

Her Mates Her Protectors Chapter 12

The Report

Benson stood beside his father, Alpha Brandon, as he watched the twin princes make an announcement.

The twin princes had ordered that every member of the pack gather around the pack house, they had an announcement to make. Benson didn't need anyone to tell him what the announcement was all about. It was about Chesney. It's definitely about Chesney. Since Chesney left the pack house, the twin princes hadn't stopped looking for her.

"After discussing this matter with Prince Lennox, both of us have reached a conclusion. We've decided to deeply investigatel this matter regarding our mate's disappearance in order to do that. We've decided that I will look into each and every one of your memories. I'll look into your memories from the night from her birthday party. Immediately after Prince London made that announcement, there was a slight movement from the pack members.

Since speaking was not allowed, no one said a word or challenged his words,

"Some of you might have seen her somewhere, but you probably don't remember. Once I look into your memory from that night. I will be able to piece the puzzle. Prince London continued.

Alpha Brandon couldn't help but notice a slight movement of discomfort from his son, Benson. His movements and facial expression worried Alpha Brandon, so he decided to mindlink him.

"Hey son, are you okay?" Alpha Brandon asked through the mind link.

Um Yes, I am. I'm okay, but Alpha Brandon could feel that there was something wrong with his son.

"Speak, tell me. It's better you speak up now, Benson. Do you know anything about the twin princes's mate?" Alpha Brandon questioned

There was a minute of silence before a reply came: "Dad, I think we need to talk, Benson replied through the mindlink

"Right now? Is it serious?"

"Yes please.

"Okay, I

“Let’s go.” Benson followed his father to his office. He watched his father take his seat before sitting as well.

“So, does this really have anything to do with Chesney, the prince’s mate?” Alpha Brandon inquired calmly.

“Yes,” Benson replied, his tone hesitant.

Alpha Brandon’s brows perked up with interest as he asked the next question, “Did you see her leave the pack house that night??

“N–no.”

“No? Then what’s wrong?

“I didn’t see her leave. I helped her escape, Benson revealed.

“What?” Alpha Brandon couldn’t hide his shock as he stared at his son’s face. “You helped her escape the pack house?”

“Yes, but not just the pack house. She wanted to leave the pack, I took her to the border and watched her leave on the night before her birthday

“What???” Benson!” Alpha Brandon stood up in shock, and Benson instantly dropped to his knees.

Do you understand the gravity of what you did? The princes might behead our entire family for this. Why didn’t you speak. out earlier?”

"I didn't know it could get this serious. I thought they could leave this matter if they didn't see her. I didn't know they could go on searching for her till today. Benson murmured, looking frustrated as while.

Alpha Brandon slowly took his seat again.

"Sit," he ordered, and Benson took his seat.

"I won't ask for your reasons. I know you helped her leave the pack for good reason, so I won't ask you questions regarding that, but I want you to tell me where she went. Where did she leave to?"

"The outer house."

"The outer house!"

"Yes,"

"Then call her back and ask her to return to the pack. From the way I've seen this, I don't think the princes will hurt her. They are rather desperate to find her. They'll do anything to find her, Alpha Brandon said.

"I can't call her back. That's the problem.

"You can't? Why? Did she get hurt?"

"No, she left the outer house the following morning after she got there. They said they didn't know where she went. And they are unable to track her whereabouts too."

"Moon goddess" Alpha Brandon gasped as his shoulder fell. After a full minute of silence, he spoke up again: "You should send someone to seek her out.

"I did that too. I was curious about her well-being, so I did that, but the person I sent couldn't find her. She might have gone to the city.

"What should I do? If Prince London looks into any memory, he'll surely find out that I helped her escape. I regret helping her out, but I don't want you to get hurt because of my action, Benson lamented.

Not that

"I think you should tell him the truth; tell him before he finds out for himself. Or tell Prince Lennox. Yes, go to Prince Lennox. Prince Lennox might handle the news better; Prince London looks rather furious. He might explode on you if you tell him." Alpha Brandon sighed.

“Is that the only way out, Dad? Can’t I erase my memories of that night? If I erase it, then they won’t be able to find anything.”

“It’ll look suspicious. And besides, we don’t have a priestess around here, so how do you intend to erase your memories of that night? Just tell him the truth; we’ll accept whatever punishment they hand to us.”

I’m sorry, Dad. I’m sorry for putting you in this position.”

“Just go tell him the truth”

A few ininutes later.

Benson fixed his eyes on the twin princes as he watched them pace about the entire office space. He had just r

Let’s go to the outer house. Let’s search from there. Lennox suddenly stopped pacing and turned to his twin brother.

“Didn’t you hear him?” He said she was not there.

“I know, let’s still search. We might be able to find her, and if we don’t, we’ll return to the palace and hire a private detective.” Lennox stated.

“Okay, let’s do that. After a few minutes, London shook his head in agreement before turning to look at Benson.

“What do we do with him?” He asked, glaring at Benson.

“He didn’t hurt her, but...”

“He hid her from us, he should die for that?” London groaned.

“Calm down; let’s find Chesney first. We’ll discuss his fate after that,” Lennox patted London’s shoulder before walking out of the office space. London followed him shortly after.

Once they left the office, Benson collapsed into the office chair

That was close, he thought, taking a deep breath in an attempt to calm himself down. Their auras almost suffocated him to death.

After paying the taxi driver, Chesney stepped down and adjusted her dress before entering the hospital. She stopped at the nurse’s stand and made some inquiries before moving to the doctor’s office. She knocked on the office door, and got a reply, she twisted the doorknob and entered the office to meet the smiling face of the female doctor.

“Hello, Miss Chesney, welcome. “Please have your seat,” the female doctor said, offering her a seat.

“Hello Doctor, Chesney closed the door and gently took her seat before focusing her attention on the doctor again

“How’re you doing? You’re here for your result, am I right?” She smiled.

“Yes,” Chesney responded with a small smile of her own and watched as the doctor searched her desk. She got hold of a document, and after confirming its content, she stared at Chesney for a few seconds before extending it to her.

“Congratulations, Miss; you are two weeks pregnant!” The doctor announced the news, her smile brightening as she handed. the result to Chesney.

The doctor’s words were met with silence, which lasted for a full minute before Chesney finally responded. “Pregnant?” She blinked, staring at the doctor cautiously.

Yes, Miss, you are two weeks gone, the doctor repeated, her smile not leaving her face. “Congratulations,”

Without another word, Chesney received the pregnant report, stood to her feet, and walked out of the office, leaving the female doctor speechless.
