

Her Mates Her Protectors Chapter 17

A few minutes later.

Chesney arrived at Alpha Joel's office and knocked on the door. "Yes? Chesney, come in," a reply came.

Chesney opened the door and entered before taking her seat before him.

"What happened? Do you need something?"

"Yes, Alpha. I've thought about this. I think I should meet them.

Alpha Joel dropped the document he was working on and focused on her. "What do you mean by that?"

"I don't think escaping will solve this issue. If I manage to escape now, they'll track me again. It's been 5 years already, I should meet them and know what they want, Chesney explained

"Why the sudden change of mind? Did you overhear the conversation we had!"

"It's not about the conversation. But yes, the conversation helped me; it made me think deeply about it

"Hmm. Are you sure about this? You should think about it some more. What about Wyatt? I don't think they'll let you go once they see Wyatt."

"I don't plan on that. I won't introduce Wyatt to them."

But they are his fathers; shouldn't you allow them to know him!"

"You won't But

"I will. But not now—I want to listen and probably get to know them first. But for now, we'll continue hiding Wyatt's identity."

"Hmm," Alpha Joel shook his head and pursed his lips. "Okay, if that's what you want, then."

"Can I ask for a favor?"

"A favor? What is it?"

"Can I ask Lady Mary to look after him? Wyatt shouldn't be seen with me me until they leave the pack.”

“Alright, I’ll help you speak to Lady Mary. I’m sure she’d be more than glad to help you.”

“Thank you, Alpha.”

“You are welcome”

A week passed by without the twins visiting the pack house or traveling around the pack everyone went back to performing their duties as if nothing had happened.

Chesney was in the front yard arranging the items the men had brought home from VLCity when suddenly Lady Rose came rushing towards her. “Luna Chesney... Luna,” she kept yelling her name as she ran towards her, but Chesney didn’t notice her on time “Lyna Chesney!” By the time Chesney noticed her, it was already too late.

“The two princes The two princes...” Lady Rose pointed towards them.

“The—they are here, they Lady Rose was about to speak, but a sudden shift in the air stopped her in her tracks. Her eyes gaze on the twins. shot open as she stared at Chesney’s shocked ones before slowly settling her

Her mouth dropped open, and her heart picked up an unusual pace as she watched the twins draw closer to them.

Moon goddess Lady Rose’s knees suddenly became soft and almost gave way, but she swallowed her saliva and composed herself as she watched them draw closer.

When they got very close to them, they stopped and just focused their gazes on Chesney.

Lady Rose swallowed her saliva again before turning to look at Chesney. She found Chesney’s eyes wide open. noticed another thing about her. Her eyes were filled with unshed tears, and her breathing had also quickened.

but she

Oh gosh... This was not the way they planned to do this.

TI be inside. Inside. Inside the packhouse. "Please excuse me," she swallowed her saliva for the tenth time before forcing her legs to carry her aw

For minutes, none of them said a word to each other. They simply continued to stare at each other. Chesney didn't know how long they stared at each other, but she broke eye contact once she noticed her emotions betraying her.

She placed her thumb on her cheeks to wipe away her tears, and then her gaze shifted to Lennox and finally gulped down her saliva and then took a deep breath.

to London. She

e entered, "Let's go to my room," she said, dropping the item with her and turning towards the entrance of the packhouse. She and without looking back, she went straight to her room, unlocked the door, threw it open, and entered, then sat down on her bed

The twins entered her room seconds later, closed the door, and took their seats on the sofa in the middle of the room without waiting for her to speak.

Everywhere became silent again, and the silence lasted for minutes before Lennox broke it.

"How have you been?" He coord.

Chesney didn't reply to his question immediately; she hesitated a little before shaking her head. "I've been okay; thank you for asking"

"We have been looking for you; we've missed you, we are glad that you are okay

Chesney shook her head but remained quiet.

-pake up again.

"Chesney London wanted to speak but stopped himself. He didn't know what to say and didn't know how to express himself in a way that wouldn't make things more complicated.

The first thing he wanted to do when he saw her was to hug her, but he had to hold himself because of their current- situation

"How have you guys been?" Chesney raised the next question,

"We've been okay. Actually, we've been searching for you," Lennox started again. "We want to apologize and clear up any possible misunderstanding that you might have."

“No. You don’t have to apologize. It’s all in the past. You should forget the past and move on, Chesney responded. “No, it’s necessary that we apologize. How can we not? We were scared to reveal our identity to you because we know the responsibility that comes with being a member of the royal family. We wanted to look for the right time and the right way to explain it to you, but we unfortunately missed that opportunity, and because of that, everything became messed up. We have to apologize for that. We should have told you who we were from the start, London explained and apologized “Like I said earlier, you do not need to apologize for that again. shouldn’t have reacted the way I did back then either. It’s all good. We are good. Chesney told them.

“But we are not good; we are not; I know you’re angry with us.

“Lennox stop...”. Chesney sighed. But Lennox didn’t stop; instead, he stood up from the sofa and moved closer to her before going on one knee.

“What are you doing?” Chesney rose to her feet. What are they trying to do?!

London also rose to his feet and joined Lennox.

“I have my guess, but I’m not sure what we did wrong. Can you tell us? Tell us.”

“Lennox, you did nothing wrong; there’s no reason why a prince should kneel before me. If others find out, they won’t let me off easily, Chesney huffed, getting frustrated.

“We know that you’re angry, London added.

“I’m not. Please. Stop. Stop this.” Chesney begged. “There’s no reason why I would be angry with you, and it’s been so many years already; just stop.”

“Not until you forgive us,” London insisted.

“Of course there is, London argued.

“We have offended you, Chesney. Of course, we should seek your forgiveness. We broke our promise to you. A prince does not and should not break his promise no matter what. We promised to protect you. We promise to fight your battles. We promised not to make you cry or sad. We promised you all the good things in life. We made many promises to you, but we were unable to fulfill any of them. All we did was to bring sadness into your heart.”

“We’ve sinned. We’ve sinned against you. This is the proper thing to do. Begging for your forgiveness cannot and will not wash our sins away, but kindly give us a second chance to right our wrongs. We’ll ever disappoint you again,” Lennox said

“Yes, Chesney, please,” London supported.

Chesney paced about the small space that separated her from the twins for some seconds before coming to them again.

“Can you

stand to

your feet first? If you don’t, then I’ll leave.”

“Okay,” then they slowly stood to their feet.

“Like I said before, you did nothing wrong. You don’t need to feel bad; I’m the one who left the pack. You didn’t break your promise to me, I broke away from it.” She sighed again, then sat down on the bed.

“I left the pack because I didn’t want to die there. It was suffocating to stay there. You guys might not know this, but I suffered abuse for many years over there. I left because I wanted to,” she explained.

Lennox and London exchanged glances but didn’t say anything they continued watching her as she spoke.

18th birthday if I I don’t know if I told you this, but I was cursed from birth. My parents told me that I would die on my didn’t get accepted by a mate. So I struggled a lot to find my mates and started searching for my mates the day I turned 16. I found my first mate the day I turned 17, and when I went to him, he rejected me. He didn’t want to have anything to do with a cursed Omega. I found my second mate and experienced the same rejection, and it continued like that until five of my mates had rejected me.”

“When you came to me, I was already preparing to welcome death. I honestly don’t know how I am still alive, but I think I was purposely given a second chance. So I’ve been focusing on myself since I got here. And in this pack, I’ve received all the love and support I didn’t receive in my old pack.”

“I don’t want anyone to ruin everything that I’ve built so far,” Then she moved her gaze to meet theirs. Tm content and happy right here. You said you sought me out because you wanted to apologize. Fine. I hope you can leave us as soon as possible.”

“The pack members don’t feel too comfortable having you guys here. They’ve been scared and careful since you got here. I hope you can make them feel more comfortable. And please forget about the past. It doesn’t matter anymore. I hope you can also move on. Then she walked to the door and held it open for them.

“Let me escort you out.”

Chesney couldn't ignore the intense pain she was feeling in her chest as she watched them leave in their car. After watching their car zoom off, she rushed back to her room, sat down on the floor, leaned her back against the wall, then started massaging her chest.

She didn't know why she was feeling like this. Why was she feeling so terrible for speaking to them that way? They were the ones who wronged her, right? Then why does she feel terrible for treating them that way?

And the worst part was, they didn't try to argue with her and just left like she asked them to.

Chesney remained in that position until a knock brought her out of her thoughts.

Chesney, are you okay?” Alpha Joel's voice followed. I heard the twins were here; are you okay?”

Chesney rose to her feet and took her thumb to her cheeks to dry the tears coming out of her eyes away before unlocking the door.

“Hi. Are you okay?” Alpha Joel quickly asked as he entered her room.

“I am okay. Why won't I be?” She forced a smile.

“I hope they didn't hurt you in anyway; are you crying?” Alpha Joel inquired, noticing !! ears that stained her cheeks.

“Crying? No.” Chesney quickly wiped the tears away before closing the door.

“I hope they didn't hurt you,” Alpha Joel repeated again.

“They didn't. They came here because they wanted to apologize to me.”

“Really? Because they wanted to apologize? Just because of that?”

“Yes,” Chesney chuckled

“Surprising. I thought they were assholes.”

“Surprised too, Chesney shook her head.

“It’s good that they realized their wrongs and apologized to you. I hope you don’t think about your awful past again.”

“No. Of course not. Their visit brought back memories, but I’m good. I’m okay.”

“Great! They’ve also left the pack. I don’t think they’ll be coming back since they have sorted things out with you. You are free now. Alpha Joel smiled.

“They’ve left the pack Chesney’s eyes went wide.

“Yes, my beta notified me a few minutes ago.” He saw them leaving”

“Oh good,” Chesney murmured, lowering her gaze to the floor. The news was supposed to make her happy, but she couldn’t help but feel sad about it Moon goddess! Why is this happening to me?
