

Strongest Necromancer Of Heaven's Gate

Chapter 32: Immortal Conqueror's Legacy Upgrade

< Ding! >

< Congratulations! Your Body Constitution has been upgraded! >

< Choose one from among these three options as your bonus reward! >

(Option 1) – +50 permanent points to Vitality

(Options 2) – Warcry: +30 Physical and Magical Damage to you and your allies

Duration: 5 minutes

Cooldown: 10 minutes

(Options 3) – Mana Drain: Absorbs the Mana of your target for five seconds. Mana absorbed is equivalent to 2% of Target's Maximum Mana.

Range: 10 meters

Duration: 5 seconds

Cooldown: 30 seconds

The Half-Elf almost drooled upon seeing the three bonus rewards that were presented to him. If possible, he would like to have all three. It was quite unfortunate that he could only choose one of them.

'50 points to Vitality is good because it will increase my Health and Defense by a substantial amount,' Lux thought as he rubbed his chin in contemplation. 'However, I am leaning more towards the War Cry and Mana Drain skills.'

Since Lux had learned necromancy, War Cry would provide an excellent boost to his summons, increasing their damage.

Mana Drain, on the other hand, would allow him to drain his target's mana, allowing him to have an unlimited supply of energy to cast spells. For classes and professions that relied heavily on active skills and spells, this was an ability that they couldn't afford to pass up.

The Half-Elf kept on scratching his head because both War Cry and Mana Drain were very important to him.

'I wonder if the same options will appear again as I continue to upgrade my Body Constitution,' Lux mused. 'This is really a hard choice to make, but if I have to choose one over the other then I'll choose... Mana Drain.'

During the Monster Outbreak, Lux had been very depressed by his very low mana pool. If he'd had more mana, he would have been able to continuously use his Slash Skill, and summon Diablo and the Forest Wolf over and over again.

Although he really wanted to choose Battle Cry,. Mana Drain was more important to him right now.

After looking at his Soul Book, Lux eyed the nine remaining beast cores in his storage bag with determination.

"My combined stat points right now is 93," Lux muttered. "If I convert all of the Beast Cores into stat points, I will have a total of 193 combined stat points. I'm only seven points away from becoming an Apostle."

The Half-Elf didn't expect that he would be able to graduate from the Beginner's Village in less than a month after arriving at Elysium.

Now he understood how important it was to have many resources, especially a good supply of Beast Cores, to instantly raise a person's stats to a very high degree.

Lux was, of course, very happy with how things turned out, but he also understood that he hadn't achieved his current status by his own abilities alone.

Even so, his goal hadn't changed. Once he decided on something, he would carry it out to the best of his abilities.

After taking a deep breath to regain his composure, Lux took the beast cores out of the storage bag and consumed them one by one.

There was still one more thing he had to do before meeting Colette in a few hours, and that was to visit the Adventurer's Guild to choose a Job Class.

Once a person had accumulated 100 combined stats. They would be eligible to pick a Job Class, which would give them a boost in overall strength.

Not only that, they would also learn exclusive skills that belonged to their chosen profession.

Lux was curious about what kind of Job Classes would become available to him when he visited the Adventurer's Guild.

His Grandma Vera had told him that there were some hidden Job Classes that could be found in Elysium as well. These classes were extremely powerful like the Dragon Rider Class, which allowed them to tame Dragons that could fight with them in battle.

Just like everyone else, Lux also dreamed of having one of those hidden Job Classes. Most people said that they found these rare classes through fortuitous encounters, while others said they were bestowed upon them by Masters who were looking for disciples to inherit their legacies.

Lux sighed as he put aside these thoughts for the time being. He had finished consuming all of the Beast Cores, and prepared to leave his room to visit the Adventurer's Guild.

He had no intention of leaving Leaf Village anytime soon because he still needed to do a few things in order to prepare for the goal he had in mind.

As long as this goal was achieved, he could leave Leaf Village with a clear conscience.

Lux decided to pave his own path in the world of Elysium, regardless of what people thought of him. As long as his Grandma Vera, Max, and Eriol believed in him, then he could walk the rough and winding road with his head held high.
