

The Heir's Revenge by Twine Twin Chapter 22

Revenge

Business Tiara's lips are advancing. "Thanks for the ride, sir!" she understood Dennis was making fun of her. After that the woman came out. Don't forget Tiara bowed respectfully before the woman disappeared from behind the door. Fully entered into her house.

Dennis made sure it was all just then he started the car again shaking his head. Exactly at half past two Dennis's car entered the trunk. Dennis didn't go straight into the room, he stopped by the fridge to take a few sips of cold water. Dennis felt thirsty all of a sudden.

"Dam ..." His grandmother turned on the light, giving off a bright light that Dennis had initially let dim.

"Yes Grandma," he said after placing the glass on the table.

"You just got home at this hour?" Mrs Berlin frowned.

"Yes Grandma. I originally planned to work overtime until ten o'clock at night but because I was too concentrated I ended up in the middle of the night. I was completely unaware of the passing time."

Mrs Berlin nodded her head. "So. Grandma thought you stopped by somewhere to have fun."

Dennis took a breath. "I'm new to the company. I have many things to learn. Not only that, I also have to check a lot of reports as well as some other work. Right now I have no fun time other than weekends with Adelia."

Mrs Berlin nodded her head once again. "Grandma is glad you worked hard for the company. It reminds Grandma of your daddy." Dennis smiled faintly. "I can't imagine how Grandma has been leading the company all this time." "Your daddy was better than Grandma. If only he hadn't..." Mrs Berlin did not continue. Dennis also didn't need his grandmother's full sentence to understand what she meant. Berlin would definitely discuss his father's departure from home. In that case, Dennis would hear of two possibilities. First Dennis would hear of his mother or father's actions, secondly Dennis would hear of the woman's regret. Neither was pleasant to listen to when his mind was as tired as it was now.

"Oma should go back to the room. I'm so tired. I want to rest for a bit after meeting Adelia in her room."

Mrs Berlin sighed. "You're not leaving Grandma, are you?" the woman asked in a sad tone.

Dennis stopped moving for a while but he didn't answer. He continued his steps again towards the room of Adelia, his little princess. Dennis deliberately didn't say anything that went against his heart's desire. It was not that Dennis would remarry a woman of low economic background but he did not agree with Mrs Berlin who belittled the lower class. Dennis had been belittled once and he completely understood how it felt.

It was a long day for him to go through. He didn't want to have a long argument with Mrs Berlin that would crack his head.

Today Raymond is standing at the airport's overseas arrivals department. He fully paid for Bella's treatment as promised as a form of responsibility. Of course that's not the only reason the sly man did it. This he took to attract one of Gaza's sympathies. Hoping Bella can get into his side.

Raymond waved his hand looking at Bella who was walking towards him. "Welcome back miss, Bella!" he said sweetly.

"Raymond, you are going too far by picking me up. Are you sure your wife is okay with this?" Bella put a wall of boundaries right away.

Raymond wasn't offended. The man laughed. "There's some business I need to talk to you, Miss."

"Business?" Bella raised her eyebrows curiously.

"But before that I want to invite you to stop by somewhere for lunch. We'd better talk there."

Bella squinted at Raymond. "Are you sure you're not trying to seduce me?"

Raymond chuckled. “Am I wrong to seduce a woman as beautiful as you, Miss?” Bella chuckled lightly. “Oh I have to be careful with that sweet mouth. Well, where are you taking me Mr Raymond? You know I don’t like lunch at the usual place, don’t you.”

Raymond laughed again. “I’ve made reservations for a great place for our talk.” Bella raised an eyebrow then nodded her head with a meaningful smile of hers. “Okay!” Bella said letting Raymond carry the woman’s suitcase. “By the way, how was your surgery, Miss? Are you satisfied with your current face?” Bella took a breath. “Yeah, thanks to you I got my face back.” Raymond smiled as there was no talk from them when they arrived at the place where Raymond intended to eat. Bella raised her eyebrows when Raymond stopped at a fancy

Raymond had promised her. “How do you know my taste, sir?!” she asked.

“I asked your secretary, Miss. Secretly, I apologize. You said you visited here often.”

Bella laughed lightly. Get out of the car while being led by the waiter to arrive at the place they have ordered. Raymond manly gave Bella a chair and motioned for her to sit down first. Only then did he take his place beside Bella.

“In the same place every time you come here. I also ordered the menu you always order, Miss. Wagyu Cheek and Black Forest.”

Bella actually smiled in satisfaction. “Well, then in total like this what kind of business do you offer me? You can’t afford to pay a high price for such a mediocre business.” Raymond smiled faintly. “This is what I like about you, Miss. You are always one step ahead of knowing what my intentions are.” Bella chuckled. “How come? We are both businessmen, sir. If you say asking me to do business, it’s definitely a form of bribery, it’s normal for people like us.”

Raymond rubbed his head back with a broad smile. “Miss Bella, it’s not wrong that people admire you.”

“Stop seducing that weightless crocodile. What deal are you offering me, I don’t want to waste too much time.” Raymond straightened himself. “I want to invite you to cooperate to destroy Dennis.” “As expected you would invite me like that.” Raymond raised his eyebrows. “So how? Do you agree, Miss.” Bella took a breath, “I don’t know if I have a grudge within me for master Dennis or not.” Raymond smiled faintly. “I can’t be lied to when you were offended when master Dennis brought a girl to my wedding. It destroys your self esteem, doesn't it? I'll tell you another fact that will make you think twice before turning down my offer, Miss?" "What?" she asked. "The girl that damn Dennis brought to my party was a secretary." Raymond whispered faintly "What?!" despite saying the same sentence Bella showed a different reaction. It also gives a different meaning. "How can lord Dennis equate me with the secretary? Does he really want to insult me or what?" "She's his private secretary. I've hired my men to investigate Dennis's movements in recent times."

Bella clenched her fists in anger, the woman was angry with Dennis's attitude towards her." He doesn't know who I really am huh?!" Bella replied.

"That's why I invite you to cooperate, Miss." Bella let out a shaky breath. "What about yourself, sir? What makes you so eager to disable him."

Reymond's eyes narrowed with hatred as if Dennis Damara was right in front of him right now. "Whether he is the mastermind behind the incident that happened at my wedding or not, I have to teach an insolent ex driver a lesson like him. He's like a nut that forgets its skin without being ungrateful. Even though he's been eating from me all this time we have our own anger, miss." Bella nodded her head. The woman raised the glass then. "Okay deal!" she said inviting Raymond a toast

