When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2844—

Netizen C: As a senior in the hosting industry, I have the right to speak. It's not exactly a broadcast accident. It was a small mistake at best. It is normal for trainee anchors to make small mistakes. It is good for everyone to look at this issue rationally.

Netizen D: I think there is probably something wrong with her manuscript. Otherwise, she wouldn't suddenly get stuck.

Netizen E: Don't the hosts of this kind of TV station read scripts to the teleprompter? The singer holds a concert, and the lyrics have a teleprompter! The teleprompter is malfunctioning!

"Husband, some netizens said that when our daughter was broadcasting, there might be a problem with the teleprompter." Avery read the comments of netizens, and wanted to know what was going on.

It's a pity that Hazel was sleeping, and Avery couldn't ask her right now.

"How about I call Hector and ask?" Elliot was actually not that nervous about this matter. Because although his daughter made a small mistake, it did not really affect the broadcasting effect of the program.

Moreover, Elliot was afraid that his daughter had really made a mistake, and the two of them paid too much attention to this mistake, which would only make her more nervous and embarrassed.

Avery shook her head: "No need. Since Hector didn't take the initiative to say anything, it means there is nothing wrong. Our daughter is a rookie anchor, and even if mistakes are made, it is inevitable."

"Don't talk about rookie anchors, even if they are professionals...It is inevitable that there will be small mistakes in the anchor for many years." Elliot said indifferently, "Our daughter is already good enough."

"Well. I also think she is excellent. It seems that she was born to do this job." Avery saw her daughter as a host, and couldn't help fantasizing that her daughter would become a popular and well-known anchor in Aryadelle in the future.

"Our daughter should have a better future." Elliot was not satisfied that his daughter would only be a well-known host in the future.

Speaking of this, Avery thought of Robert.

“We didn’t see Robert after we got up. Is Robert still sleeping?”

Hearing Avery’s words, the maid immediately came over: “Robert went out at 8 o’clock. Isn’t he going to work now? Is it? He said he has to open it every day!”

Avery had no idea Robert would value this job so highly.

“It feels like after Hazel came back, our family’s life has undergone tremendous changes.” Avery sighed, “I’m talking about spirituality.”

“Isn’t this good? Now that our kids are mature, we can take it easy and enjoy life.” Elliot couldn’t help but start planning, “Let’s go on a trip in a few years!”

Avery looked at Elliot’s expectant face and nodded, “Alright.”

Elliot: “Where would you like to go? Let’s make a plan.”

“Let me think about it.” Avery had travelled to many places, but the world was big, and there were still many places she had yet to visit.

She once told Elliot that when the children grew up and had their own families, the two of them would go and visit all the places they hadn’t visited.

At 11:30am, Hazel woke up hungry.

Through today’s and yesterday’s experience, she decided to go home from get off work in the early morning and find something to fill her stomach before going to bed.

It’s really uncomfortable to be woken up from hunger.

Hazel came down from upstairs and saw her parents in the living room.

“Mom and Dad.” Hazel called obediently.

“Did you wake up from hunger again?” Avery walked in front of Hazel and took her to the dining room, “What time did you come back last night? Your mom doesn’t even know when you come back!”

“Back at 4 o’clock.” The smile on Hazel’s face was very relaxed, “Mom, have you eaten yet?”

“Not yet! Let’s eat together.”

Avery and Hazel sat down at the dining table, and Elliot also walked over slowly.

The maid immediately brought the food to the table.

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2845—Hazel was very hungry, so she buried her head and ate a bowl of rice first.

Seeing Hazel eating in such a hurry, Avery immediately filled her with a bowl of soup.

“Drink some soup, don’t choke.”

“Mm... Mom, I’m really hungry. I feel hungry after going to work.” Hazel picked up the soup bowl and took a sip of soup, “Mom, I have two days off next.”

“Let’s take you out to do New Year’s shopping!” Avery had already made arrangements.

In the 10 years that Hazel lived outside, she lived in such poverty, so she certainly didn’t have a good year.

“Okay! What do you buy for the New Year?” Hazel put down the soup bowl to let her stomach relax.

Avery: “Typically, we’ll shop some lovely flowers and greenery, as well as lanterns, couplets, blessing figures, and some lovely lanterns. Fireworks are also present. Fireworks will be set to release on New Year’s Eve every year. However, we’ll adjust the time this year. If you are going to work, we’ll set off the fireworks before you leave or after you get home.”

Hazel listened to her mom’s words, feeling very special: “Let’s put it on before I go to work! Sleep well at night and don’t stay up late.”

Avery: “It’s rare to sleep well on New Year’s Eve. Isn’t there a square outside our community, and the square will basically set off fireworks all night.”

Hazel wondered: “Wouldn’t this keep those around you awake?”

Avery: “Only once a year, it’s okay.”

Hazel asked, “Oh. Do we have to go to that square to set off the fireworks?”

“We can set it off in the yard.” Avery explained with a smile, “The neighbors are far away from us. And they also set off fireworks.”

“Where is sister celebrating the New Year this year?” Hazel suddenly thought that her brother Hayden would be back soon, so she thought of her sister Layla.

After Hazel asked this question, Avery and Elliot were silent.

Neither of them had talked to Layla about it.

Layla did not take the initiative to tell them where to celebrate the New Year this year.

Theoretically, Layla should return home for the New Year since she hadn't yet received her certificates and Eric hadn't performed a wedding ceremony.

But they couldn't look at the relationship between Layla and Eric with ordinary eyes.

“Hazel, why don't you ask your sister in private.” Avery lowered her voice when she said this.

“Okay! I'll ask her later.” Hazel added another bowl of rice.

She was sure that after going to work, her appetite became bigger and her appetite got better and better.

After lunch, Hazel went back to her room to get her mobile phone.

After sending her sister a message, she started looking at unread messages on her phone.

Hector replied to her with a 'yes' and another sentence of 'I will investigate this matter, even if there is no evidence that I can't do anything to the mastermind behind the scenes, but I will not tolerate'.

After reading Hector's message, she saw a friend request.

She opened it and saw that it was Lennox.

She immediately accepted Lennox's friend request.

Lennox's show was behind her, he got off work later than Hazel, but woke up earlier than Hazel.

It was probably because of what happened last night that affected him.

Because there was no monitoring, he couldn't get rid of the suspicion.

Lennox immediately sent her a message: [Hazel, I didn't change your manuscript. I swear to God.]

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2846–Hazel: [After leaving my station, have you seen anyone who has been to my station?]

Lennox: [My desk is facing away from you. I was reciting manuscripts after work last night, and I really didn't notice who went to your desk.]

Hazel: [All right, it's all right. Don't think too much, just work hard.]

Lennox: [Hazel, you should have doubts, right?]

Hazel: [There is no evidence.]

Lennox: [So you plan to do nothing?]

Hazel: [Without evidence, I can't do anything.]

There was a thin piece of cellophane between them.

Lennox must have wanted to ask Hazel if she suspected Sloane.

But Hazel would not tell the truth to Lennox. If it weren't for what happened last night, neither of them would be friends.

There was no need to say anything because she couldn't even speak.

Lennox: [Then you should be more careful in the future. Also, I watched your program last night, and your ability to respond to emergencies is really strong. I want to learn from you.]

Hazel: [Thank you.]

After chatting with Lennox, Hazel saw Layla's reply: [Of course I'm going home for the New Year. Even if Eric and I get the certificate, I have to go home for the New Year!]

Seeing her sister's reply, Hazel immediately beamed with joy.

Mom and dad would be overjoyed if her sister returned for the New Year.

Hazel sent a message back to Layla: [Then you and my brother-in-law will celebrate the New Year separately?]

Layla: [I'll take him back to our house for the New Year! I've already talked to his parents but I haven't told him yet.]

Hazel couldn't help laughing: [Then why don't you talk to my brother-in-law first and then you'll talk to his parents.]

Layla: [Did Mom and Dad tell you to ask me?]

Hazel: [...um.]

Layla: [Why didn't they just ask me?]

Hazel: [Maybe it's because they're afraid of putting pressure on you.]

Layla: [What's the pressure. I have moved to Eric's house, so I will definitely go back to my own house during the holidays!]

Hazel: [Sister, I think what you said makes sense.]

Layla: [Tell mom and dad directly, just say that I go home for the New Year.]

Hazel: [Alright.]

Layla: [By the way, I saw on Facebook that you had a little accident on your show last night. I watched the video. Did you forget the words or something?]

Hazel thought about it and decided not to tell her sister the truth. Suddenly, she couldn't think of anything else to say. She could be too nervous!

Layla: [Oh, don't be nervous, do the job if you are happy, and quit if you are not. Just treat it normally.]

Layla's comfort made Hazel heal instantly.

After sending messages to Layla for a while, a new message popped up.

Seeing that the message was from Sloane, Hazel immediately clicked on the message without even thinking about it.

Sloane: [Hazel, I just woke up and saw the news that there was something wrong with your press release last night. What's going on?]

Looking at the text she sent, Hazel's mood, which had just calmed down, became turbulent again.

At this moment, a series of similar words appeared in Hazel's mind.

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2847–Sloane sent another message: [Is it convenient for you to talk on the phone now? How about we talk on the phone!]

Hazel didn't want to hear Sloane's voice, so she replied: [It's not convenient for me now.]

Sloane: [All right! Hazel, I don't know what happened to your press release, but I can be sure that I haven't touched your release.]

Hazel: [The director said he would investigate. Just wait for the director's investigation results!] [

]

Sloane: [Mmmm! Are you taking two days off next? Me too. Do you want to come out and play?]

Hazel: [I want to be with my family.]

Sloane: [All right! Don't worry about what happened last night. I just watched a replay of your show, and you're doing really well!]

If a normal classmate or a normal colleague said this to her, she would reply with a 'thank you', but to Sloane, she couldn't say thank you.

She directly closed the Sloane dialog box.

"Hazel, have you sent a message to your sister?" Avery saw Hazel walking down the stairs, so she asked.

Hazel: "Sent it, my sister said that she will bring my brother-in-law back to celebrate the New Year this year."

"Oh, yes!" Avery smiled, "Hazel, do you want to rest for a while?"

“Mom, Right now, I can’t sleep. No more.” Hazel walked to her mother, “Let’s go shopping!”

Avery: “Okay.”

“Then I’ll change clothes.” Hazel let go of her mother and immediately ran upstairs.

Looking at her daughter’s back, Avery could imagine how good her daughter was in a good mood at the moment.

At this time, Avery’s cell phone rang.

Avery glanced at the call reminder, it was Layla’s call.

Avery immediately answered the phone.

“Mom, can I ask you something?”

Avery looked at Elliot uncontrollably after hearing what Layla said.

Seeing his wife’s eyes, Elliot immediately sensed that something was wrong.

“What’s the matter? It’s so mysterious, can’t others know?” Avery saw that Elliot had come over, and knew that she couldn’t hide this matter from him.

“That’s...can you secretly give me your household registration booklet?” Layla’s voice was still low, “I asked Eric’s mother for his family’s household registration booklet.”

Avery immediately understood Layla’s intentions.

“You have to discuss this with Eric! Otherwise, are you going to trick him into the Civil Affairs Bureau?” Avery’s temple twitched.

“Mom, it’s not that I don’t know him well. He’s so awkward. If I don’t take the initiative, I will never marry him.” Layla sighed, “Mom, just help me!”

“Why are you so anxious all of a sudden?” Avery didn’t want to help, but wanted to know what Layla was thinking.

Layla cleared her throat, and answered honestly: “I want to live with him.”

“I know you two live together!” Avery said this, and immediately realized that what Layla meant was not what she understood, “Are you two sleeping in the same room?”

“Hmm. His house is too much space, and I’m afraid of sharing a room by myself.” Layla made excuses for herself, “And I’m also afraid that something unexpected will happen to him...”

“You two didn’t mess around, did you?” Avery blushed anxiously.

Avery wasn’t afraid that Layla will get pregnant; she’s afraid that Eric’s body won’t be able to handle it.

Like Eric, who had just gotten a new heart, it would be at least six months before he could have s*xual relations.

“Mom, what are you thinking!” Layla’s voice suddenly rose, “Do I look like such an unreliable person? The doctor finally saved his life, how could I act recklessly! I just want to get a certificate from him. Because I think I already live with him now, so I can get the certificate as soon as possible.”

Avery breathed a sigh of relief: “You can have a household registration, you can get it yourself when you come back.”

“Oh... Dad is at home?” Layla asked.

“Yes! He’s right next to me. He heard everything you said to me just now.” When Avery said this, she glanced at Elliot beside her.

The expression on Elliot’s face was very complicated.

“Later you go shopping with Hazel, I’ll wait for Layla at home.” Elliot said to Avery.

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2848—When Elliot said this, Avery’s phone was still on. So on the other side of the phone, Layla heard what her dad said clearly.

Layla didn’t say that she would come here to get the household registration book now! But after Dad said that, it made it impossible for Layla not to come.

“My daughter didn’t say she was coming now.” Avery reminded.

“Why, are you afraid of me?” After Elliot said these words calmly, he sat down on the sofa again.

Seeing Elliot’s appearance, Avery planned to have a good talk with Layla.

So Avery said to Layla: "If you're not busy at the moment, come over here! Tell your dad well, and he will give it to you." At the end, she added: "Your sister and I are going out to buy new year's goods."

Layla whipped in pain: "Mom, can't you go later? I'll call Hazel, why don't you go later!"

Avery: "Your dad wants to talk to you alone."

Layla: "Okay! Daddy won't scold me, will he?"

Avery: "He agrees with you moving to Eric's house, so why would he object to you getting the certificate? As long as you speak well and be sincere, he will definitely not make things difficult for you."

With her mom, Layla was a little less nervous.

"Why didn't you call me when you went to buy New Year's goods?" Layla changed the subject, "In the past, we went to do New Year's goods together."

"The situation is different this year! You have moved to Eric's place, don't Eric's family have to do New Year's goods? You usually work hard, and you have to take care of Eric, so I didn't call you." Avery explained her.

"I'm so busy at work..." After saying this, Layla thought that she was a little busy recently, and changed her words again, "I'm really a little busy these days. Then go buy new year's goods! Help me Buy one, and I'll take it directly to Eric's house when the time comes."

If Eric's body didn't have to rest at home, Layla would definitely go shopping with Eric to buy new year's goods.

It's just that the situation was special now, and Layla didn't bother to do it alone.

"Okay! Think about it and see if you have anything special to add. If not, I'll just buy it." From the corner of Avery's eyes, she saw Hazel walking down the stairs.

Layla: "You can buy whatever you want! Then I will go to find my dad now."

Avery: "Well. Be careful driving on the road."

Avery's casual reminder stunned Layla.

The car she was driving now belonged to Eric because hers had been sent in for maintenance.

But Eric's car was also excellent; if her dad asked, she only needed to come up with an excuse.

After Avery took Hazel out, Elliot immediately called for the driver and asked the driver to pick up Eric.

Obtaining a marriage certificate was a big deal.

Layla wanted to unilaterally force Eric to obtain the certificate, but Elliot felt ashamed.

How could Layla suffer such grievances?

As long as Elliot was alive, he couldn't ignore his daughter's affairs.

On the way back from work, Layla bought a bouquet of carnations when she passed by a flower shop in order to please her dad.

Although it was difficult to say, it was simple to say that it was difficult to please her dad.

Any gift for her dad was unnecessary because he didn't like snacks or flowers.

But her Dad was also easy to coax. His attitude would be much better if she just said something gentle to him.

Half an hour later, Layla drove back to Foster's house. She held flowers and kept a big smile on her face.

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2849—The bodyguard was in front of her, walked to the door of the villa first, and opened the door for her.

Before Layla changed her shoes, she saw her dad and... Eric sitting on the sofa.

The smile on Layla's face froze immediately.

Why was Eric here?

Did he come by himself, or did Dad find him?

"Dad." Layla called Dad first, then quickly changed her slippers, strode up to Eric, and asked, "Why are you here?"

"I asked the driver to pick him up." Elliot looked at the flowers in his daughter's arms, "Who did you buy them for?"

Layla immediately hugged the flowers in front of her daddy, "Of course it's for you. Dad, why did you call him here?"

"Don't you want to get the household registration book at home? Since you need to get the certificate, you got it alone?" Elliot took the flower and handed it to the waiting maid.

The maid immediately took the flowers and put them aside.

After Elliot finished speaking, Eric looked at Layla in surprise.

Obviously, Eric only knew about Layla's plan after hearing what Elliot said.

"Why are you looking at me like that?" Layla looked straight into his eyes and said confidently, "I said the wedding will be held in half a year, but didn't I say that I will get the certificate in half a year?"

Eric couldn't say no to her.

After all, he had already accepted her to move to his house, and it would be very fake to refuse now.

Elliot picked up the water glass on the coffee table, took a sip of water, moistened his throat, and expressed his attitude.

"Eric, although you are relatively weak now, I can't ask too much of you, but there must be rules. If you want to marry my daughter, you have to follow my rules." Elliot made a request.

Layla raised her eyebrows: "What rules, Dad? Why didn't I know you have rules?"

"You can't be perfect without rules." Elliot gave his daughter a cold look, "First of all, you must have a diamond ring for engagement. Secondly, you must kneel on one knee."

Layla couldn't laugh or cry.

Unexpectedly, her dad, who was serious and unsmiling, would say such a thing.

"Dad, did you propose to my mom in this way? Why have I never heard of this process?" Layla was not as nervous as before.

"My marriage with your mom was arranged by the elders. It's different from your situation." Elliot said seriously, "If he doesn't follow my instructions, I can't give you the household registration book."

Elliot had a tough attitude and a domineering tone. Layla knew that if she didn't follow what her dad said, she would definitely not get the household registration book. So she immediately compromised: "Then I'll go buy a diamond ring now."

"He should buy it, not you." Elliot corrected his daughter.

"Dad, he can't go out. Mom said he has to recuperate at home." Layla helped Eric speak, "We need to analyze specific things in detail! We can't be so rigid."

"As long as he has money, he can naturally buy a diamond ring without leaving home. It depends on whether he wants to buy it or not." Elliot said lightly.

Layla understood what her dad meant. So she walked up to Eric and discussed with Eric: "You find someone to buy a diamond ring. I proposed to us today to get the certificate. Otherwise, it would be unfair for the two of us to live together. I don't like it."

Layla's words made Eric nod his head.

Eric really couldn't let Layla suffer this kind of grievance.

"Another day! Today is too hasty." Eric couldn't just buy a diamond ring for Layla.

He had to give her the best because he was going to marry her.

"But I want to get a certificate with you today. I don't know why, I can't control myself." Layla begged, "You buy a ring and propose to me first."

"There is a jewelry store near our neighborhood." Layla held out her hand to Eric, "Give me your wallet. I'll ask our driver to buy it."

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2850—A look of embarrassment flashed across Eric's eyes.

"I didn't bring my wallet."

When Elliot sent the driver to pick up Eric, Eric thought something serious happened, he didn't have time to bring anything except his phone.

"Use my mobile phone to pay the bill. You can buy it with the driver. Otherwise, the size may not be suitable." Eric handed his mobile phone to Layla.

Layla took his mobile phone, pressed the power button, and the screen displayed to enter the password.

“What’s your mobile phone password?” Layla asked with a blushing face.

“Your birthday.” Eric’s face was also a little red, “All the passwords in the phone, the four-digit number is your birth month and day, and the six-digit number is your year, month and day.”

Layla wouldn’t be so embarrassed if it wasn’t at Mom and Dad’s.

She took Eric’s cell phone and ran out like an escape.

Elliot stared at Eric and asked, “When did you change the password to my daughter’s birthday?”

“After she moved to my house.” Eric explained, “In case I have an accident one day, she can help me deal with the funeral.”

“My daughter is here to handle the funeral for you.” Elliot sneered.

“My parents can also take care of my funeral.” Eric said calmly, “I know your family is not short of money, and Layla is not short of money, but I have nothing to give her now except money.”

This topic was a bit heavy.

Elliot didn’t confront him like before, he had to win him to relieve his anger.

“As long as my daughter is with you, you must make her happy. Whatever she wants, as long as you can do it, you must listen to her.” Elliot made his request.

Eric: “Um.”

Eric shook his head: “No.”

“If you want to spend the New Year with your parents, you can. I just want my daughter to come back for the New Year.” Elliot expressed his attitude.

This year was Hazel’s first year after returning to Foster’s house, so Elliot paid special attention to it.

This year’s Spring Festival, their family must spend the New Year together.

"I listen to Layla's arrangements. She has already drawn my parents into her camp. My parents listen to her now." Eric was very helpful.

"Because your parents know that Layla is the best choice you can find." In Elliot's eyes, his daughter was naturally the best in the world.

Eric had nothing to refute, so he didn't answer.

in the shopping mall.

As the end of the year approaches, the decorations in the shopping mall were full of New Year's flavor.

There were also many more people shopping than usual.

Both Hazel and Avery were wearing masks. Two bodyguards followed behind them, and the driver helped them carry their things.

"Mom, that tree is so beautiful!" When Hazel passed a flower shop, she was attracted by the peach tree inside.

The peach tree in the store was full of peach blossoms.

Fresh colors, especially the New Year atmosphere.
