Chapter 46 Hello lovely readers. Firstly I would like to thank all of you for the tremendous support you have given for my work. I truly

a

á

а

a

a

å

a

a

a⁸

ď

á

a

a

a đ

a

å

a

a

á

a⁵

a

а

a

appreciate it and it keeps me going. So thank you all again for the Reads, Votes and Comments. Lots of love. God Bless You Guys And Have A Wonderful Day Ahead.

###############################

there. There was a so glow all around her but nothing could compare to her fiery orbs that were instilling fear into those mindless creatures.

It missed him by less than a centimeter. 'Focus!'he scolded himself and continued fighting the trolls. Princess Esmeralda and Prince Zenas were doing fairly well, keeping each other in check from time to time. Prince Zenas saved his sister twice by slaying two trolls that came from behind her. "You owe me Val!!" "What for?!"

"What do you mean?! I saved you! Twice!" he said putting up two fingers. "You're my older brother! It's your job!" she yelled back while she threw a knife at a troll. It hit him right between his eyes, causing him to drop dead on the ground.

He looked back just in time to see an axe fly pass the side of his head. "You're such a spoilt sister you know that?!! You screwed me up back there!!" she laughed out loud earning confused looks from some of the trolls nearby.

Third Person's POV He couldn't believe what he saw. His Little Flower was magnificent up

"We'll talk about that when this is over dear brother." With that they aimed their weapons on all those rock like creatures relentlessly coming at them from all directions. The elven king and his army was strong enough to overthrow the trolls in the western boarder of Golden Haven. They've been fighting this war for years which made the elves more experienced and slick when it came to a battle like this. The giant trolls in the west side were quick to realize that they were losing a great number from their army. So instead of getting themselves killed, they moved to the upfront where most of the trolls were. "Where the hell are they going?" the general asked. "They're losing so they're running upfront to fight with their main army. We have to abandon this post and help the Prince." King Epaphroditus and a great number of elves rode towards the northern side. He le a small number of elves to guard the west side. While they moved, there were already too many of them upfront and the eastern side. Both Prince Phoenix and Prince Alexander were doing all they can. A few moments later there was a loud sound of a horn, signalling for the Dark Prince and Queen Aurora to lure them all to the center. "Aeval! Go with Prince Phoenix and merge your light with his dark powers! You are stronger than me. Both of you will most likely make a bigger explosion!!!" The Queen yelled through all the fighting. Her daughter's skin was still glowing with power. She was phenomenal out there. The young princess flew towards her mother and signaled for the queen to fly up. "This power that's flowing through my veins. It's more than I have ever imagined. It's beyond abundant." "That is why-"

"That is why you must merge your gi s with his. I know what I have to do with my gi s. You just have to trust me mama," Princess Aeval cut her mother o. "Sweetheart I don't understand. You're worrying me," her daughter only shook her head and smiled. "There's nothing to worry about. I know how to end this. Once you create the explosion I'll do whatever it is that I have to do and join you here. Just trust me alright," she held her mother's hand for a few seconds then flew across her kingdom towards the Core of Life.

While she flew away from her mother, the fae queen and the Dark Prince lured the giant trolls to the center of the battlefield. All the great armies and their animals contributed to this by bringing themselves to the specific place. Once they rounded up most of the trolls in the same area, the fae queen and the Dark Prince held each others hands. "We only have one shot Phoenix. We have to make full use of it," the prince looked around them, narrowing his eyes. "What is it?" "Everyone is here but I don't see my princess." "She has something else on her mind, come on let's finish this." "What?! Is she-" "We don't have time! We have to end this now! My daughter is much stronger than you think, don't worry." The Queen said with confidence while she was also scared for the princess. Shaking her thoughts away, the two concentrated on their own powers, conjuring them throughout their bodies. The Dark Prince's eyes were turning pitch black while his veins spread all over his skin. Queen Aurora was absorbing so much energy that she was glowing brightly. Their aura and energy began to mix with one another creating a mist all around The mist around them started to grow, its circle spreading bigger by the second. King Epaphroditus could already feel the nervousness among the trolls. "I'm going to fly us up for a larger target." The fae queen said and flew up with the Dark Prince.

wings. An extra body wouldn't weigh much to them.

"Princess. What are you doing here? Are we losing?!"

Carrying up one other person was not much work for a fae with

Meanwhile, Princess Aeval reached the Core of Life. The Guardians of that place were all heavily armed and ready to strike at any moment.

"Calm yourself, Lord Durin. Please take me to the core at once," she said so ly. She could feel their fear. This was one of the greatest wars in history and there was a huge chance that they may be defeated. Lord Durin immediately complied. He told the other guardians to stand down and led her into the magnificent haven. The entire place was a huge secret garden, protected by dozens of gigantic trees. These trees grew no where else in the world. Since the flora here were the closest to the Core of Life, they grew up with its core nutrition, feeding themselves from it. No fae has ever seen any of these plants or the creatures there die. As the young princess quickly walked through the place, the sound of the waterfall grew louder and louder. Soon a er they reached the core, they walked towards the vast clearing with a waterfall so high up that it seemed to be kissing the sky. Only the water wasn't blue nor clear. It was a magnificent gold and more of an enchanted flow of purity falling down and creating a river that connected all around Golden Haven. "What are your plans princess?" "You think I have it all figured out?" she suddenly asked nervously. Lord Durin looked at her quizzically. "You wouldn't simply be here if you didn't have a plan. I believe you must have some sort of an idea princess." "A thought. Just an impulsive thought. I...I don't even know if it would work to our advantage." She confessed meekly. Lord Durin held her hand at once. "I don't know what thought you had. I don't even know the full extent of your gi s. I only know that you're the strongest of us all. You are powerful, smart and wise.

Something made you come here and you already know what you have to do, my princess. So just carry out your task, the rest will take care of itself." The princess squeezed the man's hand in appreciation

She then strode over to the river bank not far from where the water was falling. Very carefully she submerged herself into the magical for his words. She needed to hear them to calm her nerves.

"Princess!! You might not be able to take in that much power all at once!" Lord Durin cried out to her. He was right. The core was like a great energy source. Only the guardians ever get to go near it. It wasn't advisable for ordinary fae creatures to touch the Core, much However, the princess was no ordinary fae. All that power brought no harm to her. Her skin glowed ten times brighter than it already was. Her eyes shined like the Sun. She was so bright that Lord Durin took a few steps back. He knew the other guardians were curious about the bright light as well. Her lips parted and she spoke as how a mother would speak to her beloved children. 'It is time, I need you to work with me. We all need you. Come forth and show your strength to those who seek only destruction and A er uttering those words. Her brightness spread all around her, lighting up the golden water source. Lord Durin stood shell-shocked as he watched her light shine and spread through the water, travelling all over the fae kingdom. "Just a little bit more my Queen," the Dark Prince encouraged. Queen Aurora pushed herself even more and the clouds began to change. The sky grew darker and the mist around them grew thicker. The soldiers and werewolves began to move away from the trolls as if surrendering. They managed to confuse the creatures for a moment.

"Now Prince Phoenix!!"

Some ran for cover.

everywhere.

surrender yet.

They merged both their powers until both became one. It created a huge ball in the sky. The ball of energy became bigger and bigger. Many of the trolls stopped whatever they were doing and looked up.

They merged until the ball became as big as possible, then the two beings released their powers, creating an explosion so big that it destroyed more than half of the troll population. Darkness and light spread everywhere destroying the trolls that were in that particular area. It was indeed a large number of them. They crumpled to the ground. Some were caught up in the explosion and their bodies were completely destroyed. There were dead and bloodied trolls away from them, their surroundings began to turn bright. It intensified so much that Prince Phoenix couldn't properly see the thousands of trolls running towards them. His eyes began to hurt

Seconds later, the giant trolls were all blocked by the white light that came in between them and the great armies. The light made a cut across the battlefield separating the two parties. It was almost like a huge wall now. Its height going up to a hundred meters. King Sindrion

The others remained shocked and confused by the magical great light. Just before any of them could recover, the wall of light started

The remaining trolls on the battlefield were all defeated.

There was nothing le for them to do. The mysterious light triumphed over everything that threatened to bring a dark end to all

Soon a er the silence was once again destroyed not by fear and

The cheering was indeed thunderous. The Alpha King was sure that

As everyone was celebrating, the fae King and his Queen looked assumed.....something bad," he said all the while holding her in a

"Your skin is still glowing, sweetheart, are you alright?" King Sindrion "This isn't over. There's something else I need to do papa. Where is

"Hey, listen to me you don't need to do anything else sweetheart. We won and it's all because of you. You must rest," the fae king replied

"Not yet. I have to do one last thing. Both me and Prince Phoenix will have to do it. Please just let me and don't worry about me. Just trust me for now. I will come back to the castle." She pleaded with both of

"I'm here." Came a deep voice from behind them, cutting Prince

"You come back to the castle as soon as you carry out your plan young lady. I'm trusting it's not life threatening?" King Sindrion raised

ď

á

đ

a

a

a

a

ď

a

ď

a7

a⁴

a

a

đ

a

ď

å

"I'm fine papa but now I need to see Prince Phoenix."

"Why?!" they asked simultaneously.

them and reluctantly they nodded.

"Thank you. Do you know where he is?"

made him smile at her more lovingly.

did with my mother."

He shook his head and asked her why she called him all of a sudden.

"The trolls. I wiped out almost all of them but there is still a number of them which escaped into the wild lands. A small number-"

"But they can return. With a bigger number." She nodded at this.

"I wanted to ask if you could create that explosion again. The one you

"She's too weak Little Flower, I can't make her do that again," blood

"Not with my mother. Can you do it again.....with me?" she asked looking into his eyes. The Dark Prince was surprised to hear this from

"You just used up a lot of your energy. What if something bad strictly. She took a step closer, surprising him again.

maybe I'll become weak and tired but I will not die-" happens to your health? I won't take that risk. Don't do this." He said

"Please, I know we have won the war but don't you want to end it permanently? This is our chance to do that. Please help me. Yes, gave one hundred percent into his gi s while she gave everything she

It was a shame that no one else was there to witness the spectacular event. Their explosion was so huge that it destroyed the remaining trolls that came to fight. Moreover, since the explosion was so powerful, it shattered the each and every stone which the trolls were

The great leaders only got to see the explosion from a far distance. King Sindrion's castle that is. It wasn't much but at least they saw "No." Came her sudden firm voice. "He's not your toughest obstacle. Maybe I am. Maybe, you have to earn my a ection first. You have to show me how I can be with you. I don't even fully understand what love is. Make me understand what that truly means and how we can

had. The results that came with it was mind blowing. The combination of her light and his darkness was nothing short of rushed up to her cheeks as she heard the nickname again.

destruction but by shouts of victory and celebration.

the people of Red Kingdom could hear their shouts of joy.

from the intense brightness.

Celeste looked at his wife knowingly.

However not all of them were gone. There was still a number of them le . It was enough for them to continue their battle. As stubborn as they were known to be, the Dark Prince knew they were not going to water.

"I....I have to take us down now Phoenix," Queen Aurora and the Dark Prince landed so ly on the battlefield. The surviving trolls were slowly advancing forward. "You don't look so good, Your Grace. Is there anything I could do?" Prince Phoenix grew weary of the Queen's condition. She was weakened by the usage of her powers. Thankfully King Sindrion met them a few moments later. "She can't go on fighting. I have to get her to safety Prince Phoenix." "I don't want to go without you," she said to her husband. He looked at her and shook his head but before he could say anything further, the ground shook. All three of them looked up to see a great number of trolls running towards them. They misjudged their count. Even though they wiped out so many trolls, the remainder was still a great number and they were prepared for round two. They came running in all directions, almost in a surrounding manner. The Royal Purebloods, Prince Alexander, King Epaphroditus and the Aplha King along with their armies got ready to go all out. They drew out their weapons and took a fighting stance. The trolls started running in full speed towards them. They were savage and vicious. "Leave now!" the Dark Prince yelled at the fae King and Queen. However, they were too late. The trolls were too close and Queen Aurora couldn't fly. Just when those barbaric creatures were about a hundred meters to move forward, in di erent directions, like a semicircle expanding. The soldiers and werewolves didn't know exactly what to do so they decided to wait. As the strong light moved over the trolls, that was when the uneasiness started. There were mixed reactions from everyone. There were a few screams and a lot of confusion among the armies. Some gasped in surprise or fright. Others moved back and away from the light source. There were some who covered their mouths and observed wide eyed not knowing how to react. This was because, the moment the wall of light moved over the trolls, they turned to stone. Leaving them motionless, heartless, lifeless. The wall of light moved further and further, turning each and every troll on its path to grey stones. The light went on, far from the armies until they couldn't see it anymore. The whole battlefield was buried in silence a er that. No one spoke. As time passed they began to look at each other as if expecting an answer from their friends. More time passed as everyone processed what had just happened. They had won. They great war was over and they won.

things good.

around. The Princess has not joined them. They looked to the direction of Prince Phoenix only to find him gone. "I bet he's looking for her as well. Where is she?" King Sindrion gently laid down his wife and began to look around. Anxiety was eating him up at that point. She was supposed to be with them, celebrating. "Aeval?!! Aeval!!!" he shouted in the crowd. He then commanded a few fae soldiers to look for his princess. They le immediately. "Father!" Prince Alexander embraced the King tightly. "We won. We won because of her, our Evie." "Yes, yes we did. Now we need to look for her." "What?! She's not with you?! Who is she with?!" "She went to the Core of Life alone. She already thought of her plan during the battle," King Sindrion explained quickly. "Quick take your horse. We are going there now." That being said, both of them took of towards the Core. Prince Alexander was getting more and more perturbed by the second. Just as they were halfway there, the fae prince looked up at the sky and spotted another fae. At first he thought it was one of the soldiers but then his father shouted his sister's name. She gracefully landed before them. "Papa, Ale-" "I almost had a heart attack Eve!!! You weren't with the rest so we bone crushing hug.

hugged her.

he?"

so ly but firmly.

Alexander's reply.

his brow and stared her down. The princess quickly shook her head which made the fae prince roll his eyes. "You! One scratch on her and you'll have to face me," the fae king and his son le a er receiving a nod from the Dark Prince. "That wall of great light. How did you do it?" he asked the now nervous princess. "I'm not sure. I just willed myself to do it and I wanted Golden Haven safe. I need a deeper understanding about my gi s." Came her so reply. Before she could say anything else, she found herself in the arms of the Dark Prince. "I...I was so fucking worried. So worried. When you disappeared like that, that's when I felt actual fear. I'm so glad you're okay. Although, I don't understand the glowing," he said taking a step back to look at the glowing princess. Even a er the e ects of war and battle, his Little Flower still looked as gorgeous as ever. "It's the energy in me." "Fucking cool. You're a true fae warrior." He said adoringly. She looked down, not knowing how to react to his compliment. That only

"Don't use that word for yourself," he growled out. Memories of her laying motionless on his bed filled his mind. She looked away not knowing how else to convince him. "I need to do this. We need to do this. Is your final answer no?" he looked down and sighed. He knew she would do it alone if he didn't help. "How tired will you become?" She smiled knowing he was going to help. "We'll see." She flew towards the wild lands while the Dark Prince used his Vampiric speed to run there. They moved on until Prince Phoenix detected the sound of those creatures nearby. Without wasting any time. The two of them repeated what he and Queen Aurora had originally done earlier that day. However, it was extremely dierent doing it with his Little Flower. He extraordinary.

turned into.

something.

When it was all finally over, the young princess and Prince Phoenix landed on the ground. The second Princess Aeval's feet touched the grass, her body gave out. The Dark Prince caught her before she fell on the ground. Placing one hand around her lower back and the other under her knees, he li ed her up and carried her towards the "I..it's a long walk-" she felt so weak. "I got you, just relax," he said so ly. "Thank you for helping us. Thank you for helping me." "I couldn't really say no to you. You should know that by now Little Flower." "Oh." "I know I was beyond horrible to you when you worked for me but I promise you I'm not that same person anymore." "I know, Prince Phoenix. I can see that," she told him truthfully. "Now, I must earn your parents' blessings. It's going to be hard to earn it from your father," She smiled thinking about her protective papa.

and she knew she couldn't do much because he was right. Anything could have happened to them. He then let out a heavy breath and stared at her for a moment. "Fine, their punishment will not be so harsh." Princess Aeval smiled up at him and uttered a so 'thank you.' He looked at her in awe. She finally gave him a genuine smile. She actually smiled athim and that was enough to speed up his heartbeat.

she looked away not being able to explain her feelings. She didn't want to be afraid of him but she couldn't help it. "It's alright. I'll work towards this, this problem." He said a er much "Okay. Um...it's quite a long walk. Maybe you should put me down for "You're weak and before you argue, I can feel it. You have dark circles under your eyes and your body needs a lot of rest. I am not letting you walk...or fly." "I'm not heavy?" the Dark Prince sco ed at this. "You don't weigh much, just like a little flower." He said to her. They enjoyed the sweet silence as they walked towards the castle. The Dark Prince was thrilled to have his Little Flower in his arms while for reasons unknown to her, the princess felt safe and comfortable "Prince Phoenix, please don't punish little Timothy. He really meant no harm." She said all of a sudden. "He deliberately defied my words. Both of them will be punished." He gritted out. "I know it was extremely dangerous but please don't be so harsh," she ended quietly. The Dark Prince looked down at her and saw that she was actually worried about those imbeciles. At least that's what he called them. "They will be punished Little Flower. They must learn," he was stern me. I guess it worked. It worked so well, I can't take it away." "Yes you can," the princess whispered. I don't know how. I would never ever hurt you again Little Flower. I don't want you to be afraid of me." "I know you won't hurt me. It's just hard for me to.....I don't know," thought.

wipe them away. On the other hand, she knew it would be best if she was honest with herself and him. "You saved my life in many ways, I know that. I know that I could never repay some of the things that you did for me but the fear still lingers." She sounded apologetic for some reason. It wasn't her fault "Why shouldn't you be? That was my goal in the beginning a er all. I wanted to instill as much fear in you as I could. So you'll always obey still haunt me, Prince Phoenix. I...I am still a bit scared of you." The Dark Prince looked away. She saw hurt in his eyes and wanted to

"If all goes well, I will speak to my parents but for now, I'm still not ready. A er all I've been through in Red Kingdom, giving myself to you will be extremely di icult for me. Many of my memories of you share that with each other." "What?"

That's all for now readers till next time. Only a few more chapters le !!! Share your thoughts

Continue to next part