

Her Seven Little Bodyguards - Chapter 1101

I want to kiss them...

Perhaps his gaze was too intense, making Vania feel like her feet were being illuminated by two spotlights.

Her body, which was still a little chilly, immediately warmed up.

Rather awkwardly, she looked at Hanson and said, "Hurry up and help me put on the gear."

Is he having inappropriate thoughts just by looking at my feet? Ew.

Hanson had to put his thoughts away right away or he wouldn't be able to handle it.

Then, he quickly assisted Vania in putting on her gear.

"Stand up and see if it fits."

"Support me," Vania said bossily as if she couldn't stand on her own.

If it were another time, Hanson would undoubtedly have carried her.

But as of right now, he couldn't. He needed Vania to get used to the skiing equipment so she wouldn't get hurt later.

Hanson supported her as she slowly stood up. "How does it feel?"

Vania tried moving a bit and nodded in satisfaction. "Not bad. It's very comfortable."

Then, while grinning, she complimented him, saying, "The way you helped me was very professional, darling."

Hanson's grin widened as his own wife complimented him. "You are the only person I serve, no matter how professional I may be."

"Alright, Lukey boy. You will only serve me from now on." Vania truly sounded like a boss now.

I went to kiss them...

Perhaps his gaze was too intense, making Vania feel like her feet were being illuminated by two spotlights.

Her body, which was still a little chilly, immediately warmed up.

Rather awkwardly, she looked at Henson and said, "Hurry up and help me put on the gear."

Is he having inappropriate thoughts just by looking at my feet? Ew.

Henson had to put his thoughts away right away or he wouldn't be able to handle it.

Then, he quickly assisted Venie in putting on her gear.

"Stand up and see if it fits."

"Support me," Venie said bossily as if she couldn't stand on her own.

If it were another time, Henson would undoubtedly have carried her.

But as of right now, he couldn't. He needed Venie to get used to the skiing equipment so she wouldn't get hurt later.

"Alright, Lukey boy. You will only serve me from now on." Venie truly sounded like a boss now.

And Henson was more than willing to play along. "Yes, Ma'am."

"Do you want to rest a little longer?" he asked, seeing she had no plans to leave.

Vania shook her head. "Let's go."

She would have already been on the track if it weren't for the delay while Bennett and that woman changed their gears.

What a hassle!

She was already eager to start the next activity.

Vania moved cautiously ahead under Hanson's watchful eye, but after only a few steps, she began to walk awkwardly.

Fortunately, she was able to maintain her balance and avoid falling, despite the fact that she appeared unsteady and wobbly like a baby duck just learning to walk.

Hanson thought she was adorable.

Unable to hold back, he pulled out his phone, recorded Vania from the back, and posted it online.

In a tweet, Hanson wrote, 'My wife is so cute.

His Twitter followers started to comment right away at this point.

'Is this Vania Greyson? She's so cute.'

'From the back, she looks like President Luke's child. I like it.'

'I don't know why, but I suddenly want to hold her in my arms.'

'Vania Greyson has always struck me as a goddess, but right now, I find her to be surprisingly endearing. I've watched this short video several times.'

And Honson was more than willing to play along. "Yes, Mo'om."

"Do you want to rest a little longer?" he asked, seeing she had no plans to leave.

Vonio shook her head. "Let's go."

She would have already been on the track if it weren't for the delay while Bennett and that woman changed their gears.

'Your wife is a goddess, okay? Why did you post a video of her learning to walk? Are you a hater?'

'Cute little penguin.'

Hanson's tweet gained a lot of attention right away.

In the past, Vania's online persona portrayed her as an all-rounder who could do anything that the internet community could come up with.

However, she changed into a child after donning ski gear, which made the followers like her even more.

Her inability to ski did not make people dislike her; on the contrary, it made her more well-liked.

She captured the hearts of countless netizens with just a back view.

'Did Vania Greyson fall from grace today?'

Someone started a boring topic, but it sparked a heated debate online.

Yet, there was no malice in the topic as everyone merely loved to tease Vania.

'So cute. I want the same back view.'

'She looks so soft that I want to pinch her.'

'Vania Greyson's weakness being revealed all of a sudden is uncommon.'

Her Seven Little Bodyguards - Chapter 1102

'I want to meet Vania Greyson by chance and see what she looks like skiing.'

Now, the location Hanson and Vania were in was a well-liked tourist destination.

In an effort to meet them, the fans purchased every available train ticket to Shabury.

The Shabury Tourism Board was overjoyed right about now because the total value of their tourism had doubled in a matter of minutes.

They truly were top stars—the two of them.

Hanson finished tweeting and put his phone away, paying no attention to the news on the internet at all.

He kept staring at Vania, clearly smitten by her.

Bennett, who had been following them the entire time, was appalled.

Earlier, he had only been making fun of them, but now he truly detested them.

Under Bennett's scornful gaze, Hanson dragged Vania, the penguin, to the top of the advanced ski slope.

This advanced ski slope was close to the highest peak and in a dangerous geographical location.

Bennett was overjoyed when he saw this. This had actually made it easier for him to make his subsequent move.

The ski slopes below were all visible from the highest point of the advanced ski slope, with various types of strange slopes and obstacles that made people hesitant to try.

Vania was the one who chose this ski slope, and now, from the starting point, she was gazing downward with a face that was difficult to read.

"Darling, should we change to another one?" Hanson interjected. He pointed to the children's area across from them once more.

Prior to their approach, he had already asked Vania.

Again adamantly refusing, Vania retorted, "I can only consider it worthy of me if it is this difficult."

Despite her poor gait, she had a lot of courage.

Hanson raised an eyebrow at this and requested a map from a staff member. "Let's take a look at this first."

She might decide against skiing on the difficult ski slope after seeing this comprehensive map.

Naturally, Vania took the map and gave it a serious ten-second look before returning it to the employee.

That was quick!

The employee and Bennett, who were trailing them closely, believed that Vania had given up because of the difficult ski slope.

Yet, it was ineffective.

Hanson kept his composure and questioned, "You're done looking at it?"

Vania confidently nodded. "Let's go with this one."

As good as she was, she wanted to take on the toughest skiing.

She liked surprises, and there would be some today.

"Hehe!" Bennett burst out laughing. The people in his immediate vicinity were drawn to him by the volume of his voice.

"Dorling, should we change to another one?" Hanson interjected. He pointed to the children's area across from them once more.

Prior to their approach, he had already asked Vania.

"Hehe!" Bennett burst out laughing. The people in his immediate vicinity were drawn to him by the volume of his voice.

No one dared to speak, however, because of who he was.

No one dared to speak, however, because of who he was.

Hanson and Vania had known that he was following them for a long time. They both simultaneously turned to face him and gave him looks that were difficult to interpret.

And evidently, Bennett didn't pick up on anything unique in their gaze.

He looked at Vania while resting his hand on his chin. "Hey, gorgeous. You can't even walk properly, and you want to go skiing on this advanced slope? Would you like me to teach you?" He spoke with a bit of arrogance that called for a beating.

However, neither of them was doing anything to him right now. They would do it later after their plan had been successful.

Then, Vania turned to face him with a rather enchanting smile and asked, "Why? Do you want to race?"

Bennett was immediately captivated by her smile.

"If you want to," he said, his eyes lustful.

Hanson had just become irate over Bennett's sarcasm and mockery, but after hearing Vania's comments, he found skiing to be intriguing.

He felt like he was the wife being shielded by the husband as he stood behind Vania.

Bennett, who hadn't yet sensed any danger, was very intrigued by Vania. "Well, how do you want to go about doing it?"

Her Seven Little Bodyguards - Chapter 1103

He spoke with a carefree expression on his face. In his mind, he was already the undisputed winner of this race. He could win regardless of Vania's demands.

Furthermore, he had tasks more important than winning this race to complete, and today was all about that.

Bennett's face grew even darker as he thought about it.

In contrast, Vania's expression was incredibly innocent, as if she hadn't realized any danger at all.

"Mr. Lambert, since this is our first encounter, I'm not sure what you'd like to bet on. Why don't you place a bet? I'm confident we'll be able to handle whatever comes our way," she said, unintentionally elevating her and Hanson's status.

In their eyes, Bennett was insignificant.

Bennett, of course, understood what she meant and his face instantly grew icy.

Alright. I want you dead. Will you agree to that?

But he wouldn't say such things if he wanted to continue the race with them.

He would be the one to win, no matter what demands he made.

Why not ask for more than that? Why not let Vania and Hanson fall for a trap and pay even more?

This would be like hitting two birds with one stone.

He took a bold step and boasted to Vania. "I own a villa in Shabury that is worth 3 billion. I wonder if that's something you'd be interested in."

Vania chuckled in response.

Only 3 billion? Was he really that brazen to utter such a thing? It wasn't even close to what Hanson gave her in allowance.

However, she did not have such a property in Shabury, so she didn't mind having one more.

She replied coolly in the face of such wealth. "Who would complain about having too much money, right? I'm up for the challenge."

It sounded as simple as spending three dollars when she casually mentioned 3 billion.

Coco, who was standing nearby, was filled with envy and displayed a range of other emotions.

Would she spend this much if she could get close to Hanson?

She grew more excited as she considered the possibilities

Suddenly, she spoke up. "Mrs. Luke, don't you want to reconsider?"

She made a point of addressing Vania as Mrs. Luke so that Hanson would be pleased.

After all, it was widely known on the internet that Hanson adored his wife.

"What is there to reconsider?" Vania arched her brow.

There was no need to hesitate when something was in her grasp.

She said casually to Bennett, "Let's race to see who can cross the finish line first. If I lose, the 5 billion property in Hammond will be yours."

She added an extra 2 billion to surpass Bennett, and she did so to put Hammond to the test.

Obviously, it also showed how determined she was to win.

Bennett sneered inwardly, thinking she was ignorant and arrogant.

Actually, he was aware of how capable Vania is.

Perhaps she couldn't see her true self because she was so capable.

Furthermore, to her, 5 billion was nothing; it was just a toy for the rich.

He wanted everything—money, people, and status.

Bennett smiled sinisterly and said, "All right then. How can I say no when you're so generous? Should we begin now?"

This game was to his liking, and he was willing to play along with her until the end.

Coco spoke up again as soon as he finished, looking at Vania with concern. "Mrs. Luke, you rarely come to Shabury, right? You might not be aware of some things. Mr. Lambert is a well-known skiing champion. Are you sure you don't want to think about it again?"

This woman was very good at playing her cards right.

Her Seven Little Bodyguards - Chapter 1104

When Bennett heard these words, it felt like a provocation.

However, it had a tinge of persuasion in Vania and Hanson's eyes.

She was excellent at playing the role of a fence-sitter.

Vania smiled ambiguously at her and said, "Miss Coco, you're not only beautiful but also kind-hearted."

It was difficult to tell whether this statement was good or bad.

Coco's smile froze; she didn't understand what Vania was saying, but she could tell Vania was mocking her.

She looked innocently at Hanson and explained, "President Luke, I am just concerned about Mrs. Luke's safety. I don't have any ulterior motives."

"You should be worried about yourself," Hanson replied icily.

This woman's tactics were too shallow. At first glance, he could see what she meant.

It was unnecessary to play these mocking and flattering games in front of him.

Bennett thought that Hanson had seen through Coco's provocation.

He stepped forward and stood in front of her. "President Luke, you're being too serious. he is merely stating the facts."

The race was about to begin, and he had already started to disregard Vania and Hanson.

He didn't even consider what would happen if he lost this contest.

"Well, let's start and see the result of the competition."

Vania spoke with a hint of eagerness, though she was still unable to walk steadily.

"Alright. Let's begin. The winner will be determined when both of us reach the finish line," Bennett repeated the conditions.

Vania raised an eyebrow without giving a definite answer. "We'll see

With that, she clapped her hands, and the staff members carrying cameras approached and positioned themselves at various points to ensure that every moment was captured.

"We will document the entire procedure for the sake of fairness. Mr. Lambert, don't even consider not admitting defeat later," Vania said.

Bennett didn't expect Vania to arrange everything so meticulously.

He was even more perplexed when he saw the bewitching smile on her face.

What was this woman up to? Could she have known how to ski? Was she putting on a show earlier?

No, perhaps she wanted it on record as proof because she was worried he would play a trick on her.

She was an experienced cunning woman, having already played him in a matter of minutes.

Then, Bennett chuckled once more. But what good would recording do?

Ultimately, the winner would have the final say, right?

"Sure, we'll do things your way. You can do it however you want."

Despite Bennett's apparent flirtation, Vania instinctively ignored his words.

"Since that's the case, let's get started," she said after getting ready at the starting point.

Even though Hanson remained silent throughout the entire process, his aura of a king already signaled the contest's outcome.

There was no opponent he couldn't beat, and no competition he didn't want to win.

As soon as the signal to start was given, everyone started sliding down the track quickly due to its steep slope.

Vania, who had just recently had difficulty standing, was now moving with ease.

She had already taken the lead in the blink of an eye.

Bennett was following intently as he aimed to surpass Hanson and get close to Vania in order to stir up trouble.

He understood how significant Vania was to Hanson. As long as Vania was thrown into a dangerous area, Hanson would definitely follow.

And it would save him a lot of work.

However, Hanson stood firm in his path, and no matter what methods Bennett tried, he couldn't beat Hanson.

Bennett had great skiing skills, but he couldn't show them off in front of Hanson.

Her Seven Little Bodyguards - Chapter 1105

In comparison, Hanson skied with ease.

Bennett, who was regarded as the best in their group, was now at a disadvantage.

Even Vania was quicker than him. He didn't expect himself to be a joke.

Vania, who was in the lead, casually turned her head to wink at Hanson.

"Darling, we used to ski side by side."

She spoke in an endearing and joyful tone, as though she were a novice who had only learned how to ski.

Hanson accelerated and came to Vania's side.

At this point, they had already pulled away from Coco and Bennett.

If they kept going like this, they would undoubtedly win.

"You dare to pretend on my turf?" Bennett, who had been hot on their heels, cast a ferocious glance at the two in front.

Did they think they could easily win?

The challenging part of the race was still to come; this was just the beginning.

They suddenly moved faster, drawing nearer to Vania and Hanson after Bennett signaled to Coco.

Now that it was downhill, the two of them quickly descended. They felt a powerful force suddenly strike them from behind, sending their bodies lurching forward.

They would have rolled down the mountain if it weren't for their excellent skills.

Bennett yelled from behind them, "I didn't expect you two to be so slow by blocking us and not allowing us to overtake."

This was his justification for crashing into them.

"That's because you're not skilled enough." Hanson accelerated abruptly, causing countless snowflakes to splash behind him.

Coincidentally, all these snowflakes landed in Bennett's eyes, making it difficult for him to see the track.

If he wasn't extremely familiar with this track, he would have rolled down to the bottom of the mountain by now.

For nearly half a minute, he couldn't open his eyes and could only slow down his speed.

He held back the curse he wanted to utter, and he was left with no choice but to endure his own humiliation.

Snowflakes were a common occurrence on the ski slope, and no one could fault them

However, this minor error had already distanced him from Vania and Hanson.

Fortunately, Coco had been following closely, so there wasn't much of a gap between him and Hanson and Vania.

She increased her strength and moved closer to the two.

Given that she had already distanced herself from Bennett, this was an excellent opportunity to speak up.

She quickly said, "President Luke, Bennett wants to hurt you. You and Mrs. Luke need to be careful."

Her voice was neither loud nor soft, allowing Hanson and Vania to hear clearly but not Bennett.

Hanson and Vania were not surprised by this situation at all.

They had known Bennett's intentions from the beginning.

The two then smiled at each other, completely indifferent to Coco's words.

The race obviously couldn't end so quickly since the finish line wasn't in sight yet.

Coco wasn't sure if the two of them had heard her, and if so, why were they acting so composed?

She was quite puzzled.

But now that Bennett had caught up with them, she couldn't say anything. She could only maintain her speed and ski side by side with Bennett.

She also had to please Bennett, so she reminded him, "Mr. Lambert, there's a bend up ahead. It's the best time to make a move."

As long as they changed their speed and collided with Vania and Hanson at the corner, the two would lose their balance and rush into the danger zone.

This situation could be attributed to their lack of skill, and no one could be blamed.

If they missed this bend, they'd have to wait for the sharp turn before the finish line.

There was also a small path leading to the danger zone just before the finish line.

Her Seven Little Bodyguards - Chapter 1106

Although there was some danger, that road was just a regular entrance and exit. It wasn't a guarantee that there would be danger even if someone did go in.

As the finish line approached, the slope steepened and the pace slowed.

Bennett, of course, knew the importance of the curve, and at this point, he had already unleashed his full power.

He did have a long career in skiing, after all.

Soon, he caught up with Vania and Hanson.

Actually, their skiing skills weren't that impressive. Before, he was far behind the two, but now he was quickly catching up.

Bennett was very proud of himself.

He didn't anticipate, however, that Vania and Hanson would deliberately slow down and wait for him.

Otherwise, with his strength, he wouldn't be able to catch up with the two of them at all.

Bennett, standing next to Vania, couldn't help but comment, "Your skills are truly remarkable, gorgeous. For a beginner, you're really good at skiing."

He was already aware that Vania had been deceiving him.

"Who said it's my first time? Mr. Lambert, you are still too short-sighted."

Bennett, who was already irritated, became enraged when he was mocked again.

They happened to reach a curve at this point, and for no apparent reason, he uttered the words, "Let the race officially begin."

Even though Vania remained silent, she answered in her head, It started a long time ago, but you, fool, just didn't know.

Bennett moved to the side, attempting to push Vania into a dangerous situation.

But before he could touch Vania, she entered the dangerous zone.

Without any warning, she disappeared from Bennett's sight.

Vania had already comprehended the terrain of the dangerous area when she had just looked at the map, as well as the direction of the construction.

She had memorized the quickest route to the finish line.

And at this moment, Hanson also turned toward the dangerous area

Bennett's brain went blank for a moment as a result of the sudden situation.

He didn't actually touch Vania earlier, and even if he had, it wouldn't have been enough to push her into the dangerous area.

So, that meant she voluntarily turned in...

Shabury's dangerous area, where people enter and never leave, had been the subject of numerous news reports.

It was impossible for Vania and Hanson to be unaware of it.

Could they have done it on purpose again?

Even so, there was nothing he could do about it because he couldn't risk skiing into the dangerous area.

He didn't believe he'd be able to escape unscathed.

He could only keep moving forward for now.

Coco was also taken aback by this sudden circumstance. "Mr. Lambert, what should we do?"

In truth, she was also in a panic. Why did Vania and Hanson continue to enter the hazardous area after she reminded them of it?

Could it be that they wanted to turn the tables on them? The camera had been recording everything, and as soon as Vania and Hanson entered the dangerous area, the drone flew up.

And the search and rescue personnel who had been arranged in advance immediately set out.

The ski resort couldn't afford to offend these people.

Even if the drone went over, it might not be able to locate the two of them because it was rumored that there was no signal in the hazardous area.

Bennett had lost his initial haughtiness, though, by this point.

He began to feel a variety of emotions.

Fear, skepticism, and prayer predominated over everything else. And he hoped that after entering the hazardous area, Hanson and Vania would stay inside.

Because they entered so decisively, he doubted if they could come out.

Soon, nearing the finish line, there was still no sign of Vania and Hanson.

As they got closer to the finish line, Vania and Hanson were still missing. And as if the victory belonged to him, Bennett grinned triumphantly.

Her Seven Little Bodyguards - Chapter 1107

Coco couldn't quite tell if she was happy or disappointed.

In any case, she was not satisfied because she didn't achieve her own goal.

Just as Bennett was about to announce himself as the champion, two people suddenly appeared in the distance.

They descended from the sky, performing a mid-air somersault before landing steadily.

Their landing spot was the finish line.

It was none other than Vania and Hanson.

In that sudden moment, Bennett felt like he was seeing things.

The two of them entered the danger zone, but not only did they not waste a single second, but they also landed right when he was about to win.

There was nothing more infuriating than this.

In that moment of distraction, Bennett lost his balance during his rapid descent and kneel down before the duo.

This scene was truly embarrassing.

Vania seemed surprised by his actions and asked, "Getting excited now, aren't we, Mr. Lambert? Do you look up to us too much? Is that why you are kneeling before us as soon as we meet?"

She even chuckled. "Although we won, there's no need for you to get so worked up."

Bennett was heavily thrown off balance and couldn't get up with his own strength. He struggled a few times but remained in his position, unable to move.

Furious, he threw the tool in his hand to the ground and shouted at the people nearby, "Are you all blind? Hurry up and help me up."

Among the onlookers, there were some of his subordinates.

Upon hearing his shout, they immediately rushed over to help him up. "Mr. Lambert, are you alright?"

"Mr. Lambert, we'll call an ambulance right away."

They saw snow on the ground and blood on Bennett's mouth.

It seemed that he had knocked out his front teeth.

Feeling both angry and resentful, Bennett couldn't feel any pain as he cursed, "I'm not dead yet; why are you calling an ambulance?"

However, just as he was cursing, a snowball came out of nowhere and hit him directly in the face, knocking him down again.

Hanson, looking down from above, glanced at Bennett, who was lying on the ground, and heartlessly reminded him, "Don't forget to transfer the villa to my wife on your way to the hospital

It wasn't surprising how his nose broke when that handful of snow hit Bennett square in the face.

Now, Bennett, who didn't want to go to the hospital, had no choice but to go.

Holding back his pain, he gritted his teeth and growled, "I'll keep my word."

He then called his subordinates over. "Transfer my villa to Vania."

He was so scared that he no longer dared to call Vania beautiful since he knew what Hanson was capable of. Furthermore, his losing today would probably bring along more problems.

Moreover, 3 billion was no small amount to him. He couldn't be as indifferent about it as Vania was.

Vania and Hanson still stood at the finish line like they were gods.

As they looked down at him, it was as if they were looking at a clown.

Coco helped Bennett onto a stretcher, where he was carried into the ambulance.

At the entrance of the ambulance, she couldn't help but turn around and take another look at Hanson.

This man caused her to be even more infatuated, but her infatuation was not because of love; it was because of utility.

Seeing that the person had been taken away, Vania and Hanson smiled at each other.

Hanson then held her in his arms and affectionately kissed her cheek. "Great acting. You almost fooled even me."

He also thought that Vania couldn't ski.

Vania raised an eyebrow in satisfaction, "So, how many points would you give me for my acting, President Luke?"

Hanson's eyebrows shot up. "A perfect ten."

A perfect ten. That was his praise for her acting.

Her Seven Little Bodyguards - Chapter 1108

After thinking for a moment, he spoke again, "As for skiing, it's not your strong suit."

With that, there was no way for him to give her a score for now.

Vania laughed even more heartily. "It seems that I'm outstanding in my husband's heart."

Her joyful appearance was like that of a child.

Coupled with the slightly baggy clothes she was wearing, she looked plump, soft, and fluffy, unlike her usual slim figure.

He always wanted to hold her in his arms and give her a squeeze or a pinch.

Hanson thought so and did just that.

Vania, on the other hand, pouted and gave him a sidelong glance.

However, her looking like a child who was angry from being squeezed and pinched made her even more attractive.

Hanson's heart was burning with desire, but in front of everyone, he could only kiss her forehead and suppress his inner thoughts.

He held her hand and gently urged, "Let's go over there and play."

He was referring to the children's area; not that Vania could understand why.

Why did he set his sights on that?

Could it be that I didn't show off my skills enough?

Hanson put on a patient smile. "There's an ice cart over there. I want to pull you around."

He liked having Vania sit on the ice cart while he pushed her around to play.

Then, he would laugh like a child, which would make him feel satisfied.

Hanson was already eager to try it out at just the thought of it. Regardless of whether Vania agreed or not, he pulled her hand and walked forward.

Now, Vania had returned to her previous state.

She waddled forward like a penguin.

Hanson couldn't help but laugh. "Darling, you don't know how to walk, do you?"

Otherwise, why would she be so cute even after showing off her skills?

Didn't she know how adorable she looked like this?

"I'm just cooperating with you," Vania cooed in a soft and childish voice like that of a child.

"Daddy, I want to play that," she mentioned, pointing to another game.

At the word "Daddy," Hanson came to an abrupt stop, and his eyes darkened.

He lowered his gaze to the oblivious woman beside him

"What did you just call me?"

"Um..." Knowing that she said the wrong thing, she blinked. "I didn't say anything."

She then quickly ran forward. "I want to play this."

When she arrived at the children's area, Vania discovered that there were so many fun things around.

Although it was a children's area, there weren't many children, but rather many young couples playing here.

After all, these games were very suitable for couples in love.

Vania was already sitting on a tire. "Darling, come push me."

Although she called him "husband," it still sounded like "Daddy" to Hanson.

He was still stuck in the previous scene and hadn't recovered yet.

He could only nod awkwardly. "Coming." Vania has no idea how powerful her words are.

Anyway, Hanson's reaction was a bit slow.

They played in the children's area for a while, and Vania realized that it was way more fun than the advanced track.

However, what Vania and Hanson didn't know was that the netizens were also very happy.

Even his notorious deeds were dug up by netizens.

It was an undeniable fact that the internet world was powerful.

Even Coco, who had been following him, was exposed as well.

The term "sugar baby" was already disliked by netizens.

She didn't leave a good impression on netizens, especially with her figure and appearance.

'This guy is disgusting.'

'Let's guess how President Luke will deal with Jones Enterprise.'

'Another wave of lovey-dovey moments to fuel our envy before the previous wave even ends?'

'Be straightforward

Just tell us when it will air.'

'I like it. I will definitely like it.'

At this time, Vania and Hanson had already returned to Hammond.

Amidst the anticipation of netizens, "24 Hours with Couples" quickly premiered, not giving netizens any waiting time.

It also didn't give Vania and Hanson a chance to catch their breath.

There was no need to invite other guests; Vania and Hanson alone were enough.

Right when the couple arrived at Haling Villa, they met the production team.

"What's going on?"

Vania asked in confusion. She recognized the director among them, as they were all from the same company. Yet, was the director really in such urgent need to see Vania?

The director immediately approached with a smile. "President Greyson, the vice president of Galaxy Entertainment has decided to start filming "24 Hours with Couples" right now.

"After all, you and President Luke are currently massively popular."
