Novel When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2901 -Shea was lying on the hospital bed with no expression on her face.

She fell asleep more and more easily, was more and more difficult to wake up, and her memory was getting worse.

She could feel that she might be leaving this world soon.

She remembered that many years ago, when she was about to die, she begged Wesley to take her away because she didn't want to make Elliot sad.

This time, she was much braver.

She wanted to say goodbye to her family.

When Elliot and Avery rushed to the hospital, Shea fell asleep again.

In fact, Shea had been waiting for them for a while, but she couldn't control her brain now.

Wesley showed Shea's medical records to Avery.

"Her condition is very serious, and all the treatment methods that should be used have been used, with little effect. Moreover, the treatment process is very painful, and she does not want to be treated." Wesley sat down beside the hospital bed and saying, "The doctor does not recommend continuing treatment."

Avery quickly read Shea's medical records.

Avery: "Since there is no plan to treat him, there is no need to stay in the hospital."

Avery's words made Elliot frowned tightly: "Is there really no other way?"

"Elliot, Shea's situation is too serious. I know it's hard for you to accept this result, but Shea is actually very lucky to be alive. I expected her life would not be long." Avery had never dared to tell Elliot about this.

"Elliot, don't blame Avery. The doctor said the same thing. I have already prepared myself." Wesley looked at them calmly, "She doesn't want to see you sad, so when she wakes up, don't be too sad."

Shea woke up after falling asleep for about two hours. She seemed to know someone was waiting for her.

When she woke up, seeing Elliot and Avery, the corners of her mouth immediately turned up, “elder brother...”

“I’m here.” Elliot walked to the hospital bed and held Shea’s hand, “Why didn’t you tell me when you were sick? You used to tell me no matter what happened.”

Shea’s brows and eyes were curved, but she was still smiling.

“The doctor said that my illness can’t be cured. Telling you will only annoy you.” Shea wanted to sit up.

Elliot immediately helped her up and let her lean in his arms.

“Brother, I don’t have any regrets anymore. Hazel is back, and Layla is married. My own two children, Wesley will definitely take good care of them...I’m really happy to see that everyone is doing well.” Shea summed up her life, “Don’t tell the children about my business...they go to school, work, and are very busy, don’t bother them. This year’s Spring Festival, and Layla’s marriage, I have seen them and talked to them a lot, and I have no regrets.”

Elliot hugged her tightly, and precious memories of them kept popping up in his mind.

Shea: “Brother, are you listening to me?”

Elliot: “I heard it all.”

“Brother, are you crying?” Shea heard that Elliot’s voice was hoarse, so she raised her head to see his face.

“Shea, what else can I do for you?” Elliot looked down at her face, “As long as you tell me, I’ll do it for you.”

“Brother, I do have something to ask you.” Shea raised her hand to wipe the tears on Elliot’s cheeks, “I want to die by euthanasia, but Wesley refuses. Let Wesley agree! I don’t want to die. Sometimes I still had trouble with him. I want to die happily, instead of being unconscious and so embarrassed by the pain, it’s not good at all.”

Elliot: “Our country does not allow euthanasia.”

“I know. You take me to a country that allows euthanasia. Brother, I don’t want to forget you. If I don’t die soon, I may not remember you when the time comes...you are my most precious person, is the most precious experience I have come to this world... If I forget you, I will die.”

Elliot was silent.

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 2902-Another week passed.

Shea's funeral was held in a five-star hotel in the city.

According to Shea's wish during her lifetime, only close relatives and friends were invited to attend the funeral.

Hayden rushed back three days ago.

He was bitter about not seeing Shea for the last time.

The last time he and Shea chatted face to face was during the New Year.

Shea took the initiative to chat with him a lot that day, about career, marriage, and family relationship.

Hayden didn't know that it was Shea's last tender farewell to him.

Although Layla met Shea at her wedding, she was too busy entertaining guests that day, so she didn't say a few words to Shea.

After the farewell ceremony, the body would be sent for cremation.

Hayden put his hands on the ice coffin, unwilling to let the staff take the body away.

Avery patted his son on the shoulder, motioning for him to let go.

"Hayden, let her rest in peace!" Wesley said, "She said she had said goodbye to you all. Although I don't know what she said to you, I believe she hopes that you will live a good life in the future and don't be sad for her."

The other side.

Joanna went to the pharmacy to buy menstruation medicine because her menstruation was delayed for nearly ten days.

She searched the Internet for a few days, and there were different opinions on the Internet.

Some said it was okay to delay for a week, while others asked to go to the hospital for examination.

Joanna's menstruation was usually very punctual, and had never been delayed for more than a week.

Sometimes it was advanced or delayed, all within three days. So she entered the pharmacy with a worried mood.

“My period has been delayed for eleven days. Is there any medicine for me?” Joanna whispered to the pharmacy clerk.

The clerk took a look at her: “Are you feeling ill? Do you have a boyfriend? Did you check for early pregnancy?”

Joanna shook her head violently: “I’m not sick. I don’t have a boyfriend either.”

“Oh, then try some menstruation-regulating medicine first. If you still don’t come after taking it, then you have to go to the hospital for an examination.” The clerk took two boxes of menstruation-regulating medicine and walked to the cashier.

Joanna turned on her phone and scanned the QR code to pay.

When she came out of the pharmacy with the medicine in her hand, she suddenly remembered something.

She didn’t have a boyfriend, but she slept with Hayden half a month ago.

The situation was quite special at that time, they did not have any contraceptive measures.

In addition, she had absolutely no experience in this area, and after the incident, she didn’t know that she could take emergency contraceptive pills, so...

Was she pregnant?

Pregnancy couldn’t be that simple, could it?

They only slept together once.

Joanna’s heart was fluctuating, uneasy.

After stepping out of the pharmacy, she finally turned back.

“Is there a pregnancy test?” She asked the clerk with her cheeks flushed.

There was a smile on the clerk’s face: “Didn’t you say you don’t have a boyfriend?”

The clerk smiled and took a box of early pregnancy test strips.

The clerk: “you don’t have a boyfriend but you have s-e-x, right?”

Joanna lowered her head and did not answer.

“Have you taken measures? If you have taken measures, the possibility of pregnancy is still relatively small.” Seeing that she was shy, the clerk stopped teasing her.

Joanna shook her head.

“Okay! Then you go back and test it. The detailed method of use is written on it, and you use it according to the instructions.” After scanning the product, the clerk asked her to scan the code to pay.

After Joanna successfully scanned the code, she immediately put the early pregnancy test paper into the bag.

She trotted all the way back to the rental house.

Shared roommate Juliette spent the last bit of pocket money in her mobile phone, and was packing her luggage at this time, planning to go home.

“Joanna, my house is due in one month. Before it expires, I may come back at any time.” Juliette confessed to Joanna, “Wish me all the best when I go home, I don’t want to be with them again. Let’s have a fight. It’s really hard to live without money.”

“Take it easy with your parents, they can’t possibly want to see you suffer.” Joanna put down the medicine and planned to send Juliette out first.

“What kind of medicine did you buy?” Juliette glanced at the table.

Joanna: “Uh...my period is a few days late, it’s not a big deal.”

“Oh, isn’t it normal to postpone it for a few days? It’s not a few months. I went on a diet for a while, and I didn’t have my period for two months.” Juliette smiled, “Irregular Menstruation is quite normal for women, you don’t have to be worried.”

“Well. Do you still have money to take a taxi?” Joanna helped her push the suitcase, and the two walked out together.

“I still have the taxi fare and some living expenses. Am I thinking about this weekend? My parents should be at home today.” Juliette stopped and took the suitcase from Joanna, “Don’t send it away. This weekend, you should rest at home! I will contact you when I ask my parents for money.”

Joanna didn't take her words seriously.

Opening a milk tea shop was not a small sum.

It would definitely not work without hundreds of thousands.

Juliette had such a big conflict with her family, it's impossible for her parents to give her so much money all at once!

Joanna watched Juliette enter the elevator before turning back to the room.

After locking the door, Joanna took a deep breath.

"Am I really pregnant? Don't!" Joanna said to herself, walked to the coffee table, and took out the early pregnancy test paper from it.

After carefully reading the instructions for use, she opened the package, took out a separately packaged early pregnancy test strip, and then took a urine cup and walked towards the bathroom.

Five minutes later, she came out with a test strip.

She walked to the window and held the test paper up to the light to see if it would turn into two lines.

After staring at the test paper nervously for two minutes, she suddenly remembered that it would take ten minutes to get the result in the manual.

She took a deep breath and walked around the room with the test strip.

"I'm sure I'm not pregnant...how could it be possible once. The sister in our village hasn't conceived after three years of marriage, which shows that pregnancy is not that simple...otherwise, why are there so many infertiles on the street? Educational advertisement?" Joanna walked up and down the living room while doing mental construction for herself.

For a moment, she estimated that ten minutes had passed, so she went to the window again, held the test paper up to the light, and stared at the test line.

"Maybe not..."

"Huh? It seems that there is another..."

"Is there something wrong with my eyes? It always feels like a light gray line."

"Oh my god! I won't be pregnant? I won't?! I'll test it later..."

Joanna put the test paper on the coffee table, picked up her mobile phone, and checked online why there was a faint gray line on the early pregnancy test paper.

—The lines on the early pregnancy test paper will be relatively shallow in the first trimester, and the lines on the early pregnancy test paper will become darker as the pregnancy time gets longer!

—It is most accurate to use morning urine test in the first trimester. A morning urine test is recommended.

—Early pregnancy test paper may not be accurate! It is best to go to the hospital for a blood test or to take a B-ultrasound.

...

The answers on the Internet made Joanna's mood even more tangled and anxious.

In her heart, there was a deep intuition.

She found that things would frequently turn out worse the more she feared them.

She suspected that she was probably pregnant!

She hadn't had a boyfriend yet, hadn't married yet, if she was pregnant, how would she tell her relatives and friends?!
