Chapter 741 Push her in the teeth of the storm

Anthony just wanted Zack to come forward and give her an out.

So, Zack followed along and said, "Mavis is in her first day of work today. It's excusable if she doesn't know the rules. It's better to wait until the internship period is over before deciding whether to let her stay or go."

Anthony's expression softened a lot, "Since you are all begging for her, then take it as a warning. Next time if she's caught on the spot, pack up and get out."

"Okay." Zack bowed his head slightly. Seeing no response from Mavis, he winked and reminded, "Thank him soon."

Mavis bowed deeply and said, "Thank you, Mr. Callahan."

Anthony looked solemn. He stared at her for a while, then turned and walked away.

When Zack and him both got into the elevator, the entire floor of employees dared to breathe a sigh of relief.

Nyla cried because of it, sobbing and wiping her tears with a tissue.

An employee who was close to her immediately came over to comfort her.

She cried and complained to Mavis, "It's all because of you! You insisted on asking me so many questions, so that I was scolded by Mr. Callahan and almost fired! The salary deduction is for sure. Mr. Callahan's impression on me will be negative..."

Mavis really felt that it had implicated her and felt a little guilty, "I'm sorry. If this will cause you to be deducted your salary, when I get the internship salary next month, I will give you that part of the money."

Nyla was barely comfortable.

Seeing that Mavis was so good, she became unreasonable, "I was reprimanded by Mr. Callahan. How do you pay for the mental damage? Zack just defended you. Don't think you're very proud!"

Mavis turned around and sat upright, no longer argued anything, and continued typing on the keyboard.

Nyla got even more angry when she saw that she didn't speak.

"Why is your attitude like that?! I just kindly answered your doubts, but you made me get scolded. You just made a fake apology?"

Mavis sighed.

She obviously apologized sincerely. If Nyla insisted that she was hypocritical, then she had nothing to explain.

Her attitude angered the people who were helping Nyla.

In front of her, those people deliberately talked loudly.

"You've even scolded me. When the leader inspects, others at least know how to behave and put on a serious work attitude. How about you? Whispering? How can I convince the public if I don't fix you?"

Mavis bowed her head and bit her lip.

In this matter, she was indeed inexperienced and deserved this loss.

Anthony was not innocent. How can he scold her in such a high-sounding manner?

"This morning, you sent me to work by the way. You knew where I am working, and knew that I am an employee of your company, but you didn't say it. In the afternoon, you deliberately came to me to make a fool of myself. I'm afraid this job is also told by Mr. Evans from you. Did you mean to prank?"

He let her be an employee in his company, but she can only pretend not to know him. He was deliberately testing her loyalty to the agreement?

Anthony stopped talking, went to find the cigarette with a sullen face, and smoked one irritably.

Getting Mavis to work in the company was purely out of good intentions. He didn't want to see her looking for unreliable jobs all day long but wanted to know if she was safe.

But after he finished cleaning the laboratory toilet tonight, he should have returned to Callahan Residence directly, which was not the way to go the company.

All of a sudden, he made a trip to the company, just to see how Mavis was doing on her first day at work, and to see her silly look when she found out that he was the boss.

Because Mavis said she was not familiar with him, he got angry inexplicably, and then... it happened.

He was thinking. Mavis grabbed the hem of his clothes. Her eyes were watery but she stubbornly pursed her mouth.

"Mr. Callahan, since I agree to sign the marriage agreement with you, I will not violate the above terms and conditions at will. You don't have to bother to test me."

"I will never let anyone in the company except Zack know about my relationship with you. I will complete the work arranged by the company by myself, and I will not cause you any trouble, and I will not let others think that I am taking advantage of you to get this job."

His blue eyes narrowed slightly, and he took a deep breath, feeling a little depressed.

Why not take advantage of him?

Without his influence, how could Mavis join the Callahan Group?

Moreover, what was wrong with taking advantage? Others can't have this chance if they wanted to.

Anthony didn't even look at her, put down the milk and walked towards the small sofa in the study.
Folding his long legs leisurely, he took out his laptop and started working.

It took several minutes for Mavis to notice that he was still in the study.

Anthony didn't leave.

She tilted her head and looked at the sofa, "Are you busy with work?"

Anthony focused on typing and ignored her.

If he was really busy with work, she will feel a little guilty.

She occupied Anthony's desk, making him, the host, sit on the sofa to work...

"Mr. Callahan, we... let's change positions?"

Anthony stopped what he was doing and gave her a cold look as if she was a stupid.

She was using a desktop computer. How to change?

Did she not think before she spoke?

Complaining in his heart, Anthony didn't have a nice expression on his face, "No, shut your mouth. Deal with your business. Don't bother me."

Mavis shut up and continued to enter the data.

For a while, there was only the sound of keyboard tapping in the entire study.

Both of them were busy with their work, and they were as harmonious as a couple who had been married for many years.

Mavis seldom had a chance to use keyboard, and typing was a bit slow.

Two hours later, when Anthony's work was done, but she hadn't finished the rest of the work.

Anthony frowned tightly, and stared at her seriously for a while with cold expression.

"Really, what am I expecting?"

The higher the expectation she had, the greater the disappointment she finally got. She clearly knew it...

She sighed and looked at the milk. Thinking that Anthony just said that it should not be wasted, she picked up the milk, sipped it like wine, and drank the whole glass of it.

Unfortunately, milk was unlike alcohol which can numb nerves and relieve worries.

Mavis finished sorting out the computer data and turned off the computer. She returned to the bedroom. Anthony had just finished taking a shower. His bathrobe was tightly wrapped, and his short hair was dripping with water.

The two just looked at each other by the bathroom door.

Mavis stared at his face, feeling startled.

Just after coming out of the misty bathroom, Anthony's whole body became soft and refreshing.

The water droplets on his face, coupled with the short dripping hair, made that delicate and handsome face extraordinarily evil.

Mavis looked at him, blushing unconsciously.

He was really... too attractive, too lustful...

With such a stunning man in front of her, and he had just finished taking a shower, who can resist?

She lowered her eyes, lowered her head and stared at her toes, preventing herself from thinking about his figure under the bathrobe.

"Mr. Callahan, the contract you gave me has been entered. I put it on the computer desktop. You can check it at any time when you're free. I checked it before turning off the computer, and there should be no typos."

She tried her best to find a topic to relieve her inner embarrassment.

Anthony gave a light "um". His face was unbelievably flat. He didn't plan to really check her work, and he didn't plan to praise her for knowing how to check before turning off the computer to reduce the error rate.

"Go and take out the quilt and pillow. I'll rest after drying my hair."

"Okay... okay."

Mavis bypassed him, went to the dressing room, took out the quilt and pillow from the closet, and quickly and skillfully prepared for him.

After breakfast, Lyra and Malcolm went out separately because the kindergarten and the laboratory were on different roads.

Lyra drove Molly to kindergarten.

Malcolm took Spencer to the lab for the infusion.

On the way to the lab, Spencer looked out the car window at the receding landscape, looking smart and intelligent.

He asked tentatively, "Daddy, do you really want to accompany me for infusions today?"

Malcolm, who was driving in the front row, didn't answer and just looked up at his son in the rearview mirror. Spencer was sitting in the rear child safety seat.

Spencer was very similar to him when he was a child. In front of his elders, he seemed to be obedient, but he was actually very careful.

Sure enough, seeing that he didn't answer, Spencer said very considerately, "Daddy, besides the official business of the bureau, there is also the White Corp. I know you're very busy ..."

Before Spencer could continue with his official talk, Malcolm interrupted him, "If you want to drive me away and do something bad, then don't bother."

Spencer's face turned pale but he smiled cheerfully, "How is it possible? I just don't want you to delay work because of me, so I will feel very guilty."

Malcolm looked calm, stared straight ahead, and concentrated on driving.

"Spencer, I once was a child too. I know what you're thinking about, but I won't give you this chance. If you want to hurt someone, just tell me in advance. Maybe I will support you."

Spencer pursed his lips and lowered his eyes for a while.

The word "maybe" represented the greatest possibility of being rejected and scolded.

For how Malcolm usually scolded Molly, Spencer saw it, so he must hide his plan so that it can't be discovered by his father.

If he was exposed like Eugene like yesterday, he would take the initiative to ask for punishment. He knew everything but wouldn't say it so that Malcolm could get rid of his temper quickly.

Chapter 746 She is tough

Anthony, who was unaware, was washing the toilet in the laboratory.

After cleaning for a long time, Spencer and Molly no longer asked them to wear women's clothing.

It was rare to be able to retrieve men's clothes that were comfortable, and Anthony and Chad had a lot of energy to work.

Anthony was cleaning the last compartment on the fourth floor. He took a hose and the water was sprayed high.

A handsome man in a doctor's uniform walked into the toilet.

Anthony turned his head when he heard the movement, and just made eye contact with the man.

The two were stunned at the same time.

This was the man who asked Anthony for Facebook last time.

Anthony's face looked slightly unnatural, and he looked down at his outfit today. He didn't wear a wig and dressed as a woman.

The man looked him up and down and stared at him for a while.

The first time when he saw him in men's clothes, the man seemed a little shocked.

In this world, there were actually men who can dress up like women beautifully without makeup.

But after he took off his wig and short skirt, he was handsome and compelling in men's clothes.

"What are you looking at? Don't you come here to use the toilet?"

Anthony's tone was indifferent, but inexplicably sounded a commanding and coercive.

There was a slightly menacing look in his unhappy expression.

Being stared at to urinate by a man who was more handsome than him, the man felt it strange when thinking about it.

Moreover, he had mistakenly identified him as a beautiful lady before, trying to pursue him...

After a brief embarrassment, the man turned around and left, "Forget it. I can't urinate."

Anthony looked at his back inexplicably.

Strangely, he came to the toilet but couldn't urinate.

Anthony kindly reminded, "Are you in poor health? You are young. Don't delve into scientific research too much, but also nourish your kidneys."

"You guys. Hurry up!"

Male colleagues in the logistics department were forced to catch the mouse.

The mouse was very flexible on the ground. A group of people who were used to living in big cities didn't know how to catch mice.

Accompanied by screams, the mouse scurried on the insteps of several male colleagues in suits.

The group of men were so frightened that their faces changed, and they all asked Mavis for help.

"Come and catch it. Do you want it to mess up our entire logistics department and make other departments laugh at us?"

"Yeah Mavis, this mouse was found in your drawer after all. You can't just ignore it!"

Mavis had her hands crossed and watched the play silently for a while.

Suddenly being named, she didn't have a special expression.

"I said, let the mouse find the owner who brought it in. If no one claims it, even if the entire logistics department is in a mess, it is the person who did such a dirty thing and has the responsibility."

Someone couldn't stand it anymore.

"I know who put the mouse in. Grab it quickly and I'll tell you."

Mavis was coherent. "You tell me first, and I'll catch it."

A young woman stood up and pointed in Nyla's direction, "It's..."

"Why are you pointing at me!? What nonsense are you trying to tell me!? How can you speak here!"

Nyla couldn't sit still, slammed the table, stood up, and turned to confront Mavis.

"Mavis! It's just a mouse. Why do you make such a fuss and make the whole logistics department like this?"

Seeing her reaction, Mavis seemed to understand.

"She hasn't said it is you yet. But you're so anxious to expose herself, for fear that I don't know it is you who hold grudges. Today, you deliberately use a mouse to disgust me."

Mavis raised her eyes lightly and glanced at the group of women with a cold attitude, "What are you doing? Do you want to fight?"

Grace Porter, who was close with Nyla, immediately smiled and said, "How is it possible? This is a large staff cafeteria. There are too many leaders and employees in the entire company. The scandals in our department can't always be known by all?"

Mavis lowered her head to eat, "If you want to fight, I'll accompany you. But if you don't, don't bother me."

Her lukewarm attitude made several women unhappy, but because of what they wanted from her, there was no attack.

Nyla answered, "Mavis, what happened today is my fault. I just wanted to see how you were scared by the mouse. Who would have known that you are so tough? Even tougher than those male colleagues in the department..."

Mavis got a little impatient. "What do you want to say? Just say it."

"Today's incident is just a prank of mine. There's no need to tell the leader about this kind of petty trouble, right? And Zack is taking care of you. Don't let him know. I won't treat the same you in the future. Can we get along well?"

Mavis frowned, and her movement of eating stopped, "I repeat. I have no relationship with Zack. Please stop this kind of rumor. I don't want to hear this kind of words to damage the reputation of Mr. Evans and me."

Several women rolled their eyes.

It was all exposed, and she still had to pretend that she wasn't relying on men to take the position. Was it so difficult to admit it?

But for now, the only way was to show weakness and appease her.

Nyla took advantage of the situation and continued, "Okay, if you don't have that kind of relationship, then we won't mention it in the future. As an intern, you can do whatever you want in the future. We don't interfere with each other, okay?"

Mavis agreed, "I won't sue. Don't worry."

She got up, took her plate, left the table besieged by Nyla's crowd, went to a small corner far away, and sat down to continue eating.

As soon as she left, Nyla immediately sneered, full of sarcasm, "Then bear with her for a while. When her internship is about to end, think of a way to get her out of the way."

The female colleague Grace whispered, "She really has abilities. She caught the mouse and is not afraid of it at all. It is estimated that the fight is also very fierce. We should be more careful, just of her revenge."

Nyla disagreed, "She is not the only one in the whole company who has a backer."

Several female colleagues immediately surrounded her with gossip, "Nyla, well done. Who is it?"

Chapter 749 He has seen a lot of women with bad intentions

All afternoon, the logistics department was peaceful.

Callahan Group employees performed their duties, and there was also less gossip.

No one mentioned the mouse thing again, and the atmosphere of serious work was always strange.

Anthony, who got off work after cleaning the laboratory toilet, drove to the company again in person.

Originally, he wanted to go home directly. Thinking that the stupid woman Mavis probably didn't know the way, he came to the company.

But today he did not enter the logistics department. If he went there for several days in a row, it will arouse suspicion and cause unnecessary trouble.

His car was parked in the underground garage.

The window was rolled down. He slightly rolled up his cuffs. As if feeling hot, he pulled his tie with one hand, and loosened two buttons of his shirt, revealing his sexy collarbone.

During the waiting time, he was sipping a cigarette, felt very comfortable, and did not deliberately urge Mavis to get off work quickly. He was just like a good husband who was always waiting to pick up his wife home.

Nyla, who finished her work project ahead of schedule, got off work on time.

She just bought a second-hand car some time ago. She finished her makeup in the elevator, put on lipstick, and arrived at the garage.

After finding the temporary parking space where her car was parked, she was about to open the car door. When she looked up, she saw a globally limited black Bentley next to her.

The top-level luxury car, which was expensive and valuable, was just parked next to it. The difference between the car and her broken one was very huge.

Nyla glanced at it enviously.

In the entire Callahan Group, few can afford this kind of global limited edition car.

That person inside, wouldn't be... Mr. Callahan?

She was slightly surprised, and quietly went around the car.

A man was leaning on the driver's seat smoking a cigarette, with his forearm resting on the edge of the car window. There was a luxury-brand watch on his wrist which also showed this man's noble identity.

Nyla's heart was pounding with nervousness, and she calmed herself down for a while before boldly walking over.

She walked outside the driver's door of the luxury car, bent down slightly, and deliberately pulled down the button on her chest, revealing her bosom a little bit.

She tilted her head playfully and smiled softly inside, pretending to be surprised.

"It's you, Mr. Callahan. I didn't expect to see you in the garage. It's my honor."

Mavis clenched her palms, and her already not-so-good mood worsened.

She endured again and again but couldn't help but burst out, "Anthony, do I look bad in your eyes? No matter what I do, you like to attack me and hurt me like I'm nothing. If you really think I'm not worthy of your identity, then why did you marry me in the first place? You should find a rich woman like Nevaeh."

Anthony stared at her inexplicably, "Are you out of your mind today? You're not happy at work, then why are you mad at me?"

After thinking about it, he reacted again, "You just called my name?"

He reached out and pinched Mavis' cheek with a punitive force.

It hurt a bit.

Mavis got even more angry and clapped his hand away.

Her red eyes were moist, looking very aggrieved.

"Anthony, you just rely on me who like you and bully me unscrupulously. Yes, I like you now, and I will endure it. If I no longer like you in the future, I will never let you bully me."

Anthony frowned and looked at her terribly wronged eyes, feeling puzzled.

The two stared at each other for a while before he asked, "What's wrong? With such a sharp tone, why did you regard a joke as bullying you?"

The more she heard, the more she felt aggrieved, and more she felt jealous. Mavis pointed to her face, "You pinch my face, and my face is red. Do you still say that you are not bullying me?"

They were married. Even if she was a nominal wife, then he should avoid suspicion with other women.

No wonder he had been in the company every day for the past two days. It turned out to be to visit his lover in the company and to pick her up at Callahan Residence by the way?

Feeling suffocated, Mavis bit her lip tightly and lowered her head, recalling the scene she just saw outside the car by herself.

Anthony didn't know what she was thinking, and his eyes focused on her cheek, which was indeed flushed.

A thin layer of red, coupled with her angry expression, made her actually a little cute.

He raised his eyebrows and teased badly, "There is no mirror in the car. How do you know that your face is red from the pinch? Why didn't it turn red with anger?"

"Because you pinched me."

She complained angrily, turned her face away, and quickly wiped her eyes.

Anthony noticed her movement and was startled, "Crying?"
