. The Half-Elf confessed that he was in a relationship with the General's two daughters.

In the end, the General gave them his blessing. After all, he knew what kind of person Gerhart was.

He believed that the Half-Elf would take good care of his daughters. They seem to be really smitten with him as well.

But what surprised Lux, and probably the rest of the members of Heaven's Gate, was actually Cethus.

The Dragon Born was actually dating Emma, and none of them had any idea about it!

The two didn't even interact much together inside the Guild Headquarters, so this news took everyone by surprise.

So after having some girl's talk with Iris, and the others, Emma finally spilled the beans that Cethus and her had been talking in private using their Guild Chat.

When they asked her when it all started, she said that it happened after she and Cethus completed their mission.

It was the mission where they activated a teleportation Gate to allow the members of Heaven's Gate to rush to the front lines of the war during the first days of the Abyssal invasion.

A relationship between a Dragon Born and a Dwarf was something that had never happened in the past.

But Cethus and Emma seemed to be serious about their relationship, so everyone gave them their blessings.

After being revived by the Half-Elf, Sid and Scarlet went to talk to him and asked for his blessing because they decided to marry each other.

Lux thought that it was only a matter of time before the two developed feelings for each other since they were almost always together.

When Laura and Livia heard that their brother planned to marry, both of them became ecstatic.

They loved their Big Brother, so seeing him marry someone made them happy. They were also looking forward to meeting their niece or nephew, whom they planned to spoil rotten.

Speaking of relationships that had finally come out in the open, Lux also did something to help the first two people who took good care of him when he arrived in Leaf Village, which almost felt like a lifetime ago.

When he resurrected his Master, Randolph and Grandma Annie, he gave them new bodies, making them revert to their early twenties.

The Half-Elf even threatened Randolph that if he wasn't going to marry Grandma Annie, he would be marrying her instead.

Of course, the Blacksmith didn't take his statement lying down, and the two ended up in a fistfight, with Randolph shouting for everyone to hear that he wouldn't give Grandma Annie to the Half-Elf no matter what.

"If you want to marry Annie, you have to go through my dead body first, you unfilial Disciple! Don't you know how long I've loved her?! Bastard! Just because you're a little more popular with the ladies, you think that you can steal Annie from me? Dream on!"

Of course, Lux didn't really love Grandma Annie in a romantic way and only loved her as a family member, just like his Master Randolph.

This was also why he decided to take matters into his own hands and force his stubborn Master to make his feelings known.

The Master-Disciple duo only stopped fighting when Grandma Annie slapped both of them silly with her sandals and made them kneel on the ground while reflecting on their actions.

The funny thing was that, even though she was nagging at them for creating a ruckus, her face was beet-red, which made Cedwyn and the rest of the Elders of Leaf Town tease her. As a result, they also earned a slap from her sandals, making them flee for their lives.

In the end, Randolph manned up and proposed to Annie in front of the entirety of Leaf Town, which made her knock him unconscious for embarrassing her in front of everyone.

Lux snuck away during the commotion and decided to just let nature take its course with the two people who helped him during his early days in Elysium.

Similar to the two Dwarves, Lux also made the former Village Chief and the other Elders younger, giving them a new lease on life.

He wanted Leaf Town to prosper, so he wanted Cedwyn and the Elders to work harder to continue the legacy of the Dwarf, Faunus, who built it from scratch.

Leaf Village held a very special place in Lux's heart. It was where everything started.

Matty, who was worried that Colette would become one of Lux's lovers due to how close they were, proposed to her.

Colette accepted his proposal, making the Simp Dwarf very happy.

Those who had died in the war against the Abyssal Army felt that after getting a second chance at life, they should live it to the fullest.

People confessed their feelings to the ones they loved, regardless of whether they would succeed or not.

They no longer wanted to regret anything and wanted to live their lives to the fullest.

Even Nero, the one who hated Lux in the past, found happiness after becoming engaged to the third Princess of the Vahan Empire, which Emperor Andreas ruled.

He was one of the people who joined the battle in the Abyss and perished after trying his best to protect his subordinates, who were fighting alongside him.

Of course, there were also other surprises that emerged in the months before Lux's wedding ceremony.

Lady Faustina and Piccoro also decided to tie the knot after the two Dragon Kingdoms decided to stop all hostilities against each other.

They didn't plan on merging into a single kingdom again and decided to have two kingdoms that would keep each other in check to ensure the prosperity of the Dragon Race.

All of these things were only possible because Lux had made it possible.

And now, as the new era of peace dawned on both Elysium and Solais, the last preparations for the grandest wedding ceremony in both worlds were reaching their final stages.

As all of this was happening, the groom slept soundly in the embrace of his two future wives, who were determined to make him the happiest man in the world for many years to come.

(A/N: I've already mentioned it once, but I'll just clarify a few things so there will be no misunderstandings. Currently, I am still not 100% recovered from my exhaustion, and I will be returning home on the 29th of February.

After that, I will focus my attention on finishing the final After Stories of this novel, and change its status to "Completed" on March 8.

The moment I do that, all privilege tiers will deactivate. So, DO NOT BUY the Privilege for the Month of March for this novel because it will only be wasted.

If you really want to support me that badly, feel free to buy the privileges of my two novels, "System's POV", and "Strongest Warlock - Wizard World Irregular."

I know I said it many times already, but I will say it again because all of you deserve it.

Thank you for your continuous support, and love, for the stories that I write.

It has been my honor to share this story with all of you, and I hope that all of you will continue to support me as I write more wonderful stories that will get better and better due to the experiences that I have gained as an Author.

May all of you have a good day, and I'll see you all in my next stories!)

Chapter 1230.1: After Story: Elsoetia Olympics! [Part 1]

"Welcome, everyone, to the first-ever Elsoetia Olympics!" Kazogonaga exclaimed through the microphone, informing the countless people who were watching the event through the projections scattered all over Elysium, Solais, and the World of Hestia.

"Champions from Elysium and Hestia are now going to compete in the first-ever Inter-Planetary Iron Man competition! This event will test their endurance, perseverance, and willpower!

"A series of running, swimming, and biking events will be held. Hundreds of thousands of people have registered for this epic race, yet only one will emerge victorious once this event is over!"

Kazogonaga's voice reverberated in the surroundings, making the people in the venue, as well as those who were watching the projections all across the three worlds, cheer at the same time.

Along the starting line, countless people were doing stretches in preparation for the first leg of the journey, which was a marathon.

There, Cethus noticed a one-eyed Demon Dog, who was eyeing him with its single beady eye.

The Dragon Born and the Demon Dog stared at each other for a few minutes before raising their hands at the same time to shake hands.

"Cethus," Cethus introduced himself.

"Psoglav," Psoglav did the same.

The two cannon fodder's nodded at the same time in recognition of each other's strength.

The other contestants were also eyeing each other as if looking for potential rivals.

"Now, before this Iron Man event starts, let's all welcome the two sponsors of this event—Willian Von Ainzorth and Lux Von Kaizer!" Kasogonaga shouted.

The sky then suddenly turned dark, making everyone who was watching suddenly feel anxious.

A moment later, countless fireworks painted the sky with various colors and designs.

But in the middle of these amazing fireworks displays, two golden lightning bolts streaked across the sky and drew a hand with the "peace sign" hovering across the sky.

After the symbol was created, a Draconic Skeleton King appeared in front of everyone, with his two arms spread wide.

The two golden lightning bolts then landed on the palms of the Skeleton King's hands, showing their faces to the two worlds.

"William Von Ainzworth. It's an honor to be here!" William introduced himself with a smile.

"Lux Von Kaizer. Is everyone ready to rumble?!" Lux asked, making the contestants raise their hands and shout their warcries.

"This event is being held so that the people of Elysium, Solais, and Hestia, can form stronger bonds with each other and work together to reach greater heights," William said. "It is the first of its kind, and I'm looking forward to seeing who will emerge as the victors of this match."

"So without further delay, I hereby declare the start of the first-ever Elsoetia Olympics!" Lux shouted. "But before that, let's have a commercial break first!"

At that exact moment, the Goddess Lily appeared on a giant projection in the sky.

The Loli Goddess was dancing to the sound of the upbeat music playing in the background.

On top of her head, the Dim Sum God, Dim Dim, was making countless Dim Sum spin in the air that synchronized their moves with Lily's dancing.

A moment later, these Dim Sums flew toward a platter on top of the table where several Baby Slimes were waiting.

These Baby Slimes then reached out to eat the Dim Sums, with the camera zooming in to give a close up view of their reactions.

All the seven Baby Slimes, who had the colors of the rainbow, had happy and satisfied looks on their faces as they chewed the Dim Sum in their mouths.

"Dim Dim's Dim Sums!" Lily said as she appeared behind the Baby Slimes. "Even Baby Slimes approve!"

All the Baby Slimes then looked at the camera and jumped at the same time.

""Eyah!""

"Dim Dim's Dim Sum, coming to a store near you!" Lily said with a smile.

"Dim Dim!" Dim Dim shouted.

The commercial ended. Seeing the happy satisfied expressions that the Baby Slimes had shown earlier, everyone who saw the suddenly felt hungry

Even Lux and William suddenly had the strong urge to eat after seeing that commercial.

Suddenly, a flying Sea Otter descended from the sky, and riding on top of him were Eiko and Fei Fei.

The two Baby Slimes were holding two torches in their hands, with the intention of lighting the giant torch, which was actually Eiko's giant bone cauldron that created Undead Monsters.

When the contestants saw this, all of them took a running stance. The moment the torch was lit, the Iron Man Race would officially begin.

Fortunately, they didn't have to wait that long.

When the Sea Otter was right above the giant cauldron, Eiko and Fei Fei both tossed their torches inside it.

"Ei!"

"Da Wae!"

Within seconds, flames rose up from the cauldron, and the shouts of countless people reverberated in the surroundings as the contestants all began to sprint.

The first part of the Iron Man Race was a long-distance marathon that spanned ten thousand miles.

The second stage was to swim the seas until they reached the Ford Federation.

On the third leg of the journey, they would enter a portal that would take them to Hestia, where they would all ride bicycles.

The last leg of the journey was a final sprint to the finish line.

This was the Inter-Planetary Olympics held in both Elysium and Hestia.

Solais couldn't take part in hosting this event at this point because the side effects of the recently cleared miasma were still prevalent in the surroundings.

It would take at least a decade before the environment healed and returned to its former glory.

"I'll see you at the finish line, Psoglav," Cethus said in a confident tone.

"Yes. You'll see me holding the gold trophy for finishing first," Psoglav replied.

"Hahaha! Nice joke."

"Let's see who will be laughing later."

As the two cannon foddors ran side by side, the other contestants ran past them.

Both of them only had one thought in their minds as they looked at the fools who were sprinting at full speed from the get-go.

'Amateurs!'

The two cannon foddors looked at their other competitors in disdain. Both of them were properly pacing themselves to save their strength to actually complete the long event.

This was a very demanding event that would push them to the very limits.

Since that was the case, pacing was the key to winning!

Kazogonaga was busy commentating, while the people cheered for the participants they were rooting on to win.

"Go!"

"Wei!"

"Dim Dim!"

The three troublemakers were currently riding the Sea Otter, Lucky, who was now big enough to carry all three of them at the same time.

They were flying above the competitors who were running on the ground, but none of the contestants paid the three of them heed.

That was their mistake!

Eiko, Fei Fei, and Dim Dim, were there for a purpose, and that was to make the event harder than it already was.

"Boom Boom Bakugan!"

"Da Wae!"

"Dim Dim!"

The three troublemakers started to throw blast bombs from the sky, hitting countless people on the ground.

The sound of curses and pained shouts spread in the surroundings.

But instead of intimidating the three troublemakers, those only made them even more excited, and they began throwing blast bombs like there was no tomorrow.

Those on the ground knew that this event wouldn't be easy because they had already been told that they would face obstacles along the way.

They just didn't expect that they would be bombed in the starting phase of the journey, making some of the competitors curse the organizer of the event in their hearts.

Hereswith, who was seated beside Kazogonaga, was smiling from ear to ear.

She was one of the organizers of the event, and the three troublemakers making things difficult for everyone was one of her suggestions, which the gaming committee readily approved.

Only one would emerge victorious!

Only one would gain fame and glory!

This was the start of the Elsoetia Olympics!

Chapter 1231.2: After Story: Elsoetia Olympics! [Part 2]

The first leg of the competition had just begun, but many had already fallen to the bombardment of the three troublemakers in the sky.

Even so, those who were powerful enough had managed to protect themselves by evading, and deflecting the bombs that were raining down on them from above.

In fact, some of them even used this opportunity to eliminate their competitors by deflecting the bombs, and sending it towards other people.

Although the start of the competition was chaotic, the cheers of the people watching the event was at an all time high.

"Taking the lead of the Marathon is none other than Mr. Adee Dash," Kazogonaga said as he commented on the event in real time. "He is followed closely by Mr. Reeh Boke, and Mr. Nai Kee. However, the others are not far behind!"

Everyone was forbidden from using their abilities, and were even wearing artifacts that suppressed them.

They could only rely on their strength, endurance, stamina, and will power, which was something that they didn't lack.

Truth be told, none of them were worried about the race.

What they were worried about were the hurdles that would stop them from reaching the finish line!

"The bombardment finally stopped," Psoglav commented. "Is it just me or are those slimes purposely not targeting you?"

"It's just your imagination," Cethus replied.

Cethus was indeed not targeted even once during the bombardment of Blast Bombs from above, and the reason for this was simple.

He was someone who had taken good care of the Baby Slimes in their guild headquarters, and even protected them during the war.

Because of this, Eiko, Fei Fei, and Dim Dim didn't target him even once when they started throwing bombs at everyone.

A few hours passed, and the runners finally arrived at the next leg of their journey.

They needed to swim towards the Ford Federation, which was located on the other side of the sea.

Fortunately, there were several floating Slimes that held flags, which informed everyone the general direction on where they needed to go.

Those that had taken the lead in the Marathon earlier found themselves being overtaken by people who specialized in swimming.

Some of the participants lived near coastal towns or on islands, with others even being demi-humans that had aquatic origins.

Everyone thought that they would be bombarded by bombs, while they were swimming in the water, so they made sure to spread themselves accordingly, so that they could evade at a moment's notice.

"Damn, why isn't there a flying event in this contest?!" Cethus complained as he swam in the water.

Swimming wasn't really his strong point, but he practiced a lot just to join the tournament.

Several spectators who could fly in the sky followed the contestants, including Kazogonaga, who was riding on top of a Wyvern.

When the contestants were halfway in their journey, they saw several pirate ships sailing in the waters.

They were the members of Eiko's Boom Boom Pirate Crew, and their role was to become the obstacle that would hinder the contestants from reaching their destination.

"Aim!" Avery ordered, and all the cannons of the pirate ships aimed at the people that were swimming in their direction.

"Fire!"

All the cannons roared to life, but instead of explosives, the cannonballs were made of a silvery liquid that would encapsulate those it hit with an air bubble, trapping them in place.

Of course, those that were trapped inside the bubble could still break free. But, it would take them considerable time and effort to do so.

Unlike the first hurdle, this time, Cethus wasn't spared from the bombardment that was raining down on them.

However, none of the cannon balls hit him because he was able to dodge them in time.

An hour later, he managed to safely pass the Pirate Ships, who were only firing their cannons at the people that were in front of them.

Those who managed to pass through their defensive line were no longer targeted, making them sigh in relief.

Due to the bombardment, more than half of the participants were forced to retire because they were unable to break free from the air bubbles that trapped them in place.

Several hours later, the tired contestants finally reached the Ford Federation.

All of them were then given bicycles to ride, so that they could continue the third phase of their journey.

The sun was setting in the horizon, but that was not a problem.

Their goal for the third part of the race was to travel across the Bifrost Bridge, which would take them to the world of Hestia, where the final phase of the competition was waiting for them.

Most of the contestants had reached their limit by this point, even if they had superhuman strength.

The bike ride towards Hestia would take them at least ten hours at the minimum, if they were traveling at least 40 kph.

But, since most of the participants were already tired, the majority of them were only cycling between 15-20 kph.

Some were even moving at 5-10 kph, and resting their heads on the steering bar of their bikes to recover their strength.

Cethus and Psoglav were among the people who were trying to recover their strength for the final push.

This continued for several hours until they finally saw the world of Hestia in the distance.

Similar to Elysium, Hestia was a beautiful blue planet.

Although the marks of the previous war could still be seen on its surface, the majority of people had managed to adapt to the changes of their environment, and live relatively peaceful lives.

Since the final descent to Hestia was downhill, all the contestants accelerated, even if they weren't doing anything special.

Most of them had recovered a bit of their strength during the journey, and were now preparing for the final phase of the race, which was a ten-mile-sprint.

The reason why everyone was adamant on winning the race was because of the prize that Lux and William promised to the victor.

Whoever won the first ever Elsoetia Olympics, would be granted a wish.

As long as the two Half-Elves were able to grant it, they would grant it without fail.

Of course, there were certain restrictions to the wishes.

Wishes that would harm anyone in whatever way were not allowed.

Wishes that might cause instability in the world were not allowed either.

But, as long as the wish wouldn't affect the two worlds on a grand scale, the two Half-Elves would grant it.

This was why many had trained so hard for this event because they wanted one of their wishes to be granted.

"See you at the finish line!" Psoglav roared as he dropped his bicycle on the ground and made a mad sprint.

"That's my line, you punk!" Cethus roared as well as he, too, ran with everything he had.

The other contestants were also running at their fastest speeds in order to reach the finish line.

A ten-mile-sprint was not a big deal to these powerful individuals, who had surpassed the limits of mortals.

It wouldn't even take them an hour to reach their destination.

'It's there, I can see it!' Cethus gritted his teeth when he saw the flags in the distance, where the finish line was located. 'Just a little more!'

Psoglav and the others were thinking about the same thing, so all of them pushed themselves to the limit one last time.

Suddenly, Kazogonaga's voice spread in the surroundings.

"What's that up in the sky?!" Kazogonaga exclaimed when he saw something that wasn't part of the event.

High above the clouds, and perched on top of the Bifrost Bridge, were Eiko, Fei Fei, and Dim Dim.

Behind them, countless baby slimes of different colors, all looked down on the contestants below with determined looks on their faces.

Eiko, who was the leader of the Baby Slimes, took a deep breath before shouting with all of her might.

"I'm Rolling!"

The moment she said those words, the Fairy Princess rolled down on the rainbow bridge that extended towards the ground.

Fei Fei and Dim Dim were quick to follow her example, as they, too, rolled down the rainbow bridge for the last leg of the race.

"Da Wei!"

"Dim Dim!"

The countless Baby Slimes also followed their leader as they, too, rolled down, creating a rainbow-colored-avalanche that made the people on the ground panic.

"Rolling."

"Rolling~"

"Rolling?"

"Rolling!"

""Eyah!""

Kazogonaga and the rest of the spectators could only gasp in shock at the unexpected turn of events.

The three troublemakers had gathered all the Baby Slimes in Elysium in order to join the last part of the race.

With Eiko leading the charge, all the bodies of the Baby Slimes glowed, encasing them in a protective coating, which would prevent them from getting squished.

"Sh*t!"

"Argh!"

"Damn!"

"F*ck!"

All sorts of curses escaped the contestants' lips as they were mowed down by the Slime Army, who were all giggling like mad as they rolled over them.

"Damn... I wish I was there!" Kazogonaga, who was commentating the event, could only watch with envy as the countless Baby Slimes rolled towards the finish line, leaving all the contestants lying on the ground.

"We won!" Eiko jumped in place happily.

"Wei!"

"Dim Dim!"

"Won!"

"Eyah!"

"Eyah!"

The happy Baby Slimes all jumped in place after they had successfully hijacked the event.

However, Lux and William descended from the sky and told the three troublemakers that they were disqualified from winning because they didn't participate in the event properly.

In the end, the surviving contestants were allowed to rest for two hours before restarting the final sprint of the race.

The final winner of the Iron Man competition was a tie between Cethus and Psoglav, so both of them were allowed one wish each.

As for what they wished for, no one really knew.

However, one thing was clear.

Both of their wishes were granted, which also marked the end of the first ever Iron Man Race, which would be held again in another ten years.

This event would pave the way for the next generation of heroes, who would play a vital role in the unexpected event that would shake the entire multiverse in the future.

Chapter 1232: After Story: You May Now Kiss Your Brides

Today was a special event.

It was the day when Lux Von Kaizer would marry his lovers.

The wedding would be held on the floating island, which was docked just outside of the Fynn Kingdom's Capital City.

The important people from all over Elysium and Solais made their way to the venue with the intention of being part of the grandest wedding in the history of the world.

The wedding would be held in front of the Headquarters of Heaven's Gate, which was now filled to the brim with guests.

Those who were unable to get some good seats watched the event on the decks of their flying ships, from the sky.

The groom restlessly stood at the makeshift altar with his father and mother, feeling excited and anxious at the same time.

"Are you nervous?" Adeline asked as she used her hand to smooth the non-existent creases in Lux's black suit.

"Yes, Mother," Lux replied.

"Hah! Even though you're already this powerful, you still get cold feet?" Vincent, Lux's biological father asked. "But I have to admit that all of your wives are very beautiful. I wonder, should I also marry other wome-arggggh! It was just a joke, Adeline! Just a joke!"

The beautiful Elf didn't hesitate to pinch Vincent's waist, making the latter cry out in pain.

"Can you repeat what you just said?" Adeline asked. "I didn't hear you properly the first time."

"Wife, I love only you," Vincent replied in an anxious tone. "This is why I haven't married anyone else ever since the two of us got together."

"Uh-huh, then what was that about you planning to marry more women?"

"Marry what? How can I possibly do that when I already have the best woman in the world? Such nonsense!"

Lux couldn't help but laugh internally as he looked at his henpecked father who was at the mercy of his mother.

Adeline was about to say more, but she stopped herself when she noticed a pair of cute little girls walking down the carpeted floor while throwing flower petals.

One of them had long blue hair and blue eyes, while the other had long blonde hair and gold eyes.

They were wearing blue and yellow dresses, highlighting the color of their hair and eyes.

These two adorable girls were none other than Eiko and Fei Fei.

Similar to Eiko, Fei Fei had gained the ability to transform into a Human. The two of them had been chosen to be the flower girls for the wedding, and the two of them had wide smiles on their faces as they threw flowers.

Behind them, the Sea Otter, Lucky, hovered a meter above the ground. Mounted on his back was none other than the Dim Sum God, Dim Dim, who was also throwing flower petals everywhere.

Seeing this scene, Adeline pulled her husband's hand as they walked back to the front seats, where they belonged.

The brides had arrived, and Lux's gaze softened as he looked at them walking down the aisle.

Iris was being escorted by her Father, Alexander.

Cai was being escorted by her Grandpa, Maximilian.

Valerie by her Father, King Azza.

Aurelia by her father, Keoza.

Aina and Luna were escorted by Victor.

Since Luna no longer had any living family members aside from Aina, King Victor decided to escort her to the altar, having considered her as part of his family.

Ali and Ari, on the other hand, were escorted by their Father, Tirion, whom Lux had only met thrice since the war had ended.

Aurora was escorted by her father, King Septimius, while Queen Rhiannon was escorted by Antero in his human form.

With his in-laws being made up of the most powerful individuals in both Elysium and Solais, it was no exaggeration to say that Lux was the most influential person in both worlds.

One groom and ten brides.

Everyone looked at them with smiles on their faces, including Princess Anastasia and Henrietta, who both didn't know that they would be marrying him as well a year from now.

Lux stood at the center, with his wives standing behind his back.

When everyone had gathered, an old man wearing an eye patch, walked towards the altar holding a book in his hand.

He then glanced at the people and raised his hand, gesturing for everyone to remain silent.

"We are gathered here today to join this young man, and these beautiful ladies in holy matrimony," James said with a smile. "With love and commitment, they have decided to live their lives together as husband and wives."

"But, before I continue, if anyone objects to the marriage, speak now or forever hold your peace."

After James said these words, Asmodeus stood up and turned around to face the guests, who had come to witness his Master's wedding.

"If any of you have a death wish, speak now or forever hold your tongue," Asmodeus stated.

Diablo, Ishtar, Pazuzu, and the rest of Lux's Named Creatures all stood up, ready to deal with the troublemakers who would dare to get in the way of their Master's happiness.

Seeing that no one was saying anything, James smiled and faced the Groom and his Brides.

"Today, as you join yourselves in marriage, there is a vast and unknown future stretching out before you," James said softly. "The possibilities and potentials of your married life are great, and now falls upon your shoulders the task of choosing your values and making your dreams real.

"Through your commitment to each other, may you grow and nurture a love that makes all of you better people. A love that continues to give you great joy, and also a passion for living that provides you with energy and patience to face the responsibilities of life."

"May you always need one another, not to fill an emptiness, but to help each other know your fullness. May you want one another, but not out of lack. May you embrace one another, but not encircle one another.

"May you succeed in all important ways with each other, and not fail in the little graces. May you have happiness, and may you find it in making one another happy. May you have love, and may you find it in loving one another."

James then glanced at the two little girls and nodded their head in their direction.

Eiko and Fei Fei walked toward the altar, holding the box that contained the wedding rings.

Lux took a ring from the box, and gently placed it on Iris' ring finger.

He did the same for his other brides until all of them were wearing their wedding rings.

"I pledge today to have all the patience and passion that love demands. In laughter and in silence, I'll forever be by your sides," Lux said. "All of your love gives me hope. Your smiles give me joy, each of you makes me a better man.

"Forever with all of you will simply not be enough, but from this day forward, I vow to make the most of every moment."

Cai and the others also said their vows, making Lux feel his heart melt inside his chest.

The last one to say her vow was Iris, who gently slid Lux's wedding ring on his ring finger.

"On behalf of everyone, we pledge to honor you, love you, and cherish you as our husband today and every day," Iris said. "We love you with all of our hearts with a passion that can't be expressed in words, only in kisses, glances, and years of adventures by your side.

"Today, we are the happiest women in the world, and we are certain that our happiness has only just begun."

After saying their vows, James raised his hands, and a faint radiant light descended from the sky, bathing the Brides and Groom with the blessings of the heavens.

"With the power vested on me, I hereby pronounce you husband and wives. You may now kiss your brides!"

A resounding cheer and applause reverberated in the arena as Lux kissed his brides one by one.

Lux and his brides then walked down the aisle together, receiving the blessings of everyone.

A few minutes later, Iris threw her bouquet of flowers, which was a wedding tradition on Earth that Lux wished to adopt in Elysium and Solais.

Surprisingly, the one who caught the bouquet was none other than Lux's Grandmaster, Hereswith, making her smile with amusement.

Lux had said that whoever caught the bouquet that was thrown by the bride, would superstitiously be the next one to get married.

Although the Half-Elf didn't know if Hereswith would indeed marry someone in the future, he wished with all of his heart that his Grandmaster would find happiness in her life.

That night, Lux spent his honeymoon with his wives in one of the most beautiful places in the Fynn Kingdom, savoring the overflowing love, and passion that all of them had for him.

Chapter 1233: After Story: Happy And Bright Days

Two years had passed since Lux had married his lovers...

In the dimly lit room, a young lady with long purple hair wrapped her arms around Lux's neck, her seductive voice spilling out of her sensual lips.

Lux's hands were supporting her buttocks as he moved her body up and down, pushing her to the peak of pleasure.

A few minutes later, Henrietta's body shuddered as something hot gushed inside her womb, making her feel complete.

Her beautiful and exhausted body lost its strength, but there was no need to worry.

Her man had his arms wrapped around her, securing her in place as her body shuddered from time to time due to the intensity of his release.

When everything was over, Lux patted her head and kissed her cheeks.

Henrietta felt tired but also fulfilled as her husband whispered words of love in her ears.

Lying beside them was Princess Anastasia, whose eyes slowly opened.

She had just regained her consciousness after Lux had made love to her countless times to the point that she passed out.

The Dwarf Princess slowly propped herself up and looked down at her lower half, which was still leaking a bit of Lux's essence and staining the bedsheets.

A few red stains could be seen on the white sheets, proving that she had given her chastity to the person she loved.

She and Henrietta had married Lux just a few hours ago, and now, they were consummating their marriage.

Seeing that Princess Anastasia was awake, Lux reached out to gently pat her head, making her look in his direction.

"Does it still hurt?" Lux asked in a gentle tone.

"No," Princess Anastasia replied before shifting her gaze to Henrietta, who seemed to have temporarily lost consciousness as well.

"Let's go wash up," Lux said as he carefully carried Henrietta in his arms like a princess.

The Dwarf Princess nodded and followed him to the washroom, where the Half-Elf washed both of his wives thoroughly.

Since this was their first night, he didn't want to push the two of them too hard.

He then cleaned the bed and changed the bedsheets so that both of them could sleep more comfortably.

The three of them then slept together, holding onto each other, for when morning came, their new lives would start anew.

Two more days passed before Lux, Henrietta, and Princess Anastasia returned to the Floating Island of Edea, where the rest of Lux's wives were currently at.

When they arrived, they saw Eiko carrying a baby girl in her arms, gently rocking her to sleep.

Watching this scene made Lux smile because it made him remember some fond memories.

A few years back, Eiko was still a baby, and she was the one being carried. Now, the little girl was taking care of her little sisters, making sure that all of them were safe from harm.

Not far from Eiko, Valerie's daughter, Rhea, was sleeping peacefully beside several baby slimes, who were also sleeping beside her.

Valerie's Draco Slime, Kei, was also there to keep watch on the little girl, whom he was treating as his own little sister.

Iris and Valerie, who were both seated on the couch and were also watching over their kids, glanced at Lux with a smile.

"Welcome back, Lux," Iris said. "Did the three of you enjoy your honeymoon?"

"I did," Lux replied. "I don't know about these two though."

Lux grinned as he walked hand in hand with Henrietta and Princess Anastasia.

The Half-Elf's two brides were blushing so hard because they, too, enjoyed their honeymoon.

In fact, they enjoyed it very much.

If not for the fact that Lux didn't want the two of them to get pregnant right away, he would have definitely made sure that both of them would be carrying his child before they returned to their Guild Headquarters.

Princess Anastasia and Henrietta agreed to wait two more years before the two of them conceived his child.

The Half-Elf would still need to nurture their bodies with his essence so that they would be able to bear the burden of giving birth to his children, who would be blessed with the power of his Divinity.

"Where are the rest?" Lux asked after kissing Iris' and Valerie's cheeks.

"Sleeping," Valerie replied. "We had a long discussion that lasted until dawn."

"Long discussion?" Lux arched an eyebrow. "About what?"

"Secret," Iris answered before Valerie could spill the beans.

They couldn't possibly tell Lux that they were creating a schedule that would allow each of them to monopolize him for a few days.

According to the agreement, Iris and Cai would be with Lux on Monday nights.

On Tuesdays, it would be Valerie and Aurelia.

On Wednesdays, Ali and Ari would be accompanying him.

Thursdays nights were reserved for Aina and Luna.

Fridays would be Aurora's and Queen Rhiannon's turn.

Last, but not the least, Saturdays were for Princess Anastasia and Henrietta, who had just married Lux.

As for Sundays? They would all sleep together.

Lux's room already had a bed that was massive enough to easily fit thirty people, so all of them sleeping together wasn't a problem.

Suddenly, the door of the room opened, and the Succubus Queen entered with her nearly three-year-old daughter, Dia.

The little girl immediately ran toward Lux the moment she saw him, calling out "Papa!" which made the Half-Elf pick her up and shower her with kisses.

Queen Rhiannon walked towards her husband and daughter and gave the two of them a kiss on the cheeks.

"Dia missed you terribly," Queen Rhiannon stated. "Won't you be a dear and accompany her for a while?"

"Of course," Lux replied before looking at his adorable daughter. "Where do you want to go, Dia?"

"Godfather!" Dia answered in a heartbeat.

"You really like visiting your Godfather, huh?"

"Un!"

"Okay, let's go visit him," Lux agreed and left the Guild Headquarters with his daughter.

Lux would often take her to Gaap's grave and tell her stories about her Godfather, who was no longer with them.

Not being able to revive Gaap was one of Lux's greatest heartaches.

Even if he had the power to revive the dead, what good would it be if he didn't have Gaap's soul?

As the Half-Elf made his way up the highest peak of the Mountain of Edea, he saw two people, whom he hadn't seen in a while, waiting for his arrival.

"Eriol, Max," Lux greeted. "It has been a while."

The God of Games and the God of Gamblers both nodded their heads at the same time.

"Indeed it has," Eriol replied. "The two of us have been sleeping in order to recover our strength, and we only woke up a few days ago."

Max lightly patted Dia's head before shifting his gaze to the Half-Elf, whom he had chosen as the candidate for their Heaven's Gate Project.

Lux had gone above and beyond his expectations, making him feel very proud that he made the right decision in choosing him.

"Eriol and I want to thank you for everything that you have done for both Elysium and Solais," Max said. "Not only did you save Solais, but you have also opened a new era of peace."

The God of Games nodded as he approached the Half-Elf, who had refused to ascend to Godhood.

If it had been anyone else, they wouldn't have hesitated to take the opportunity of a lifetime.

"We can't stay long, but know that we will always watch your happiness from afar," Eriol stated. "Your happiness is our happiness, and we sincerely hope that you can be happy for a very long time."

Max nodded as his and Eriol's bodies started to glow faintly.

"The Gates of Heaven will always be open for you, Lux," Max said. "Come visit us when you have time. I'm sure that the Temple of the Ten Thousand Gods will be happy to have you join our ranks."

Seeing that the two Gods were about to disappear, Dia waved her hands at them.

"Bye-bye!"

Eriol and Max both smiled and waved at Lux's first daughter.

"Bye-bye, Dia."

"See you soon, little one."

After saying those words, the two Gods, who had changed Lux's lives for the better, returned to the Celestial Realm, where they would observe the lives of mortals and see what this new era of peace would show them.

Lux looked up at the sky for a few more seconds before continuing his trek up the mountains.

When he reached his destination, he saw someone standing in front of his Master's tomb.

The first thing he noticed was the person's long ears, which resembled that of an Elf.

However, unlike most Elves, this person had long white hair that reached down to his waist, which was tied up by a black hairpin.

"Excuse me. Are you perhaps lost?" Lux asked as he walked toward the Elf while carrying his daughter in his arms.

Hearing his voice, the white-haired man slowly turned around and gave Lux a faint smile.

The Half-Elf's body stiffened when he saw the person in front of him.

Although he was now an elf, it was impossible for the Half-Elf to not recognize the person who had played an important part in his life.

Lux bit his lip, as he tried his best to rein in the emotions that were rising up his chest.

However, he wasn't able to stop the tears from streaming down his face, causing Dia to look at him with worry.

"Papa?" Dia asked as she wiped the tears on Lux's face with her small hands. "What's wrong? Are you hurt?"

"I'm not hurt," Lux replied as he took a step forward in order to reach the person who was smiling at him.

Although he was crying, the tears he had were not of sadness or anger.

They were tears of joy after seeing the one person whom he wanted to meet the most in his life.

When he was only a meter away from the Elf, Lux smiled through his tears and wondered if he was dreaming or not.

"Have you been well?" the Elf asked with a smile on his face.

"Yes, Master," Lux replied. "I'm doing well."

The smile on Gaap's face widened as he patted the Half-Elf's shoulder, making the latter cry harder to the point of tears blurring his vision.

The God of Games and the God of Gamblers had worked tirelessly with Antero in order to revive Gaap's soul.

The three of them had somewhat succeeded, but it was not enough.

Because of this, they took Gaap's extremely weak soul to the World Tree and used one of its seeds as a vessel to nourish the Halfling's soul, allowing him to be reborn as an Elf.

It took two full years before the seed they planted bore fruit, and only a handful of people knew about it.

The first one was Antero, whom Eriol and Max had approached.

The second was none other than Hereswith, who had safeguarded the seed that housed Gaap's soul while it was being nurtured.

When they were certain that Gaap's soul was finally stable, Eriol and Max returned to the heavens to take a nap.

Lux had done many things for them, so they wracked their brains over what they could do in order to give him the best reward possible.

"Papa, is he Godfather?" Dia, who seemed to have understood the Elf's relationship with her Papa, asked.

"Yes, Dia," Lux answered. "He is your Godfather."

"Godfather~" Dia cooed as she reached out her hands towards the Elf, who was more than happy to hold his Godchild for the first time.

Suddenly, Lux felt a presence behind him, which made him hastily wipe the tears on his face.

He didn't want this person to see him in such a state because he was sure that she would tease him whenever an opportunity would arise.

When he was certain that he now looked somewhat presentable, the Half-Elf turned around and saw his Grandmaster, Hereswith, setting up a table and three chairs.

She then placed several wine bottles and snacks on top of the table before giving her Grand Disciple a mischievous wink.

"I brought wine and snacks," Hereswith said. "The three of us have a lot of catching up to do, so we'll be drinking all day and all night."

Lux, who had stopped drinking wine ever since the aphrodisiac incident, suddenly found himself in the mood for a good drink.

With his Grandmaster and Master by his side, he was certain that his days would be happy and bright.

-----
(A/N: I'll squeeze in two last chapters tomorrow and set this novel to Completed. It has been a long journey, and I'm happy to see its end.)

Chapter 1234: After Story: Open Heaven's Gate!

Randolph paced back and forth, incredibly feeling anxious.

He had waited for this day to arrive all his life.

When he woke up a few hours ago, he thought that he was just dreaming. However, after confirming that this was all real, he wasn't able to calm down despite doing his best to not overthink things.

'What if she changed her mind?' Randolph thought as he continued to pace back and forth. 'What will I do then?'

Seeing him pacing back and forth, the Mayor of Leaf Town, Cedwyn, who was also Randolph's and Annie's close friend, sighed loudly.

"Get a grip, man," Cedwyn stated. "If you are getting cold feet, I don't mind swapping places with you today."

"F*ck off, Cedwyn!" Randolph broke out of his worry and glared at his friend. "I know you've been simping for Annie for the past century. You better stay away or I'll clobber you!"

"So what if I've been simping for her for the past century?" Cedwyn snapped. "She doesn't deserve a stupid guy like you. Even now, I don't see what she saw in you that I didn't have. Oh, right. Maybe she has a soft spot for idiots. The kind of hopeless fools who can't even tie their shoes properly."

"You, Simp! Get out of here!"

"Bastard! Stop calling me Simp!"

"You wanna fight?!"

"Who's afraid of who?! Let's go!"

Randolph and Cedwyn both didn't hold back and started to wrestle with each other.

The Dwarves who were watching from the side all raised their hands and cheered.

""Fight!""

""Fight!""

""Fight!""

Complete pandemonium ensued as the groom and his best man duked it out in front of countless people.

"Aren't you going to stop them?" Gaap asked Lux, who was standing beside him as his own best man.

"Nah," Lux replied. "It's better this way."

Cethus, who was also wearing a suit, wasn't paying attention to anyone because, just like Randolph, he was also feeling very anxious.

Even before the battle against Daniel, he never felt this anxious in his life. But now, he felt as if he wanted to run away, never to be seen or heard from again.

If not for the fact that Gerhart, who was also wearing a suit and standing beside him, the Dragon Born would have done so already.

He didn't want the green-haired Half-Elf to have something to use against him in the future, so he simply stared at the ground, while waiting for this event to finally end.

Sid stood as straight as a sword, unmoved by what was happening around him. But, deep inside, he had the same feelings as Randolph and Cethus, who were very anxious about tying the knot with the people whom they would spend the rest of their life with. Alexander, who was also standing in front of the altar, was the most composed among the group.

For him, something like this wasn't a big deal. But, he had to admit that seeing the young men around him feeling anxious made him smile in his heart.

Suddenly, the orchestra that Lux hired started to play their instruments in the background.

The Half-Elf had invited a very popular singer from Earth to sing the song "Perfect" for the wedding, and he had to admit—this made the walk down the aisle for the brides more memorable.

Eiko, Fei Fei, Laura, and Livia were the four flower girls and were at the very front, scattering flower petals on the aisle.

Right behind them, Hereswith walked in her white wedding dress.

Gaap, who saw his bride-to-be, couldn't help but smile because he had loved Hereswith ever since he had laid his eyes on her.

The time she had saved him when he was still a boy, was the same day he had fallen in love with her.

Even after so many years had passed, his feelings stayed the same.

This was why he had poured everything he had, including his soul, into his revenge after her death. This was the only thing he could do for the woman he loved and cherished for a very long time.

Right behind Hereswith was Alicia.

After many ups and downs, her love had finally borne fruit. Perhaps having herself and Alexander die in Daniel's hands was a good thing.

It allowed them to live their lives to the fullest without any regrets, allowing them to take that last step to walk this life together hand in hand.

Behind Alicia was Emma.

No one, not even Lux, expected her to have a romantic relationship with Cethus.

All the members of Heaven's Gate confronted her, ready to beat the crap out of the Dragon Born if he used any underhanded tricks to force Emma to have a relationship with him.

But, to their surprise, Emma defended Cethus and said that no one forced her to become his lover, saying that the two of them simply found each other's company very worthwhile and, shortly thereafter, their feelings for each other grew naturally.

Following Emma were General Garret's two daughters, Alexa and Emily.

Both of them would be marrying Gerhart, who had managed to get their father's approval after the two fought each other.

Lux was there when this happened, watching the two people duke it out with each other without holding back. The battle was intense, but in the end, Gerhart managed to win by a close margin, gaining Garret's acknowledgment.

Behind the two sisters was Scarlet.

She was the assassin who was tasked to assassinate Lux alongside Sid many years ago.

After being revived by Blackfire when the war was over, she and Sid decided to take their relationship more seriously.

This was why when they heard that Randolph and Annie were getting married, they asked Lux if they could also marry each other.

The Half-Elf was more than happy to help the two and thought that this was the perfect opportunity to kill six birds with one stone.

He then talked to his two Masters, Gaap and Randolph, his father, Alexander, as well as Cethus that they should hold a joint wedding and make it a grand event.

It took him a lot of effort to convince the men to do it, but once one of them agreed, the rest followed.

The Half-Elf couldn't help but smile as he looked at the last bride who was walking down the aisle.

Grandma Annie was no longer a Grandma, but a young, beautiful lady, who was given a second chance at life.

Lux had restored her youth alongside Randolph and the Elders of Leaf Town. Now that there were no longer any barriers to stop them from finally tying the knot, the men at the altar all held the hands of their brides

James presided over the wedding, just like he did for Lux's wedding.

Unlike the Half-Elf's wedding, though, which was truly a grand event, the scale of today's wedding was smaller.

Even so, it was still just as grand, with Lux taking care of the preparations.

He didn't skimp on the budget and invited professionals from Earth to make the wedding memorable.

When the marriage ceremony finished, he felt truly fulfilled because, just like him, the people who were part of his life were also going to start their lives with their special someone.

A few hours later, the Half-Elf sparingly drank a glass of wine, as he chatted with another red-headed Half-Elf, who was sharing the table with him.

"Did you get the invitation?" William asked as he looked at the young man in front of him.

"I did," Lux replied. "Did you get one as well?"

"Mmm." William nodded before taking out the letter that was sent to him a day ago.

"The Sentinels," Lux said as he took out his own letter. "And we need to deal with enemies who are considered Planetary Level Threats?"

"Mmm." William hummed. "At least, that is what is written in the letter."

The letters were signed, but the name of the sender remained anonymous.

The only thing that they did know was that, if they agreed to be part of the Sentinels, they would receive another letter with more details written in it.

Lastly, the letter was authentic because the Gods in the Temple of the Ten Thousand Gods knew who the sender of the letter was.

Lux and William already knew that the Gods themselves could not make a move, and only those who didn't step into the realm of Godhood—like the two Half-Elves—were capable of dealing with threats, as well as individuals, who had the power to destroy entire planets.

"So are you going to join?" William asked.

"Why not?" Lux shrugged. "How about you?"

"I'm in as well," William answered.

As soon as the two of them both agreed to join The Sentinels, an orb of light suddenly appeared in front of the two Half-Elves.

"Thank you for accepting the invitation to be part of The Sentinels," a voice that was impossible to tell whether it came from a boy or a girl spoke. "Before I tell you the details of the organization, do you have any questions to ask?"

Lux and William glanced at each other before the Necromancer of Heaven asked a question.

"Are there any other people that you have invited aside from us?" Lux inquired.

"I plan to invite two more people," the voice that was coming from the orb of light replied. "But they still haven't finished their own battles. The stories of their Epics are still not complete. Only when they have overcome their own battles, would they be allowed to join our Ranks."

"And who are these two people?" William asked.

He was very curious about the identity of the two other individuals who could potentially join them in the future.

"Are you fine with just their names and faces?" the voice asked.

"Yes," William replied.

A moment later, the orb of light shot out two projections, showing two young men.

The two Half-Elves were familiar with one of them, which made them react differently.

Lux had nothing but approval after seeing Thirteen's face on the projection because he approved of him joining their Ranks.

Even though he was weaker than them, he believed that having the young man around would be a very fun experience.

William, on the other hand, looked like he had eaten a fly. For him, Thirteen was an eyesore because one of his daughters was seriously pursuing the stand-offish young man, whom William wanted to pinch to death. After looking at Thirteen, their gaze shifted to the handsome young man with long blue hair, who was currently fighting against a giant. The two Half-Elves were very curious about who he was because they hadn't met this person even once.

"If these two people don't perish and are able to complete their Legendary Saga, then they too, will be joining the Ranks of The Sentinels," the voice declared. "Their names are..."

"Zion Leventis and Ethan Gremory."

After hearing their names, the Necromancer of Heaven finished drinking his wine before standing up with a smile on his face.

"Done already?" William asked.

"Yes," Lux replied as he gazed at the young man, with short black hair, and green eyes, who was fighting a hard battle. "I plan to repay the favor to someone."

Without even waiting for a reply, Lux disappeared from where he stood and reappeared near the Bifrost Bridge.

His story might have ended, but with it, a new one was about to begin.

Lux raised his hand and grinned fearlessly towards the void.

"Open... Heaven's Gate!"

Chapter 1235: I'll See You All In My Next Stories! [FIN]

Before anything else, let me start by saying Thank You for being there through the good and bad times of my life.

Thank you for being there during the hard moments, especially when I felt vulnerable and restless.

Thank you for being patient and understanding when I was sick and unable to post on a regular basis. This journey, which has lasted for nearly two years, and is composed of 1.7 million words, has finally come to an end.

It was an honor to write this story for you, and I pray that I have touched your life in more ways than one.

Being an Author may not be the easiest profession in the world, for we face some harsh criticism on a daily basis.

Like my fellow author once told me in the past, you need to become "bulletproof" because if you don't, you won't be able to survive the world of

Unfortunately, I am far from being bulletproof.

But, my heart is no longer made of glass.

When I was writing my first novel, Reincarnated With The Strongest System, I almost broke because of the harsh criticisms that I faced back then.

However, I managed to survive and become stronger.

Now, after completing my second novel, I feel like I have accomplished the promise that I made to myself when I decided to write novels.

And that was, to give my readers a happy ending.

As you may already know, I tend to make you guys suffer a lot.

Cliffhangers, heartbreaks, and sad moments, all of you will experience these in my novels. However, rest assured, that the suffering will have an equal, if not an increased amount of happiness in return.

As I steadily grow in my craft, I promise to give all of you the best stories that you will read in your lifetime.

Each of these stories will have a different flavor, for I always strive to challenge myself in writing genres that I haven't touched yet.

Also, I give you my promise to always complete these stories, and not drag them out, giving them the endings that they deserve.

Strongest Necromancer may not be perfect, but I wrote it to the best of my abilities.

I know that most readers didn't care if the authors of their favorite stories were suffering. All they want is to have their daily chapters.

My fellow authors and I talk every day, and we often joked about things like that. Even if there were days when we didn't want to write, we still had to write.

We do this, not because of obligation, but due to discipline.

We discipline ourselves to write every day, regardless of the circumstances we face on a daily basis.

So, if we ever miss our daily chapters, it just means that we have experienced something that has prevented us from following our daily routine.

I ask on their behalf for your understanding, for we are humans, too. Of course, I am also extremely thankful to some of you, who would rather have me rest and take a few days off in order to recover, instead of pushing myself to write.

This was why I didn't always post daily, and took my time to properly recover so that I could give you the final after stories of this novel.

Truth be told, I still haven't fully recovered from my month-long vacation, and the burnout following it.

However, I have recovered enough to finally see this novel to its completion.

All of you, who have read my stories from beginning to end, are the true VIPs. Just as I grew as an author, all of you have grown as readers as well.

I often tell my author friends that my readers and I have a Love Hate Relationship. Sometimes you guys love me, sometimes you hate me. But, despite the suffering, all of you have become masochists—errr become stronger on an emotional level.

After everything you've been through in reading my novels, nothing much can faze you anymore.

Of course, I did my best to not push you guys to the limits, like what I did with my other novel, RWTSS. It is through that story that I've come to learn what you guys could take, and what you guys couldn't take.

Most authors have a problem with making their readers anxious because it also makes them anxious.

I was like that too, but like I said, I've grown as an author and an individual.

I am an emotional writer, so I specialize in bringing out the raw emotions to people.

Powerful chapters which elicit powerful replies.

Whether those replies were of praises, awe, admiration, hate, anger, or wishes for me to stub my toe on the table or chair, I just want you to know that I deserve all of that and more.

These are the greatest joys and sorrows of being an author, and boy oh boy~ what a journey it has been.

As I give you the final comments about this novel, as I speak my final rants, know that with every ending, a new door opens.

The might have ended, but with it, a brand new story will emerge.

Tales that will make you laugh out loud in public, and make others wonder if you have gone crazy. Stories that will make you cry like a girl, making those around you wonder if you're suffering from a heartbreak.

And scenes that will sometimes make you shout out loud, punch something, stomp your foot, or throw your phone, due to the overflowing emotions that you were unable to hold back.

My friends, supporters, and partners in crime, I humbly ask that you continue to follow my journey as an author, as I write story after story for all of you to enjoy.

Read my stories when you are sad.

Read my stories when you are happy.

Read my stories when you are mad.

Read my stories when you are lonely. Read my stories during your lunch break, or when you go for a toilet break. Regardless of the reasons, regardless of the situations, time, and places, I will wait for you in my world.

So come my dear friends, and open the pages that will take you on an epic journey in worlds where adventures run wild and free.

For I, your favorite storyteller Elyon, will once again weave tales of faraway lands where another legendary adventure is about to begin!

On behalf of my two editors, RedPandaChick and Reinesse, we thank all of you from the bottom of our hearts. How does an Author live forever?

It's when our stories live on.

I'll see you all in my next stories!

< Author's Other Stories >

System's POV - (Ongoing and Highly Recommended to read!)

Strongest Warlock - Wizard World Irregular (You will not find this in my profile. Search for this manually in the search tab. If you like Wizards and Witches in a magical academy, then this story is for you.)

Reincarnated with the Strongest System - (Completed).