

When His Eyes Opened Read Novel Chapter 3085

Novel Chapter 3085 -Hazel smiled and handed the tissue to the teacher.

Hazel: "That's why I want to come back. Because here, there are also people who treat me well."

Teacher Rayner wiped away her tears and put on her glasses again: "Siena, how do your current parents treat you? Seeing that you are in good condition now...they should treat you very well, right?"

Hazel nodded: "Yes. They treat me very well."

"Then how long are you going to stay here this time?" Teacher Rayner asked.

Hazel: "About half a month or so! Actually, I really want to go back to the campus to have a look, but the security guard won't let me in."

"Haha! After dinner, I'll take you in for a stroll. The school is still the same, nothing has changed." Teacher Rayner hastily added, "There is still a little change. It has become more dilapidated and older..."

After eating, Hazel asked the bodyguards to wait for him outside the school.

Hazel and Teacher Rayner entered the school together.

The school was indeed still the same, and it was indeed a bit more dilapidated.

"Teacher, I would like to ask you to do one thing for me." Hazel walked on the tree-lined path and told the teacher her purpose, "I have a sum of money here. I want to donate it to the school. This money does not count. There are many, but it can also help some poor students. For example, give poor students a fixed living allowance every month, so that they can have enough food..."

Hazel had been hungry before, so she knew that for some students, it was a happy thing to have a full meal.

Teacher Rayner stopped and looked at the bank card handed over by Hazel: "Is this money you saved from living frugally? You should keep it for yourself! Everyone has their own hardships, and you were able to overcome them back then, and so can others."

Hazel: "I didn't live frugally. These are the extra pocket money my parents gave me. They are very rich. You can accept it! Donate to the school in the name of your students. Information about the poor students who are sponsored. Just help me take a look."

Teacher Rayner: "Is your family really rich? Didn't you lie to me?"

Hazel nodded: "I didn't lie to you. I don't have a job now. If I didn't have money at home, how could I save money. When I make more money in the future, I will donate a new teaching building to the school. The library, and the new computer room..."

Teacher Rayner accepted the bank card with a smile: "You will definitely do something in the future!"

...

When Hazel came out of school, it was already 7 o'clock at night in Thopiaville time.

When Hazel walked out of the school, the bodyguards immediately went up to her.

"Hazel, why did you go in for so long? I think your school is only about the size of a palm. If you don't come out again, I will break in." The bodyguard said and pulled Hazel into the car.

Hazel: "How could something happen to me in school? Although the school is not big, I went into the classroom where I used to teach. Originally, the teacher wanted me to chat with the students who studied at night, but I refused. Now I-I'm not yet a successful person, and I don't have much experience to share with others."

Bodyguard: "Successful experience is nonsense. The most important thing is to cast a good tire."

Hazel: "..."

What the bodyguard said was so reasonable, Hazel didn't know how to refute it.

Back at the hotel, Hazel saw someone in the family group asking her why she didn't reply to the message, so she took a video of returning to the room and sent it to the family group.

The next day, Hazel slept soundly.

At 10 o'clock in the morning, she asked the bodyguards to send herself to the community where Hogan's family was located.

The bodyguard was puzzled: "Miss, what are we doing here?"
