

Heiress 701

Chapter 701 Sweet man before others, lunatic privately

Seeing that Anthony didn't reply, the other men in the private room couldn't figure out his temperament.

"Mr. Callahan, can we... go?"

"We're really out of money. We haven't slept this bitch ... This woman beat us a few times so badly that we have to go to the doctor overnight."

Anthony narrowed his eyes slightly, with coldness raging, "Get out."

"Yes, yes."

The several men ran away. When they were passing Anthony, Anthony glanced at them.

Some had their arms slightly fractured, while others were clutching their bleeding waists...

There were six men, but they all suffered losses by Mavis, and they did not get any advantages.

Anthony couldn't help but take a little interest in Mavis.

He walked slowly into the messy private room. The dark leather shoes stepped on the broken glass on the ground, making a slight noise.

Mavis, who was hiding under the table, heard the steady footsteps getting closer. She was so nervous that she held his breath, and her whole body shook even more fiercely.

She was telling herself silently.

He can't see her. He can't see her...

However, the next second, she felt her shoulders warm slightly. Mavis tilted her head to see that it was Anthony who took off his suit jacket and put it on her shoulders, covering her own torn clothes.

He was so gentle.

He was so gentle that any woman will fall in love with her almost in seconds.

Mavis was even more embarrassed to see him. She buried his head low, and didn't dare to look at him at all.

"Don't hide. I know who you are."

Mavis heard his slightly hoarse voice, which was particularly magnetic and pleasant.

"Why come to such a dangerous place? Are you short of money?"

Unable to hide it, Mavis nodded, with tears dripping down her cheeks.

"I'm sorry. You only said this afternoon that you wanted to try to date with me, but I embarrass you tonight..."

"It's okay."

Chapter 702 His goodness makes people fall

Late at night.

A luxury car was speeding on the road. Mavis was wrapped in the suit jacket that Anthony had given her, and tilted her head to look out the window at the night.

She had already told Anthony where she lived, and Anthony said he would send her back.

But she looked at the street sign outside the car window, and it didn't seem to be the way home.

"Where are taking me?"

Anthony drove with one hand with a relaxed posture, staring at the road ahead without any disturbance, "Go to the hospital."

"It's really not necessary..."

"You heard what Levi said just now. You have to get an injury identification sheet in order to catch the group of people who bullied you. How can you check the injury without going to the hospital?"

"I was just very scared at the time. I really wasn't seriously injured. Since they gave the money, or else..."

She wanted to calm things down. Before she spoke, Anthony interrupted in a deep voice, "How can the woman I want to date be bullied by such scumbags? Even if they fail, I will make them pay the price."

Mavis stopped talking, and was moved by him who warmed her heart.

It turned out that this was the feeling when there was a boyfriend protecting her...

"Thanks."

Anthony drove the car without changing his facial expression, and said in a calm tone, "In short, let me handle this. You don't need to worry about it. Go back later and have a good sleep. And don't forget tomorrow's date."

Mavis nodded cautiously.

She will not forget.

Even if she forgot to eat and drink, she would never forget her official date.

Thinking of Nevaeh in the monitoring room, Anthony narrowed his cold eyes and continued to ask, "You don't look like a woman who often goes in and out of bars like Club Enchant. Who told you that?"

If she was a woman who had been in the bar for a long time as a barmaid, the following things will not happen at all, and there will be no conflicts with customers, and it can be easily resolved.

Compared to Mavis's panic, it was like a lamb that had just entered the wolf's den.

Anthony quickly had a preliminary judgment on what happened today, but he needed Mavis to tell the truth.

Mavis lowered her head and thought for a while.

Although she was careless, she was not stupid enough not to understand anything.

I sent you and Miss Molly out of the hotel at noon, she took the initiative to find me and gave me a card, saying that if I am short of money, I can find this place and earn a lot

Mavis was a little shy, "Mr. Callahan, take it apart and take a look."

Inside the box was JG's Eau de Toilette for Men.

JG was a relatively high-end brand, and the price of perfume was more than two or three times more expensive than ordinary perfumes on the market.

Anthony held the perfume bottle and looked at it, and suddenly understood, "So you risked going to the bar last night to earn tips to buy me a date gift?"

Mavis smiled shyly, "Yes."

"Actually, it's not necessary. I don't care about the value of gifts. I do what I can. Even if you put a feather in it, I will like it."

"Furthermore, things like gifts should be given by men to give all the surprises for women."

He said in a warm voice. When there was a smile on his handsome face, it was extremely evil and charming, and it looked outrageously good-looking.

Mavis was fascinated without realizing it.

She can have a date with Anthony who was so good-looking. Even if she were to die immediately, she felt it was worth it.

"Let's go. Get in the car. I take you to have breakfast first."

Anthony held her hand like a gentleman, and took the initiative to help her open the passenger's door.

Throughout the whole day of dating, Anthony was like a modest gentleman, thinking of everything for her very thoughtfully.

That made Mavis feel like she was dreaming for a while.

In the morning, they went shopping, and Anthony helped her buy some clothes and a few pairs of high heels.

In the afternoon, they went to see the hottest movie in the theater.

In the evening, Anthony took her to a quiet restaurant for a candlelit dinner.

Because she was in a good mood, Mavis drank a few more glasses of wine and fell directly on the dinner table.

Anthony walked around the long table and lightly grabbed her cheek, "Wake up. Are you really drunk?"

Mavis's cheeks were flushed, and she was very drunk. She felt the cold hand come close, and she unconsciously clenched his palm.

Chapter 704 Marriage Agreement

Mavis stared blankly at the document on the coffee table and took it slowly.

The first page was printed in large characters. [Marriage Agreement]

The Callahan family was a wealthy and aristocratic family with a big business. If there was any premarital property certificate that needed to be clearly divided, Mavis can understand.

Thinking of this, she tuned the page.

There were a lot of terms and conditions, which she did not expect at all.

The term of this agreement was one year.

The agreement roughly meant that for a year of private marriage, she needed to cooperate with Anthony to pretend to be intimate at any time. In private, they did not interfere with each other.

When the one-year marriage deadline was up, Anthony will give her a corresponding reward, and the divorce fee will be very generous.

The reward column at the bottom was blank.

It seemed Anthony left it to her on purpose.

She looked at this thick marriage agreement in shock and felt so ironic in her heart.

No wonder Anthony was so indifferent to her tonight. It turned out that he had this idea from the very beginning. He wanted to use her...

One year contract couple.

In the past, she thought this kind of thing would only be seen on TV, but she didn't expect it to happen to her this time.

But why was she... not happy at all.

When her expression was complicated and her heart was full of mixed feelings, Anthony sipped his cigarette and said lightly,

"As long as you sign this agreement, you don't need to go back to your previous small apartment. I will let people help you carry your luggage and come to Callahan Residence."

"In addition, if you don't want to go to work, I will give you 100,000 dollars of pocket money every month this year, enough for your daily expenses."

"You just need to cooperate with me at the right time and perform to be affectionate."

"As for the property division of the divorce after one year, I will leave it to you. I cannot give you the shares of Callahan Group. Except that, I have other real estate, shares of major subsidiaries, gold, and cash. How much do you want? I can satisfy you."

The room was filled with a faint smell of tobacco. Anthony's expression was covered in smoke, and there was no gentleness, only alienation and indifference on his face.

Anthony took the pen, signed his name, and carefully put away the marriage agreement.

Mavis got up again and said cautiously, "Then I'll leave first. When we need to get the certificate, you can call me at any time."

"Do you still want to go back to that small apartment?" Anthony raised his blue eyes. His voice was slightly playful, "It won't take long to get the certificate. Go early tomorrow morning. You will live here tonight. Get used to the future life in advance. I will sleep in the bed. You sleep on the sofa."

Although it was a bit presumptuous to live in the same room as the first time she came to his house, sleeping on the sofa was no problem.

But...

"Will we go to the Civil Affairs Bureau tomorrow morning? Will it be too soon? Although my mother is from Crana , my nationality is Teflayria , and my ID ... is also in Teflayria ."

Anthony lit another cigarette, "I don't like to procrastinate. The sooner the better. You don't have to worry about the ID card. I have sent people to Teflayria, and the people will be back tomorrow with your ID card."

Mavis suddenly realized, "It seems that you have already guessed that I will agree to sign the agreement?"

"Sooner or later."

Mavis was silent.

She didn't know how the people sent by Anthony will negotiate with her family. If they rashly knew that she was going to get married, what will be the reaction?

The smell of tobacco in the room was getting stronger and Mavis walked over and took the cigarette from his mouth.

"Mr. Callahan, stop smoking. Cigarette is not a good thing. If you smoke too much, you will hurt your body, not to mention it's so late."

Anthony narrowed his eyes coldly, staring at her and feeling a little unhappily.

"You start to take care of me before we get the certificate?"

"Uh..." Mavis was embarrassed for a while, and was frightened by his sullen eyes, "I, I just got used to it in advance. After all, when we go out to play a loving couple in the future, I always have to... study it so that I won't be a bad actor to shame on you."

Anthony withdrew his cold eyes, didn't say anything, and didn't mean to light another cigarette.

Mavis breathed a sigh of relief, bent down slowly, and put the cigarette into the ashtray to snuff it out.

Anthony stared coldly, ignoring her slender waist in front of him.

After reaching, he walked through the winding alleys and finally stopped at the door of Lyre Spiti.

Across the garden, he can hear the faint and tender laughter coming from the villa.

It was like Molly's voice.

Thinking of Molly the sweetheart, Anthony's eyes gradually softened, and he stood quietly at the door waiting to pick her up.

Ten minutes later, Lyra and Malcolm led the two babies out.

Molly saw Anthony and ran to give him a hug.

"Anthony~"

Anthony squatted down, and when she approached, he wrapped his long arms and hugged her firmly, then looked at Lyra and Malcolm and said, "Rara, Mr. Malcolm, Molly is going to be late for kindergarten. I'll take her away first."

"Okay." Lyra responded .

Malcolm nodded slightly.

Spencer, who was being held by his daddy, pouted and stared at the back of Anthony and Molly laughing with a displeased expression.

Lyra saw his expression and asked, "Baby Spencer, don't you want to go to kindergarten too?"

Spencer shook his head, "My illness is not yet cured, and the injections are too time-consuming to go to kindergarten like Molly."

With a proud face, he continued, "Moreover, I can't play a lot with them. I can already do the math Olympiad for students in junior high school, but they are still learning addition and subtraction from 1 to 10. There is no common topic."

Lyra got it.

"That means you don't like your godfather and don't want to see him?"

Spencer snorted, "He's Molly's godfather. I've never admitted him. I really don't want to see him. It's annoying to abduct Molly every day."

Malcolm bent over and lifted his little butt with his big palms, cradling him into his arms.

Spencer rarely enjoyed his father's hug because he sat in the hospital bed for a long time. He liked to hug Malcolm's neck, and his small head laid on his broad shoulder.

Hmm...

He was a adult man. How could he be so embarrassed to ask the shopping guide lady? Was he not even blushing?

"Mr. Callahan, you're so considerate. Thank you."

Anthony looked at his watch, "Go out before 10 o'clock, hurry up."

"Oh well!"

Mavis immediately picked up the shopping bag and entered the small dressing room next to her.

She breathed a sigh of relief when she put on the close-fitting clothes.

Anthony really guessed it.

This... size was smaller.

Forget it. It will be a while, and after getting the certificate, she will go back to the small apartment to pack her clothes.

"Done yet?"

Anthony was already urging in the bedroom.

"It'll be fine right now."

Without further delay, she quickly changed her clothes and came out of the changing room.

A long white dress made her look beautiful.

Wearing the clothes did not reduce her beauty at all, but made her skin flawless.

Her facial features without makeup were very attractive, and the long golden hair made her look like a little angel.

Anthony stared at her for a moment.

Mavis touched her face, being stared at unnaturally. Then she followed his gaze to look at her clothes.

Although her mother guessed all wrong, she was still very moved.

Few days ago, she had a big fight with her family because she didn't want to go back to Teflayria for a blind date.

As for marriage, she didn't expect Anthony to have her mother tied up and threatened.

Mavis felt guilty.

"No, not at all. I like him very much. I signed this marriage agreement voluntarily. Even if it's only a one-year marriage, I think it's worth it."

Her mother sighed.

Her father quickly grabbed the phone and continued to ask, "Who is that man? What's his name? How is the family? What job does he do? Does he have a car?"

"His name is Anthony. He taught at Teflayria before, and you have met him."

There was another chaotic voice on the other end of the phone.

It seemed that Mavis' brother was asking something.

Soon, her father listened to her brother's advice and asked in a complicated way, "Is that Anthony the CEO of Callahan Group in Suham, Crana?"

"Yes."

The family felt relieved.

Their daughter married a rich and handsome man.

Her father's tone was much softer, "If you can marry such a man, he will give you a lot of money when you divorce, right?"

"I don't want it." These words represented Mavis' determination.

Her father's mood exploded again, "No? How can you say that! A whole family is counting on you to send money back to support us. You signed an unequal marriage agreement, and if you don't get some money back, you will lose both man and money! Isn't this year wasted! Why are you so stupid!"

"Don't scold her. She must have her own thoughts. She is very sober. She must know what she is doing." It was her mother's voice.

"She knows shit! To chase this man, she took a plane all the way from Teflayria to Crana, and it took five years. What happened? She just exchanged a one-year marriage agreement, not even financial compensation. Five years of youth. She doesn't want money? She thinks she's doing charity!? It's useless!"

Her younger brother also said, "That's right. Mavis, you have to make some money anyway. The Callahan family is so rich. Just giving a million casually is enough for our whole family to eat for half a lifetime. Maybe with the rest, I can build a house, and marry..."

When Spencer asked about this, Chad suddenly remembered that a few years ago, Anthony assisted Malcolm in investigating the baby formula case. They agreed that when it was done, they would have a fight sometime.

At that time, he said some harsh words. If he lost, he would hand over his resignation letter on the spot, and he would not even take the position of deputy director of the National Investigation Bureau.

Who knew that there were too many things later, encountering Micah and Abigail's marriage, and his own engagement banquet with Keira ...

As soon as he got busy, he forgot about it.

Anthony forgot it too.

"No, we haven't fought yet, but I'm much better than Anthony. He is definitely not my opponent."

"Really? That's great. You're so excellent."

Spencer's brows and eyes curled with a smile, and he gradually had an idea.

Being complimented by Spencer, Chad felt much more comfortable.

The matter of losing the game just now was quickly forgotten.

"After a while, I will make an appointment with Anthony and help you fix him!"

The more he said, the prouder he was, and the more he showed his strengths and abilities in front of his little nephew. And he almost did a set of military boxing on the spot.

Spencer was very cooperative. He admired Chad but some bad thoughts were hidden in his bright black eyes.

...

Stone Group's stock fell sharply recently, and Stone family lost billions of dollars in two days.

Nevaeh's father, Dylan, went to the Callahan Group with gifts to meet Anthony for two days, but was blocked.

Malcolm was busier. He shuttled between the company and the National Investigation Bureau. And it was difficult to find where he was. Dylan had gone many times and never saw Malcolm.

No way, in order for Stone Group to continue to stay in the business world, he can only condescend and rely on Anthony until he was willing to see him.

At that time, Anthony was in a meeting in the Callahan Group's large conference room.

The woman's name was Mavis Parker, a Teflayria nationality.

Which small backward country was this?

They had never heard of...

They looked at Anthony's expression which was calm, and couldn't help but question the authenticity of the marriage certificate.

"Anthony, you are afraid of being urged to marry by us, so you deliberately found a photo of a woman on the Internet and synthesized it to make a fake marriage certificate to deal with us?"

Anthony took a sip of coffee without hesitation. "The marriage certificate is in your hands. You can ask someone to verify. The staff of the Civil Affairs Bureau personally issued it this morning.

"Hmm..."

The corners of the elders' mouths twitched. Anthony said it so confidently. Were they really married?

"Anthony, it's not that we don't believe you. Is this woman...reliable?"

"How is her family background?"

"Does she have a bachelor's degree or above? Where does her family live? How many people are there?"

"What do her parents do?"

"When are you going to have the wedding?"

"..."

Anthony heard their questions and was sullen during the whole process, "I don't know her, and since you don't approve it, I will not disclose my marriage to the public. If you are not very busy, you can go and investigate her. Or you can look for opportunities to test her. If you think she is not suitable to conceive the future heir of the Callahan family, I will divorce her in at most one year."

The conference room was quiet for a while.

Several elders were dumbfounded, and some trusted ones were flattered.

Anthony actually gave them the right to assess his wife, and if they felt her was inappropriate, Anthony was willing to do the divorce.

"Anthony, are you serious? If a year later, we don't like her and think she's not suitable, will you really get a divorce?"

Anthony smiled slightly, "When did I lie to you?"

"Okay, Anthony, you're such a good boy. Then we will do as you said. We will not disclose it to the public. After we have verified the woman's identity, we will consider whether to hold a wedding or not and make an announcement."
