

Her Revenge 241

Chapter 241

Jonah was stunned again, reassessing the young girl in front of him. His impression of her had completely changed.

“She’s hold, proud, and strong. And her personality he thought to himself.

He couldn’t help but chuckle. “This reason sounds more convincing. Milton indeed can’t compare to Alfred”

For someone as proud as Milion to openly declare his feelings for a young girl was surprising. She was the first woman he had ever set his sights on yet Lea had outright ignored him.

She went to great lengths to reject him.

Just thinking about it made Jonah feel very pleased.

For this reason alone, Jonah felt he had to partner with Lea.

Jonah’s long fingers stroked his chin. “Since you’ve come to me like this, and I think you’re a pretty decent girl. I’ll reluctantly agree”

Everyone was stunned. ‘Lea came to you? She clearly convinced you with her strength. Besides, do you even have a choice? And that gleam in your eyes, it’s obvious you’re interested in the artificial brain technology.

“Tu reluctantly go to the relevant departments for you and make sure they don’t revoke Riverview Hospital’s operating license. The condition is that your hospital isn’t involved in any illegal activities as rumored online. Otherwise, it’s all for nothing. Also, Ill invest 100 million dollars in your hospital. Not a penny more,” he added.

His expression turned stern and cold, like a miser.

Jonah was always cautious with his investments. Putting such a large sum of money on the table showed he was genuinely interested in her Technology.

And Jonah admired Lea

“The hospital doesn’t accept investments. We onl only collaborate on the video platform” Lea uid,

Lea’s original intention in founding the hospital was indeed for money and influence. But knowing that Alfred had also been reborn had changed her perspective.

This hospital was something she and Alfred had built together, like a child.

Although it could never compare to the child they once had, she hoped the hospital could use its advanced capabilities to truly save lives and benefit humanity.

Jonah was stunned. So, she didn’t come to me to save her hospital?

“Are you sure?” Lea stared at him, her look suggesting she was looking at an idiot.

Jonah clicked his tongue. "Alright, let's discuss the details of our collaboration."

Lea glanced at Chris. The specific details of the collaboration would need to be handled by her.

I'll provide this intelligent system, and it will be continuously updated."

Lea still needed to continue developing the artificial brain.

This application system would be updated simultaneously.

"Is that all jo

"Jonah asked

Chris stepped forward "Mr. Manning, the intelligent technology of the artificial brain goes far beyond what you're seeing now. If used properly, it can revolutionize existing industries. Currently, Riverview Hospital has already innovated several important medical intelligent products using this technology. Even Berry Airline's flight control system has incorporated it. The market value of this technology is extremely high"

She now understood Lea's business plan. In this regard, her vision and commercial acumen were no less than Jonah's Jonah had a rough idea of the scale they were aiming for.

Only then did he recognize Chris as someone from Alfred's circle.

ordinary.

Anyone who had been close to Alfred was never o

"It seems Alfred genuinely cares about the young lady who his cousin has taken an interest in...]

"Jonah thought.

"But you guys know how big this project is and how much money it will burn. You expect me to fund it all. Where am I supposed to get that kind of money? Jonah felt a bit apprehensive

It wasn't that he didn't have the money, but he couldn't bring himself to put such a large sum into one basket.

He wasn't a risk-taker,

"Oh, you can't invest that much money?" Lea frowned

Jonah was taken aback. It's not that I'm broke. I just don't want to burn so much money on this project.

"I have some pocket money on my card. I'll invest it in you," Lea said.

Jonah was surprised.

Chris added. "10 million dollars"

After Riverview Hospital acquired the Fraley Group, the hospital's scale suddenly expanded, and Lorrاند had a lot of work to do. She handed her card to Chris.

a professional manager, was very good at handling

This money was from surgeries Lea performed during a vacation in Crefan.

Jonah was shocked again. "Isn't that a bit too much pocket money for a rich kid from Vaporleon City?"

"I'm going to get you some attention right now so you can make money" Lea said.

Jonah suddenly had a bad feeling.

By the time they left the Degolden Hotel, it was already 7 pm, and darkness was falling.

Chris received a call from the head of the legal department and looked grim.

She hung up and turned to Lea. "The police have already filed a case and are going to investigate our hospital,"

"Very well" Lea's gaze shifted, a sly smile playing at the corners of her mouth. "Prepare for the lawsuits, and include the police as well."

Chris was taken aback, involuntarily taking a deep breath as the blood seemed to reverse course through her veins.

Chris knew what she was planning. Terrifying, yet exhilarating

As Lea was

was about to get in the car to head back to the hospital, her phone rang

It was Marshall. "Miss Berry, I have a patient here who's fallen from a building and is on the brink of death. Can your hospital get in touch with Dr. Berry? Only he can save him."

She hesitated for a moment, then spoke. "Send me the patient's information

"Will do!" Marshall replied.

After hanging up, Lea quickly received the patient's details.

The patient had fallen from the sixth floor, with severe brain and internal organ damage. No existing hospital or doctor could perform such a surgery.

Even if the surgery was completed, the chances of saving the patient were too slim, less than one percent.

After reading the information, Lea received another text message from Marshall.

Marshall: [He's a lawyer defending a demolition accident case. The deceased was a three-month-old infant.

"A three-month-old infant... Her eyes were instantly stung, her blood froze, and she became rigid.

In her past life, her child had also died at just three months old.

"Lea, what's wrong with you?" Chris had never seen her like this before, her face pale, pupils dilated, her body trembling violently as if she had suffered a great trauma, and she was out of control.

Chris quickly reached out to support

Lea shuddered, coming back to her senses, already covered in cold sweat. "It's fine... It's Mr. Wiley who said there's a patient in urgent need of surgery, looking for Dr. Berry to perform it

Chris thought she was frightened by the patient's condition and breathed a sigh of relief. "Are you going?"

At present, Riverview Hospital was in the eye of the storm, with too many things waiting for her to handle.

Lea nodded. "Yes, I'm going."

Because he was a lawyer defending the case of a deceased infant.

"Go ahead with peace of mind. I take care of the matters at the hospital," Lea said.

In the past, Chris, following Alfred in the capital market, had little compassion.

But ever since Chris got involved in the operation of Riverview Hospital, seeing them save lives and heal the injured, bringing so many patients and injured back to health, and seeing the happiness of their families, she changed too.

At all times, human life was the most important.

Chapter 242

Chris had the capability to handle the current issues at the hospital.

This was why Alfred had entrusted Lea to her. Chris could not let him down.

Lea nodded, getting into the car with Jason and Luke as it drove toward Conrad Hospital.

Chris and the others also got into their car and headed back to the hospital.

While on the road, Lea sent the lawyer's information to Shannon, asking her to investigate him.

Simultaneously, she asked Marshall for more detailed injury reports to study potential surgical plans.

Halfway there, Shannon's message arrived

The lawyer was named James Watkins, aged forty–seven, and the owner of Fairness & Justice Law Offices. He had been practicing for nearly thirty years and was renowned for his fairness and kindness, especially in Iverton.

However, his clients were mostly the poor, elderly, sick, or disabled. Because of this, he and his firm were also not wealthy.

A year ago, he established Fairness & Justice Law Offices independently,

Further down in the information were his personal details. He was divorced and had a nineteen–year–old son named Steve Warkins, who was a freshman at Comad University’s law school,

Lea’s e

eyes widened

Steve was her lawyer in her previous life.

As a researcher with numerous innovations and patents, she needed a dedicated attorney.

She had met Steve when she was twenty–four, which was four years later. He had just graduated and was taking on a case against the Andrews Group for monopoly practices.

At that time, the Andrews Group was at its peak, and anyone who dared oppose them usually couldn’t survive or was ready to fight them to the bitter end.

Steve had taken on the giant, aiming to secure a fairer and more beneficial market for other businesses and the public.

Lea had initially thought he was just a hot–headed idealist.

Now, it seemed Steve’s principles were inherited from his father.

When the car reached the entrance of Conrad Hospital, she got out. Marshall, who had been waiting at the door, came forward immediately. Looking past her to see if anyone else was getting out of the car. When he realized Dr. Berry wasn’t there, he couldn’t hide his disappointment.

“Let’s s to the operating room, Lea said decisively

“Okay” Marshall responded.

He had brought her here, and now all he could do was rely on her and trust her,

Marshall led the way, but as soon as they entered the main entrance, they were blocked “Lea!” Leona exclaimed, looking at her in surprise.

It had only been two days since Leona last saw her during the short holiday, but the Lea standing before her seemed like a completely different person

Gone was the low–profile, demure schoolgirl with a bare face. In her place was a professionally dressed woman with elegant, yet simple makeup, exuding a captivating confidence and charm while retaining a touch of innocent allure.

This new version of Lea was radiant and dazzling, a stark contrast to Leona who lacked such brilliance.

A wave of jealous anger surged within Leona, making her want to extinguish Lea's glow.

"The Riverview Hospital is under investigation for various violations, endangering lives for profit. Shouldn't you be detained by the police for "questioning? What are you doing here?" Leona's voice was loud enough to draw the attention of everyone around.

The outpatient hall was filled with patients and their accompanying family members.

The scandal involving Riverview Hospital was widely known, and these patients had all been paying close attention. Upon hearing that the owner had arrived, they quickly gathered around, their anger palpable.

Lea gave Leona a sharp look and continued walking inside.

"Lea!" Leona blocked her path again. "You have your ambitions and dreams of wealth, aiming to be worthy of the Andrews family, willing to do anything for success. But I beg you. Leave Shannon out of it..."

Her voice broke, and her eyes reddened with emotion. "Shannon grew up with her adoptive mother, hasn't seen much of the world, and is very naive. She just started her freshman year, and now she's working tirelessly at your hospital. She's too young to bear such a burden."

"Because of this, she hasn't even come home," Leona continued, clutching Quintin and Jessic. "Our family is still waiting for Shannon to come back and reunite with us."

"Lea, I beg you, let Shannon come home," she pleaded desperately, her voice breaking the hearts of those listening.

The crowd began to murmur in understanding

"So, Riverview Hospital forces people to work for them. They exploit naive young people and do such heinous things behind the scenes.

"They separate families, preventing them from being together.

"Unforgivable!"

"Such a person should be reported to the police immediately and arrested."

Someone pointed at Lea, constantly accusing her.

"She's got a nice appearance, but her ambitions and methods are too terrifying"

"If she wanted money, with her looks, she could become a top star in the entertainment industry and wouldn't lack money. Why is she still trying to make money through unethical means?"

Leona felt bitter when she heard these people accusing her of being good-looking.

Ever since Leona found out that she was Donna's biological daughter and looked like her, her distorted view of appearance had intensified, and she wished to eliminate Lea immediately.

The people around were still criticizing and discussing.

"Didn't you just hear! It's to be worthy of the Andrews family"

"Oh. I remember now. It's the woman that the eldest grandson of the Andrews family, Milton, confessed to on TV!

"I see!"

With such a lowly background, she could never be worthy of the Andrews family no matter how much money she makes.

"She must be joking."

The people's eyes toward Lea became very distorted,

"Get out of the way!"

Lea paid no attention to these strange voices. She was rushing to save James. Every second delayed, his life was in greater danger.

Her momentum was so strong that she was scared and took two steps back, unconsciously making way.

Jessie stepped forward, planning to take the opportunity to take Shannon back to the Moore family. Shannon's bone marrow would be useful sooner or later.

Quintin saw the situation and acquiesced.

Originally, they did not want to be involved with Shannon at this time, but taking her home at this moment was beneficial, so he also stood by.

"You are mistaken, Marshall quickly stepped forward to explain. "Miss Berry knows Dr. Berry. She came here to have Dr. Berry operate on a dying patient for us. It's Dr. Berry who performed surgery live in May in Vaporleon Riverview Hospital. Dr. Berry can reverse the life and death of a patient through surgery!"

Most of the people around had not paid attention to that surgery, and some had not heard of Dr. Berry

But Marshall was a top-ranking doctor in Ivenon, the dean of the medical school at Conrad University, and everyone trusted his words. Hearing that the doctor can reverse life and death, they also believed in Quintin and Jessie were also shocked.

They didn't expect that Lea knew such a miracle doctor.

After Dr. Berry became famous due to that surgery, the Moore family tried to contact him but failed to reach him.

“Impossible!” Leona angrily denied it. “It’s fake. Lea was using Dr. Berry’s reputation to deceive people. Someone like her could never know such a miracle doctor.

“Mr. Wiley,” she said to Marshall. “Don’t be deceived by her and delay the patient’s treatment,” Marshall’s expression was stern. “Miss Moore, the patient’s skull is cracked, and his internal organs are shattered. He is now lying on the operating table, waiting for Dr. Berry to save his life. I don’t care about any grudges you have with Ms. Berry, but please don’t provoke trouble at this time and jeopardize the patient’s life.”

The people around immediately cast strange glances at her.

Is this young girl such a person” they wondered.

Leona’s expression was horrified, and seeing the people looking at her, her face turned pale again.

“Luke, clear the way Lea directly ordered

Luke stepped forward, stretched out his arm, and directly pushed Quintin, Jessie, and the people in front of him aside.

With their status and position, they have never been treated like this before. They were about to get angry, but their bodies floated and stood far away.

The crowd looked at the young bodyguard in black with surprise. In his twenties, with a small head, a relatively short stature, and a good head–body ratio, he exuded a young man’s tenacity and sharpness, making people involuntarily avoid him.

“Lea, you say you know Dr. Berry, How can you prove it? Leona blocked again

In that case, she couldn’t let them go save people so quickly.

As long as that patient dies, I can prove that she is using Dr. Berry’s reputation to deceive people. She thought

BANGI

As soon as she finished speaking, she was kicked and flew out.

With another bang, she hit the table, and the work tools and documents fell over.

She fell to the ground, too painful to even shout.

Chapter 243

Lake was different from Yannis.

He was originally a dregs of the underground boxing ring, without a sense of right and wrong, fearless, and only fighting for survival.

If he hadn't met Lea, he would have died the night he was thrown out of the ring-

Now he worked at Riverview Hospital as a bodyguard, obeying only Lex's commands without any restraint.

The fastest way to clear a path for her now was exactly what he was doing.

Moreover, he was very clear about what the truth of Riverview Hospital was and what Leona intended to do.

He even wanted to kick her to death

"Murder!" the nanny who came with the Moore family screamed.

She saw what the masters wanted to do and deliberately shouted. They dare to do this in public.

Who knows what they would be like behind the

Lea is so cruel and ruthless

The man is too Lawless, even hurting people in public"

"She's so young yet so cruel. What will it be like in the future?"

Lea just gave Leona on the ground a cold look, followed Luke, and went straight to the operating room led by Marshall.

"Are you leaving after hurting Miss Moorer The nanny instigated, driving the people around, trying to stop them.

Jason stood in the back, like a wall.

"Murder? I think Miss Moore is the one who really murders! We have said that there is a wounded person in critical condition, waiting for surgery, but you keep making trouble and blocking us here. Do you know that if you delay Miss Berry even a few seconds, that person may not survive? At such a young age, you disregard human life, such calculation, so vicious!"

His eyes were sharp and turned to Quintin and Jessie "Mr. and Mrs. Moore, you really know how to educate your daughter."

Quintin and Jessie had never been publicly accused like this, and their faces turned pale instantly, losing all dignity.

The crowd was shocked, their expressions varied, looking at this family with suspicion.

Lea and others got out of the elevator, and the young man waiting in the corridor outside the operating room ran over. "Mr. Wiley!"

Marshall said he went to invite Dr. Berry, and Jaines's life can only rely on Dr. Berry.

Steve saw it was Marshall coming and couldn't wait to run over

"Miss Berry?" Steve looked at Lea in surprise.

Lea had been in the spotlight at military training and the opening ceremony, and almost all the freshmen in the first year know her.

Steve was no exception.

Now it was the holiday season, and it had been a few days since they last saw each other. Her attire and makeup were different, but her aura was even more commanding, leaving a deep impression.

Lea nodded.

This was eighteen-year-old Steve, dressed in a white shirt school uniform, his short hair neat and stylish, exuding sharp youthful energy.

Now, with his father critically ill, he had shed many tears in private, his eyes red and his expression sorrowful.

Steve glanced behind them. There was only Lea's personal bodyguard, Luke, and no one else.

His gaze dimmed instantly, and his breath trembled "Mr. Wiley, where is Dr. Berry?"

Marshall looked at Lea.

Only she had information about Dr. Berry.

"Where is the surgical prep room!"

Marshall paused for a moment, then his pupils suddenly dilated, staring at her in shock.

Lea nodded.

Follow me!" Marshall led her toward the female doctor's prep room.

Is it possible to arrange a live broadcast of the surgery?" she asked as she walked briskly.

Originally, she only planned to perform the surgery to save a life.

Lea's disruption reminded her that at this moment, Dr. Berry's influence could be very useful

"It's possible" Marshall nodded.

"Okay." Lea had already reached the door and pushed it open herself.

Soon, she came out, wearing a blue surgical gown, with a cap and mask on, only her eyes visible.

Marshall stared at her for a moment, the storm in his heart gradually calming down as he confirmed the reality.

Lea was Dr. Berry.

Yes, she had emerged at Riverview Hospital

It was so obvious

Yet, no one dared to believe that such an outstanding surgeon could be such a young girl.

No, when Dr. Berry first made her debut, she wasn't even an adult

"Start the surgery, Lea said, leading the way to the operating room

Marshall quickened his pace to catch up.

“Mr. Wiley?” Steve looked at Marshall, then at the female doctor who had appeared with him

“Dr. Berry is here now, and she’s going to operate on your father Marshall said, entering the operating room with Lea Steve’s face lit up, a spark of hope rekindling in his eyes.

Since his father’s accident, Steve’s spirit had been stretched to its limit. Now, he waited, full of hope, not thinking much else.

Inside the operating room.

James lay on the table, surrounded by four or five doctors and three assistants, the best team the hospital had to offer.

The monitors showed vital signs that all conveyed a single message. The patient was critical and near death.

Lea stepped forward, and the crowd made way for her. “Surgery on the head and heart needs to be done simultaneously. Who’s the cardiac surgeon?”

Everyone was stunned, not expecting the doctor who came to save the day to be such a young girl with such a pleasant voice.

“I am,” Marshall replied.

Lea nodded.

“Riverview Hospital is sending over a special medication. You all wait outside. Once it arrives, bring it in immediately.”

‘Riverview Hospital? The crowd was surprised.

They knew the rumors about this new hospital and thought it no longer existed

They didn’t expect it to deliver a special medication that even they didn’t have.

Understanding the situation, Marshall sent out the least skilled doctor to wait for the medicine,

Lea paid no attention to these people, her focus entirely on the patient.

She enlarged the image of the patient’s heart, pointing to several spots on the screen. With just a look, the two best cardiac surgeons instantly agreed on the surgical plan.

She moved to the patient’s head, adjusted the instruments, and looked at Marshall. “Let’s begin.”

Marshall nodded.

The doctors collected their thoughts and began preparing.

When they saw Lea start the craniotomy, their pupil pupils dilated in shock.

Many had practiced medicine for over thirty years and had never seen a doctor so steady, with such strong and precise hands

She was like a perfect machine.

“Scalpel,” she said to the assistant, reminding him casually, “Don’t

He nodded vigorously and handed her the scalpel.

I get distracted.

While her hands moved without pause, she also directed the other doctors to continue the surgery.

The scene in the operating room was broadcast live on the hospital’s website.

Every electronic screen in the hospital showed the surgery.

The operation was being performed by several doctors simultaneously, with the brain surgery conducted by the legendary Dr. Berry

The staff responsible for the live broadcast were mesmerized by her precise and advanced surgical skills, and the footage was almost entirely focused on her.

For the first time, people saw that Dr. Berry was a woman. Among the male doctors, she seemed small and delicate.

Yet her movements were so precise and fluid, constantly directing everyone, fighting to snatch the patient from the jaws of death.

Through the screens, everyone could feel the intensity of the moment, holding their breath and feeling their hearts race.

Chapter 244

In the first-floor outpatient hall, Leona stood with the support of her nanny.

“Quick, look! There’s a live surgery broadcast!”

“It’s that person who was nearly killed by the fall. A doctor is performing surgery on him.”

The hospital announced that Dr. Berry was arranged by Miss Berry of Riverview Hospital!”

Marshall understood Lea’s purpose in arranging the broadcast, especially after the anchor clarified.

“Dr. Berry really came to perform surgery on that dying person.”

Leona stared blankly at the electronic display high above the hall

Lea actually managed to bring Dr. Berry here, at this time.

No, even so, Riverview Hospital would be finished.

A vicious glint flashed in Leona’s eyes

“Bah!” A spit landed on her face, nearly making her faint

It came from the crowd that had just been watching. They were about to leave but saw the live surgery broadcast.

They knew they had been used as pawns by her and were furious, spitting in disgust.

Just now, you blocked that girl from finding Dr. Berry to save someone. Were you trying to kill that injured person!"

Theard that the person who fell is a lawyer who has been advocating for justice for decades, always helping the weak and vulnerable."

"I know he's the most righteous lawyer, specializing in assisting the elderly, weak, and disabled," Everyone glared at Leona. You, at such a young age, dare to endanger lives, you demon!"

Someone glanced at Quintin and Jessie. "You two look like aristocrats, but how did you raise such a malicious girl?

That's right. You surely aren't good people either

"Disgusting family!"

Jessie and Quintin's faces darkened

Having lived for so long, they had never been publicly scored like this, all because of their daughter of eighteen years, who wasn't even their biological child

The Moore family's servants and bodyguards were all in a punte.

Protecting their masters was their duty

The nanny supporting Leana quickly retaliated. "You talk as if Dr. Berry can really save him. Just now, a doctor said the patient couldn't be saved. This might be a ploy to use a dying man for a show, just to gain some fame,"

Leona jolted. Yes, that must be it We just saw the injured man. His vital organs are shattered. He can't be saved. What does it matter if Lea arranged this? As long as the patient dies, she'll just be in big trouble

"How can you talk like that? Such a malicious mind."

"Mr. Watkins is a great man who stands up for the weak, and you dare curse him to die? Do you have any humanity left?" An elderly woman couldn't stand it and spoke up.

"I'm just speculating based on facts, you simple-minded fools the nanny argued.

"You wicked woman, how dare you.

An enraged bystander rushed forward, ready to strike

Quintin, agitated, started coughing violently.

“What are you all standing around for?” Jessie snapped at the servants.

The bodyguards quickly stepped in, helping him leave.

The commotion finally subsided.

nanny called out to Lemma.

She composed herself, wiped her face, feeling both humiliated and disgusted, then stiffened her resolve and followed her parents out of the hospital.

The family of three got into a stretched limousine, and the driver drove away,

In the car, Quintin took out his phone and started watching the live broadcast

He was well aware of the injured man’s condition. If Dr. Berry could actually save him, it would be a genuine medical miracle.

Desperate for or his own survival, Quintin wouldn’t ignore any advanced medical technique,

He never expected Lea to have such a connection with Dr. Berry, Jessie glanced at Quintin, understanding his thoughts, and her expression grew complicated.

Originally, after the Riverview Hospital scandal, they planned to distance themselves from Shannon. But now, with her connection to Lea, she could find a way to get Dr. Berry to make a house call.

She looked at the broadcast on Quintin’s phone, waiting for the surgery outcome.

In the back seat, Leona clenched her skirt tightly with both hands resting on her knees.

Quintin and Jessie didn’t mention anything about what had just happened at the hospital. They understood Leona and her little schemes.

For children from noble families, having some cunning and strategy was essential, otherwise, they would be useless.

They were simply dissatisfied with Leona’s failure.

Leona cautiously observed her parents, making sure they wouldn’t pursue the matter further. Relieved, she turned her attention to the live broadcast of the surgery.

The live broadcast quickly garnered significant attention online.

In the headquarters of Andrews Group, in the president’s office,

1. e. Milton canceled a major acquisition meeting. He sat at his desk, watching the surgery broadcast on his computer screen,

This was the first piece of news related to Lea since the Riverview Hospital scandal broke out,

Is this her first move of retaliation? he thought

In Kentside Garden, Blake was also watching the surgery broadcast in his study.

The door opened, and a young man in his early twenties walked in, wearing a black suit that was both vintage and solemn.

His face was almost expressionless, more like a tool for handling tasks than a normal person. His eyes were sharp as an eagle's, and his presence was efficient and unobtrusive.

He moved silently and was hardly noticeable.

"Here, Mr. Andrews," he said respectfully, handing over a document.

Blake opened it and as he read, his wrinkled eyelids lifted.

It was the medical record of the patient on the operating table in the live broadcast.

His injuries were so severe that even the best doctors in Iverton, including Marshall, couldn't save him.

"Can Dr. Berry really save him? Is this Lea's way of lighting back against me? Is she naive and ignorant, or as bold and reckless as she appears? Blake wondered.

He turned to the live broadcast on his computer, which showed a close-up of the brain surgery.

The door to the operating room opened, and medical staff brought in a load of medications.

The broadcaster explained. The drugs being brought into the operating room now are from Riverview Hospital. They are newly developed, totaling eight special and potent drugs. Due to the urgency of the situation, we don't know the specifics. Dr. Berry mentioned that even if the brain and internal organ surgeries are successful, the patient's life signs can only be maintained with these drugs"

In the video. Dr. Berry was performing brain surgery while directing the doctors on the use of the medications.

Blake was taken aback.

"Riverview Hospital's eight special and potent drugs? Are these her bargaining chips? Even he was curious now.

"Should we stop the surgery!" Rick asked.

Their goal was to completely destroy Riverview Hospital.

If the surgery succeeded. Riverview Hospital might regain some standing due to Dr. Berry's reputation

"No need. In my lifetime, I've never seen anyone create such a medical miracle Blake didn't believe the surgery would succeed.

If it did. he wanted to witness the miracle and assess Dr. Berry's abilities, thinking of ways to win her over.

Such a talent would be extremely valuable to have.

The sky had turned completely dark,

The night was just beginning.

The pitch–black sky unfolded like a massive curtain.

An astounding piece of news broke. Today, a police officer was killed and another injured in a car accident, suspected to be a murder by the Oliver family!]

Chapter 245

The news was uploaded on the recently launched browser, Foxy.

Foxy was a browser developed by Dynamite Technology, a wholly–owned subsidiary of Degolden, Jonah’s enterprise.

As soon as the news broke, it topped the trending searches,

The top floor of the Degolden Hotel was brightly lit as if it were daytime.

Jonah reclined in his seat, his long, straight legs propped up on the desk..

The news was a tactic used by Lea to attract attention, but he didn’t buy into it.

The smart young lady used my platform to release news and wage a public opinion battle. That’s why she came to see me today. Her most cunning trait is that even though she needs someone and uses him or her, she offers conditions they can’t refuse, he wondered.

Lawrence was reporting beside him. “Mr. Manning, we’ve cleared up the matter between Miss Berry and the Oliver family”

He explained how Lea and the Oliver family had become enemies,

Jonah frowned, a cold aura emanating from him.

Considering Lea’s boldness in bringing people directly to his office, threatening him, breaking Rex’s leg, and causing permanent disability, it all made sense.

“Dwayne has already had the authorities issue a notice. They’ve prepared a legal team and are suing the Oliver family. There’s also news from Riverview Hospital” He handed over the tablet, which showed a live broadcast of a surgery.

Jonah thought for a moment and instructed. Stream the surgery live on Foxy Livestream. Continue to follow up on the Oliver family’s case. Dig up all related news and use all our resources to promote it. Notify all the stars under Degolden to share and promote this news. If they don’t fully cooperate, terminate their contracts immediately”

Lawrence looked at him in shock. “Mr. Manning, isn’t your collaboration with Miss Berry just a small project?”

Is it worth using so many resources to help her? Lawrence wondered.

“Lea won’t lose Helping her is helping myself” Jonah’s lips curled into a wicked smile, but there was a deep seriousness in his eyes.

The real reason was his personal motive.

‘She now resembles me eight years ago, when I was at rock bottom, sharp and determined to move forward. But she’s stronger, more resolute, more confident, and has the courage to crush any obstacle in her path, Jonah thought, feeling a pang of sympathy.

“But this time, the person targeting her might be someone we can’t afford to offend.” Lawrence reminded.

“So what? Lea has her own leverage Jonah was indifferent.

The eight special and potent drugs could shake the entire pharmaceutical market

“Notify the fund company to buy pharmaceutical stocks,” he ordered.

“Yes, Mr. Manning” As Lawrence turned to leave, he glanced at Jonah, his gaze deepening Jonah’s attitude toward this new partner was different,

Because several A-list celebrities shared and promoted the news, it quickly spread across the entire internet.

In the IT office at Riverview Hospital, Chris sat on the corner of a desk in the office corridor, arms crossed, her gaze sharp like a warrior commanding a battle.

Shannon was typing on the keyboard while speaking. “Chris, top influencers from Degolden have shared the surgery live stream and Captain Knox’s news, but hackers are clearing the information”

“Can we intercept them?”

“No problem!” A sharp glint flashed in her bright eyes

The program Lea had given her could easily crush these hackers. “Intercept them.”

“Got it, Chris” Shannon and the tech team, with help from the 198 Mighty, swiftly dominated the online battlefield.

Chris’s eyes flickered as she returned to her office and pulled up the data on the eight drugs sent to Conrad Hospital, beginning to sort through hospital and pharmaceutical sales records.

These eight drugs had already been approved for market release at the Vaporleon City headquarters.

Originally, they planned to announce the release of these drugs at a press conference after the hospital’s opening

Now, leveraging this surgery livestream for direct promotion would be even more effective.

Lea taking them to see Jonah had inspired her, and she decided to emulate this approach.

At Kentside Garden, Rick, standing behind Blake and watching the surgery livestream with him, received a call, his face suddenly changing “What’s wrong?” Blake, eyes on the screen, asked with a slightly stern expression.

Rick had been working for him for ten years, and he had never seen such an expression on his face. “Our hackers failed to stop Riverview Hospital’s news. The surgery livestream is trending

Blake frowned.

Lea has the skills to match my personal involvement, he thought.

“Our entire system has been hacked, including your private bank accounts,” he added.

Blake slumped back in his chair, his face darkening. Have the hackers deal with it”

Rick shook his head. “They haven’t found a way to handle it yet!

Blake’s eyes flickered with realization as he wondered. That little girl, capable of developing the artificial brain, is a software genius.

“Have them keep trying. If they can’t handle it, they can quit he ordered.

Blake couldn’t believe the top-notch hackers from the Andrews family couldn’t handle a college student.

“‘Yes.’ Rick continued to report. There’s another trending topic about Miss Berry, involving the Oliver family murdering public officials.”

Blake paused.

Rick handed him the tablet.

Blake took a look and frowned deeply.

The scandal at Riverview Hospital was orchestrated by the Oliver family. They were just pushing it to crush Lea’s career in its cradle.

Blake hadn’t expected her to retaliate against the Oliver family so quickly.

Murdering public officials, with a death involved, and the killer was caught red-handed, openly confessing, announcing it to the world. No matter how high the Oliver family’s status, they couldn’t silence the public. They were finished.

Soon, another trending topic exploded. Riverview Hospital news is the Oliver family’s revenge against Lea]

This news was posted to the trending topics by Riverview Hospital’s PR department;

The revelation of the Oliver family murdering public officials caused an online uproar, shaking the night’s peace.

This would be a sleepless night.

Soon, footage of Hanley’s car accident scene and images of his severe injuries, his surgery at Riverview Hospital, and his current state in the hospital were all uploaded online.

The enmity between them, Lea, Rex, Beata, and Rebecca was fully exposed.

The connections were obvious.

Online comments exploded.

Chapter 246

In Kentside Garden, Rick wore a troubled expression.

"Mr. Andrews, should we assist the Oliver family?" he asked.

With the widespread outrage and the Hanley incident blowing up, even if Riverview Hospital didn't step forward, the masses were already speaking up for them, claiming it was the Oliver family's doing

If they didn't help the Oliver family. Riverview Hospital's predicament would be resolved.

Blake's face was dark, his brows tightly furrowed. The Oliver family overstepped their bounds. "There's no need to help them."

The Andrews family had reached their current standing because Blake conducted himself with principles.

A small family like the Olivers wasn't worthy of associating with the Andrews family.

Rick reported some news. "Degolden is helping Miss Berry

Blake was taken aback.

Although he didn't involve himself in the affairs of the younger generation, he was well aware of the situation in Iverton.

'Lea pulled in Jonah? Did Alfred instruct her to do this?' he thought, growing even angrier, “Continue spreading the word that Riverview Hospital has been blackmailed by the Oliver family” Blake ordered.

The netizens, now swept up by the news of the Oliver family, would follow any lead if someone guided their thinking.

“Go to Conrad Hospital, Blake said, his gaze cold and deep as he stared at the live broadcast screen. “Stop Dr. Berry”

As long as that patient wasn’t saved, Lea couldn’t push her eight medications forward, and Blake could crush her career.

To prevent his two most promising grandsons from being ruined by this young girl, Blake would stop at nothing.

“Yes,” Rick responded, his eyes dark as a black hole, emanating a murderous intent.

It was the dead of night.

Bang Bang! Bang!

The urgent knocking at the Oliver family sounded like explosions, startling everyone in the villa.

Beata had just gone to bed. She hadn’t been this busy in years and was exhausted, yet she felt invigorated and in great spirits.

I’ve finally avenged Rex. That little witch Lea dared to ruin Rex’s leg and even forced him to drop out of Conrad University, destroying his future. Bringing down Riverview Hospital was just the first step: Next, I’ll destroy her bit by bit until she regrets everything, she thought Reata was jolted awake by the knocking.

She was about to get angry when her servant, responsible for attending to her, burst in “Bad news! The police have surrounded the Oliver family. No, it’s the military!”

“Why are you yelling? Are you trying to scare me to death? What’s going on?” Beata snapped.

“We’ve been exposed! That police car accident incident has been exposed!”

She was old, with limited mobility, and just as she was halfway up, she suddenly fell back down.

The killer you sent was captured by the police. He confessed and live-streamed it, exposing everything about you. It’s being broadcast on Iverton TV’s law program and has gone viral online....

Beata, lying on the bed, could no longer get up.

In the end, it took several servants to help her up from the bed.

If they didn’t get her out of the bedroom, the officers coming to arrest her would have to come in and drag her out.

The military personnel left her a shred of dignity.

When Beata was finally escorted out by the servants, the entrances to the hall were all manned by officers in dark blue military uniforms, their presence sharp and commanding, filling the entire space.

Lorenzo, dressed in a dark blue uniform, stood in the center of the hall, tall and imposing, Beata's husband Larry and her son Neal, both significant figures in the military, were also in the hall. Even Rebecca, in her nightgown, was forced to sit obediently on the sofa.

Tarry, you...

The three of them only gave Beata a look of resentment and wondered, "She's ruined the Oliver family!"

Seeing them in such a state, Beata finally realized the gravity of the situation. "Lorenzo, how dare you come to the Oliver family like this?"

The Patton family held significant influence in Iverton's military circles, just like the Oliver family, so they were not strangers.

"Oh, you're that bitch's instructor. She managed to charm you into standing up for her..."

"Mrs. Oliver," Lorenzo interrupted, his demeanor stern. "I am here because you have committed murder against public officials, and the person you sent to kill is a soldier! Just this alone is enough to deal with you. As for your abuse of power and manipulation of public opinion to harm others, the relevant departments will take care of that."

Originally, this matter wouldn't have required Lorenzo to handle it personally.

However, Lorenzo knew about Riverview Hospital. It was an institution capable of benefiting humanity, and he didn't want it destroyed by people like the Oliver family.

Lorenzo wanted to protect a genius like Lea.

More importantly, the existence of corrupt individuals like the Oliver family in the military needed to be eradicated.

So, Lorenzo had personally requested to handle this.

Outside the Oliver family villa, police cars from Team One arrived, only able to park at the outer perimeter.

The person stepping out of the first car said, "Dwayne, well..."

Dwayne, recognizing the badges of the personnel realized they were military. He couldn't help but be shocked.

The higher-ups had intervened.

"We don't need to go in, Dwayne said"

“Understood,” replied the officers, who then stepped back and formed a perimeter outside, watching

“You still claim you’re not here because of that bitch” Beata spat out, but Lorenzo, knowing it was futile to reason with her, gave a direct command. “Take her away!”

If she had been more upright, she would not have done such a thing.

Two soldiers approached, one on each side, and began to escort her out.

“Larry!”

‘Neal!’

“Rebecca

The responses she received were only looks of helplessness.

Beata was pushed out of the front door,

“Look! It’s that old hag?”

Finally! She’s been arrested”

“Justice will prevail. She deserves to pay for it

From the crowd, a small figure in a black hoodie pulled low over her head, her wavy long hair spilling out from under the hood, shouted loudly. “Pay for it!”

‘Pay for u

“Pay for i

The crowd echoed.

Dozens of people had gathered in front of the villa, holding up photos of Hanley and the deceased staff member, waving banners.

They were all there to seek justice,

Beata, immobilized and horrified, was being dragged down the steps.

BANG!

An egg splattered on her face, covering her in a foul, smelly mess.

Bang! Bang!

Splash!

Crack! Crack!

More rotten food and trash were thrown at her.

Before long, her body was covered in filth, reeking of stench.

Onlookers took out their phones, snapping photos and recording videos, posting them online.

Streamers from Foxy Livestream Platform had infiltrated the scene and were broadcasting live.

The news quickly became a trending topic.

[Beata Arrested! Nationwide Celebration!

[Crowds Surround the Oliver Family, Demanding the Price for Beata!

In the photos and videos, Beata, in her nightgown, without her wig or demures, looked hideous and glastly.

She was shoved into a vehicle, which then drove off

It took Beats a while to come to terms with the situation

‘It’s over,’ she thought.

She realized that in the court of public opinion, the Oliver family’s power and status were insignificant.

Dwayne watched as the military personnel took the prisoner away, then led his own team back.

The crowd outside the Oliver Villa, however, refused to leave

“Beata dared to do this because she had Larry and Neal backing her. Until they are held accountable, we won’t leave,” the small figure in the hoodie continued to shout.

“That’s right! Until Larry and Neal are removed, we won’t go!”

In the dimly lit living room, Larry pulled back a corner of the curtain and looked at the black mass of people at the villa’s entrance, listening to their chants with fury.

Whoosh!

He yanked the curtain closed tightly and gritted his teeth. “Find a way to contact the Erickson family and ask for their help

The Erickson family was located in Berorika Villa District, one of the top ten villas in Iverton.

A phone call woke the already sleeping mistress.

The forty-year-old woman emerged from her bedroom, holding a tablet and scrolling through online news. She was dressed in a luxurious blue silk nightgown, exuding elegance and grace.

As she read the news online, she froze in the hallway, just inside the living room entrance. “How did this news get online? You need to find a way to take it down immediately! Neal, these kinds of things can be managed as long as they’re not exposed. Once it’s out in the open, you have no choice but to give the public an explanation.”

“The online uproar is too intense. The Oliver family is at a loss as well. Mrs. Tanner, you must help the Oliver family, Neal said.

cold. “Of course, I’ll do everything I can to protect the Oliver family, but Beata has really messed things up this time.

“Mrs. Tanner, please, from now on, the Oliver family will listen to you.”

After hanging up the phone, Leika took a few steps forward, threw the phone onto the sofa, and muttered angrily, "A bunch of clueless idiots!" She turned sharply and saw Abigail standing by the water cooler, wearing a sweet and elegant pink noble nightgown. "Abigail? You're still up?" "Mom, I got a bit busy tonight and was thirsty, so I came to get some water.

It wasn't busyness. Abigail was eagerly following the situation at Riverview Hospital, unable to sleep from excitement

"Mom, what's going on?" Abigail approached and sat down on the sofa next to Leika.

Was that a call from the Oliver Family!" Abigail could tell from the conversation that something serious was happening. Abigail knew the Oliver family was targeting Riverview Hospital, retaliating against Lea.

Riverview Hospital had been shut down since its opening.

This time, the Oliver family would make sure Lea was finished.

With Riverview Hospital destroyed, Lea would return to school as nothing more than a loser, a joke.

Abigail could hardly wait for the short holiday to end so she could go back to school and witness the fallout.

"But if the Oliver family is calling Mom now, something major must have happened, Abigail thought.

Leika nodded. The Oliver family is likely finished this time.

Though the Oliver family was part of her network, even with her extensive connections, she couldn't help Beats anymore.

"How could this happen?" Abigail's eyes widened in shock and disbelief,

"Abigail, you're following this? Leika nonced Abigail's reaction and asked.

Leika had only one daughter, whom she cherished deeply and had poured all her resources into raising.

"I keep up with some things. Mon, you always told me to keep my perspective broad and not be limited to the immediate situation" Abigail managed the issues at school and with Lea on her own without needing her mother's intervention.

Leika nodded in agreement, reaching out to gently smooth her daughter's hair. "My baby, you've really grown up"

"Mom, what's going on with the Oliver family?"

Leika handed her the tables, suggesting she take a look to broaden her perspective.

As soon as Leika saw the news online, her pupils widened in shock and anger.

Beata had been arrested, and the military was involved. The entire Internet was calling for her execution

Meanwhile, Riverview Hospital's reputation was seemingly reversing.

“How could this happen!”

In an instant, everything has changed, Abigail thought

The Oliver Villa is surrounded. The public is demanding Larry and Neal resign. The power of public opinion on the internet is not something to be taken lightly. They made a grave mistake by targeting public officials, and it has led to loss of life.”

“So,” Abigail’s voice trembled, it true that the Oliver family can’t be saved?”

“Yes” The situation was clear.

“By the way” Leika added, “keep your distance from Rex to avoid any negative rumors that could damage your reputation”

“I understand, Mom. Even if Leika hadn’t mentioned it. Abigail would have done so anyway.

“Abigail, you look unwell. Is something wrong?”

“Then you should rest properly. You didn’t even attend the overseas banquet arranged for you.”

During the short holiday. Abigail had been scheduled to attend some high-profile events abroad, but she hadn’t g

“Ill go next time.”

“Get some sleep now!”

“Yes.” That night. Abigail was destined to remain awake.

As the night deepened, Iverton entered a quiet phase.

On the internet, the flood of public opinion continued to surge.

The live stream of the surgery at Conrad Hospital had millions of viewers online.

Inside the hospital, the red light outside the operating room finally went off.

After a six-hour surgery, it was already three in the morning gone.

Chapter 248

As the door to the operating room swung open. Steve rushed over, his hotly swaying slightly from exhaustion and dehydration. “Mr. Wiley, my dad

“The surgery was a success!” Marshall, usually composed and calm, was brimming with energy and excitement after such a lengthy procedure.

This was the most exhilarating and miraculous surgery he had ever witnessed in his career.

“Don’t worry. Your dad will be alright.” Marshall reassured, patting Steve’s shoulder.

At that moment, the doctors began to emerge from the operating room.

“Is it true? The surgery is really over! Was it successful?” a younger doctor asked eagerly.

“Pinch yourself to see if you’re dreaming.

“Ouch, that hurts”.

“It feels like a dream. I can hardly believe it’

“Indeed, it’s all unprecedented. How did Dr. Berry come up with these methods?”

“How did Dr. Berry manage it? Her hands were so precise, and the scalpel was handled with such accuracy”

“It’s truly inspiring. These breakthroughs in surgery will significantly increase our success rate in saving patients and help many survive!” Listening to these enthusiastic voices and seeing the excited doctors, Steve understood just how successful his father’s surgery had been His eyes welled up with tears of gratitude

“Wald Where’s Dr. Berry someone finally remembered Dr. Berry, who had assisted in the surgery:

“She left the operating room first. She might have already gone

The group exchanged glances, showing their understanding and support.

It was understandable that a doctor with such exceptional surgical skills would want to keep their identity private.

Furthermore, she wasn’t hiding her techniques. She was eager to guide and share her skills with others

Steve turned around and saw Lea emerging from the surgical prep room.

She was dressed in a suit jacket, her long hair styled in a bun, her delicate face devoid of makeup and lipstick.

He glanced over at Marshall, who, upon hearing the question about Dr. Berry, had also looked toward Lea.

Steve followed Marshall’s gaze and was jolted with realization. It’s her!

Before the surgery, he had seen Marshall escort her to the prep room and then lead her, along with another female doctor, into the operating poom

Marshall had only brought her along.

No wonder Riverview Hospital could enlist Dr. Berry, especially at a time like this Curious about such a prodigy. Steve had looked into her background after the orientation,

Her greatest achievement was the artificial brain.

“To be such an extraordinary genius and also an outstanding surgeon, what kind of genius possesses such formidable abilities in different fields? History has seen its share of prodigies, but in the talent-rich environment of Conrad University, no one even comes close to her he wondered. Steve felt a rush of adrenaline and inspiration, his blood coursing with excitement.

Lea, feeling his gaze, glanced back at him before turning to Luke. “Watch over the patient.”

With this surgery, she aimed to turn the tide, launch new drugs, and leverage the momentum to strike at Riverview Hospital’s enemies, who would likely target this institution.

be safe, he determined inwardly.

In addition to Luke, Riverview Hospital had brought in several others, two more bodyguards like him, and some excellent doctors cultivated by Lorrard.

Even though the surgery had been successful, James’s condition remained critical, requiring vigilant care from top-notch doctors.

After Lea gave these instructions, Steve escorted her out.

they exited the hospital, a black Cullinan was parked nearby.

Alfred was seated in the driver’s seat, his long legs crossed and his black overcoat billowing slightly. In the dim light, his skin was flawless, his eyes bright and deep, exuding an aura of aristocratic elegance that was both captivating and imposing.

With the outpatient clinic closed and the surroundings quiet, Alfred had parked close to ensure he could pick up Lea immediately.

It was clear he had been waiting for a while.

Lea’s heart warmed at the sight, and she jogged toward him

Exhausted from the intense surgery, she felt light-headed and a bit clumsy as she ran, looking both eager and charming,

As Lea reached Alfred, she abruptly turned her head and spotted a nearby Lincoln. Her gaze sharpened, and her expression darkened.

It was Milton

In the next moment, Lea stepped closer, wrapped her arms around Alfred's neck, stood on her toes, and kissed him deeply.

She wanted to make it clear to Milton that she had someone she loved dearly and was devoted to him, leaving no room for Milton. Alfred was immediately lost in the moment, his large hand resting on the back of her head,

He understood what she was doing and responded with equal passion, putting on an impressive display.

Inside the Lincoln, Milton's face darkened, his eyes burning with a fierce, painful intensity. His heart ached with deep sorrow.

He knew about their relationship and knew such intimate gestures were unavoidable

He also understood Lea's intent at this moment.

He had prepared himself for this, but he never imagined the pain would be so profound.

'Why?' he wondered.

Chapter 249

Jason, who had followed them out, stood frozen at the hospital entrance, wide-eyed.

Mr. Andrews was just forcefully kissed Miss Berry, who's never been in a relationship before, actually took the initiative to do something like this? And in front of others, no less. She's so fierce and dazzling, utterly captivating he wondered.

After the intense kiss, Lea conveyed her intentions to the person in the distant Lincoln, blushing as she took a few steps back, opened the car door, and got in Alfred wiped his thin lips with his long fingers, still savoring the moment.

He then got into the car and drove her back to Riverview Hospital

Inside the Lincoln, Milton watched as the car drove away, a deep frown etched between his brows, his eyes reddened, and a sheen of tears welling up. His gaze was full of bitterness and sorrow.

"Mr. Andrews... Seeing Milton's distress, Thomas felt a sharp pang of sympathy, his eyes filled with anxiety, but his emotions were dominated by anger and resentment toward Lea.

She's utterly ungrateful and heartless, Mr. Andrews has given her his genuine affection, and she has trampled all over it. Even the notorious femmes fatales don't compare to her ruthlessness, Thomas thought.

Let's go back.

Milton's routine had been completely disrupted by Lea's actions over the past few days. Many important tasks had been left unfinished. Tonight, knowing she was here, Milton had driven over and waked here for most of the night, missing dinner and not drinking a drop of water. Thomas had served Milton for nearly twenty years and had never seen him so affected by any situation, but now he was met with this. "It's not worth ic

Milton sighed heavily, pursing his thin lips as he trembled with emotion.

Then Milton spoke. Instruct them to offer full support for any developments at Riverview Hospital For the media, anyone who helps Riverview Hospital with refutations and publicity will have my personal gratitude. I will ensure they are well-compensated?

Milton, who had wielded top-tier resources across various industries for over a decade, could decide the fate of a company with a single word. He was now deploying the maximum resources to assist Lea.

"Mr. Andrews Thomas was incredulous. "My sincere advice, how could it lead to such an outcome" wondered he.

Thomas turned away, his expression cold, reluctant to carry out the order.

"This isn't a matter of worth, Thomas, I am willing to do this, his tone was firm.

Milton gazed into the direction where the Cullinan had disappeared, the night's darkness unending his eyes showing a hint of stubbornness, A new obsession began to grow within him.

Milton, who usually measured everything with money and kept precise accounts, found himself unable to quantify this situation for the first time. There is no worth or unworthiness, only whether I am willing, Milton thought.

"Mr. Andrews..."

"Thomas, are you unwilling to do this for me! Milton's expression was cold and resolute

Thomas bowed his head. "No."

The night was deep, and the vast city lay shrouded in darkness.

The streetlights along the highway emitted a warm, flowing glow, like a gentle stream of light. Vehicles moved back and forth, ceaselessly

Lea sat in the passenger seat, holding a sleek black tablet, scrolling through online news and trending topics.

Occasionally, light from the street lamps filtered through the car window, casting a soft glow on their faces and creating a splash of color. As she browsed through the news, a smile gradually spread across her face.

“What’s got you so happy!” Alfred turned to look at her, the light perfectly illuminating her delicate face, casting a radiant glow that made her appear breathtakingly beautiful.

His breath deepened involuntarily.

Lea smiled, “I used to think the Oliver family was formidable, but it turns out they’re just average.

The internet was abuzz with news about the Oliver family, with the top headline reading. [Larry and Neal refuse to step down. The public will not bark down.]

All public opinion was pushing for Larry and Neal to step down, especially the crowds surrounding the Oliver family.

It was clear to her that someone was deliberately guiding this situation.

It was the work of Dark Union’s Bluebird.

was the

Bluebird was a ruthless character, well-suited for such tasks,

“It seems Riverview Hospital is progressing faster than expected”

“Are you happy?” he asked with a gentle laugh.

“Yes, and once I achieve my goals and match your status, we can get married.”

Having lived two lives, she was well-versed in the rules of this world

Blake’s recent revelations were a wake-up call.

Lea was determined to overcome all obstacles to be with Alfred ensuring that those who opposed their relationship would eventually support and bless them

Alfred’s heart melted instantly, and he reached out to gently rub her hand, reluctant to pull away, even tempted to pull over on the side of the road. But knowing she had just undergone a long and exhausting surgery, Alfred couldn’t bear to put her through more discomfort

Tim almost envious of myself, Alfred said, reluctantly withdrawing his hand and gripping the steering wheel.

Lea smiled at Alfred. “You’ll be even more envious of yourself in the future.

Alfred’s smile was full of delight.

Lea refreshed the webpage.

With Lorenzo’s intervention and Bluebird’s pressure through public opinion, the situation with the Oliver family was better than Lea had anticipated, with the possibility of a pleasant surprise,

Larry and Neal were on the verge of losing their positions, and the family’s long-standing reputation was crumbling, I don’t believe they will ignore The root cause of all the Lea thought.

Soon, Beata and Rebecca would surely harbor resentment toward Abigail, who had initially used Rex to provoke her and would direct their grievances at her.

The situation with the Oliver family had shifted the public opinion surrounding Riverview Hospital significantly, but a new narrative had emerged, gradually steering the discourse.

People were starting to say that the Oliver family had leverage over Riverview Hospital is theory sparked suspicion among netizens, and as discussions proliferated, doubts about Riverview Hospital began to surface.

Lea pondered for a moment before pulling out her phone and making a call

The call was directed to Crefo

In Cretan, it was midday.

She explained her intentions in flawless Yostoudian, and the other party agreed wholeheartedly.

Ten minutes later, Yostoudian Prime Minister in Crefan released a media statement, praising Dr. Berry of Riverview Hospital as a world-class

He lauded Riverview Hospital for its advanced medical equipment and technology, highlighting its newly developed medication as a major breakthrough in medicine, benefiting the public greatly.

Simultaneously, several key hospitals in their country were planning to import Riverview Hospital's new medication, with an initial estimate of 15 million dollars for the first shipment.

Twenty minutes later, this news reached the domestic market.

On the top floor of the Degolden Hotel, Jonah closed his laptop, planning to catch up on some sleep before dawn

Just as he stood up, his phone rang.

"Mr. Manning. I've got some new Lawrence's voice was unusually excited. "I'm forwarding it to you.

With that, Lawrence ended the call, and a forwarded message appeared on Jonah's phone.

Jonah read the message, a smile tugging at the corners of his mouth, his eyes shining with enthusiasm.

"Miss Berry is truly remarkable. Even the Yostoudian Prime Minister is speaking on her behalf. Get these updates trending on social media!"

With these developments, Riverview Hospital was bound to attract attention.

Even with the pressure from public opinion, and the temporary inability to sell these medications in the domestic market, there was still the international market where Riverview Hospital's growth was unstoppable.

Jonah's drowsiness faded as he prepared to continue the fight

A major victory was on the horizon.

Chapter 250

Meanwhile, in the Moore family's master bedroom, Quintin forced himself to watch the surgery livestream, his heart pounding.

He never expected that Lea would actually manage to bring Dr. Berry in to perform the seemingly impossible surgery, demonstrating once a her exceptional medical skills.

Moreover, Lea lagged Riverview Hospital during this time, indicating a deep connection with the hospital.

It was clear that Dr. Terry was at Lea's command.

"Quintin, are you thinking—Jessie looked at Quintin, her unfinished sentence leaving an unspoken understanding between them.

again

After a brief silence, she continued, "Just because no one else could complete the heart surgery before the bone marrow transplant doesn't mean Dr. Berry can't do it. In fact...."

She gazed at Quintin, her eyes filled with astonishment.

"She can perform both surgeries simultaneously!" she added.

Quintin's heart raced as he had been thinking along the same lines. Hearing Jessica articulate it made his heart skip a beat.

Since Quintin fell seriously ill, he had been desperately seeking medical help for years, hoping for a cure and a chance to live. Dr. Berry was his most promising hope.

"Til visit that child in the next couple of days and try to bring her home as soon as possible. Quintin said.

Previously, Shannon had visited them once and offered advice. It now seemed that she wasn't trying to curry favor but genuinely had confidence in her ability.

They both regretted not believing Shannon at the time.

Quintin suddenly realized that it was related to Leona.

His expression darkened immediately "No, she is our biological daughter.

It wasn't that Quintin truly cared about Shannon being his biological daughter but rather that, at present, she could save his life.

For someone like Lea, relationships were more valuable than money or power. Her friendship with Shannon could make her save him. Jessie's expression changed, and looking into his profound, unfathomable eyes, she couldn't quite understand him but grasped his meaning. At this moment, Shannon held the same importance in his heart as his own life.

She lowered her head. Tunderstand,” Quintin's secretary, Paul, knocked on the door from outside. “Mr. Moore, have you taken a break!”

Quintin, exhausted from staying up all night watching the livestream, looked worn out. Jessie noticed and, seeing that he intended to let Paul in, answered for him. “Come in.”

“Mr. and Mrs. Moore!” Paul entered, dressed in a black business suit, usually calm and composed but now showing rare excitement.

He handed over a tablet. “I know you're following the news about Riverview Hospital. Please take a look at this”

Jessie took the tablet, glanced at it, and her pupils widened in shock. She quickly handed it to Quintin

Quintin took it and his eyes, once dim and somber, now gleamed with renewed intensity.

The news was from Yestoudian Prime Minister in Crefan.

“No wonder...” His voice trembled with excitement. “Riverview Hospital has the highest political backing from Yostoudor, Crefant

Even the powerful families in Iverson and the first family, the Andrews family, didn't have such a background.

For years, the Andrews family had been trying to establish such connections but with no breakthrough.

This means Riverview Hospital will soon be back to normal operations, Quintin said, relieved. His condition could be treated sooner than expected

“Congratulations, Mr. Moore, Pand said, visibly thrilled. “Shall I contact Riverview Hospital now!”

He shook his head and turned to Jessie, “Have Shannon handle this”

Jessie nodded. “I understand. I'll take care of it as soon as possible.”

Paul nodded in agreement. He was aware of Shannon's connections and knew that leveraging them would be ideal.

As he left the bedroom, Ise nearly bumped into Leona standing behind the door, startling him. “Miss Moore?”

Leona, holding a tray, stood frozen with a pale face.

Hearing his voice, she nervously stepped forward. “Dad, Mom...”

Leona entered the room. "I saw the lights still on and brought some soup that Mia made. Dad, you should drink it while it's still warm."

"Why are you bringing soup at this hour? Get out" Quintin's rare outburst was filled with irritation

Leona, who had just stepped inside, froze at the door

Before her background was revealed, their attitude toward her had been relatively good. Since then, Quintin's demeanor had been cold at times, but this was the first instance of unmasked disdain.

Even Jessica looked angry and repulsed.

Leona had repeatedly targeted Shannon and even Lea in the hospital, trying to create rifts between them and prevent Shannon from being brought home

Her actions to protect her position in the Moore family, disregarding Quintin's well-being, had crossed their bottom line.

"Dad, Mom I was careless. I'm sorry, I'll take this out right away" Leona apologized sincerely, exited, and shut the door behind her.

The couple exchanged a knowing glance and said nothing more.

Leona quickly returned the soup to the kitchen, dashed upstairs, and locked herself in her room with a bang, taking a deep breath.

She had overheard Paul and her parents' conversation.

They were now seeking Dr. Berry and Riverview Hospital for Quintin's treatment, and trying to win over Shannon. From their perspective, Leona's previous efforts to prevent Shannon from returning to the Moore family were seen as attempts to hinder Quintin's recovery.

Even though she was only an adopted daughter, anyone who obstructed Quintin's treatment had no place in this family.

Leona's previous actions were not to stop Quintin from being saved but merely to keep Shannon away

But now, her parents would perceive a differently.

With Shannon's return and the benefits she could offer the Moore family, Leona knew she would have no place in the family anymore.

Leona's mind raced with a single thought, She had to destroy Shannon before she returned.

Leona wrung her hands, drenched in cold sweat, unable to calm herself,

She quickly texted Abigail, informing her that after seeing the news from Yostoudian Prime Minister in Crefan, her parents believed Riverview Hospital had significant influence and would thrive in Iverton. The Moore family would fully support it

She knew Abigail would never let Lea rise in Iverton and would do everything to stop her.

“What I can’t do, Abigail can definitely accomplish, Leona thought.

Unable to sleep, Abigail read the message with rising agitation, gripping her phone and pacing back and forth in her room.

She could not allow Lea to succeed and overshadow her.

Outside Madicia Villa, a long Lincoln limousine had just pulled up.

Milion, who had just gotten up, hesitated before sitting back down, staring intently at the news on his phone. His eyes widened with a spark of interest, and a smile slowly formed on his lips Yostoudian Prime Minister in Crefan Lea, the surprises you bring are endless. You truly are someone I’ve taken notice of, he thought.

in agaus, 100x into her connections with the prime minister, and expand the search to her ties with the Crefan Royal Family. Also, check into Dr. Berry thoroughly.”

Milton needed to build relations with such a skilled doctor. It would be highly beneficial.

“Yes,” Thomas replied.

Even without Milton’s instructions, Thomas would have conducted a thorough investigation.

Til uncover everything about Lea and show Mr. Andrews what kind of person she really is. When someone is no longer a mystery, their allure diminishes. Maybe then Mr. Andrews will lose interest in her. This might just be a way to indirectly help Mr. Andrews Thomas resolved.

With Riverview Hospital unable to open, the night was quiet

Alfred drove into the underground employee parking lot and, along with Lea, took the private elevator to the top floor, her private office and residence.

As they entered, they saw Christian, using a cane, pacing the living room.

“Grandpa, are you still awake?” Lea approached him, helping him to sit on the sofa.

“Didn’t I tell you everything would be taken care of and to stop worrying? You should get some rest.

“L... I’m not worried about you. I’m just old and need less sleep!” Christian retorted

Lea tilted her head and glanced at him with a look that seemed to say, ‘Don’t lie to me. I’m a genius!’

Christian glanced between her and Alfred. ‘It’s so late, yet you stay together. I’d break his legs if it weren’t for the current situation.

Alfred silently stepped back, trying to keep his long legs hidden

“Did you go to Conrad Hospital?” Christian had already been briefed by Chris, but he still asked.
