

Her Seven LBG 431

Chapter 431

"I'm not his daughter. I'm with my beautiful lady." Lily immediately corrected April without waiting for Hanson to do so.

Hearing that, April raised his hands up in surrender and looked over at Vania. "Mrs. Luke, could you please get your darling to teach me?"

He wanted to learn from Lily after seeing how good she was. Lily, however, ignored the noisy April and looked away pridefully.

Seeing that he was rejected, he walked over to Hanson helplessly and asked, "Are you sure that she isn't your daughter? I don't believe that she isn't." He found that her personality was very similar to Hanson's.

As Hanson gazed at Lily, he was doubtful too, but he told April, "Let's not talk about the past for now. But from now on, she is my daughter."

Vania's daughter is my daughter. He would happily fulfill her requests since they would be spending the rest of their lives together. Lily, who overheard their conversation, pursed her lips in disdain, seemingly telling him that he was too self-absorbed. April, who noticed that, tried to hold in his laughter, as the mighty President Luke had met his match, and there were altogether five of them.

Just then, Larry came in with a jar of hot water. "The water is here."

Lily took it from him and poured the water into the cup containing the medicine while stirring it according to the prescribed method and timing. "It's done," she said.

Hearing that, Vania helped Jude to sit up whilst Lily fed him the medicine. As Lily looked at his face, she was surprised to see that he looked familiar, as if they had met before. After giving it some thought, she realized that it was impossible that they had met before. She was aware that she had a rough life from a young age, but then she had been living in the mountains ever since she was old enough to remember. She quickly dismissed the thought.

"How long will it take for him to wake up?" Vania asked impatiently.

Everyone in the room seemed worried too.

"In five minutes," Lily answered after taking Jude's pulse. She acted so professionally that it didn't match her age at all.

As all of the children looked at Lily, they felt closer to her and wanted to know her more since all of them looked alike. After everyone heard Lily's answer, they waited patiently for Jude to wake up, and it was the longest five minutes of their lives.

As soon as five minutes had passed, Jude's body moved, and he started coughing.

After Lily took his pulse for another time, she announced calmly, "Yup, he's fine now."

Chapter 432

"You're awake. You're finally fine." Vania was glad that he was well.

"How long have I been sleeping?" As Jude tried to recall what had happened, all of it felt like a dream to him. It was like a dream about what had happened to him the past few years. When he saw how heartbroken Vania looked, he felt guilty. "Mommy, you must have been very worried about me."

"You have indeed been sleeping for a long time, but everything is fine now," she answered softly.

Hanson walked over and caressed his head to comfort him. He then looked over at April and asked, "Do you need to perform any more checkups after this?"

Hearing that, April waved his hand and said, "Jude is in good condition. You can bring him home." He then patted Hanson's shoulder and said, "All of you must have gone through a lot. Get some rest after this."

Hanson nodded and thanked him, which startled April as he was more used to the cold and straight-faced Hanson.

"Larry, you can take the week off."

Lary left the hospital delightedly after seeing that Jude had recovered and that Hanson had given him time off from work. Vania also gave Linda time off from work since they had been a great help along the way. Finally, only their family remained in the ward.

Vania then held Lily's hand and introduced her to Jude, "This is your new sister, Lily."

"This is your brother, Jude."

After both children greeted each other, Jude was aware that she wasn't the daughter that Vania had been searching for. However, he felt close to her. He valued her even more, especially after finding out that she had saved his life.

"Let's go home," Hanson suggested, as he wanted to celebrate this moment now that everything was back to normal.

Meanwhile, in Haling Villa, Theresa had prepared dinner for the family. She was overjoyed and cried tears of joy when she saw that all of them were safe and sound.

"Praise the Lord. Praise the Lord," she mumbled incessantly.

Lily, however, had mixed feelings when she saw the scene in front of her. During dinner, Vania told them about everything they had encountered along the way and introduced everyone in the family to Lily. Everyone got along well.

"Miss Vania, can I ask for a favor from you?" She looked at her with anticipation. "Can you help me to look for my birth parents?" Lily had longed to have a family like theirs.

"Sure, I'll promise you that. However, if we don't manage to do so, I'll treat you as my daughter and have you stay by my side." Vania was one with a sense of responsibility.

Hearing that, Lily looked at her and nodded.

Chapter 433

Little did he know, those boys were going to drive him crazy in the future.

"Nothing is impossible," James replied as he pursed his lips. They wouldn't easily agree to it.

Looking at how haughty their expressions were, he was pleased and asked, "Why don't you call me Daddy now?"

The four boys were rather irritated when they saw a smug look on his face. This man is pushing his luck, they thought.

"Are you going back on your own words?" Hanson raised his brow.

"Fine," Jack grumbled since they were indeed father and son. Four of them then looked at each other before whispering reluctantly, "Daddy..." Although their voices were extremely soft, Hanson could hear them clearly.

"Good boys." Hanson was grinning from ear to ear.

Four of them pursed their lips and ignored Hanson, who was pleased with himself.

On the other hand, the excited Morales and Morgan asked Vania, "In that case, does it mean that we can start calling Miss Vania Mommy?"

Vania's face blushed red as the boys looked at her with anticipation. She didn't expect it to come to this since all they did was look for the medicine together. What Vania didn't know was that during her absence, four of her boys had revealed to Morales and Morgan the relationship between Hanson and her. When both of the boys found out that Vania was their mother, they were on cloud nine, but they had promised their brothers that they would keep it a secret for now. Since their brothers had acknowledged Hanson as their father, they would like to accept Vania as their mother.

Vania shot a look at Hanson, as if telling him it wasn't a good idea. She thought that it was inappropriate since both of them were only dating.

Instead of disagreeing, Hanson was delighted. He told both of the boys, "You can call Miss Vania Mommy."

"Mommy," both of them immediately called out with joy.

"Good boys." She nodded.

In her heart, she had already seen them as her own children.

Hanson then turned to look at Lily and said, "If you want to, you can call me Daddy anytime you want to." He would be tolerant of Lily's behavior.

Chapter 434

When it was just the both of them, Hanson carried her up in his arms and said, "I would let my sons down if I don't do anything tonight."

His sons? She got shy when she heard him say that. Everything had changed so fast that it was hard for her to take everything in. Hanson put her on the bed and got on top of her.

He gently kissed her cheek and smiled. "I really miss kissing you. We haven't been doing it for a while." Since Jude's incident happened more than a week ago, it was indeed considered a long time for Hanson.

Although the position they were in was rather odd, she raised her head and kissed him on the cheek. "It's nice to have you by my side." She was glad that she had someone to lean on, and she was sure that they would be even happier after everything was resolved.

Hearing that, he looked her in the eye and asked, "Since the children had called you Mommy and called me Daddy, don't you think it's about time we move on to the next phase?"

She knew that he was referring to marriage.

She then told him, "There's something that I haven't told you about."

He didn't seem to be surprised and asked calmly, "What is it?"

"I have another daughter," she confessed. "She had been sold off by Melanie five years ago, and I have been trying to search for her but to no avail."

Hearing that, he was stunned as he never expected himself to be that fertile. Part of his plan to go to Gondalwelt was so that the other party would keep their guards down and might somehow give themselves away. He initially thought that they would take action, but they just stayed put. Because of that, he couldn't execute the plan that he had come up with before he left.

However, after receiving a text from Larry about Jude being his son, he was pretty sure that the rest of the children were his as well. He was certain that the woman that he had slept with five years ago was Vania. Since he was still in Gondalwelt, he couldn't verify Morales' and Morgan's relationship with Vania. Earlier on, when he visited the hospital, he had asked April to perform a paternity test on them, and the results should be out tomorrow.

Now that he had found out that they had a daughter, he was delighted and said, "Darling, you're great."

His heart ached for her when he thought of the hardships that she had to go through by herself, especially when their children were sold off after she gave birth to them. On top of that, she had gone through a lot to locate them and raise them well. Because of all these, he felt that he was indebted to her.

"What's wrong?" She was surprised at his reaction.

"I'm fine. Please continue." He shook his head.

Chapter 435

"What is it?" Vania asked curiously when she saw how serious Hanson looked.

In order to not startle her, he tried to put it subtly. "It's about what happened five years ago. That night..."

Upon hearing that, she looked at him wide-eyed and interrupted him without letting him complete his sentence. "You're that man isn't it?" She hoped that it was really him.

He nodded at her. "You've guessed it, haven't you? But the investigation results stated otherwise."

She was stoked when she heard that it really was him and that fate had brought them together again.

"That's right. I suspected that it might be you, but when the investigation result showed otherwise, I was disappointed."

All of the signs had pointed to Hanson, but the evidence that she got proved that it wasn't him.

"Someone had rigged it, and I suspected that Eddie was behind it."

"Five years ago, he tried to set me up with a woman that he had hand-picked, but you mistakenly got involved and ruined his plans. This is why later on, he went to Melanie and came up with this plan. His intention was to use her to get rid of me so that he could have his hands on Luke Corporation," he explained in detail.

It was now easier for them to analyze the situation after the paternity test results were out.

"Since the timing isn't right yet, they are staying put for now. I don't know what other arrangements they had made, but I won't let them succeed no matter what." Hanson was letting Vania know there would still be danger ahead of them.

Vania swiftly digested the information and noted something. "Does it mean that Morales and Morgan could be my son?"

"The test results will be out tomorrow."

Hearing that, she was amazed at herself for giving birth to septuplets, and all of it was a pleasant surprise to her, which made her really happy.

However, she hadn't forgotten Hanson's warning and said, "I suspected that our daughter is in Eddie's hands, so I believe that they had planned something out."

Chapter 436

"Darling, I can't hold it in anymore."

Immediately, Hanson removed Vania's clothes. His sudden actions startled her, and her body stiffened as she wasn't prepared for what was coming. When she thought that they had had children together and that they had identified with each other about their feelings, she was fine with it. However, they had only done it once and under such circumstances in which she had forgotten how it all happened. While her head was racing with thoughts, he had managed to strip her clothes off.

Even so, he held himself back before sealing the deal. His eyes were bloodshot, and his forehead was covered with sweat. "Darling, I can't hold it in any longer," he said with a deep hoarse voice. He was actually asking for her consent, and if she refused to do it, he didn't mind bearing the intense pain of not being able to release himself. He couldn't bear to see her being in fear, indirectly touching her heart with how he was willing to go the extra mile. Since she loved him, she was willing to do it, but because it was her first time experiencing it when she was sober, she got nervous.

After looking into his eyes, she shut her eyes and kissed his lips in reply to his request. After getting her consent, he finally didn't have to hold himself back anymore. That night, his prolonged dry spell had finally come to an end.

The next day, Vania finally woke up at noon. Since the curtains were still shut, no sunlight could shine into the room, and she couldn't tell what time it was. Hanson was still sleeping while having her in his arms.

She then got down from the bed to get her phone as she wanted to know what time it was. However, her body felt so sore that it was as if it was going to fall apart. Hanson was insatiable last night, and he kept going without taking any pauses in between. In the end, he only stopped when he realized Vania couldn't take it anymore. Noticing that her body had taken a toll because of it, she vowed to herself that she wouldn't let him touch her tonight. No, not just tonight. There's no way I would let him do it in the future too, she thought.

As she held back the soreness, she looked at the time on her phone. It's already noon?? Her eyes twitched as she stared at the time. She couldn't believe that she had slept till noon with Hanson. She didn't know how she would face her children later on.

She punched the bedding and sighed as she scolded him in her head. By then, Hanson was already awake. In the morning, before Vania was up, he had already told the children that she needed more rest, as the trip to Gondalwelt had been taxing. The children didn't believe him, but since they had received 10 million from him, they had no choice but to acquiesce to his actions. Hanson seemed like a lowly father in front of the children.

Although his eyes were shut, he could imagine how annoyed she was and that she must be scolding him. He stretched his hand out and pulled her into his arms before hugging her tightly.

Chapter 437

Vania pulled the sheets over her and didn't want to reply to Hanson. While he smiled, he moved to the side and slept next to her. It got uncomfortable under the sheets, and she started moving her body from side to side, which somehow turned Hanson on. He then turned over and pressed his body against her.

"Ahh..." she called out before pushing against his chest. "G-Get off me." She was blushing and stuttering.

She refused to let him do it in broad daylight since the children were at home, and her body couldn't take another blow. She purposely stared at him angrily as if warning him that she was angry.

However, he found her expression adorable and couldn't help but tease her.

Hanson held her face in his hands as he smiled. "Fine, then you should get on top of me." He suddenly carried her and put her on top of him.

"You..." She was fuming at how he distorted what she meant.

"I'm doing as I'm told, but why are you still mad?" Hanson smiled happily while she felt like punching him in the face.

Vania struggled to get down, but when her body rubbed against his, he became a little too excited. She noticed that his gaze had darkened and that she could feel the changes her actions had brought to his body. Immediately, she paused as she thought that she shouldn't mess with him.

"Get up now. I want to go look at the kids," she said while blushing.

She was worried that she might only wake up the next day if she allowed him to have his way. I'm no longer young. Argh! If this goes on, I'm afraid I'd only wake up tomorrow morning.

However, he refused to let her go and argued, "How can I get up when you're on top of me?"

Vania decided to deal with the unreasonable Hanson using the rough way and bit his shoulder. He let out a groan and was obviously turned on by it. Instead of leaving, he looked at her with a burning desire.

Knowing that he was aroused, she immediately escaped while he was being distracted and scolded, "You barbaric hog!"

When he finally realized that Vania had left, he smiled but didn't understand why she called him a barbaric hog since he didn't look like one.

By then, she had already walked out of the bedroom. As she stepped into the living room, she saw all seven children sitting on the couch with peculiar gazes.

Chapter 438

The children were upset, knowing that their most beloved mommy had been taken by the barbaric hog. Because of that, it would be inevitable for Vania to get the cold shoulder.

Just then, Hanson walked out of the room but without the sensual expression on his face. Instead, he was in high spirits, and everyone could tell that he was in a good mood.

"Hmph..." Seven of them scoffed as they ignored him.

Hanson was unfazed when he saw that and walked over to Vania while smiling. However, Vania immediately dodged him like he was the plague. She wanted to avoid having any intimate interactions with him in front of the children, or else she might be getting silent treatment from them.

Finally, James broke the silence and asked, "Mommy, how is your body?"

"My body is good," she replied as she beamed like nothing had occurred.

She wasn't aware of what Hanson had told them. On top of that, she couldn't tell them he was the one who gave her body aches.

Upon hearing that, all of them glared at Hanson at the same time, as if they were unhappy that he had lied to them.

Noticing their expression, she asked him bitterly, "What have you said to the children?" No wonder her children seemed cold toward her. It turned out that Hanson was the reason behind it.

"Darling, I just told them that you're too tired and that you need more rest." He rubbed his nose and attested.

Vania clearly understood the meaning behind the words 'too tired'. She looked at them with guilt and immediately explained, "Darlings, don't listen to his nonsense. Mommy is fine. I'll go and prepare lunch for all of you."

Right after, she shot a look at him, warning him not to sputter nonsense in front of the children.

He got the cue and made a mouth-zipping gesture before walking over to the children. He caressed Lily's head and asked, "Did you sleep well last night?"

"Yes, I did." She nodded.

Her brothers had decorated her room like a fairyland which looked really beautiful.

Hearing that, Hanson nodded. "Let us know if there's anything that you need. We will fulfill it."

Lily nodded.

"How about you, Jude? How are you feeling?" Hanson asked concernedly.

"I'm all good." He patted his chest because he didn't feel any discomfort.

Chapter 439

Hanson ignored Melanie as he hugged Vania and stood in front of her.

Despite Melanie's state, she was observant enough to notice the hickey on Vania's neck, and she instantly found out about their relationship. Hanson and Vania are together... The voice echoed in her head incessantly. As she couldn't accept the fact, she held her head and mumbled, "No... No way." Her words couldn't be understood by Hanson and Vania as they sounded more like gibberish.

"How was it?" Hanson asked his subordinate calmly.

Without a hitch, his subordinates respectfully presented to him the records of interviews that were compiled in the past few days. "President Luke, she had confessed to most of her wrongdoings. The only thing was she insisted that she didn't know who the mastermind behind all of these was."

"She doesn't know? Huh..." Hanson scoffed as he went through the records with Vania.

Melanie had confessed to setting up the children and Vania, except for the source of the poison as well as the mastermind behind the scene.

"While on my way here, I have given orders to acquire Greyson Realty. Both of your parents should be homeless by now." Vania glanced at Melanie coldly and said. Ever since they harmed Jude, Vania vowed that she would bring down Greyson Realty. Now that everything was back to normal, she had decided to get rid of them in case they attempted to get back at her. It wasn't an issue for Galaxy Corporation to deal with Greyson Realty.

"Vania, I don't think you'd dare to do so." When Melanie found out that Greyson Realty had been closed down, she was hysterical since she had lost her backing.

"Why not? It's as easy as stomping on an ant."

"Don't forget that your daughter is in my hands." Melanie threatened Vania despite Hanson being there.

"I'm so scared." She looked at Melanie with disdain. Her expression was calm while she pretended to be scared.

Melanie furrowed her brows because she didn't expect her to react in such a way. "Don't you want to look for your child anymore?"

Chapter 440

"Hahaha!" Melanie laughed sinisterly. "There is indeed no cure for this poison. You won't get the antidote even if you kill me."

"Then I'll make you live in utter misery," Vania declared savagely, and she meant what she said. If her children were being harmed, she would make sure Melanie paid back for it by a few folds.

"I'm not afraid of you." Melanie smiled, seemingly unafraid of Vania as she was hoping that the mysterious person would get her out.

Vania then turned over to look at Hanson, and their gaze met. Based on their assumption, since there was really no cure for the poison, they believed that it wasn't simply used to harm Jude. Or maybe using it on Jude was just an experiment, and improvements to the drug would be made accordingly. When they thought of the improved poison, both of them narrowed their gaze as they realized that the poison was created to be used on Hanson.

"If you tell me who is the one behind this, I'll consider letting you live." Hanson finally spoke.

Noticing that Hanson finally looked at her, she gazed at him with greed in her eyes. Even though the way he looked at her was filled with disgust, she was glad that he was willing to take a look at her.

"Hanson, if I tell you everything, could you let me stay by your side?" Melanie was still thinking of staying by his side.

"I only want to know who is behind all these." He wasn't bothered by her offer as he had already found out everything that he needed to know.

"No, there's one more thing. I'll tell you now, but can you please release me if I do?" Melanie shook her head frantically.

"The children are Vania's and mine; the woman from five years ago is also Vania," Hanson sneered as he guessed what she wanted to say.

Hearing that, Melanie was wide-eyed as she couldn't believe what she'd heard. "How did this happen? How did you find out?"

"You were able to stay by my side for five years because someone told you about it," Hanson replied calmly. He only let her stay by his side because of his sons.

"You knew about it?" She never thought that he would manage to find out since she had been hiding it as best as she could. On top of that, that person reassured her that Hanson would never know about it.
