

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2818 –

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2818—Even if Hector didn't say it, Hazel would do it.

“Come here, I'll teach you the shorthand method.” Hector took out a pen from his jacket pocket, pointed at the manuscript, and began to teach Hazel, “First memorize the important nouns and numerals in the manuscript, and then memorize the key words. For words that are difficult to pronounce or are difficult to remember, focus on practicing more...”

In fact, Hazel knew what Hector said.

Hector gave her some information before, and it was written on the information.

“There is one more important thing that you have to remember it that is our image in front of the camera. Our image is determined by our hairstyle, clothing and facial expressions. Facing the camera, we must relax. My first way to relieve tension, Just think of the camera as your best friend.”

Hazel benefited a lot and nodded quickly.

“You recite the manuscript! You can call me after you recite it, or you can find a staff member.” Hector smiled, said, “As long as you perform normally, you will not be worse than your senior sister.”

Hazel nodded with a smile: “Okay. Go get busy!”

After Hector left, Hazel began to memorize the manuscript.

When Hector came out, Sloane had already signed the contract and walked towards Studio 6.

“Teacher Joly, I've signed the contract.” Sloane took the initiative to greet Hector.

Hector asked, “Is there any problem with the contract?”

“No.” Sloane walked up to Hector and said enthusiastically and gratefully, “Teacher Joly, thank you for choosing me. I will definitely work hard and try not to let you down.”

Hector said: “I am not alone in the selection work. People will decide it. You are good enough to be selected. You don't have to thank anyone. Of course, it's right to work hard.”

“Teacher Joly, is my performance just now really not good enough?” Sloane felt a little uneasy, “It won't make me feel particularly uncomfortable if I can't compare with seniors and seniors who are not as good as Hazel. I will suspect that I have been studying for nothing in the past two years.”

Sloane didn't know that Hector was Hazel's tutor, so she spoke her mind without so many scruples in front of Hector.

“Her current strength should not be as good as yours.” Hector comforted, “but the psychology of comparison is bad. It's not that you can't compare, but you shouldn't compare with your colleagues. It's more important to do things than to be a person.”

Sloane said: “Teacher Joly, I'm just very nervous...I'm afraid that after my internship this year, you don't want me...”

The TV station would talk to students who signed the contract to extend the internship period if they were excellent students and would stay. However, some individuals were dropped after the internship period. Because there were so many TV stations, some people had to leave.

Hector: “Don't think too much. Thinking so much will make you work hard. We gave you this opportunity to let you study hard and perform well. You just work hard, even if you can't stay in our station in the future. Here, you will also make a difference on other platforms.”

Hector's words made Sloane's mood drop to the bottom.

It seemed that the possibility of her being able to stay was really low.

Sloane: “Thank you, Teacher Joly. I have benefited a lot from listening to your words. Go get busy! I'll go and see Hazel.”

“She's reciting manuscripts, so don't disturb her right now.” Hector said, “You can take a stroll first and come back in a quarter of an hour.”

Sloane was stunned for a moment, then nodded.

After Hector left, Sloane went to the door of Studio 6 and took a look.

Hazel sat where she had been sitting just now, reciting a manuscript.

A staff member sat in a chair to one side and played with his phone.

It was very quiet inside, and Sloane could vaguely hear the voice of Hazel reading the manuscript.

Sloane didn't know why, but she always felt that Hector treated Hazel better. But after thinking about it carefully, she felt that Hector had no obvious difference between Hazel and herself.

A quarter of an hour later, Sloane returned to Studio 6.

Hazel was no longer memorizing the manuscript, she was chatting with the staff, it should be the staff telling her some precautions.

Before Sloane started the trial broadcast, the staff member also explained a lot to her.

Sloane realized that Hazel was ready, so she walked in.

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2819—After a while, Hector also walked over.

When Hazel saw Hector coming in, she immediately smiled and gestured OK.

Hector nodded slightly, but did not speak.

After Hazel put it on, Hector's voice came from the earphone, "Hi Hazel, listen to my countdown, five, four, three, two, one, start..."

The content of the manuscript on Hazel's desktop had appeared on the front teleprompter, and the teleprompter and the shots were together.

Hazel only needed to look at the camera in front of her and read out the script in the teleprompter accurately.

"Hello, viewers, today is January 13th, Tuesday. Welcome to 'News Thirty'"

The trial broadcast was only ten minutes long.

The draft of the trial broadcast was relatively simple, and the main purpose of this trial broadcast was to let them familiarize themselves with the working environment.

For Hazel, the significance of this trial broadcast was greater than that of Sloane.

Because Sloane was already a sophomore, there was a studio for students to train in the university.

Ten minutes later, Hector's voice came from Hazel's ear: "It's over. You did a good job!"

Hazel breathed a sigh of relief inwardly.

She took off her ears and returned them to the staff.

Sloane asked Hector: "Teacher Joly, what do you think of Hazel's broadcast just now?"

Because Hector commented on Sloane at that time, pointing out Sloane's shortcomings, which made Sloane not very happy.

Sloane felt that what she had done was pretty good. After all, she was an intern anchor, not a professional.

Hector thought for a while, and then replied: "The problem is the same as yours. She's a little nervous. The voice is not fully opened."

After hearing Hector's words, Sloane was relieved.

In fact, she felt that Hazel's broadcast just now was not bad, but Hector's evaluation made her a little dazed.

What kind of standard must be achieved to satisfy Hector?

After Hazel returned the ear, she walked over quickly.

Hazel: "Teacher Joly, can I sign the contract?"

Hector smiled and said, "Aren't you going to ask for my evaluation?"

"I heard it just now. You said that I was a little nervous like Miss Sloane, and my voice was not fully opened." Hazel was in a good mood, "I will try my best not to let others see that I am nervous next time."

"Haha, come with me." Hector took Hazel into the studio.

Sloane looked at the back of the two of them leaving, feeling a little jealous.

Hector actually took Hazel to sign the contract in person. It seemed that Hector really liked Hazel a little bit more.

Was it because Hazel was more beautiful than Sloane?

Sloane came out of the studio, took out her mobile phone, and complained in her friend group: [That Hazel Foster was usually so lonely and cold in university, but she seemed to be a completely different person on the TV station! When she saw Director Joly, she wished she could post it all over. I suspect that she had already opened up the relationship with Director Joly.]

Friend 1: [This girl is disgusting! When the photos of her with foreigners were circulated before, I guessed that she was a hot guy who would do anything for her superiority.]

Friend 2: [Sloane, how is her broadcast? Did you hear that? Didn't she say that she has a very strong accent? Will the TV station really want people of this level? Even if the relationship is hard, can't you force it? The audience is not stupid!]

Sloane fell silent while watching the messages from her friend.

In all fairness, Hazel's trial broadcast just now was quite good.

No matter in terms of spoken language or manners, Sloane couldn't find any problems.

She said just now that Hazel opened up Hector's relationship because of jealousy.

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2820–Hector took Hazel to the conference room.

Hazel's contract was on the conference table in the conference room.

Hazel: "Teacher Joly, have everyone else signed the contract?"

Hector nodded, "Yes. Everyone else has already started working."

Hazel picked up the contract and looked at it.

"I sent it to your father to read." Hector handed her the pen, "Just sign it."

Hazel took the pen, but insisted on reading the contract: "This is the first time I have signed the contract. I got a work-related contract, so I was very excited and wanted to see what was written in it."

Hazel used to be a nanny for the Hogan family and received payment, but there was no employment contract.

Hector: "What are your plans in the future? Do you want to develop in this industry for a long time?"

Hazel signed her name on the contract, and then replied: "Teacher Joly, I don't want to lie to you, I didn't go that far Career planning. I only know that I want to be a host now. As for whether my thoughts will change after graduation, I can't say clearly now."

Hector chuckled: "I can understand. Your family strongly opposes you becoming a host in the future!"

Hazel shook her head: "It has nothing to do with my family." After a pause, she said, "It can't be said that it doesn't matter at all, they respect my ideas more, so I can choose what I want."

"You are very happy." Hector said, "I will send you the video of your trial broadcast just now. You can show it to your parents."

Hazel: "Thank you, Teacher Joly."

"You're welcome. By the way, that senior of yours, you'd better not get too close to her." Hector reminded her in a low voice, "She's actually pretty good, that's..."

Hector was deliberating use words.

"Teacher Joly, I understand what you mean. In fact, I can tell whether I get along with someone or not. I can feel it when I meet her." Hazel smiled and reassured him, "Thank you today, you can go to your work, if you don't. What's the matter with me, then I'll leave first."

Hector: "You're on winter vacation now, so you shouldn't have anything else to do? If you're not in a hurry to go back, you can watch the broadcasts of other seniors. I can take you to the director's room."

Hector's words made Hazel excited immediately.

Hazel: "Teacher Joly, is it really okay? Will I affect other people's work?"

"It won't affect you if you don't speak. But if they take the initiative to chat with you, it will be fine." Hector took Hazel and headed to the studio after picking up the contract from the table.

"Has my senior gone?" When Hazel passed by Studio No. 6, she found that there was no one there.

"Maybe! Don't worry about others, just do your own thing." When Hector took Hazel to the studio, Sloane came out from the bathroom next to him.

When she saw Hector bring Hazel into the director's room, she wanted to call them to stop, but she was too shocked, she forgot to speak.

Hazel really hugged Hector's thigh.

This Hazel was really capable!

At noon, Robert drove to the TV station to pick up Hazel.

Hazel came out of the building and saw Robert's car at a glance.

Hazel opened the door of the passenger seat and got in the car.

Hazel: "Brother, have you eaten yet?"

Robert chuckled softly, "I should be the one asking you this question, right?"

"I've eaten. I ate it in the canteen of the TV station. Brother, the canteen here is making very delicious food." Hazel boasted.

Robert asked: "Which one is more delicious? TV station or Dad's company cafeteria?"

"It's equally delicious. Not only delicious, but also cheap." Hazel ate a total of more than $10 at noon today. Of course, it was the meal card that Hector swiped.

"Companies like this are subsidized by the canteen, otherwise who will do the business at a loss. It is equivalent to the benefits for the employees! Otherwise, eating out by yourself is very expensive." Robert said, "How about your trial broadcast today?"

"It went well. It's easier than I imagined." Hazel took out her contract from her bag, "I've signed the contract. From now on, I'll be an intern anchor! Have you eaten, brother? Let me treat you to dinner!"

"Hahaha, okay! But at night! Parents are waiting for you to go back to eat at home right now!" Robert joked, "You had a trial broadcast today. Dad was very nervous and didn't go to the company and stayed at home all the time, waiting for you to go back. But you never went back, so he asked me to pick you up."

"Dad asked you to pick me up?" Hazel was a little surprised.

Hazel: "Yes!"

"Didn't Teacher Joly send my trial video to Dad?" Hazel turned on her phone and found the video Teacher Joly sent her.

“No! I didn’t see your trial video when I went out!” Robert pulled over to watch his sister’s trial video.

After Hazel sent the video to the family group, she handed the phone to Hazel.

Robert took Hazel’s cell phone, clicked on the video, and concentrated on watching it.

Ten minutes later, Robert gave Hazel a thumbs up: “Little sister, you look really professional. You broadcast really well. Not only are you beautiful, but you broadcast so well... You are amazing!”

Hazel blushed because of Robert’s exaggerated praise: “Brother, I watched my senior’s trial broadcast, and she broadcast it very well. The students who can enter the TV station for internship are very good.”

“Are others good or not? I can’t see it, I only see that you are great.” Robert returned the phone to Hazel, restarted the engine, and drove towards home.

Foster family.

Elliot and Avery each took their mobile phones to watch the video posted by Hazel in the family group.

After watching the video, the two looked at each other with a tacit understanding.

“Our daughter looks like that.” Elliot was very surprised by Hazel’s performance.

“What does it mean to be quite like that? Our daughter is now a fully qualified host.” Avery was proud of Hazel, “It took her only half a year to reach such a height, she is really amazing. “

Elliot nodded, agreeing: “My daughter is like you, she is smart, and she can understand a little bit.”

Avery was delighted to hear Elliot’s words, but said modestly: “It’s all the result of my daughter’s own hard work. It’s a pity that she doesn’t let us go to the TV station to watch her broadcast. Otherwise, I really want to watch it live.”

“Since our daughter won’t let us, we won’t go.” Elliot listened to Avery as well as Hazel.

“Yeah.” Avery responded and thought of Layla, “Layla hasn’t bubbled up in the group, and I don’t know what she’s doing now. After she moved there, she didn’t send me any messages.”

“She must be at the company now, right? How about I give her a call?” Elliot really wanted to know if Layla was used to her life after she moved to Eric’s house.

“Then you call! Don’t be too direct.” Avery frowned slightly.

After Elliot responded, he dialed Layla’s number.

Layla quickly answered the phone, “Dad.”

“Well, your mother wants to chat with you.” Elliot switched the speaker phone on.

“Mom wants to chat with me why mom didn’t call me?” Layla laughed, “Mom missed me?”

“After you moved in, are you still used to it?” Avery walked to Elliot’s side, looked at the phone and asked.

“It’s not something I’m used to. It’s not like I haven’t been to his house...” Layla’s hearty laughter came, “Mom, Dad, don’t think about it!”
