Chapter 651 Something happens to Spencer

After going to Frayton, things worked out perfectly.

Micah didn't leave Frayton but insisted on staying in Matton Corp and working as Abigail's secretary. He would stay by her side until they got married.

Finally he met someone he loved deeply, and he was willing to give his love to her wholeheartedly. Lyra had no reason to stop him.

On the return flight, Lyra languidly rested her head on Malcolm's shoulder, staring at the clouds and mountains outside the plane.

She pondered, and made a plan and summary of the recent marriages of the people around her.

"Chad and Keira are going to announce their engagement in two days, right? Micah and Abigail are getting married next month, so there is still no news about Keith and Melissa getting married. I don't know how it is going with Keith and Melissa. Keith is not as stupid as Micah in relationship. But does Keith make Melissa fall in love with him again?"

Malcolm touched the tip of her nose gently with his finger, "It's a relationship between them, just let them handle it themselves."

Lyra nodded.

She just got a little bit emotional. If it wasn't for the incident of being injected with drugs by Shane to control her mind, Melissa wouldn't have a nervous disorder. She accidentally forgot everything in the past four years, and Keith was completely removed from her memory.

If it weren't for these changes, they would probably have been married long ago.

"There are a lot of things going on recently. I haven't paid attention to the Game Club for a long time. I heard an international final is being held recently. When I go back, I want to visit Melissa."

Malcolm was a little surprised, "This is your work schedule. You actually discuss it with me?"

Hmm...

Lyra was wordless for a while and joked, "Although your opinion will not change my work schedule, I still want to respect your opinion when I talk about it."

He was speechless.

The sun was rising, and there was a red glow outside the plane window, and even the clouds were glowing red.

Lyra pointed at a bulging red cloud on the horizon, "Honey, look at the color of that cloud. Does it look like the color on your buttocks?"

Malcolm was stunned for a moment, then looked sideways in the direction of her finger, and said seriously, "It's a little bit similar, but my color is more red than this."

Chapter 652 Is there something more to Spencer's illness?

"The baby boy's body is weak. It should be a congenital problem. His heart is not good. He has premature ventricular complex. If he's not treated properly, I am afraid it will develop into severe myocarditis."

The doctor looked at the data indicators and sighed slightly, "As Spencer grows, the indicators of physical weakness will become more obvious and more serious."

The examination room fell into a long silence.

Lyra's eyes reddened. Her heart throbbed with pain. She took the initiative to pick up Spencer who was in the nurse's hand and looked at him

Spencer didn't know he was sick. He blinked slightly, looked at Lyra, and smiled innocently.

Malcolm clenched his palms, watched their interaction, and reproached himself beyond measure.

Anthony's mood wasn't much better.

He asked the doctor, "Has Spencer's blood been tested for virus? Could his congenital problem be caused by virus?"

The doctor was stunned for a while, "For ordinary people, this kind of virus is very rare, or even almost non-existent. So, our hospital does not have a targeted test for the virus. If it can't be found, I'm afraid he has to be sent to War Science Laboratory."

The doctor glanced at Malcolm and Lyra, "Do you and your wife know what virus it is? He's so young. If the congenital weakness is caused by the virus, it is probably because the mother carries the source of the disease."

Malcolm glanced at Lyra who was holding the baby and said in his magnetic and low voice, "Nothing serious. It's not a very important virus. Rara has checked and she does not carry the source of the disease."

He wasn't going to tell the doctor the whole truth, because the hospital couldn't do blood tests anyway.

If they wanted to rule out the cause, but they can't find it here, and it was useless to say more.

He walked over, put his arms around Lyra's shoulders, and patted her with his big palms gently, "Babe, let's take the treatment of heart disease first. As for the checking of the virus in Spencer's body, we'll deal with it when he grows up."

The blood virus test in the laboratory required a lot of blood samples. Spencer was too small now. He was weak, and his heart was not good, so he can't bear to take too much blood for testing.

Lyra also knew it and nodded, "I just think he's such a small child but he will start taking medicine from a young age. I guess he has to grow up with medicine. It is so pitiful."

Malcolm kissed her forehead softly, and his voice was calm. "Even if Spencer is sick, I'll make him the happiest baby in the world."

Once the seed of doubt was sown, they will grow wildly and be out of control.

In the few minutes that Sophia left briefly, Anthony had already made countless guesses.

He selfishly hoped that Spencer's illness was not caused by the virus, but the formula and artificially...

Sophia soon returned with the almost empty bottles that were sorted out.

"Mr. Callahan, I always use out of it. This half scoop of formula is already gathered from several bottles."

Anthony took it and carefully compared the two.

He was not familiar with baby formula, so he couldn't see much difference.

"Tell me about your doubts."

Sophia pointed to the half-scoop of the formula she got from the almost empty bottles, "The formula of this kind is slightly yellowish and fine, but this time the new one is white. Although it's also very fine, it is not as good as the one compared with before which has a strong and fragrant of milk flavor."

Anthony looked again, and, according to Sophia, he also found the slight difference.

He asked, "Do you think there may be a problem with the formula this time?"

Sophia nodded.

Anthony narrowed his eyes, "The baby formula of this brand has not only been had by Spencer, but also by Momo. If there is a problem with it this time, Spencer uses to have the one from the previous batch, which makes no sense."

Sophia scratched her head in confusion. Anthony was right.

Chapter 654 Let Chad make an appointment for fight with Anthony

Before leaving the hospital's waiting room, Malcolm took Anthony to Spencer's ward first.

Lyra was sleeping by Spencer's bed.

Before returning to Suham, Lyra had a hard time because of having sex at night, and she felt better after Malcolm massaged her waist and her back in the morning.

Unexpectedly, as soon as they returned to Suham, they just learned about Spencer's condition. Lyra was worried all day, and Malcolm knew how tired she was physically and mentally.

Being unable to disturb them, Malcolm walked over lightly, took a blanket and wrapped it around Lyra's shoulders.

He leaned forward cautiously and kissed on her cheek.

Lyra was sleeping soundly and didn't wake up at all.

During the whole process, Anthony watched from the door. He slowly lowered his blue eyes, showing no emotion.

Out of Hopevale General Hospital, they went straight to the bureau.

Because it was late at night, only a small number of officers in the bureau were working overtime.

Chad had already gone home. However, he heard that Malcolm had personally come to the bureau for Spencer's baby formula issue, and he rushed back quickly.

Malcolm and Anthony's luxury cars arrived at the door of the bureau, and Chad had been waiting for a long time.

In the cold wind, he rubbed his hands and ran forward eagerly to help Malcolm open the door.

"Malcolm, how is Spencer? Is the situation still stable? I heard it has something to do with the formula he has?" Seeing Malcolm's stern face, he woke up from a drowsy state and asked quickly.

Malcolm didn't answer, but asked instead, "Why do you come here?"

"Something happened to Spencer. Someone wants to murder my lovely little nephew. How could I sleep? As soon as I heard that you were coming to investigate the case in person, I came here."

Malcolm's face looked cold, and he was not surprised by Chad's words, and patted Chad's shoulder with his big palm, "It's hard to say. Whether there is biochemical virus residues in the body, we have to wait for Spencer to be older and bring him to the laboratory for testing. The most difficult thing at present is his heart. Rara stays with him all night."

Chad: "Lyra is with Spencer in the hospital. What about Momo?"

"Sophia is at home."

Chapter 655 Three kinds of suspicion

"I will only use your suspicion as a reference. I may not fully accept it, so don't worry." Malcolm's black eyes were stern and cold, and his slender fingertips were fiddling with the delicate teacup.

With his words, Anthony sorted out the thoughts of the whole thing and said, "The old formula has been found to be problematic, so with the exclusive method, there are only a few cases."

"One is that the formula is produced from the Aurarts' factory. Perhaps during production, this batch of formula to be sent to the White Mansion was specially chosen. So, maybe people of senior management of Aurarts Group hate your family and deliberately add it when the formula is produced."

Malcolm's eyes were deep and unwavering, and he listened quietly.

Anthony finished talking about the first possibility, and said lightly, "Aurarts Group has my largest holding, and the executive officer is my former subordinate. After leaving the army, he chose to inherit the family business and start a business."

"He is meticulous. Because it is for babies, he is very strict with the internal control of the factory, which is why I choose their product. It has the highest safety factor."

"The milk baby formula delivered every month was indeed chosen especially, but it is all under the supervision of the executive officer. It is unlikely there will be problems from there."

"I know him. He doesn't have the guts."

Anthony nodded thoughtfully, "If you're 100% assured about this aspect of the factory, then there is another situation."

"Someone in the White family is going to harm Spencer. You and Rara both have jobs and often go out early and come back late, so it's best to do it under the same roof."

Malcolm stopped talking. His fingers which were holding the teacup lightly tapped the gray-white porcelain body of the tea set, as if he was deliberating.

Anthony raised his blue eyes, observed his expression from time to time, and continued, "I remember not long ago, you sent Spencer and Momo to your grandfather's villa and let them stay there for a long time. Sophia and that pile of baby items should have been the villa with them, right?"

Malcolm frowned slightly. His fingers that were holding the teacup tightened, and his expression became more serious, "You doubt my grandfather?"

"No. Although he's retired at home, he has built a good reputation over the years. He would not do such a thing to harm his own great-grandson."

Anthony continued with reason, "However, it is not ruled out that other people in the White family did this kind of thing, and quietly replaced the batch of formula on the pretext of visiting your grandfather."

Malcolm fell into a long silence again.

Chapter 656 Don't check Rudolph

The prison guard saw Ryan's nervous look, guessed that he was thinking and laughed.

"Don't worry. You can't die. A big shot wants to see you."

Late night visiting?

Ryan was nervous. Who was there to visit him in the prison in the middle of the night?

He thought uneasily, and the drowsiness a few minutes ago disappeared completely.

The dull footsteps of the two echoed in the dimly lit corridor, and the prison guard took out a key to open the door of the secret visiting room.

Squeak-

The iron door rattled and Ryan walked in with handcuffs and anklets.

There was a large square table in the visiting room, and there were two men sitting opposite the table.

Ryan took a closer look and saw the man sitting in the front seat. That man was staring at him with no expression. Although that man was not angry, he was overwhelming, and his aura was extremely powerful.

Ryan was familiar with that face and wanted to kill Malcolm at all times.

It was a pity he lost, and he didn't have this chance.

What surprised him even more was that Malcolm brought Anthony this time.

Callahan family was Lloyd family's business rival. Malcolm didn't even shy away from him in terms of family affairs?

Ryan was suspicious and sat down with calmness.

When the prison guard closed the door and went out, he immediately asked, "Why do you need to find me so late? Could it be something wrong with my dad?"

Chapter 657 Malcolm only loves Lyra and doesn't like jokes

Chad's investigation meant that the baby formula incident will reduce the suspicion of the White family a lot.

Malcolm couldn't tell whether he felt grateful or numb, "Go back to the bureau immediately. I'll be waiting for you in the office."

Chad: "Okay."

Twenty minutes later, Chad walked into Malcolm's office with the sorted documents.

This time, when he came in and saw that Anthony hadn't left yet, Chad didn't taunt but looked serious and handed the documents to Malcolm seriously.

Malcolm took it and listened to Chad's statement as he read carefully.

"In the past three months, Aurarts Group has delivered baby formula to Lyre Spiti five times. The same person handled the three times. The first time was different from the most recent..."

Malcolm scrutinized the documents in his hands, frowning more and more tightly.

Anthony, who was sitting on a guest sofa not far away, walked to Malcolm's desk, took away the documents that Malcolm had already read, and examined the contents.

According to the data, the person who delivered the formula for the first time made serious mistakes due to improper operation and personal reasons. This person was complained by customers and had been laid off.

The second handler delivered three times without any problems.

During this period, he did not receive any complaints about the baby formula he delivered to other wealthy families, and he was doing a very good job.

His laid-off reason was that he submitted a resignation application himself, and the specific reason was not stated in the resignation letter. In the end, Aurarts Group replaced a new transporter.

Anthony: "If this information is accurate, there is a big problem with the person who delivered the formula three times. The reason for the layoff is unknown. It is estimated he is afraid of being discovered, so he wants to quit in time."

"And he is in the most convenient place to replace the original formula during the transportation. It should have nothing to do with the person who handled it recently, because the latest batch of formula has passed the inspection without any problems."

Malcolm helped her tuck in and lie down, saying softly, "You can rest assured to sleep. I will watch Spencer. If Spencer wakes up, I will mix the formula. Don't forget after you gave birth to them, I did everything. I am more familiar than you."

He said so, and Lyra didn't refuse, "Okay, as long as it makes you less excited."

Malcolm leaned over again and kissed her soft lips, as if it was not enough.

Lyra obediently closed her eyes and slept soundly.

Malcolm was by the bed and watched her for a while. Seeing that she was really asleep, he turned and went to Spencer's crib.

For those who were asleep, the night seemed like a fleeting moment.

But for Malcolm who didn't dare to rest all night and was in a semi-awake state, it was indeed a long time.

Sometimes he even thought that if he and Rara were not from the wealthy families, he didn't enter the army and Rara didn't have to shoulder the responsibility as the head of the family...

If they were just an ordinary couple who had a pair of lovely twins, will life be much easier than it was now?

But these, after all, were just extravagant hopes and fantasies.

He and Rara both had to take on too much, and they couldn't let go of their burdens at all.

Thinking about it, Malcolm fell asleep in the dark.

At five early in the morning, he was awakened by Spencer's crying.

As a soldier who was always vigilant, he woke up instantly, picked up Spencer immediately and coaxed him gently when Spencer just cried while the sound was not too loud.

He turned back cautiously and glanced at Lyra who was on the bed.

Fortunately, Lyra slept soundly and was not disturbed.

He hugged Spencer and left the ward lightly. They went to a quiet and unoccupied ward next door, and he mixed the baby formula with water in a skillful and orderly manner.

Chapter 659 Malcolm loves his wife most

The nurse stepped forward respectfully and put the tablet box in the tray on her table.

Lyra held the baby with one hand and maintained the movement of feeding. With the other hand freed, she went to check the box on the table.

The nurse stood quietly beside her, not saying a word.

Before Lyra could touch the box, she suddenly noticed something strange.

"No, when it's the first day of taking medicine, the attending doctor should come in person. Even if the medicine arrives, the doctor must give the prescription and bring it to me to communicate with me, instead of sending a nurse."

She turned her head suddenly, "What's your purpose?"

The nurse had a fierce look. Just when Lyra turned her head to look over, she pulled out a syringe with anaesthetic hidden behind her and tried to stab it at Lyra's neck.

Because of holding Spencer, it was very inconvenient for Lyra to fight with her with one hand, and the nurse was indeed very ruthless with both hands.

The needle broke the skin of Lyra's neck, and Lyra gritted her teeth and kicked her hard. The nurse staggered two steps to the side, before the needle in her hand could be injected into Lyra's body.

Lyra's fair skin had red scratches, and small beads of blood oozed out.

It seemed that her movement was too fierce, and Spencer felt uncomfortable in her arms and began to whimper and cry.

At this juncture, Lyra didn't have time to soothe the baby's emotions but quickly put him back in the crib and covered him with a light blanket. Then she turned to fight with the woman in the nurse's uniform.

In terms of fighting, Lyra, who had the black section of Jiu-Jitsu did not have the restraint when holding the baby, almost sec-killed that woman.

She strangled the woman's neck and pressed her hands against the table, asking, "Who sent you here? What happened to the police officers outside?"

The noise was not small in the room, and there was a small and transparent glass window on the door of the ward, in which the people outside could vaguely see the situation in the ward.

But outside the door, the two police officers arranged by Malcolm did not enter the ward after the movement. Something must have happened.

Chapter 660 Malcolm suspects something is wrong

Lyra's mouth was gagged, and the black patch over her eyes was not removed, but her ears could hear clearly.

She breathed a sigh of relief. When thinking of Spencer who was hidden in the closet of the ward, her heart throbbed.

She hoped that the people sent by Malcolm would find the abnormality in the ward sooner, take Spencer out of the closet, and take good care of him.

As the driver was driving, Lyra lightly tapped her fingers and calmly estimated the approximate time it would take for the journey.

Along the way, several men in suits did not speak, and it seemed that they were very disciplined.

Lyra couldn't help but be more curious about the boss behind them.

It was estimated that more than 40 minutes later, the van stopped, and the men in suits took off the towel from Lyra's mouth and dragged her out of the car.

Lyra was very upset and scolded, "You have to be kind to the lady. Be gentle. Don't you understand?"

The men in suits were stunned.

She was kidnapped but had more aggressive temper than the kidnappers?

"Your life is in our hands now. Don't you be obedient?"

Lyra was not fearful at all and her tone was particularly cold and arrogant, "You kidnap me and just use me as a bargaining chip to look for Malcolm for money or benefit. As long as you hurt me, even if I have a very mild injury, Malcolm will be angry. I think you know better than me what the consequences will be."

"Of course you have to treat me well as a bargaining chip like me, and handle me like a valuable item, understand?"

Although she was blindfolded, her hands were tied with ropes, and she could not be free, the aura on her body was still very strong and powerful, making several men in suits stunned.

After all, the men in suits were subordinates, so they can't be sure of the opinions of their boss, so they can only follow Lyra's words and treat her gently.

"Come on, Miss Lloyd."

Lyra was supported by two men and walked forward. Although she could not see the route, her hands tied behind her were not idle.

Before she was tied, she had grabbed a handful of Spencer's baby formula in her hand.
